FRESH fruits and vegetables don't have to be expensive if you buy them in season and many are in season year round. To learn more, visit www.sdharvestofthemonth.com

FROZEN fruits and vegetables are packed and frozen within hours of harvest, so they don't lose their flavor or nutritional value. Try steaming vegetables in the microwave or stovetop rather than boiling to keep in more nutrients.

CANNED fruits and vegetables often get a bad rap but they are still nutritious. Choose 100% fruit juice with no added sugar and vegetables with no sale added. Remember to drain the water, juice, or syrup and rinse with water to help remove some of the extra sugar and salt.

Boldly going: 'Star Trek' prequel explores 'Strange New Worlds' again

A prequel series in one of sci-fi's most iconic franchises is ready to go, boldly, back to the roots of the saga.

"Star Trek: Strange New Worlds" begins its 10-episode second season Thursday, June 15, on Paramount+, as it continues the exploits of the starship Enterprise when it was under the command of Capt. Christopher Pike (Anson Mount, "Doctor Strange in the Multiverse of Madness," 2022), the predecessor of the vessel's legendary later skipper, James T. Kirk (played by "The Vampire Diaries" Paul Wesley, who reprises the recurring role in Season 2). Spun off from another prequel show, "Star Trek: Discovery," "Strange New Worlds" has even more in store for fans: A third season already has been ordered, ahead of the premiere of Season 2.

"We have tried to harken back to some of the values and styles of the original series that got those of us who are a little older ignited on our 'Star Trek' journeys," explains executive producer Akiva Goldsman. "In doing so, we've tried to look back and interpolate some parts of the original series that might not have made it to the screen, some things that might have happened just before Jim Kirk took over the Enterprise. And, as such, some familiar faces are finding new life."

Mount brought his Pike portrayal over from "Star Trek: Discovery," which also featured Ethan Peck ("In Time," 2011) as Spock and Rebecca Romijn ("X-Men," 2000) as Number One before they made the journey to "Strange New Worlds." Nurse Chapel (played by Jess Bush, "Playing For Keeps") and Ensign Uhura (Celia Rose Gooding, "Broadway Whodunit: Escape From Camp Eerie," 2020) are among other long-familiar characters who make their "Strange New Worlds" presence known. The second season of "Strange New Worlds" also includes Carol Kane ("Hunters") in a recurring role.

"There was something about 'Star Trek' that was so far off the radar for me," reflects "Hell on Wheels" alum Mount, who also is the character Black Bolt in the Marvel Cinematic Universe. "It wasn't even on my bucket list. I just never thought I would end up captaining the Enterprise. It's insane when you think about it. And every single day I'm on the set — I'm not exaggerating — is both disbelief and a feeling of tremendous gratitude."

A particularly intriguing crossover story is part of Season 2 of "Star Trek: Strange New Worlds," which will merge temporarily with "Star Trek: Lower Decks" ... an animated show. Franchise veteran Jonathan Frakes ("Star Trek: The Next Generation") directed that story, which features the voices of Tawny Newsome ("Space Force") and Jack Quaid ("The Boys") in their "Lower Decks" parts — and challenges traditional "Star Trek" boundaries by combining live action and animation.

Still, Goldsman maintains that he and his staff "are, by nature, people who like coloring books, and we sort of like staying within the lines as much as we can. We're 'Star Trek' fans, so (adhering to established) canon is almost always delightfully challenging, except when it's really a pain in the a—. But within reason, we still try to skew as closely to it as possible."

The adventure continues when Season 2 of "Star Trek: Strange New Worlds" premieres on Paramount+ Thursday, June 15.

Series television has had its share of judges, but Steve Harvey maintains he first thought of joining that parade long ago.

The comedian and "Family Feud": host is in his second season of "Judge Steve Harvey," the ABC series that sees him take the bench and mete out his distinctive brand of justice to those who enter his courtroom. The show moves to Wednesdays starting June 14, and as unlikely as it may seem for Harvey to be in that role with his caustically humorous bent, he deems it a natural fit for him.

He says the "Judge Steve Harvey" concept originated with him more than a decade ago, and " I just never told anybody. I never sat in a pitch room about it. I never met with a network about it. I never discussed it with my team, my production company, nothing. I just had this idea.

"We were on a Zoom call during COVID with, I guess, about eight execs from ABC, and they were very high-level people. They had got on the phone to pitch a scripted show for me, a sitcom. And they got through talking; and it was a great idea, but I wasn't that enthusiastic about doing a sitcom anymore. So, the president of ABC said to me, 'Well, Steve, what would you like to do if you could do anything?'"

Given that opening, Harvey took it: "I said, 'Well, I always wanted to be a judge on TV' And the Zoom got kind of quiet. They went, like, 'A judge?' Everybody was looking at me, trying to figure out where that came from. And I told them I wanted it to be funny. I wanted it to be insightful. I wanted it to be not about the verdict, but about the story. And the next day, they greenlit it."
