Dolly Parton brings a 'Mountain Magic Christmas' to NBC

Music has played a big part in Tom Everett Scott's acting career, and thanks to Dolly Parton, that's continuing.

Well-known for his first major role, as the drummer for The Wonders, the fictional '60s pop group in "That Thing You Do!" – the 1996 movie written and directed by co-star Tom Hanks – Scott plays Parton's real-life producing partner Sam Haskell in NBC's new film "Dolly Parton's Mountain Magic Christmas" Thursday, Dec. 1. Clearly inspired by Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," the tale finds the country superstar on a journey through her personal past (guided by "Three Wise Mountain Men") while making a holiday television special at her Dollywood resort.

"I've never played someone who was right there on the set watching me before," the friendly Scott says, reporting that it ultimately was "a totally positive thing. (Haskell) is the greatest guy. He and I first got to know each other over Zoom, and he could not have been more supportive."

Jimmy Fallon, Willie Nelson, Billy Ray Cyrus, Jimmie Allen, Zach Williams and Miley Cyrus make guest appearances in the story, which also features "Saturday Night Live" alum Ana Gasteyer. An executive producer of the project as well, Parton keeps it a family affair by also including her young grand-nephew Liam Rauhoff, who portrays himself, in the cast.

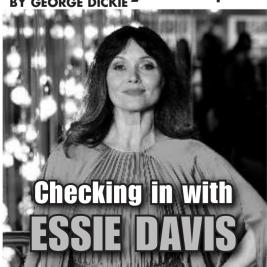

"I have always loved and been a huge fan of Dolly Parton," Scott maintains, "and I was honored to be able to work with her. She's everything that everybody wonders and hopes she is, and more. I just had a great experience, and I miss it. I miss my Tennessee 'family.' "

Scott also enjoyed the show-within-a-show concept that "Dolly Parton's Mountain Magic Christmas" follows. "The whole 'putting on a show' thing is such a big part of being in show business," he reasons. "Learning the little things Sam goes through, his mannerisms when he's stressed out, I liked that. Also, with this being about Christmas, you think of things like 'White Christmas' (which also was, in large part, about the making of a TV special)."

While "That Thing You Do!" would seem to be a popular film among those in the music business, Scott still isn't positive she knew him from that: "It never came up, but she probably knows it, if she knows me and knows that was a big movie for me."

Besides that picture's Hanks, Scott has worked with such other icons as Meryl Streep (in "One True Thing") and Diane Keaton ("Because I Said So"), and he also was in the Oscar-winning "La La Land." He reflects, "It's been a wonderful career, and I certainly hope to keep it going, and to work with more of the greats."

celebrity scoop

Essie Davis is not one wanting for work these days.

Indeed, the actress known for her performances in the films "The Babadook" and the TV series "Miss Fisher's Murder Mysteries" just finished shooting the Netflix dramedy "One Day," plays the title character in the New Zealand drama "The Justice of Bunny King" (which was recently released in the U.S.) and she adds that she has "three or four" films she's developing.

She also has a starring role in an episode of the currently streaming Netflix anthology series "Guillermo Del Toro's Cabinet of Curiosities." In "The Murmuring," Davis plays Nancy Bradley, a 1950s ornithologist who with her husband Edgar (Andrew Lincoln, "The Walking Dead") sequester to an isolated island mansion in Canada to study murmurations – the behaviors and movements of flocks of birds.

The role was an intense one for the Australian actress as her character was fraught with repressed grief years after she and Edgar suffered a profound loss. The isolation and overall spooky atmosphere of their island retreat, where she sees things she can't explain, only added to her inner turmoil.

Yet on the surface she appears to be fine, at least at first, which Davis explains is something of a survival mechanism for a woman of

"Because she's a female scientist," Davis says, "it feels like almost a requirement to put a lid on her feelings in order to not lose her place in amongst the science world and not show the feelings expected from a woman in that world. But you know, both of them have this terrible grief. They've come to parenthood quite late in their relationship and they have this trauma they have to live beyond, through."

"I just knew I had to keep a lid on her until I get to experience being part of a murmuration," she adds.

A clash of NFC teams with sharply contrasting fortunes is on tap tonight in the City of Brotherly Love, as Jalen Hurts and the East-leading Philadelphia Eagles defend home turf from Aaron Rodgers and the Green Bay Packers. The Eagles are one of the year's most pleasant surprises, going undefeated through the season's first two months thanks largely to the performances of Hurts and one of the league's stingiest defenses. Which doesn't bode well for a team that has trouble putting points on the board like the Pack.
