Bryan Cranston stars in the Showtime drama series "Your Honor," premiering Sunday.

'Breaking Bad' Emmy winner Bryan Cranston is 'Your Honor' in new Showtime drama

When you've played one of the most iconic characters in the history of television drama, finding a follow-up can be daunting.

Such was Bryan Cranston's challenge after wrapping his run as "Breaking Bad's" Walter White, which earned him four Primetime Emmy Awards. He made the streaming show "Sneaky Pete" after that, but he returns to the cable world as a New Orleans judge whose personal crisis could derail his professional life as Showtime's "Your Honor" starts its limited run Sunday, Dec. 6.

Also an executive producer along with "The Good Wife" and "Evil's" Robert and Michelle King, whom he says "really have exceeded my expectations," the friendly Cranston explains that he "just felt that I needed to stay away from television for three years. I went and did theater (winning Tony Awards for "All the Way" and "Network") and movies, because I felt that Walter White and 'Breaking Bad' needed to calm down a little bit before I could enter that medium again.

"Characters that have faults and issues are what attract me most," adds Cranston. That you can see the cracks in their foundations, but they attempt to make improvements, is what I think is the key. Who can relate to perfection? Being real, being authentic and trying to be a better person is what draws empathy."

A 10-episode adaptation of an Israeli series, "Your Honor" sees Cranston's Judge

Michael Desiato try to cover up his teenage son Adam's (Hunter Doohan) involvement in a hit-and-run accident. The resulting deceit comes to involve a prosecutor (Maura Tierney, back on Showtime after "The Affair") and a crime-world couple (Michael Stuhlbarg, who also worked with Cranston in "Trumbo," and Hope Davis). Cast members also include Carmen Ejogo, Margo Martindale, Isiah Whitlock Jr. and Sofia Black-D'Elia.

The coronavirus pandemic shut down location filming of "Your Honor" for roughly seven months – during which Cranston contracted and recovered from COVID-19 himself – and he says that break and the current climate helped the show, since the pandemic was written into the plot. Still, he allows the job has been "really challenging. We're rehearsing in masks and/or shields, there can only be a certain number of people in the room, and the director and I are asked to be as far apart from each other as possible. If one of us goes down, we're in trouble."

With his memoir "A Life in Parts" recently published, Cranston reflects that if his path from the comedic dad on "Malcolm in the Middle" to heavy dramatic parts "has helped others in our profession move within our realm with more ease and less judgment, I'm beyond pleased. It really is about opportunity, and being able to do it."

Beth Behrs is back in "The Neighborhood," but she also has launched a community of her own.

While continuing to play wife, mother and school principal Gemma on the Monday CBS sitcom, the "2 Broke Girls" alum also has a relatively new venture in "Harmonics With Beth Behrs." The podcast showcases other creative people, many also in the arts (such as country singer Mickey Guyton and author Glennon Doyle), in explorations of how such pursuits can have an effect on the given person's wellness.

"It's been this great, selfish endeavor for me," the ever-friendly Behrs allows, "because I get to ask people I admire all these questions I would want to know the answers to. And I think that many other people would want to know, because it makes them feel less alone.

"I've been so much more vulnerable on this podcast than I ever planned on being in the media," notes Behrs. "I think that happened because I really wanted a space for my guests to be open, and I'm really proud of the conversations we've had and the brave things said. Some guests have talked about overcoming sexual assault through the power of music ... things I never dreamed were possible to address in this way."

Behrs is no stranger to doing multiple seasons of a project, having made "2 Broke Girls" for six and now being in her third year of "The Neighborhood." After completing her first round of "Harmonics," she's ready for more.

"I'm proud of the show, and I love doing it every week," Behrs confirms. "We're going to start Season 2 soon, and I'm really happy about it."

Wednesday 7 p.m. on 43 (5)
Dr. Seuss' The Grinch Musical!
 Filmed in London, this tuneful new two-hour live-action special offers a new take on the beloved Dr. Seuss yarn about a cantankerous grinch (Matthew Morrison, "Glee") who creeps down from his reclusive lair atop Mt. Crumpit to steal the Christmas gifts, decorations and festive foods from the residents of Whoville below. Their response gives the Grinch a life-changing lesson in the true meaning of Christmas. Joining Morrison are Denis O'Hare as Old Max, the Grinch's dog; BooBoo Stewart as Young Max; and Newcomer Amelia Max as Cindy-Lou Who.

7 p.m. on 9 (9)
The Great Christmas Light Fight
 Try to relax and not think about things like utility bills and neighborhood homeowner regulations as you tune in for Season 8 of this giddy seasonal home decorating series. Lifestyle expert Carter Oosterhouse and interior designer Taniya Nayak are back as the judges who evaluate the over-the-top efforts by four families in each one-hour episode. Picking the best can't be easy, because all of them seem to have heart-tugging back stories, but one lucky winner per episode wins $50,000 if they "sleigh" their rivals.

8 p.m. on 3 (3)
SEAL Team
 After several in their elect to make life-altering career decisions that curtail several long-term bonds, the members of Bravo Team are forced to adjust to a dramatically different team dynamic in a new episode called, appropriately enough, "The New Normal."

8 p.m. on 13
Greatest Holiday Commercials Countdown 2020
 Kevin Frazier and Keltie Knight (both from "Entertainment Tonight") return to host this year's edition of the festive yuletide special that counts down the 12 best holiday commercials — one for each of the 12 Days of Christmas, naturally — that range from the nostalgic and heartfelt to the irreverent and hilarous. In addition to those top 12 spots, the hour also includes other memorable seasonal TV ads from both North America and abroad.

8 p.m. on 401
Alabama Snake
 Filmmaker Theo Love chronicles the shocking saga of Glenn Summerford, a Pentecostal minister and serpent handler who attempted to murder his wife with a rattlesnake. Love's documentary flows from past to present and back again as it relates events as they unfolded in 1991, when Darlene Summerford of Scottsboro, Ala., accused her husband of forcing her hand into a rattlesnake bed to kill her. The film includes interviews with those who knew Glenn Summerford best.
9 p.m. on 9 (9)
For Life
 As a favor to Life (Dorian Missick), Aaron (Nicholas pincock) agrees to defend a man accused of witness tampering. Meanwhile, on the home front, tensions start to escalate in the Wallace family household as Thanksgiving preparations shift into high gear in the new episode "Time to Move Forward."

9 p.m. on 152;
11 p.m. on 152)
Narco Wars
 This new true-crime docuseries premieres with an episode called "How Cocaine Came to America," featuring interviews with notorious smuggler George Jung and the wife and son of Pablo Escobar. The hour examines how a handful of criminals teamed up to launch the Medellin Cartel, the most powerful such organization in the world. Their venture pioneered the cocaine-smuggling business in the 1970s and '80s.

College Football

A rivalry that dates back to 1897 gets another chapter today in Columbus, Ohio, where the Ohio State Buckeyes continue their drive for a national championship against the Michigan Wolverines. The Buckeyes, ranked No. 3 at this writing, have a potent attack led by their Heisman candidate quarterback Justin Fields, who posted an astounding 87 percent completion rate through the season's first three games. As for the Wolverines, this once-proud program has fallen on hard times thanks to mistake-prone play and a struggling defense.

Movie: The Bee Gees: How Can You Mend a Broken Heart
Filmmaker Frank Marshall (The Curious Case of Benjamin Button) explores the triumphs and challenges of brothers Barry, Maurice and Robin Gibb in their phenomenal joint music career as The Bee Gees. After finding success in the 1960s, the trio enjoyed a meteoric rise, writing more than 1,000 songs, including 20 number-one hits. In addition to copious archival footage, the feature-length documentary includes interviews with Eric Clapton, Noel Gallagher, Nick Jonas, Justin Timberlake, Chris Martin and pop icon Lulu, Maurice Gibb's ex-wife.

Movie: Toys of Terror
It's definitely not the most wonderful time of the year for the Cashman family when they move into a crumbling former orphanage in Washington state just before Christmas in this 2020 horror comedy written by Dana Gould ("Stan Against Evil"). Dad David (Dayo Adebisi) plans to spend the holidays giving the old place a makeover, but things go awry after the kids (Verity Marks, Saul Elias, Zoe Fish) find some old toys in an abandoned playroom.

Movie: A Glenbrooke Christmas

As the height of the holiday season comes rushing at her, heiress Jessica Morgan (Autumn Reeser) decides to grab what promises to be her last chance for a relaxing Christmas away from her usual social and professional world in this new 2020 drama. Toward that end, Jessica heads off to a charming small town off the beaten path, where she encounters a handsome firefighter (Antonio Cupo). Camille Mitchell, Quinn Lord and Michael Patrick Dennis also star.
