Michael Bolton sings a different tune with 'The Celebrity Dating Game'

Paul Reiser feels a kinship with other comedians.

They generally have similar life experiences, admired the same people growing up and certainly understand the struggles of trying to make people laugh under the glare of hot spotlights.

So when he got to work with fellow comic Kevin Best in the Netflix comedy "Fatherhood," a feature-length movie that begins streaming Friday, June 18, it was like working with an old friend – even though the two had never met previously.

"We all started the same," the New York native explains. "We all started in clubs and we all have that background, so there's a brotherhood. Like we all know each other's reputation even though we haven't met so there's an immediate warmth and a bond that makes it very easy to hit the ground running. But I'm sure he's that way even without that particular bond."

In "Fatherhood," Reiser has a secondary role as Howard, the boss of Best's character Kevin, a single dad trying balance work and raising a baby daughter following the death of his wife a day after giving birth. The shoot was short and sweet for the 65-year-old "Mad About You" star, whose part required him to be on set for only a few days. But he

If you think Michael Bolton will co-host "The Celebrity Dating Game" without crooning to the contestants, forget it.

The long-popular, Grammy-winning singer-songwriter starts a new chapter by joining "New Girl" alum Zooey Deschanel to host ABC's new take on a classic game show premiering Monday, June 14. The idea is the same, with someone choosing between three contenders ... who won't know the identity of their question-asker unless, or until, they can guess it from musical clues supplied by Bolton. First up to do the picking: former "Bachelorette" Hannah Brown and actress-comedian Nicole Byer.

Also an executive producer of the show, Bolton explains he wants to "connect the dots" between music and other kinds of entertainment now. "That was part of this offer, then the music became front-and-center. And I realized, as I was doing it, that I was accepting an invitation to bring bits and pieces of songs I've loved my whole life – and of a couple that I've written and produced, ones that were hits for me. It was a lot of fun doing it, with a lot of talented people to work with."

Citing Deschanel as one of those people, Bolton is grateful for her participation: "I know she has a beautiful voice and loves music, but in a way, she's doing the heavy lifting here. To stand in front of my own audience is fun and easy, but speaking to an audience that hasn't been holding tickets waiting to see me for six months to a year, it's a matter of keeping them engaged. Zooey is so good and so comfortable with that; She's adorable and she lights up a stage, and it would be so much work for me to introduce the contestants and make it feel like I wasn't reading."

Celebrities have sampled the "Dating Game" premise before, though they weren't necessarily stars at the time. John Ritter, Farrah Fawcett, Ron Howard, Sally Field and (twice) Tom Selleck were on the original 1965-73 ABC version of the show hosted by Jim Lange.

With a catalog of enduring hits ranging from "How Am I Supposed to Live Without You?" to "Love Is a Wonderful Thing," Bolton — who has been working on a new album — is following television-series guest shots ("Two and a Half Men," "Glee") and appearances in commercials with "The Celebrity Dating Game."

"Being backstage for this was one of the first times I've felt comfortable in a year," he attests, having been off the concert circuit because of the coronavirus pandemic. "The most difficult thing about this was forgetting the songs I know (for the show's parody versions). I was unlearning things I've known for 30 or 40 years."

gleaned a lot about his co-star from watching his interactions with other cast and crew.

"He's just very welcoming and he brings a levity and just a joy to the set," he says. "And watching him with this beautiful little baby, who's adorable, who's like so beautiful she almost looks fake. ... And just seeing him interact with the kid and with the kid's parents on the set, you can gauge a lot by how somebody is when you watch them with kids. And he just exudes a genuine warmth."

Sidney Flanigan stars as 17-year-old Autumn, who runs into frustrating hurdles, both bureaucratic and emotional, while seeking to terminate an unexpected pregnancy. Talia Ryder, Ryan Eggold and Théodore Pellerin also star.
