

WWI Exhibit...

The exhibit features photos and written material related to Wartime Clubs for Women, the Chaplain's Aid Association and other groups. The Chaplain's Aid Association provided chaplains with devotional items such as rosaries, medals, religious pictures, books and magazines to distribute to soldiers. Association members were asked to donate money as well as commit to reciting one Hail Mary and one Our Father each day for the well-being of soldiers and sailors.

The exhibit also highlights institutions that arose in response to the spiritual needs of an unprecedented number of enlisted soldiers. The institutions, like the early Military Diocese, are now woven into the fabric of the U.S. military, as well as the history of the archdiocese.

The exhibit will run through December 2018; viewings are by appointment. The exhibit can be viewed online at <http://omeka.archnyarchives.org>

nal's Stewardship Appeal managers, supplemented by seven or eight new employees, working with consultants from CCS Fundraising.

The "hybrid model," which was "almost an experiment" at the outset, Ms. Alonso said, is paying dividends because of the familiarity Cardinal's Appeal personnel enjoy with pastors and parish staff.

She gave high praise to CCS, which she called "the experts of religious capital campaign fund-raising," and cited the excellent working relationship it has fostered, including an eagerness to transfer knowledge and provide mentoring and guidance to archdiocesan staff.

Ferrara briefly outlined a few benchmarks for a successful parish campaign. First and foremost is the direct engagement of the pastor to make one-on-one visits to the top donors in the parish to ask for support for the Renew + Rebuild campaign. Those visits can take place after Mass, in the rectory or at the home of parishioners.

More than $50 million, or nearly 40 percent of the total raised so far, has come from pastor visits.

At the same time he is asking for funds, the pastor will also urge some parishioners to consider being part of a campaign executive committee. The committee helps with the logistics associated with fund-raising receptions, in-pew solicitations and announcement weekends.

Members also are assigned to conduct some one-on-one solicitations themselves. A total of $10.5 million has been raised that way. Another $17.3 million has been raised from in-pew solicitations.

The last benchmark is adhering to a set timeline that gives proven guidance for the best time to publicly announce the campaign in the parish and when to conduct in-pew solicitations.

The "Follow the Plan" mantra becomes easier to adopt when early successes add up as the Renew + Rebuild campaign unfolds within a parish, Ms. Alonso said. Another primary driver is the word-of-mouth response from pastor to pastor.

The good early results have put Renew + Rebuild "a little bit ahead" of the pace expected at the outset, with plenty of parish campaigns still to be conducted, Ms. Alonso said.

"It's like running a marathon," she said. "You can't celebrate too much at the middle."
