Their lips aren't sealed: The Go-Go's speak out on Showtime

Music endures, as do many of the artists who have created it ... as The Go-Go's are proving anew.

Though the all-female band that emerged from punk rock to yield such early-1980s pop hits as “We Got the Beat,” “Our Lips Are Sealed” and “Vacation” famously broke up, the members have reunited. Their latest concert tour has been postponed by the coronavirus pandemic, but their history is traced in director Alison Ellwood’s (“Laurel Canyon”) documentary “The Go-Go’s,” which premiered at this year’s Sundance Film Festival. Its Showtime debut Friday, July 31, comes the same day as the release of the group’s new single “Club Zero.”

At the band’s peak, the central Go-Go’s were lead singer Belinda Carlisle, guitarists Charlotte Caffey and Jane Wiedlin, bass player Kathy Valentine (whose memoir, “All I Ever Wanted,” was published recently) and drummer Gina Schock. For this article, several of them spoke about their shared past and present, encompassing one of the rare debut albums to reach No. 1 on the Billboard charts (“Beauty and the Beat”).

Q: What effect did watching the documentary have on you?

Caffey: We got an advance copy before Sundance, and Alison asked us, “Please just play it all the way through. Take it in as a total thing.” I did exactly that, and at the end, I felt the biggest surge of warmth and compassion and love for my bandmates. I’m an open book about my (former) drug addiction, because I feel that maybe it will help somebody.

Q: The rise of The Go-Go’s paralleled that of MTV. How do you look back on the channel’s role in the group’s popularity?

Valentine: We faced such resistance from radio, but college stations and rogue DJs who had the power to slip in a song were playing us. And there was the power of MTV putting us in people’s living rooms. It was a fan-driven and sales-driven thing that made us start getting added to those playlists that (radio) program directors were dominating.

Q: What’s your take on how the music of The Go-Go’s has endured?

Wiedlin: The proudest thing for me is that some of the greatest music of the latter half of the 20th century was influenced by The Go-Go’s. I mean, music by Kurt Cobain and (Green Day’s) Billie Joe Armstrong ... how many more accolades do you need after that?

Q: What professional advice do you give others?

Schock: (Music has) got to come from your soul and from your heart, and that’s the way I’ve played. No one showed me how to play; I just had my own style, and it’s worked. I say to anyone, “Just play an instrument. You never know until you try.”

Checking in with RACHAEL RAY

celebrity scoop
BY JAY BOBBIN

“Work from home” has much deeper meaning for many people these days, including Rachael Ray.

Known as much for her cooking skills as her lively personality, the talk-show host (who’s approaching the 15th season of the syndicated, weekday “Rachael Ray”) has been creating new episodes of her eponymous program from the home she maintains in upstate New York, mixing those with studio shows taped pre-pandemic. Currently, her lone crew member is someone she knows extremely well: her husband, John Cusimano.

“It’s lovely to be kind of stripped down,” Ray says of doing her series with ... well, the bare necessities. “I’m not naked, but I’m in sweatpants; for people who work in television, that is the equivalent of being naked. You’re just stripped right down to who you are, and with many of the episodes, it’s literally just me and John.”

Mourning the recent passing of her beloved pit bull Isaboo, Ray – who also continues her work for Food Network with her “30 Minute Meals” revival, recently nominated for two Daytime Emmys (in addition to the bid “Rachael Ray” earned) – has given thought to when she’ll return to the studio full-time. She knows there are many considerations, though, such as how the areas for staff members and waiting audience members will be organized.

“You talk briefly about different contingencies,” Ray allows, “but it’s gonna be a while before there is a contingency. We don’t know what it’s going to be until it actually comes to be. We do a touch-base thing with (CBS Television Distribution executives) now, but that’s all I can take the time to do. Because I have to work.”

Birthdate: Aug. 25, 1968

Birthplace: Glens Falls, N.Y.

Current residences: New York City and upstate New York

Marital status: Married to musician and lawyer John Cusimano

Movie work includes: “The Emoji Movie” (voice only)

Adam Sandler, Andy Samberg, Selena Gomez, Kevin James, David Spade, Steve Buscemi and Molly Shannon are among the returning voice actors for this new story, which finds Dracula (Sandler) falling for a beautiful ship's captain (new cast member Kathryn Hahn) while on a family cruise, unaware she's really the great-granddaughter of his arch-nemesis Van Helsing (Jim Gaffigan).

Wynonna Earp

The wisecracking supernatural horror comedy returns for its long-delayed Season 4 premiere, although the production shutdown due to the coronavirus pandemic means these 12 new episodes will air in two batches of six, with a hiatus between them. As the story resumes, the dreaded Earp family curse has been broken, but before demon hunter Wynonna Earp (Melanie Scrofano) can celebrate with her pals, she must confront her most dangerous enemy yet — this time without her trustworthy gun, Peacemaker. His mission: to watch for similar attacks that may help him understand how and why Great Whites suddenly become whale killers.

7 p.m. on 13

Killer Camp

In the new "A Killer Accusation," the campmates are thrown back into that freezing lake, this time to win cash by retrieving buoys, but that's still less uncomfortable than a game they're forced to play in which they're forced for each other are shared out loud. Around the campfire, for the first time each camper reveals who they think the killer is, then they take a vote, hoping to eliminate the (literal) backstabber before another camper becomes a victim.

Earthflight

British actor David Tennant narrates this visually stunning nature documentary series that shows a flight from a bird's-eye view across six continents, showing some of the world's most breathtaking natural spectacles from this unconventional perspective. Highlights in the premiere, "North America," include a flock of geese on the flight north, being hunted by bald eagles; pelicans gliding along under San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge and, later, looking down on devil rays performing Roman Griffin Davis stars as the title character Johannes "Jojo" Betzler, a member of Hitler Youth who is stunned to discover his mother (Scarlett Johansson) is hiding a Jewish girl (Thomasin McKenzie) in their attic.
