Amanda Peet stars in the series version of "Fatal Attraction" that premieres Sunday on Paramount+.

'Fatal Attraction' strikes anew as Paramount+ series

As a hit 1987 movie, "Fatal Attraction" started a national conversation on the possible price of infidelity.

The story may do that again in a Paramount+ series version that begins streaming Sunday, April 30, both re-creating and expanding upon the original premise. Joshua Jackson ("The Affair," "Dawson's Creek") assumes Michael Douglas' earlier role as Dan Gallagher, a husband, father and legal eagle hoping to become a judge ... but his plans are altered by an encounter with victims'-rights advocate Alex Forrest (Lizzy Caplan, in Glenn Close's previous part).

A fling results while Dan's wife Beth (Amanda Peet) is away, and though he doesn't see it as an ongoing situation, Alex has other ideas that eventually turn distinctly dangerous. The show alternates between extended flashbacks and an update of the central characters' lives, now including Dan and Beth's daughter Ellen (seen in the movie as a child) as a young adult, played by Alyssa Jirrels.

Inheriting Anne Archer's film role, the pleasant Peet says she was "familiar" with the original "Fatal Attraction" and "loved it." However, she considers the series' approach needed "for Alex's character, and seeing things through the prism of what we know now about mental illness. One of the biggest (changes) is the daughter, since she has some searing memories, and we lean into that storyline."

Also a writer-producer who co-created the Netflix series "The Chair," Peet was brought into "Fatal Attraction" by writer and executive producer Alexandra Cunningham, for whom she played convicted killer Betty Broderick in the series "Dirty John." Ironically, Peet originally was asked to suggest other actresses to portray Beth, "and then (Cunningham) was like, 'Why don't you just do it?' And I was like, 'OK. I thought you'd never ask!'"

Depicting parts of the story that span 15 years necessitates different looks for Peet, who notes that aspect has required "a fair amount" of time with the show's hair and makeup staff. "It's not horrible, and our amazing team got really good at making it as quick as possible. Mostly, we tried to shoot all the scenes for one time period together (for a given episode), so that we wouldn't have to spend a lot of extra time on the changeover."

The wife of "Game of Thrones" writer-producer David Benioff (and mother to their three children), Peet also has made such movies as "Something's Gotta Give" and "The Whole Nine Yards" and the series "Togetherness" and "Brockmire." She maintains that being an actress for hire again, after overseeing so many of "The Chair's" creative elements, is "a different type of stress. But there's nothing like rolling into the office in your sweatpants, which was what I got to do on 'The Chair.'"

Checking in with BETH BEHRS

After passing its 100th episode, and now heading toward its sixth year, "The Neighborhood" still feels like home for Beth Behrs.

The "2 Broke Girls" alum is enjoying another long CBS sitcom run as she plays wife, mom and school principal Gemma on the Monday show whose stars also include Cedric the Entertainer, Max Greenfield and Tichina Arnold. One major reason Behrs is happy the show will keep going next season is the kinship she feels with her "Neighborhood" co-stars and the crew members.

"No matter what's happening in my personal life, I come here and I laugh all day long with these people," she says. "I've never been around a tighter crew of 300 people, (with) the way everyone stands up for each other. When someone gets cancer or someone needs fertility treatments, this is a cast and crew that literally comes together and pools all of our money and fights for our own, and I've never been a part of something like that ... so that's why we want to do 200 more (episodes). We just want to hang out all day."

Just as she spent much of her 20s playing waitress turned cupcake seller Caroline on "2 Broke Girls," Behrs notes that her time on "The Neighborhood" is spanning her 30s.

"It's like you are growing up with your character," she reflects, "and it's just kind of meta and cool to play out. I'm excited to see what we can do in the future because, like Cedric said, there's just so many ways to go with this. These families (on the show) are growing in real time, in real-world society, like all of us are."

Movie: Come September

The big day is closing in, and as Mark's (Ames McNamara) graduation approaches, he considers his relationship with his father. Meanwhile, Louise (Katey Sagal) plans a big graduation ceremony at the Lunch Box in the Season 5 finale episode "The Grad Finale." John Goodman, Laurie Metcalf, Sara Gilbert and Lecy Goranson also appear.

The Goldbergs

9 9 7:30 p.m.

After 10 seasons on the air, "The Goldbergs" bids farewell in this series finale. The family comedy is a humorous take on creator Adam F. Goldberg's own experiences growing up in the 1980s, and features Patton Oswalt as the narrator.

Not Dead Yet

9 9 8 p.m.

Nell (Gina Rodriguez) decides to see her ex, hoping for closure. Meanwhile, Sam (Hannah Simone) and Lexi (Lauren Ash) have a joint birthday party for their daughters in the new episode "Not a Fairytale Yet." has to make a potentially life-altering decision. Rick Glassman and Angela Elayne Gibbs also star.

A Million Little Things

9 9 9 p.m.

Friendships sometimes run their course. And even if they don't, television friendships eventually find themselves on the wrong side of programming. This series finale finds Eddie (David Giuntoli), Rome (Romany Malco), Maggie (Allison Miller), Regina (Christina Moses) and Katherine (Grace Park) with personal decisions to make and a sense of growth. It seems that sometimes saying goodbye is harder than expected.

The series finale of "The Goldbergs" airs Wednesday on ABC.
