Elvis Presley in his 1968 comeback special

Rocking reflections: Paramount+ revisits Elvis Presley's 1968 comeback special

Elvis Presley's legendary 1968 television special was a turning point not only for him, but for many of the other people involved in it.

One was producer-director Steve Binder, who candidly told the "King" of music that the latter's career was "in the toilet," so he needed to do the NBC-televised hour. The result quickly became a legendary piece of television, and Paramount+ looks back at it in the new offering "Reinventing Elvis: The '68 Comeback," which starts streaming Tuesday, Aug. 15 — the night before the 46th anniversary of Presley's death, and following the project's limited showings in movie theaters globally.

While incorporating many segments from the original show, "Reinventing Elvis" examines Presley's relationship not only with Binder (who narrates the bulk of the film), but also with Col. Tom Parker, the famously strict manager who kept tight control over Presley. Singers Darius Rucker and Drake Milligan are among those who offer comments, along with journalist Alanna Nash and Anita Mann, who was a dancer on the 1968 special.

Also an executive producer of "Reinventing Elvis," Binder maintains that he's "real pleased with what they did" creatively with the documentary, though he admits he was skeptical at first. "When I was approached to get involved, I said, 'There are so many third-party stories about Elvis, why do we need another one?'" Then they pitched me their idea, and it really covered 1968 as a whole. I was rooting for them from the sidelines, and I certainly was responsive to any of their requests for more material."

Music-documentary veteran John Scheinfeld — who also has done projects on John Lennon, John Coltrane, Herb Alpert and Harry Nilsson — directed "Reinventing Elvis," which also has music-industry legend Spencer Proffer, a longtime Binder associate, as the executive producer who conceived it. "There are so few of us alive today who were there when it all happened," Binder reflects of the 1968 Elvis show. "There have been specials and books about it, but I never felt that anybody who was there told the real story.

"I was there from the beginning to the end, and it's so gratifying today to realize what the public response to it was. A number of years ago, somebody approached me and said, 'Steve, you realize that no matter what you did in the past or do from here on in, you'll be remembered mostly for the Elvis comeback special' ... and I think they told the truth."

The entirety of "Reinventing Elvis" serves as a reminder of how major a star Presley was in his time. "We're so lucky that we partnered with Paramount+," Binder notes, "because many of Elvis' movies were done at Paramount, so we were given access to their library and were able to include clips from his films. That was just a stroke of luck, and it sure adds to this. None of the other projects that have been done about the 1968 special were able to clear those rights, I guess."

For Binder, "Reinventing Elvis" has a personal significance that goes beyond his literally having called the shots on the classic special. "I have nine grandkids and a great-grandchild," he reports, "and the fact that they're able to relive this with me now while I'm here is such a bonus and such a pleasure. And it just looks so fresh, even to me, which is very rare when you look back at an old show."

Checking in with BILLY GARDELL

It isn't hard to find Billy Gardell on television these days.

The actor-comedian remains visible in Nick at Nite and CMT repeats of "Mike & Molly," the sitcom in which he and Melissa McCarthy starred as a plus-sized couple. At the same time, a considerably slimmed-down version of Gardell can be seen Mondays in the CBS sitcom "Bob Hearts Abishola," another humorous love story that will be undergoing a slimdown of its own for its upcoming fifth season: Gardell and fellow title star Polake Olowofoyeku will be the only cast members returning full-time, with the others who have been regulars placed on "recurring" status, with each appearing in a limited number of episodes (at least five, and possibly more).

Gardell has reported that he lost 150 lbs., prompted initially by a diagnosis of Type 2 diabetes. He initially took off 30 lbs., then recognized the health risk his weight posed at the start of the coronavirus pandemic. At that point, he underwent bariatric weight-loss surgery, and he notes that he has altered his eating and exercising in order to maintain his current physique.

"Bob Hearts Abishola" began on a note that Gardell certainly relates to, since the series opened with his character undergoing hospitalization and treatment for a minor heart attack. Abishola was the nurse who cared for Bob medically, and after falling for her, he convinced her to give a romantic relationship with him a whirl. (The husband she had, who had come to America with her, returned to their native Nigeria; she and Bob eventually married.)

Whether he's playing Mike or Bob, then, Gardell has a big stake in combining love and laughs on TV — and though he's still in "Abishola" territory now, don't be surprised if he gets a chance for yet another series love match once his current show is over.

tonight's picks

The Amazing Spider-Man

(59) 7 p.m.

Andrew Garfield stars as Peter Parker in this take on Spider-Man's famous origin story. After being bitten by a genetically altered spider, Peter develops enhanced agility, reflexes and strength. Soon he must save his city from the Lizard (Rhys Ifans).

CMT Summer Sessions

(204) 8 p.m.

It's time for some country music down by the lake. This series features the perfect summertime soundtrack from a star-studded lineup of country's hottest stars as they share new music and some of their biggest hits at a lake in Tennessee.

Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives

(31) 8 p.m.

Guy Fieri dives into dumplings from around the world. A Japanese joint fires up meaty gyozas, while a Nepalese spot showcases their traditional fare and a Lebanese-Armenian oasis puts out a dumpling dish.

Praise Petey

(15) 9:30 p.m.

Two new episodes air, ending with the Season 1 finale. Petey prepares to support disappointed cult members in the aftermath of a supposedly fated comet - that is, until she begins to wonder what her life would look like without the cult's devotion.

How to With John Wilson

(401) 10 p.m.

The third and final season of this odd (and often surreal) docuseries continues, as filmmaker John Wilson embarks on one final odyssey of self-discovery and observation by covertly filming the reactions of fellow New Yorkers while he shares advice.
