The ToolBelt App Is Now Available on the Apple App Store and Google Play

ToolBelt is a better way for general contractors and subcontractors to connect with existing contacts and expand their networks.

Vancouver, WA (June 18, 2019) – ToolBelt Inc. is excited to announce that its mobile app, ToolBelt, is now available for download on the Apple App Store and Google Play. With the residential construction industry facing a skilled labor shortage, ToolBelt is tackling the industry's biggest challenge- limited production capacity. Currently, general contractors and subcontractors rely on word of mouth tactics to connect for projects. This method causes problems for both sides because they have to deal with communication gaps, conflicting schedules, and tapped out networks. ToolBelt bridges the connection gap with one central place for all parties to connect, post open projects, and find available work. Easy-to-use and a valuable tool, the ToolBelt app was created for contractors by contractors.

ToolBelt is accessible to all members of the residential construction industry, with automatic bilingual translation between Spanish and English for projects and messages. Contractors can now communicate with tradespeople quickly, even if they don't speak the same language. ToolBelt doesn't just break language barriers; it also keeps all the important details about projects in one central place, reducing the chance for misunderstandings and errors.

ToolBelt does even more than help contractors communicate. It increases their production capacity and helps them find projects faster than before. Contractors will finally be able to fill their schedules with consistent work and make more money. ToolBelt will create a shift in the way the construction industry communicates and works on projects.

ToolBelt is currently enrolling contractors and tradespeople in the Vancouver/Portland area and is planning on expanding across America by 2020. Download the app today by visiting ToolBelt's website.
