FX brings Chris Rock to 'Fargo' for series' fourth season

Though the last visit to "Fargo" was a while ago, it's still on the television map.

Last seen in 2017, the FX drama series inspired by an Oscar-winning movie begins its pandemic-delayed fourth season with two episodes Sunday, Sept. 27 (also streaming starting the next day on FX on Hulu). As is customary, the Emmy- and Peabody-winning show reboots with a new story and cast, with Chris Rock now heading the ensemble as a Kansas City mobster circa 1950. He strikes an accord with a rival family (a member of which is played by Jason Schwartzman) to maintain peace, but unexpected circumstances soon upset that agreement.

Other characters in the new saga include a federal marshal (Timothy Olyphant, returning to FX following his run in "Justified"), a detective (Jack Huston) who can't filter his impulses, and a "Rabbi" (Ben Whishaw) – per his nickname – who has his own agenda in observing what develops among the criminal competitors, within their own families in some instances.

While Rock is known primarily for comedy, "Fargo" executive producer, writer and sometimes director Noah Hawley says that with Season 4, "Once I had the idea for it, I immediately thought of Chris. And before there was a script, I met with him and pitched him what I wanted to do, and he agreed to sign on ... and then, it was four or five months before he saw a script. I definitely was writing with him in mind. I tend not to, but with Chris, he's special."

Rock admits he had a big adjustment to make to the "Fargo" way of working. "It's intricate, the way they shoot," he notes. "The camera's always moving, so it's not like comedic acting where you kind of wait for your closeup and you're like, 'OK, I'm going to give you 13 different versions of this funny thing.' This is like the New England Patriots, and you have to run the route and (expect) the ball will be there. You've got to run the exact route for it to work. The challenge is getting the part down but still getting some of my personality in there."

Hawley enjoys working elements of history into any season of "Fargo," since he reflects, "The story of any family is the story of America. What we'll come to realize with this African-American man who was raised by an Irishman – who himself was raised by both Jews and Italians – is that history is a living thing. And the way that we keep it alive is that we tell stories about our history to keep it fresh in our minds. Otherwise, we forget, so it's exciting on some level to explore."

Like so many music stars, not only is home where the heart is for Keith Urban, it's where his principal stage is now.

The recent host of the 55th Academy of Country Music Awards, the award-winning singer-songwriter has been giving performances from his Nashville residence, some of them for virtually produced television specials. One is the iHeartRadio Music Festival, which goes the virtual route with its 10th annual edition – recorded in Los Angeles as well as Nashville – as The CW televises it Sunday and Monday, Sept. 27 and 28.

"This has come at a time in history when we have technology to make things possible that weren't possible even 10 years ago," reasons Urban, whose "The Speed of Now Part 1" is his latest album. "I mean, who knew about Zoom before all of this? Not me, and now, that's a word I rattle off as quickly as 'Google.' It's unbelievable how fast we've all adapted."

Ryan Seacrest retains his traditional spot as host of this year's iHeartRadio Music Festival, which also includes BTS, Usher, Miley Cyrus, Coldplay, Thomas Rhet, Migos and Kane Brown "with special guest" Khalid in its lineup.

For Urban, the show is one more manifestation of how much things have changed for him and his family, including wife Nicole Kidman, over the past several months. "We've been very fortunate to be healthy, which is No, 1," he reflects, "and to be able to stay together and stay creative, and to stay helpful where we can. We've just tried to take the approach of leaning into the light as best we can. That's the way I try to live."

Birthdate: Oct. 25, 1967

Birthplace: Whangarel, Northland, New Zealand Current residences: Nashville and Australia Marital status: Married to actress Nicole Kidman; they have two daughters

Albums include: "The Speed of Now Part 1," "Graffiti U," "Ripcord," "Fuse," "Get Closer," "Defying Gravity," "Love, Pain & the Whole Crazy Thing," "Be Here," "Golden Road," "Keith Urban," "Keith Urban in The Ranch" animated comedy sends up a certain reality series on another network in the season premiere "Undercover Burns," which finds Mr. Burns (voice of Harry Shearer) going undercover at the nuclear power plant as

"Fred," a new employee. Much to his surprise. Homer (voice of Dan Castellaneta) and the gang make him feel welcome, and soon "Fred" is putting in new amenities to please his new chums. That doesn't sit well with the jealous Smithers

(Shearer again), however.

Guest voices include David

Phil Rosenthal (as himself).

This Emmy-winning animated comedy series returns for Season 11, which will include the show's 200th-episode milestone. Another episode this season's rotation somewhat eerily involves a school epidemic, although it was written and in production before the coronavirus pandemic shut down much of the entertainment industry. H. Jon Benjamin, John Roberts, Dan Mintz, Eugene Mirman and Kristen Schaal return to voice the Belcher family; new and returning guest voices this season include Megan Mullally, Zach Galifianakis, Jenny Slate and Sarah and Laura Silverman.

A teen (Christina Ricci) who lost her mother befriends friendly ghost Casper while staying at a mean heiress's (Cathy Moriarty) haunted mansion in this kid-friendly 1995 comedy adapted from a popular comic book. Watch out for a ghostbuster who probably looks eerily familiar, and he should: He's Dan Aykroyd, from that blockbuster movie comedy. Bill Pullman also stars in this family comedy, which marks its 25th anniversary this year and tonight helps launch Freeform's wildly popular fall programming event "31 Nights of Halloween."

Mysteries Decoded As the TV year moves into October, a month widely associated with ghosts and witches, this series obligingly responds with the new episode "Witches of Salem." in which private investigator Jennifer Marshall, a U.S. Navy veteran, joins professional journalist Sarah Lyons to delve into centuries-old mysteries that still surround the 17th-century Salem

Movie: Dracula Screen history certainly has not lacked for its share of Draculas, but the tastiest arguably remains Bela Lugosi, who plays the Transylvanian count in this 1931 classic. The bloodsucker has his arch nemesis Van Helsing (Edward Van Sloan) to contend
