A 'Big Shot' gets a little attitude adjustment in Disney+ dramedy

Checking in with ELIZABETH VARGAS celebrity scoop

Elizabeth Vargas is glad to be wanted by "America's Most

The NBC and ABC news veteran, who also has done A&E Network documentaries, has succeeded John Walsh in hosting Fox's current Monday incarnation of the reality series that seeks the public's help in catching felons. The show's new high-tech sheen acknowledges up-to-date forms of surveillance ... which even can include personal smartphones, devices that weren't as commonly available to viewers during much of the program's original run.

"It's so cool what we can do with technology today," the pleasant Vargas confirms, "and that's brand-new on this show because these are all advances that weren't around back then. At this point in my career, it's really nice to be challenged by something new, because I spent a lot of years doing what I did."

Though she acknowledges "America's Most Wanted" is a largely pandemic-safe show because she alone is the central cast, Vargas notes the FBI and Secret Service agents and federal marshals who come in as experts. "We also have some of the victims of the crimes on the set," she adds, "and we're all going

A driven college basketball coach gets a lesson in humanity when he's forced to head up a girls high-school team in a comedy/drama series upcoming on Disney+.

In "Big Shot," premiering Friday, April 16, John Stamos ("Fuller House," "ER") is cast in the role of Marvyn Korn, whose quick temper got him ousted as coach of Wisconsin's men's hoops team after he threw a chair at a referee. To salvage his career and professional reputation, he takes a job at The Westbrook School for Girls, an elite private institution and a far cry from his days in the Big 10. But the gig also offers him the opportunity to step out of his comfort zone, re-examine his priorities and make changes for the better as he learns to work with a different kind of athlete - and they with him.

Created by David E. Kelley ("Big Little Lies," "The Undoing"), Dean Lorey ("iZombie," "Harley Quinn") and Brad Garrett, the series also stars Jessalyn Gilsig ("Glee") as assistant coach Holly Barrett and Yvette Nicole Brown ("Community) as school headmaster Sherilyn Thomas.

For Stamos, "Big Shot" entailed a major learning curve as he readily admits his lack of basketball knowledge coming in was almost comical.

"I sort of panicked when I heard it was about basketball," he explains, "but I dug into that part of it as much as I could. I went to a rehearsal with (Los Angeles Lakers great) Jerry West. I guess they call it a practice, but I called it a rehearsal, and ... that was the first moment he gave me a dirty look. And then I thought that his team ... (was) the Clippers. I thought they were a college team, and that didn't go over well.

"But I really took it as a challenge, honestly," he continues, "because it was just such a character that I've never played and it was the first character that I've been offered that everybody is talking about him like how unlikable he is and what a crab he is and he's not a nice person. So I dug into that."

As it evolves, the relationship between Marvyn and his new players becomes symbiotic – he learns to treat them as more than X's and O's and they get a lesson in professionalism and taking themselves seriously. For Lorey, this is a fish-out-of-water story about second chances.

"Even though it's a basketballthemed show, we wanted to make it very character-driven," Lorey explains," and we wanted to make sure that we never showed a basketball game that wasn't advancing some sort of major character story or something like that So we've tried to make it really character-driven, and we try to find a nice balance between drama and comedy on the show as well. My background is primarily comedy, and so between David and I, I think we've found a nice balance."

through the rigorous safety procedures that are set up for any and every show going on the air now."

Still, Vargas believes a revival of "America's Most Wanted" is particularly suited to the current times: "We know that a lot of people are watching a lot of television, and somebody has seen something or knows somebody who has seen something. That's what we're hoping to tap into. We have the capacity not to just put a great television show on the air, but also to do some good."

Men in Kilts: A Roadtrip With Sam and Graham This breathtakingly scenic and delightfully engaging travel series wraps up its first season with a finale that looks back at a 1746 clash that decisively shaped Scotland, in "Culloden: Scotland's Most Infamous Battle." All of the elements highlighted in previous episodes point to this critical turning point for the nation, not to mention the historical TV romance "Outlander." The midseason premiere of this companion series to "The Walking Dead" picks up the action as Morgan (Lennie James) becomes bolder in his bid to free the remaining members of the group, Meanwhile, Virginia (Colby Minifie) becomes increasingly desperate to find her sister and protect the settlements from threatening forces both inside and outside the walls. The impact of living under Virginia's iron-willed control is an extended story arc for the back half of Season 6.

8 p.m. on (401); 9:06 p.m. on (401); 10:50 p.m. on (401) The Nevers

This new supernatural action fantasy is set in Victorian London, where the city is rocked by a bizarre event that gives certain people - chiefly women - extraordinary abilities that range from the wondrous to the deeply disturbing. No matter their particular gift, however, these individuals are stalked by brutal forces out to annihilate them. The series "Pilot" opens three vears after that event, as police inspector Frank Mundi (Ben Chaplin) investigates a string of murders. Laura Donnelly, Ann Skelly and Amy Manson also star.
