Brooks gets six years for dealing meth near MMS

By JILL FIER
The Brookings Register

BROOKINGS – A Brookings man who distributed methamphetamine within 1,000 feet of Mickelson Middle School last year has been sentenced to six years in prison.

Brent Brooks, 51, pleaded guilty on Aug. 23 to one count each of distributing meth and violating a drug-free zone. The distribution happened on or about Dec. 29, 2021, according to a Brookings County grand jury indictment.

Both counts are Class 4 felonies punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $20,000 fine apiece. Distributing meth has a mandatory minimum sentence of one year in prison for a first-time conviction, and violating a drug-free zone has a mandatory minimum sentence of five years in prison.

Brookings County State's Attorney Dan Nelson said in court last month that Brookings Police were given information by several informants regarding Brooks. Surveillance also showed that Brooks sold meth to a person at his residence, 930 Southland Lane No. 6, Nelson added.

In exchange for Brooks' guilty pleas, three additional felony charges – distributing meth, violating a drug-free zone, and possession with intent to distribute meth – were dismissed, and no other charges will be brought against him. The state deferred to the court regarding sentencing.

At sentencing Tuesday, defense attorney Jennifer Goldammer said Brooks started selling drugs because he was an addict. Brooks had struggled with substance abuse, but then did well for a while with a successful career before he experienced trauma, chose meth and decided to sell the drug to support his habit. He also wasn't getting the mental health treatment he needed.

Goldammer asked Circuit Judge Greg Stoltenburg to impose the mandatory min-

Commission approves 2023 budget

By ALISON SIMON
The Brookings Register

BROOKINGS – The Brookings County Commission unanimously approved the county's annual budget of about $26.3 million for the 2023 fiscal year at its Tuesday meeting. The general fund comes in at nearly $15.9 million.

The action taken on the budget included approving amendments made to the provisional budget. Commission Department Director Stacy Steffensen explained that the numbers always change. In this case, changes are due to growth, utilities, and a reduction to the overall tax levy directly affecting the general and building funds. The general fund saw an increase of $677 and the building fund increased by $18.

"So we really have a net change of zero to ... the overall budget that was presented. The other change is to the levy itself," Steffensen said. The overall levy changed from $4.280 to $4.157, per $1,000 in valuation, for a total levy reduction of $0.123.

Commissioner Angela Boersma noted that it's "not a bad levy change."

Commissioner Mike Bartley shared his final thoughts on the budget, saying, "I think we've kept everything in line I just appreciate all the hard work that you guys have put into it."

The commission approved the amendments as well as the budget for 2023.

Voters to decide again on recreational marijuana

By DANA HESS
For the S.D. Newspaper Association

BROOKINGS – It may seem like déjà vu for South Dakota voters this year as they will once again be deciding whether or not they want the state to allow recreational marijuana.

Initiated Measure 27 is a scaled-down version of the Amendment A that voters approved in the last election. Despite finding favor with voters, the amendment was challenged in court and defeated. That scenario still rubs Matthew Schweich the wrong way. He's the campaign manager for Yes on 27 for South Dakotans for Better Marijuana Laws.

It's not the Supreme Court's ruling that rankles Schweich so much as the timing. The court got the case on April 28, 2021, and didn't make its ruling until the day before Thanksgiving 2021.

"The worst part of the Amendment A case was the South Dakota Supreme Court took so long and deprived us of guidance as to how we should draft our 2022 initiative," Schweich said. "I think that was a pathetically shameful act. It was an attack on the initiative process, that delay."

Schweich describes Initiated Measure 27 as a shorter, simpler version of Amendment A. It allows for the possession of one ounce or less of marijuana by people over age 21, the possession of a limited number of plants for home growing and sets civil penalties for the violation of marijuana-related restrictions.

Unlike Amendment A, Initiated Measure 27 does not include the regulation and licensing of retail outlets or a formula for the taxation of marijuana sales.

No matter how the measure is written, Jim Kinyon thinks it's a bad idea. He is the chairman of Protecting South Dakota Kids which opposes IM27. Kinyon notes that South Dakota voters turned down chances to legalize recreational marijuana in 2006 and 2010.

In the 2020 election "they spent millions of dollars to confuse and make it unclear what they're doing and what their intention is," Kinyon said. "All I need is a handkerchief and I think I can wipe enough lipstick off this pig."

Schweich said most IM27 supporters are concerned about how arrests for violating marijuana laws can disrupt

Asphalt paving project continues

BROOKINGS – The City of Brookings asphalt paving project with Bowes Construction continues. On Monday, the next phase of milling will begin and will last two to three days.

The streets being milled will be temporarily closed during the milling process and then reopened until they are ready to be paved, at which time they will again be closed one to two days. Bowes plans to work the following streets and alleys during the Sept. 26-28 timeframe:

- Second Street from Medary Avenue to 15th Avenue

- Third Street from 17th Avenue to 22nd Avenue
- Alley connecting Eighth Avenue and Ninth Avenue between Third Street and Fourth Street
- Alley connecting Seventh Avenue and Eighth Avenue between Eighth Street and Ninth Street

The city's contractor asks that vehicles do not park on these streets during the milling and paving work, and drivers are encouraged to use alternate routes during construction. Vehicles that are parked on the street during the milling and paving construction will be subject to towing at the property owner's expense.

"We would like to remind the public to be cautious when driving or walking through the project area, especially around work areas under construction. We appreciate everyone's patience during the project," a city news release says.

Questions may be directed to Bowes Construction at 605-693-3557 or the City Engineering Office at 605-692-6629.

imum sentence and suspend any additional time.

The judge then sentenced Brooks to one year in prison for distributing meth and five years in prison for violating a drug-free zone, to be served consecutively, with credit for 130 days previously served. Brooks must remain law abiding and follow the rules and regulations of the Board of Pardons and Paroles, as well as pay $1,000 in fines and court costs, $360 for drug testing, $800 for drug buy money, $462.18 in transportation costs, and $2,651.25 for court-appointed attorney fees.

He was remanded to the custody of the Brookings County Sheriff's Office for transport to the state penitentiary.

The court then heard a motion to forfeit Brooks' previously posted $10,000 cash bond for an alleged bond violation prior to his guilty pleas.

Nelson said the bond was posted by Brooks' father, and the state notified him of the motion after a bench warrant was issued for Brooks, but there had been no contact from him.

Goldammer said she was not hired by and did not represent Brooks' father, but she worried that the court would be setting a precedent of punishing third parties for others' actions if it forfeited the bond, and it could result in more defendants sitting in jail.

Stoltenburg granted the motion to revoke and forfeit the bond. Of the $10,000 posted, $5,273.43 will be applied to Brooks' fines and costs, court-appointed attorney fees, transportation costs, drug testing costs and reimbursement for drug buy money. The remainder of the bond will be returned to the person who posted it.

MARIJUANA: Back to the voters

or ruin lives. He said legalizing cannabis will free up law enforcement and the courts to work on other crimes while ensuring that patients who need medical marijuana can get it without fear of arrest.

"Not everybody that's got a legitimate need for medical cannabis is able to get a card right now," Schweich said. "By passing Measure 27, we'll eliminate the threat of arrest for all medical cannabis patients in South Dakota over the age of 21."

According to Kinyon, emphasizing the fear of arrest is a scare tactic. "Has anyone talked to their sheriff or their local police department or their judges?" Kinyon asked. "We don't lock up anyone in the state of South Dakota for an ounce of marijuana."

Regulating the retail sale of marijuana and the taxation that accompanies it will likely be something considered in the next session of the Legislature, Schweich said. If the Legislature fails to act, he said he'll be back with another initiated measure in 2024.

Kinyon points to the initiated measure's rules about home-grown plants and asserts that retail outlets will be in South Dakota sooner rather than later. The measure says that home-grown plants are allowed in those communities that don't allow for retail sales.

"Clearly some of our convenience stores and some of our local businesses plan on peddling this product," Kinyon said. "You'll find people who are willing to crap in their own nest for their profit. By and large, most South Dakotans are better than that."

Both Schweich and Kinyon wrote "pro" and "con" articles about the initiated measure for the secretary of state's 2022 ballot question brochure. The "pro" article cites "public health reports analyzing tens of thousands of high school students in Colorado and Washington show that teen cannabis use did not increase after those states legalized cannabis for adults in 2012. National studies and research in other states have found similar results."

Kinyon has statistics of his own, citing South Dakota as having the 47th lowest marijuana usage rate of any state in the nation. Kinyon said the top 10 states in that have the highest concentrations of marijuana usage by children ages 12 to 18 are all the states that have approved recreational marijuana.

"They pretend they aren't targeting our kids," Kinyon said. "That's a joke. There's not a single thing we can do in the state of South Dakota that will double the use rate of marijuana other than pass this bill."

Both men talked about homelessness in Denver, Colorado, a state that has legalized recreational marijuana. Denver has had a homeless problem for years, Schweich said, with the number of homeless fluctuating largely based on changes in the economy. "The idea that they legalize cannabis in Denver and all of a sudden it became a mecca for homeless people is just a myth," Schweich said.

During his talks to groups, Kinyon has a slide he presents of a tent city in a Denver park. "Camping has changed in Colorado a little bit," he tells them, noting that downtown Denver reeks of marijuana. "We don't need the doobie smokers so that every time you walk in or out of our hotels and our restaurants they're all smoking and blowing smoke on your kids as you walk through. Denver literally stinks downtown."

For some, that could be the smell of money. Schweich said marijuana legalization could lead to new industry, new jobs and new investments. "This is new sources of revenue," Schweich said. "This is new clients. A whole host of businesses in South Dakota have an opportunity to benefit from this."

Election day in South Dakota is Nov. 8. Early voting starts today.

At this point, both men see their side prevailing in the election. Schweich looks ahead to a day when marijuana sales are regulated and taxed. "This is a big win for South Dakota's economy," Schweich said. "There's a lot of tax revenue that's going to be generated. So from a fiscal, economic perspective, this is definitely a winner for the state."

It's safety, rather than the economy, that spurs Kinyon who notes that mental health facilities and services in the state are maxed out.

"We're in a mental health crisis," Kinyon said. "Cutting loose this drug – which is associated with depression, psychotic symptoms and suicide for adolescents and young adults – is the last thing we need to do."

Absentee voting starts today for Nov. 8 election

PIERRE – The absentee voting period for South Dakota's 2022 general election started today.

To request an absentee ballot in Brookings County, voters must submit an absentee ballot application form to the County Finance Office. Absentee ballot application forms can also be downloaded from the Secretary of State's website at www.sdsos.gov. Voters choosing to cast an absentee ballot are encouraged to account for mail processing and delivery times by allowing sufficient time for the return of the ballot to their county auditor.

Absentee ballot applications include options to receive absentee ballots for a specific election or for all elections held during a calendar year. Voters who completed an absentee ballot application form earlier this year will receive a ballot if they marked the option of receiving absentee ballots for all elections or the general election on the request form. Voters may verify whether they have already requested an absentee ballot by contacting the County Finance Office or searching the voter information portal on the secretary of state's website.

Voters submitting an absentee ballot application form must include a photocopy of an acceptable photo identification card or have the form notarized, as per South Dakota Codified Law 12-18-6.1.

Acceptable photo identification cards include a South Dakota driver's license or non-driver ID card, tribal photo ID, passport or other picture ID issued by the United States government, or a current student photo ID issued by a South Dakota high school or postsecondary education institution.

Brookings County voters also have the option to in-person absentee vote at the first floor of the Brookings City & County Government Center up to the day before the election or to vote at the polls on Nov. 8.

During absentee voting, no campaigning – including vehicle stickers, signs or political charged advertising of any kind – will be allowed within 100 feet of the government center per SDCL 12-18-3.

On Election Day, polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. local time. For polling location and sample ballot information, visit the voter information portal on the Secretary of State's website.

Voter registration for the Nov. 8 general election will close on Oct. 24 at 5 p.m. Failure to register by this date will cause forfeiture of voting rights for this election. Those in doubt about whether they are registered can check the voter information portal at www.sdsos.gov or call the County Finance Office at 605-696-8250.

Registration may be completed during regular business hours at the County Finance Office, municipal finance office, Secretary of State's Office, and those locations which provide driver's licenses, SNAP, TANF, WIC, military recruitment, and assistance to the disabled as provided by the Department of Human Services. Voters may contact the County Finance Office to request a mail-in registration form or access a mail-in form at www.sdsos.gov.

OPINION/LOCAL

The real immigration problem ignored

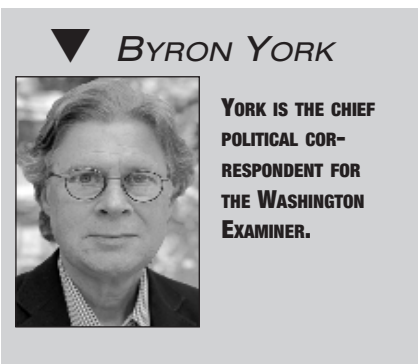

■ The real problem is the enormous number of immigrants crossing the border.

Much of the nation's political and commentary class had a near-nervous breakdown when 48 Venezuelans who had crossed illegally into the United States arrived at the Martha's Vineyard Airport, not far from the summer homes of some of the country's wealthiest and best-connected people. When they realized what had happened, many Democrats and allied voices in the media expressed white-hot anger at Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis, who arranged the migrants' trip. Meanwhile, Vineyard residents volunteered to feed and care for the migrants for 24 hours, after which the National Guard whisked them off the exclusive island.

Now move 2,200 miles west and south, to Del Rio, Texas. During the 24-hour period from Saturday to Sunday, according to reporting by Fox News correspondent Bill Melugin, Border Patrol officers encountered 1,707 illegal crossers in the Del Rio Sector, which covers 245 miles of the U.S.-Mexico border. Officers encountered even more illegal crossers in the El Paso Sector to the west: 1,967 illegal crossings. And in the Yuma Sector still farther west, there were 757 illegal crossings. That is 4,431 illegal crossings in just three of the nine sectors of the U.S.-Mexico border.

So what happened when they crossed illegally into the United States? Were they turned back? Allowed to stay? According to Melugin's tweet, which is entirely consistent with statistics on the border, only 335 illegal crossers were expelled from the El Paso Sector on what is called a Title 42 expulsion, referring to the rule used to reduce the spread of COVID. In Del Rio, there were 514 expulsions. And in Yuma, there were 39 expulsions.

BYRON YORK
YORK IS THE CHIEF POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR THE WASHINGTON EXAMINER.

In total, there were 4,431 illegal crossings in the three sectors in a single 24-hour period, and 888 Title 42 expulsions. That means 3,543 illegal crossers were allowed to stay in the United States. In just three sectors, in just one day.

Whatever number you choose, 4,431 total illegal crossings or 3,543 allowed to stay, the number is a lot bigger than the 48 migrants who landed in Martha's Vineyard. And yet, the outrage! Critics lined up to call DeSantis' transfer of illegal crossers to a luxury redoubt in Massachusetts cruel and inhuman and un-American and anti-American and "literally human trafficking" and more. A Boston-based group called Lawyers for Civil Rights demanded that the United States Justice Department and the Massachusetts attorney general investigate and possibly prosecute DeSantis for an alleged "conspiracy to deprive our clients of their liberty and civil rights and interfere with federal immigration proceedings."

About the same time, we learned that the city of El Paso, led by a Democratic mayor, has been regularly busing illegal border crossers to New York City. Melugin reported that El Paso has sent at least 51 buses with a total of 2,365 migrants to New York since Aug. 23. More buses are on the way. New York City Democratic Mayor Eric Adams, who has complained that migrants are overwhelming his city's social services capabilities, and who has bitterly denounced Texas Republican Gov. Greg Abbott's buses to New York, has actually made an agreement with El Paso to accept as many as 200 migrants a day.

OK, so Adams is partisan. So the lawyers on Martha's Vineyard are hysterical. So much of the press coverage is biased. The problem is that this debate is not about the real problem. Everyone is talking about how to accommodate illegal border crossers once they are in the country, and not about how to prevent people from crossing illegally into the United States.

On Monday, U.S. Customs and Border Protection announced that officials have encountered 2,150,639 migrants on the U.S.-Mexico border so far this fiscal year. There is still one month to go, so the figure will rise. And it does not include the number, somewhere near half a million, of so-called "got-aways," that is, crossers known to border officials but not apprehended.

Isn't that the real problem? Isn't the real problem the enormous numbers of people crossing into the United States? And how to reduce that number? And how to deal with those who do manage to sneak across to make sure that only the relatively small number who have legitimate asylum claims are allowed to stay? Isn't that the real problem?

Instead of dealing with the real problem, everything the Biden administration has done since Day One has been to increase the incentive for would-be migrants to illegally cross into the United States. Arguing over how best to accommodate illegal crossers, rather than arguing over how best to return the vast majority of them back across the border, increases the incentive for those considering unlawful entry into the United States. They know their arrival might set off a debate over whether they should be allowed to stay in El Paso, or be sent to Martha's Vineyard, but either way, they stay in the United States -- their ultimate goal. The current argument over the DeSantis flight does nothing to address what is happening on the U.S.-Mexico border.

Whodunit in downtown Brookings?

By JOHN KUBAL
The Brookings Register

BROOKINGS – Martha Kemm Landes lived in Brookings for five years, while her husband, Dan Landes, was on the faculty at South Dakota State University. She admits that she "fell in love with Brookings."

And she also believes she knows the town well enough to write about it – in a whodunit mystery.

On Sept. 12 she was downtown at Kool Beans Coffee promoting and selling her book: "Framed Fur Murder." Subtitled "A picture this mystery," it's billed as "a new mystery set on Brookings' Main Street."

The plot involves a murder in a coffee shop on Main Street (Avenue).

"It's about a girl named Ande, who has a little photography studio on Main Street," the author said, giving just a hint of the plot. "She takes pictures ... and her favorites are pets." Someone is poisoned in a coffee shop and Ande becomes the main suspect.

Brookings' thinly disguised downtown spots include: Spinner's, Micks and several other places. "The names have been changed to protect the innocent."

"Framed ... " and three other Landes mysteries can be purchased on Amazon.

Bobcat soccer teams split doubleheader at home

By CHRIS SCHAD
The Register

BROOKINGS - The Brookings boys and girls soccer teams split a doubleheader at Fishback Soccer Park on Thursday night with the boys team earning a 7-0 victory and the girls team falling 4-3.

Boys

■ Brookings 7, Mitchell 0

Coming off a last-minute loss at Harrisburg, the Brookings boys soccer team put forth an inspired effort on Thursday night, smashing Mitchell by a score of 7-0.

The Bobcats rallied from a 4-0 deficit in Tuesday's game but ultimately lost from a goal in the 79th minute. While head coach Steve Binkley admitted the loss stung, Brookings used it as fuel to come out of the gates strong.

"I think nobody likes to lose at the end," Binkley said. "There was definitely some frustration we were looking to get out."

Junior Eberline was one player with an added layer of frustration after he missed the past two games after picking up a red card. His return to the field was felt immediately by the Bobcats as he scored in the 10th minute off an assist from Rylan Eide to open the game.

Eberline had multiple opportunities to add to the lead in the early moments of the game, hitting the crossbar in the 16th minute and the post in the 23rd minute. He finally broke through later in the first half scoring his second goal of the game from Drew Ton in the 31st minute. He later completed the hat trick with another helper from Eide in the 36th minute to put Brookings up 3-0.

"I think there was a little extra fire to be our guy at the top," Binkley said of Eberline's fast start. "We missed him for two games and it was equally good to have him back. He's got the instincts to score. He's just a really true striker so we knew how to play balls to him and how to use the runs that he makes."

After dominating in the first half, Eberline got some of his teammates involved. Eide scored off a feed from Eberline to put Brookings ahead 4-0 in the 41st minute and Ton scored in the 59th minute from Park to put the Bobcats up 5-0.

Eberline recorded his second assist of the game on Forrest Giard's goal in the 71st minute and Park scored a goal in the 77th minute to cap off a complete team effort.

"We talked a lot in practice and before the game about trying to stretch the field and create a few more gaps," Binkley said of the Bobcats' effort offensively. "I think they did a really good job of playing smart, attacking soccer. It wasn't just Junior but it was Rylan getting opportunities it was James making things happen and Brayden Schreiber on the wing had a lot of shots and opportunities as well. I think they played together really well."

The offensive effort was matched on the defensive end as the Bobcats held the Kernels to just two shots on the night. The defensive gameplan was a result of Brookings being down two goalkeepers and starting Lucas Wingate in net but Binkley credited Wingate and seniors Trenton Pederson and Cole Leisinger for limiting Mitchell's opportunities.

"There were no mental mistakes or communication slip-ups," Binkley said of the back end. "I think they did their job at centerback to make sure that nothing got through. There were no dangerous opportunities and I think for as many that we scored, I think we were really proud that we didn't let any in."

The win came at a perfect time for the Bobcats, who snapped a three-game losing streak on Thursday night. They'll now look to keep the momentum going as they host Sioux Falls Washington on Sept. 27 as part of homecoming week.

"That should be a really competitive game and it might [decide] where you're going to sit in terms of a playoff seed," Binkley said. "Both of the teams will be fighting quite a bit. It will be like a playoff atmosphere and that's what you want. It will be a good test and we like to have them at home here in front of a big crowd. It should be a fun game for the boys."

Girls

■ Mitchell 4, Brookings 3

The Brookings girls soccer team showed plenty of fight on Thursday night but a late rally wasn't enough as they fell to Mitchell 4-3.

The game got off to a hectic start as Mia Mullenmeister put Mitchell on the board with a goal in the second minute. The Bobcats answered immediately however as captain Maddix Archer put Brookings on the board one minute later with an assist from Desirae Johnson.

"It was pretty huge," Brookings head coach Adam Juba said of Archer's equalizer. "It was probably one of the earliest goals we've scored this season. It really says we're here to play with them and we're back to a tie game. In our minds it's 0-0 at that point and there's everything to fight for."

Mullenmeister put the Kernels back on top with her second goal of the game in the 23rd minute but Archer came up with another goal in the 34th minute to send the Bobcats into halftime tied at 2-2.

Mitchell took the lead back shortly after halftime as Mullenmeister's goal in the 41st minute made it a 3-2 game. Taryn Thomas gave the Kernels a two-goal lead in the 60th minute but Shae Lefers did a tremendous job to keep Brookings in it. Forced into emergency duty, the junior made 15 saves on the night and prevented Mitchell from expanding its lead.

"She did the best she could and I thought she played great," Juba said of Lefers performance in net. "For not playing in goal for many years, she stepped in and did a great job."

The Bobcats kept pushing to try to chip into the deficit and Elise Lefers came through, scoring in the 61st minute to make it a 4-3 game.

"It seemed like they held their line pretty deep and they just kind of waited for us to come at them," Juba said of Lefers' goal. "With Elise up there, she just pushes so hard and once that ball is in her area, she doesn't hold off. She knows that she's going to win that ball and she's going to take it from whomever she wants."

The Bobcats had several opportunities to tie the game up late as a free kick from Archer was stopped by Mitchell goalkeeper Tenley Peterson. Lefers also had a chance in the final minute but Peterson made the stop to help the Kernels hang on for the victory.

"We fought the entire game," Juba said of his team's effort. The fight that we had was incredible and the girls played until the very last second."

At 3-7-1, Brookings will look to finish the regular season strong when they host Washington on Sept. 27.

Jackrabbit volleyball falls in Summit League opener

By ANDREW HOLTAN
The Register

BROOKINGS - South Dakota State was unable to overcome a slow start on Thursday night as the Jackrabbits fell in their Summit League volleyball opener to Denver in four sets.

Denver jumped out to a 2-0 lead after a 25-18 victory in the first set and a 25-19 win in set two. SDSU fell behind 8-1 in the first set and the Pioneers rode that to the victory. The Jacks then fell behind 11-6 in the second set and the Pioneers were able to keep them at arm's length throughout the rest of the set.

SDSU head coach Dan Georgalas said he thought his team came out a little flat and that led to 2-0 hole.

"[It was a slow start. We talk about it often; I think we had our chances to create that momentum early and we just didn't capitalize. So, when you kind of make a few mistakes or two and get off to that slow start, it's tough to dig yourself out of that hole," Georgalas said.

SDSU finally got some momentum in the third set. The score was tied 9-9 when SDSU went on a 4-0 run to take the lead. During the run SDSU was able to finish off a long volley with a point and that led to momentum the rest of the set. Denver cut the lead to 17-16 and the Jacks answered with a 7-0 run to pull away and win the set 25-18.

Georgalas said both momentum and doing the little things led to the victory in set three.

"We certainly found our momentum and our confidence out of the intermission, but we played really clean. I think we only had one attacking error in that third set. We had way more than that in the first two. I think we were averaging six or seven hitting errors in the first two sets. So, playing clean is a big focus for us. We pride ourselves on doing the little things better than our opponent and remaining efficient there in the third set definitely helped us pull away," Georgalas said.

After forcing a fourth set, SDSU came out flat and fell behind 6-1. However, the Jacks would fight back and get the match tied up at 12-12. The score was tied again at 15-15 and Denver went on a 7-1 run to go up 22-16. That allowed the Pioneers to get a 25-20 victory in set four and take the match.

"We're tied at 15-15 and we call timeout at 17-15, and I think Denver is one of the best serving teams in the league and they just prevented us from siding out late in that fourth set," Georgalas said. "Unfortunately, they kind of built that three, four, five-point lead and at the end of the set it's always kind of hard to come back from."

"But we crawled our way back in the fourth set and tied it at 15's and to be at that point, 10 points away from going into a fifth set with one of the better teams in the league [was good to see]. We had a chance and we'll watch tape and figure out how we take advantage of that tomorrow."

Denver had 56 kills as a team and SDSU had 41. The Pioneers had 49 assists and 74 digs, while the Jacks had 39 assists and 51 digs. Denver had an attack percentage of .225 and SDSU had one of .114.

SDSU was led by Crystal Burk who had 13 kills and 14 digs. Ella Thompson had nine kills and Raegan Reilly had 33 assists. Mesa Scheierman had six kills and Jady Makovicka had 12 digs.

Jordan Lockwood led the Pioneers with 14 kills and eight digs. Lorrin Poulter had 44 assists and 12 digs. Cadi Boyer had 11 kills and Gianna Vartalo had 23 digs. Alanya Finucan had 15 digs and Rylen Wilkens had 11.

SDSU is now 6-7 on the season and has lost four-straight matches. The Jackrabbits will host Omaha on Saturday at 1 p.m. The match will include a celebration of the 50th anniversary of Title IX and SDSU will be wearing special throwback uniforms.

The Mavericks, who have the second best record overall record in the Summit League, fell on Thursday night in five sets to first place South Dakota. Georgalas said if his team wants to beat Omaha on Saturday, they're going to have to show more confidence.

"I just want to see confidence. In the intermission we talked about how confidence is a choice and we can be so gritty and so good defensively. We really excel when we extend rallies and the play elongates. I think we get really self-conscious when we allow our opponents to get side out's so easily. So, going into Omaha we're going to look to bolster down our defense and pride ourselves on tightening our systems and doing the little things better than our opponent because they're certainly going to be a talented team again," he said.

Bridge

By PHILIP ALDER

Raymond Chandler once wrote, "Chess is as elaborate a waste of human intelligence as you can find outside an advertising agency." It is probably true that people who spend all of their time playing chess (and bridge) could make a more beneficial contribution to society at large by applying their minds elsewhere. Still, I doubt that Chandler objected to having his books advertised.

However, if you are going to play any game, you might as well spend that time concentrating on it to the exclusion of all else. So many contracts are easy to make or defeat if only the declarer or the defenders analyze the situation. For example, in today's deal, South is in four spades. How should he plan the play after West leads the club queen?

North's three spades was a limit raise. This was an accurate evaluation because of the eight losers and sterile 4-3-3-3 distribution.

Declarer, with no losers to ruff in the dummy, took the first trick and immediately ran the spade 10. East won with the queen and returned a club. Suddenly South stopped in his tracks. He had four losers: two spades, one diamond and one club. Eventually he played on and finished down one.

If only South had checked his losers at trick one, he could have foreseen that outcome. All he had to do was lead the diamond jack from his hand at trick two. He establishes a discard for his club loser, with the heart king in the dummy as an entry if East holds up his diamond ace for one round. Instead of down one, the contract makes in comfort.

When playing in a suit contract, count your losers at trick one.

Vegetarians are more prone to a hip fracture

By MIKE ROIZEN, M.D.

Country music star Carrie Underwood and actress Kristen Bell (the voice of Anna in "Frozen") are vegetarians. Carrie dodges meats but does eat eggs from chickens in her backyard, and Kristen went from vegan to vegetarian when she was pregnant with her first child. Both are health-focused and nutrition wise.

But they — and around 5% of Americans who are also vegetarians — should pay attention to a study in BMC Medicine that looked at data on more than 26,000 women in the U.K. The research shows vegetarian women ages 35 to 69 are 33% more likely to experience a hip fracture than women who are pescatarians or who eat red meat occasionally.

This doesn't mean that you shouldn't be a vegetarian, although I think it's a shame to eliminate super-healthy salmon from your diet.

My diet is vegetarian plus salmon and minus egg yolks. What it does mean is that you must pay attention to the minerals and vitamins you're getting from your food. Your smart choices:

- Low-fat yogurt and other soy- and nut-milk-based products.
 - Walnuts and almonds.
 - 100% whole grains (oats, chia, quinoa, spelt, teff, barley and farro).
 - Legumes (beans, lentils, peas) and seitan (wheat-based protein).
 - Protein-rich veggies, such as broccoli, spinach, asparagus, artichokes, sweet potatoes and Brussels sprouts
- Also, ask for a blood test to check your levels of vitamins and minerals. I believe almost every woman and every man over age 40 should have half a multimineral multivitamin morning and night, and at least 1,000 IU of vitamin D2/3.

Mike Roizen, M.D. is Chief Wellness Officer and Chair of Wellness Institute at Cleveland Clinic.

Dear Abby

Dear Abby: I have been with my husband for seven years, and I'm tired of having the same fight every day. He smokes marijuana, and I hate it. It has been a constant battle for years. We tried therapy, which helped for a while, but he goes back to smoking behind my back. We tried to reach a compromise that he smoke only after a certain time of day, but it still leads to fights.

He shuts me out when he's doing drugs and says I don't care about his happiness because it's something he enjoys, and I am taking it away. I love him so much, but I hate drugs and don't like who he becomes when he's smoking.

I want to have a baby, but I am uncomfortable with drugs being in the house. I feel like I can't trust him to be alone with a baby when he's high. I don't want to leave him, but I can't take it anymore. Having the same fight every day is exhausting, and it's had a really negative impact on our marriage. I want him to choose me over this, but if I give him an ultimatum, he'll hate me. What do I do? — Anti-Drug in Illinois

Dear Anti-Drug: Give your husband that ultimatum and pack

your bags. If you prefer the father of your child not have a marijuana habit and he cannot quit, then, as much as you may love him, this person isn't The One for you. Sorry.

Dear Abby: I've read your column for years, frequently taking advice you provide to others and applying it to my circumstances. I have developed a mutual bond with a woman who is 30 — 28 years younger than myself. She's a waitress at a diner I frequent. I've seen her children grow over the past six or seven years. We have had many meaningful conversations and shared our highs and lows. She's naturally friendly.

Three or four years ago, she began sharing casual side hugs when I arrived. I never ask for them. Over the last year, these hugs have become more intimate, not in a sexual way — just a deeper bond of friendship. We occasionally IM when she's off work, but I don't see her socially.

Lately she has been teasing that she'll be my next ex. I reciprocate the flirting and teasing. I believe there is a mutual attraction. If not for the age difference, which I'm OK with, or the fear of causing issues with our friendship, I'd ask her out. Societal taboos weigh heavily on my mind, and I am pragmatic. Should I or shouldn't I? Or am I reading too much into our friendship? — Unsure in the Midwest

Dear Unsure: Not having witnessed the chemistry between the two of you, I couldn't say. However, nothing ventured, nothing gained. The next time you see her, after one of those "more intimate" hugs, tell her teasingly that you have been thinking about her comment that she'll be your next ex and ask if she'd like to have dinner with you sometime. Her response will tell you if you have been reading too much into the friendship.
