Shark Week: Lessons learned from 20 years of 'Air Jaws'

Talk to Jeff Kurr and you realize this is a man with an endless fascination with sharks.

Indeed, in the 20 years he's been doing "Air Jaws" films for Discovery's Shark Week, he's used innovative filmmaking techniques such as robotic seals, remotecontrol submersibles and helicopters, submarines, thermal imaging and highspeed cameras to capture footage of previously unseen shark behavior. In the process, he's gotten countless spectacular moving images of great whites breaching the ocean's surface in pursuit of prey.

This year, Discovery's all-sharks-allthe-time event, which runs Sunday to Sunday, Aug. 9-16, contains two of Kurr's films: "Air Jaws: Ultimate Breach Off," airing Aug. 9, and "Air Jaws 2020," on Thursday, Aug. 13. The latter is a retrospective show in which he and shark experts Chris Fallows and Dickie Chivell, among others, discuss their experiences making the landmark "Air Jaws" films.

One of the most important things they've learned about great whites is they're not the mindless eating machines they've been portrayed to be but rather shrewd hunters with an ability to strategize and size up potential prey.

"When you're in the water with a great white shark," Kurr says, "... you can see them looking at you and the eye twitching. And you see there's a lot going on there behind that eye, that the shark is evaluating you and showing caution and restraint if it feels a little bit nervous about what you are.

"And when you experience that in person when you're that close to a shark and you look into his eye, you really understand that these creatures are thinking about things, they're evaluating things and they have a lot of incredible senses that allow them to sort of evaluate you and figure out what you are and what their normal prey is and adapting to their environment. They're really, really intelligent animals."

For "Air Jaws: Ultimate Breach Off," Kurr remotely produced and directed this film during the pandemic using a South African crew and the What'sApp app to show how researchers used decoys, drones and underwater cameras to count the number of breaches and collect data on hunting techniques to see if the shark population is rebounding.

"It's basically three researchers who are sort of competing to capture the ultimate breach with the larger purpose of trying to document the amount of great white sharks in a certain area," Kurr explains. "Due to the lockdown, no one's been in this area for three months so they're trying to see if the sharks are taking advantage of that or if they're still coming into the area.

"And as it turns out," he adds with a laugh, "it seems like the sharks enjoy it when the people aren't there. There were plenty of them."

Now more than ever, Ginger Zee believes true stories of heroes should be told.

She has a weekly venue for that, since the chief meteorologist for ABC News and "Good Morning America" also hosts the network's Saturday-morning show "Hearts of Heroes," tracing efforts by rescue workers to save people and pets in times of localized crisis. Since many of the situations are related to dangerous weather, Zee believes she's in the right place with the show.

"I always say, 'What were you guys planning to do if you didn't have a meteorologist host this?,' " she notes. "The stories tell themselves, but there's a lot of weather information. The writers and producers have gotten used to me ripping things apart and making it accurate but entertaining, while also honoring the heroes. That's what the show is really about."

Zee admits she knew only casually of Belfor USA, the property-restoration company that co-produces "Hearts of Heroes," before she started the program. Its CEO, Sheldon Yellen, also appears in each episode; deeming him "really special," Zee says he "adores firefighters, to the point where he wants to be one. This has allowed him to be in firehouses, connect with people and say 'Thank you' on a personal level."

"Hearts of Heroes" is in its second season, and Zee hopes it has a long run ahead: "We might hear from a victim, but we never get to hear from the actual heroes ... and here, we get to hear the perspective of the policeman or the fireman or the EMS worker. Right now, it's even more important to highlight those folks who really are on the front lines."

Giannis Antetokounmpo

Monday 5:30 p.m. on 25; 2 a.m. on 25 NBA Basketball

A battle of the top two teams in the East is in the offing tonight in Orlando, Fla., where Giannis Antetokounmpo and the Milwaukee Bucks take on Pascal Siakam and the Toronto Raptors. With a big lead in the conference standings, the Bucks won't likely see their playoff fortunes changed by the outcome of this game. They've already beaten the Dinos twice this season so a win here will only represent icing on the cake.

Surviving Jeffrey Epstein

The documentary miniseries exploring the alleged criminal activities of billionaire Jeffrey Epstein concludes with two final hours, starting with "No Way Out," wherein survivors relate how Epstein allegedly saved his most unsavory behavior for his private island, where abuses flourished without any kind of scrutiny. Then, "Avenged" gives the girls a chance to speak on why the July 2 arrest of Ghislaine Maxwell, who reportedly groomed them for Epstein, gives them reason to hope justice finally may be served, despite Epstein's death behind bars.

Director Norman Jewison's cast also includes Paul Burke, Jack Weston and Yaphet Kotto. The film airs tonight as part of TCM's day-long "Summer Under the Stars" salute to McQueen.

7 p.m. on (45); 11 p.m. on (45); 5 a.m. on (45)

Sharks of Ghost Island

Ghost Island, located on the edge of the Bermuda Triangle, is shunned by locals in the region as a place of savage shark attacks and deadly shipwrecks. In fact, Dr. Craig O'Connell's first trip to this island, to investigate a possible shark hot spot, had to be cut short when his own boat nearly sank. Now he's back, this time with a team of experts, determined to understand what about this area makes it such a magnet for sharks.

7 p.m. on (123); 12:10 a.m. on (123) Earthflight

The series embarks on a grand tour of "Europe" in this new episode, which sends cameras soaring with flocks of cranes and geese over such diverse landscapes as Venice. Edinburgh and the white cliffs of Dover. Meanwhile, white storks leave Africa and struggle to make it through their exhausting flight path to Istanbul, a gateway to Europe, while some 20 million starlings perform one of nature's most dazzling aerial displays over the eternal city of Rome. David Tennant is the narrator.

8 p.m. on 32; 12 a.m. on 32 Believers

A mother is understandably horrified to discover that her daughter's "imaginary friend" actually is a dangerous demonic entity in the new episode "Paranormal Playdate." In other segments, a bar manager inadvertently triggers a terrifying haunting when she unearths an old photograph, and a family's new home is haunted by a longdead inhabitant.

8 p.m. on (45); 12 a.m. on (45) Wicked Sharks

Great White shark attacks off Cape Cod are starting to spike, affording an opportunity for shark expert Dr. Greg Skomal to break out some cutting-edge tech that will capture the shark's point of view, providing new insights into how and where they hunt. His team hopes their research will enhance public safety in the area.

Terrors From the Deep

In this new one-hour installment, a diverse group that includes a surfer from California, a University of Alabama football coach, a Canadian thrill-seeker and a mother from North Carolina shares their stories of how each of them came faceto-face with the ocean's ace predator and lived to tell their tale.
