'Magnum P.I.' is back in business, now on NBC

celebrity scoop

The current "Night Court" boasts many new characters, but Melissa Rauch vows that the originals are being kept firmly in mind.

"That was our mission going into this," says the alum of "The Big Bang Theory" who's both a star and (along with her husband) an executive producer of NBC's Tuesday "Court" revival. "So much of this is not only honoring the characters of the original show, but also the actors and what they created there, while also making this new for people who maybe haven't seen that."

At the same time, Rauch is grateful that multiple Emmy winner John Larroquette agreed to reprise his role as prosecutor turned public defender Dan Fielding ... who's now both a foil and an inspiration to Rauch's Judge Abby Stone, daughter of the first show's Harry Stone (played by the late Harry Anderson). "Every take from him is something fresh and new," Rauch notes in praise of Larroquette. "Even though I was on a show for over a decade, there are a lot of firsts for me in this experience."

Rauch has fond childhood memories of devotedly watching the original "Night Court," which ran from 1984 to 1992 and was shown recently on the cable network Laff.

"Magnum P.I." rose from the television ashes once before, and now, the show is doing it again.

The Hawaii-based detective series that made Tom Selleck a star had a second life on CBS, in a reboot that put Jay Hernandez in the title role. That version lasted four years on that network, and its cancellation was met with an outcry by fans ... who then got a reprieve when NBC picked up the drama for two 10-episode runs. The first of those begins Sunday, Feb. 19, as Magnum and his personal and professional partner Juliet Higgins (Perdita Weeks) search for a woman who was with a married-to-someone-else man when he died in a car accident.

"It was incredibly humbling, the outpouring of support," executive producer Eric Guggenheim reflects of the fan base that has kept "Magnum P.I." going. "I mean, there was a billboard in (New York's) Times Square! Jay and I were both saying that we couldn't believe it. We knew we had a loyal audience, but the way they rallied was just so moving. We really owe it to the fans to deliver for them. They did their part in helping to rescue the show."

In that spirit, Guggenheim – who also was an executive producer of the CBS reboot of "Hawaii Five-0" – promises more of the "Magnum" mix of "humor and mystery and a little bit of action. I will say that I think this (fifth) season is probably the most emotional one we've done. It's also probably the most serialized." Indeed, a continuing plot involves the former military commander (played by returnee James Remar) of Magnum and his pals Rick and TC (Zachary Knighton, Stephen Hill); also, former police detective Gordon Katsumoto (Tim Kang) seeks reinstatement.

The new police foil for Magnum is Chris Childs, played by Michael Rady ("Chicago Med"). "He's very different than Katsumoto," Guggenheim explains. "He's cockier and he's more willing to break the rules, and he just adds this new element that's so great for us."

Arguably the biggest development, though, is the romance between Magnum and Higgins – which they try to keep to themselves, at least initially. "Things are certainly more complicated than ever between them," Guggenheim acknowledges. "These two characters are opposites in so many ways that no matter what we do with them moving forward, we're always going to have that sort of friction between them."

While well into production on the new "Magnum" stories, Guggenheim admits, "Even now, I'm like, 'Wow. Did we really cheat death? Are we really back?' Any time you get renewed, you feel kind of blessed, but this is really special. It makes all of us appreciate each other and the show even more."

"My parents knew that TV was my everything," she reflects, "so they let me have a set in my bedroom. I remember watching (the show) in black-and-white and just being transfixed. I knew there were things that went over my head, but it was unlike anything else on TV at the time. As funny and irreverent as it was, there were moments where it hit real, and there was something exciting in that."

Birthdate: June 23, 1980

Birthplace: Marlboro Township, N.J. Current residence: Los Angeles

Marital status: Married to fellow "Night Court" executive

WEDNESDAY EVENING

7 p.m. on 🕄 ᢃ The Price Is Right at Night

Wednesday

Sure you could take your significant other to a romantic restaurant or a destination weekend. but perhaps a visit to "The Price is Right" is just as good? On the new episode "Date Night," couples get a chance to win amazing prizes including romantic getaways for two to Bali, Iceland and Greece, a new boat, $50,000 in cash, a private chef for a year, and much, much more. Of course, it's only better if they win.

German director F.W. Murnau ("Nosferatu") helmed this 1927 silent film in which a woman from

54th Annual NAACP Image

Awards It's a powerhouse list of nominees at this year's awards, but perhaps none is more interesting than the Entertainer of the Year category, as all nominees are women: Angela Bassett, Mary J. Blige, Viola Davis, Zendaya and Quinta Brunson. The Outstanding Motion Picture category consists of "A Jazzman's Blues." "Black Panther: Wakanda Forever," "Emancipation," "The Woman King," and "Till."

Movie: Made for Each Other Searching for perfection can get old real quick. A sculptor (Alexandra Turshen) uses magic to mold her ideal man (Aaron O'Connell) into existence, thinking he'd be exactly what she wanted. But during the process she begins to fall for her real-life friend (Matt Cohen) and embraces the flaws that make love perfectly imperfect in this 2023 romance. Illeana Douglas and Erik Athavale also star.

Jamie Foxx received a Screen Actors Guild Award nomination as best supporting actor for his work in this fact-based 2019 legal drama, in which he plays Walter McMillian, a Black prison inmate on Death Row for the 1986 murder of Ronda Morrison, a white woman. McMillian's case catches the attention of idealistic young Harvard law graduate Bryan Stevenson (a top-billed Michael B. Jordan), who has teamed up with a kindred spirit (Brie Larson) to found the Equal Justice Initiative. Rob Morgan, Tim Blake Nelson and Rafe Spall also star.
