Relations haven't always been rosy between George Lopez and his daughter, and they don't mind the world knowing it.

The comedian and his offspring Mayan play versions of themselves as they revisit their relationship – which was very fractured for some time – in "Lopez vs. Lopez," an NBC comedy premiering Friday, Nov. 4. Co-stars include Matt Shively and Selenis Leyva, and while humor largely is used to show the on-screen family's dysfunction, the real-life George and Mayan admit their estrangement and reconciliation hasn't been a laughing matter in many moments.

"My parents got divorced about 10 years ago," Mayan Lopez says, "and within the last two years, my dad and I really solidified our relationship. There was a time where we didn't speak and were estranged for about three years, but the pandemic brought us back together, and I started making TikToks with my family to reconnect. And ('Lopez vs. Lopez' executive producer) Debby Wolfe was scrolling one day and she saw one of our TikToks, and this was kind of born from that idea."

George Lopez notes differences between doing the new show and having made the earlier sitcoms "George Lopez," "Saint George" and "Lopez." He reflects that after the NBC premiere of an episode, "The next day, you're on (the streaming service) Peacock, and then on you're on NBC again. I think as times have changed, social media has changed and the comedy has changed, yet the (approach) of multicamera (production) doesn't change. To have done it 20 years ago is great, but (so is) to do it now, with people that are incredibly talented and much easier to find than it was 20 years ago."

Wolfe opines, "That's because George Lopez and the show 'George Lopez' really did pave the way and opened up a lot of doors and inspired a lot of Latinx talent to pursue their dreams. And now, here we are. We do have so much great talent (of that ethnicity) coming in, and it is different than it was in the past."

Executive producer Bruce Helford ("The Drew Carey Show," "Roseanne") believes "Lopez vs. Lopez" will be "a fun game for viewers to watch and go, 'Ooh, all of a sudden, there is something there that's very real.' It's an amazing thing to watch, that both George and Mayan are so open to exploring all the things ... not just with the writers, but also what they have to bring from their own experiences together."

Adds Mayan, "This is an experience of a lifetime, to be able to do this with my father. I have studied to be a comedian, but really, the inception of my love of comedy started at a young age."

celebrity scoop

Checking in with HAYLEY ORRANTIA

As sitcom actresses go, Hayley Orrantia of "The Goldbergs" is something of a rarity.

Her show is on a short list of comedies that have lasted at least 10 seasons, joining such venerable series as "M*A*S*H," "Cheers," "Friends" and "Happy Days." And she's also perhaps the only actress to play a character that's based on a real person – who's of the opposite gender.

Her character of Erica, the rebellious eldest child in ABC's Wednesday family comedy "The Goldbergs," is actually based on Eric Goldberg, the brother of series creator Adam F. Goldberg, who used his own family as inspiration for the series.

But the 28-year-old actress says she consulted her real-life counterpart when she took on the role 10 years ago.

"I did get to sit down with Adam F. Goldberg at the beginning of the show ... and he told me a bit about his brother," she says. "But the beautiful thing about my character in particular, because it's the only character based on a different gender person and just kind of different experiences overall since Adam Goldberg or any of his family hadn't been raised with a sister, they didn't have a ton of storylines to go off of particularly with a sister. So it gave me a little bit of free reign to play a little more within who Erica was going to be."

When she's not filming "The Goldbergs," the Texas native is pursuing a career as a recording artist, having released eight singles and an EP during her time on the series. While she admits her songs have elements of country and pop, she's reluctant to pigeonhole them into a genre lest people come to them with preconceived notions.

"Some of the artists that I really admire, they don't kind of box themselves into that," she says. "And so while at the moment some of my stuff is more pop-leaning, I can't confidently tell you that that's where I'll be staying forever."

Full name: Sarah Hayley Orrantia

Birth date: Feb. 21, 1994

Birthplace: Arlington, Texas

Family ties: Single; she's the only child of Daniel and Melody Orrantia

Nature
 Living on every continent except Antarctica and Australia, woodpeckers come in all shapes and sizes, each uniquely engineered for their lifestyles. Some drink sap; others live exclusively in forests ravaged by fire; others catch insects on the wing, acting more like swallows. And still others drill deep into the bark of decaying trees, using their spear-like tongue to fish insects from deep in the cambium.

And finally, Beth (Anjelika Washington) makes a major discovery that leads to a terrifying battle no one saw coming. Like Wilton, Amy Smart, Yvette Monreal, Cameron Gellman, Neil Hopkins, Joy Osmanski and Hunter Sansone also star.
