Space based: Celebrities compete in simulated Mars mission in 'Stars on Mars'

Ever since Amazon magnate Jeff Bezos' trip into space last year, there has been plenty of speculation about the rise of space tourism and which celebrities would be among the first to achieve liftoff. Well, for those wondering what it might look like to take things a step further and host a star-studded reality show in space, Fox has got you covered. The new series, "Stars on Mars," premieres Monday, June 5.

Equal parts Bravo and Star Trek, "Stars on Mars" is hosted by Capt. Kirk himself, William Shatner ("Star Trek: The Original Series"). While not actually filmed in outer space (give that a few more years yet), the unscripted series follows a group of celebrities who must spend an entire summer on a simulated, Mars-like planet together. Constantly assigned tasks by mission control (Shatner, of course), each famous person will need to compete in a series of challenges with the aim of "colonizing" their out-of-this-world surroundings.

There is a good mix of skills among the 12-person crew, including actors, athletes, public figures and philanthropists. Actors Ariel Winter ("Modern Family"), Tallulah Willis ("The Whole Ten Yards," 2004) and Christopher Mintz-Plasse ("Superbad," 2007), for example, will be joined by reality TV stars Porsha Williams Guobadia ("The Real Housewives of Atlanta") and Tom Schwartz ("Vanderpump Rules"), as well as singer/songwriter Tinashe (known for "2 On," featuring ScHoolboy Q). Meanwhile, rounding out the more athletic side are Tour de France multi-champion Lance Armstrong, UFC champion Ronda Rousey, former Seattle Seahawk Marshawn Lynch, former NFL cornerback Richard Sherman and Olympic figure skater Adam Rippon. Comedian Natasha Leggero ("Another Period") joins from a category of her very own.

In a news release, Fox executives laid out their hopes for the celebs on their "Martian" mission: "During their stay, they will be faced with authentic conditions that simulate life on Mars, and they must use their brains and brawn — or maybe just their stellar social skills — to outlast the competition and claim the title of 'brightest star in the galaxy.'"

This "analog mission," as NASA typically refers to these types of simulations, is filmed in the South Australian town of Coober Pedy, a red-sanded desert town nearly 850 kilometres north of Adelaide that is famous for its opals. And while each celebonaut voted "off the planet" during the competition does still need to return to the United States, there remains the small consolation that the flight home isn't quite as long as that from actual Mars.

Don't miss the launch of Shatner and crew's next mission as "Stars on Mars" begins Monday, June 5, on Fox.

Checking in with DIANE FARR

Diane Farr brought experience with her to "Fire Country" ... not from having been a firefighter, but from also having played one before.

Now a cast regular opposite star and executive producer Max Thieriot and others on the Friday CBS drama series (also streaming on Paramount+) that is headed toward its second season, the actress is skilled in both comedy ("The Drew Carey Show") and drama ("Grey's Anatomy"), but her serious side got a workout early in the run of the Denis Leary-led fire-company-themed show "Rescue Me." As she now plays the fire-division-chief mother of Thieriot's convict and volunteer-fireman character, Farr is finding elements of that earlier job useful.

Actually, she points out that "Fire Country" is "my third time" depicting that profession, the first being in the 2002 TV movie "Superfire." She says that for that, "I had to learn how to fly a Cessna. For the second job, I had to learn everything, because nobody thought I could be a firefighter. I trained with three ladies in three states. It was super-hard.

"And I didn't know what Cal Fire was before this," Farr notes about the organization "Fire Country" dramatizes. "I didn't understand the difference between a structure fire and an outdoor fire. I understood the concept that firefighters are running in the building when everybody else is running out. It's like they come with a built-in hero (mindset). Even shooting in Vancouver, it was 112 (degrees) the first week we were there. We were in a rainforest. It's not equipped to have that much heat with that much fuel."

Indeed, Farr emphasizes, "The trees, the leaves, the bushes ... it's fuel, so it feels scarier in the world (rather than in a studio)."

Birthdate: Sept. 7, 1969

Birthplace: New York

Current residence: Los Angeles

Marital status: Married; has three children, including twin daughters

Other television work includes: "Charmed," "The Good Doctor," "Bluff City Law," "Splitting Up Together," "Chance," "Two and a Half Men," "Modern Family," "Private Practice," "The Secret Life of the American Teenager," "The Mentalist," "CSI: Miami," "Grey's Anatomy," "White Collar," "Desperate Housewives," "Californication," "Numb3rs," "Rescue Me," "Like Family," "Arliss," "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation," "The Job," "Roswell," "It's Like, You Know ...," "The Drew Carey Show," "Arlis$$," "V.I.P.," "In the House," "Unhappily Ever After"

Movie work includes: "Palm Swings," "American Romance," "12 Feet Deep," "Road Hard," "WildLike," "Almost Broadway," "About Cherry," "The Third Nail," "Hourly Rates," "Flooding," "Little Indiscretions," "Bingo"

First movie role: "Divorced White Male."

First TV credit: A "Silk Stalkings" guest shot, playing "Production Assistant."
