Redfield C&NW hunting season happenings 2020

The Depot is hosting a pheasant coloring contest for grades Preschool-6th again this year. The contest will be judged by Retired Teacher Personnel. First ($15), second ($10), third ($5) prizes will be given in four divisions. Entrants will be posted at Leo's, Roosters and Aunt Mimi's beginning October 16 and will remain there about three weeks. The Depot thanks all participants and the cooperation of their parents and guardians. Check in at the Depot to get your coloring sheet.

The Depot also has a small exhibit on Spink County hunting. If you have time, stop and view photos from last year's Pheasantennial. DEPOT/ pg.4

Sportsmen Against Hunger 2020

One out of every seven persons in South Dakota (or over 120,000 people) live at or below the poverty level according to Feeding South Dakota. About one-half of these people are children and infants. A primary food shortage is fresh meat which is in high demand and difficult to obtain. Of particular demand is game meat because of its nutritional value in having low fat and high protein content.

Even though deer and antelope populations are currently low in many areas of the state, South Dakota Sportsmen Against Hunger (SDSAH) wants to allow hunters the opportunity to donate deer and antelope if they so desire in order to help needy families. Hunters have responded to needs for increased deer and antelope harvest in the past, and increased meat donation accordingly. And now that deer and antelope populations are lower, hunters have continued to donate game meat to needy families.

In fall, winter and spring 2019-20, 33,201 pounds of game meat were provided to needy families through SDSAHA and local food relief agencies. This meat was primarily a result of donation of 675 deer, 17 antelope, 1,059 pheasants, 793 Canada geese, and 184 pounds of cleaned walleye. Other game meat came from community game meat food drives, hunter direct donations of processed meat to food relief agencies, and salvage processing of confiscated or non-hunter killed game.

South Dakota hunters have now donated 966,071 pounds of game meat to needy families. That's 3,864,284 meals of meat for the hungry! However, we need even more help!

Noteworthy in 2020 The deer donation program will be changing to require all donated deer and elk taken west of the Missouri River to be tested for Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD). Heads of deer and elk to be donated will need to be dropped off at designated collection site and the carcass delivered to a SDSAHA processor for processing. (See details for donated deer and elk testing under "Donated Deer CWD Testing" on this website). Hunters who want to want to collect and submit their own deer or elk tissue sample for CWD testing can obtain a CWD testing kit from any Department of Game, Fish and Parks S. A. G/ pg.5

HUNTING GUIDE 2020

Regional or District Office.

Except for deer and elk harvested west of the Missouri River, take your field-dressed deer, antelope, pheasants, geese or other wild game to a participating commercial processor, and indicate you want to donate it. If your game animal or bird qualifies for a South Dakota Sportsmen Against Hunger (SDSAH) doe processing certificate or a goose processing certificate, the respective big game processor or goose processor will furnish you a certificate to complete. Processors have the don't need to bring them with you.

Deer and elk harvested west of the Missouri River in 2020 needed to be tested for Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD) before donating to SDSAHA at a big game processor. (See details for donated deer testing and processing under "Donated Deer CWD Testing" on this website.)

For deer and antelope, simply fill out the processing certificate for each qualifying field-dressed carcass animal you donate, hand it back to the processor at the time of donation. There is no limit on the number of processing certificates you may use but only one certificate per animal. In fall and winter 2020-21, the big game processing certificates are worth $75 for each donated doe/antlerless deer, and $65 for each donated doe or fawn antelope. Most processors accept the certificate value as full payment.

For those processors who charge more than the certificate value for processing donated animals, you would be responsible for paying any remaining fee at the time of donation.

For Canada geese taken and donated at a goose processor during September 5 - 18 of the 2020

Canada Goose Unit 1 Season, fill out one processing certificate for all of the birds bagged and donated that day. Each certificate is worth $4.00 per bird for the number of donated birds indicated on the certificate. All of the goose processors will accept the certificate as full payment for processing donated geese.

You may still donate game animals and birds to SDSAHA that do not qualify for processing certificates. Examples would be buck deer, buck antelope, pheasants and any game not taken in South Dakota. In these cases, you would be responsible for payment of all processing charges.

That is all you need to do! After the donated game is processed and frozen by the processor, arrangements are made for delivering the processed meat from the processor to a food pantry or other public food relief agency. The food relief agencies then distribute the donated meat to needy families who qualify for food assistance in their communities.

HUNTING GUIDE 2020

2020 Ringneck Outlook

(From: gfp.sd.gov)
Traditional Pheasant Hunting Season begins on October 17th
The Outdoors are open!
 Covid-19 won't stop the wily roosters from flying or the hunters from venturing into the fields. The outdoors are open in South Dakota and we can't think of a better way to stay six feet apart this fall. Get out into the great wide open in the home of the world's greatest pheasant hunting and make the greatest memories this year.

Premier outdoor destination

- South Dakota is one of the few places in the world where you can bag the upland bird trifecta - sharptailed grouse, prairie chicken and pheasant - all on the same hunt!
- Excellent walleye fishing on the Missouri River and in the Glacial Lakes region presents the perfect opportunity to rest your legs and wet some lines! » Many state parks offer camping sites, camping and modern cabins and lodge opportunities to complete your outdoor adventure as well as offer fun for the whole family!

Plan your greatest hunt

Are you planning your hunt in South Dakota? We've got you covered!
 Full Service Experience
 South Dakota is home to numerous hunting lodges and guided hunt opportunities. If you are looking for sure fire action, this could be the type of hunt for you! Learn more about lodges and guided hunts in South Dakota at travelsouthdakota.com/recreation/hunting/lodge-hunt.

Do-It-Yourself Adventure

Are you looking for a DIY adventure, but aren't sure where to start? South Dakota is home to abundant pheasant hunting lands and opportunities. It can be hard to narrow down where you want to go. Check out the pheasant distribution map to see where the primary range is found across South Dakota. You can also learn more about the different types of areas to hunt in South Dakota at travelsouthdakota.com/recreation/hunting/region-breakdowns.

Pheasant Distribution

Primary pheasant range is in central and eastern South Dakota, though there are pockets of excellent pheasant hunting in western part of the state.

REDFIELD PHEASANT HUNTING HISTORY

Pheasant History

Redfield's claim as the "Pheasant Capital of the World"® dates back to 1908.

The first successful stocking of pheasants in South Dakota took place in June, 1908 when H.P. Packard, J. Schalkle and H.A. Hagmann secured three pairs of pheasants from Grants Pass, Oregon. The birds were kept in crates on the Schalkle farm before they were released.

L.J. Howard, who at the time was the Spink County Clerk of Courts, went with the three men to Hagmann's Grove, just north of Redfield, to release the birds. The number of pheasants grew steadily over the years and the state game department purchased 48 pairs of birds with privately subscribed funds and released them near Redfield.

The first one-day open season on cock pheasants occurred in Spink County on October 30, 1919. Each person holding a small game license was permitted to kill two cock pheasants.

Depredation Hunts

One of GFP's primary challenges in wildlife management is working with agriculture producers to minimize the impact that wildlife has on their operations.

There are a number of methods for deterring wildlife from causing damage, including: create alternate feeding sites, temporary and permanent fencing, and hazing wildlife away from an area.

When other methods fail, GFP and private landowners may turn to hunters to help reduce the discourage wildlife causing damage.

South Dakota residents may sign up for a potential depredation hunt in December. If there is a need, a hunt may occur anytime from December through March.

Registration begins December 1, 8 a.m. CST
