BY GEORGE DICKIE

Natalie Dormer stars in "Penny Dreadful: City of Angels," premiering Sunday on Showtime.

Hatred threatens to tear a city apart in Showtime's supernaturally-tinged 'Penny Dreadful: City of Angels'

It's 1938 and Los Angeles is rife with political and social tension. And in the middle of it is Tiago Vega.

As played by Daniel Zovatto ("Vandal") in the Showtime supernatural thriller "Penny Dreadful: City of Angels," the spiritual descendant of the original "Penny Dreadful" that premieres Sunday, April 26, he's the LAPD's first Mexican-American detective whose first case is to investigate a grisly murder case with partner Lewis Michener (Nathan Lane, "The Producers") that appears to be linked to a brewing race war between the city's Latino population and rich whites.

Those tensions are further exacerbated by a proposed freeway through a Latino neighborhood that's being spearheaded by city councilman Charles Townsend (Michael Gladis, "Mad Men"). Tiago is resigned to his old stomping grounds being plowed under in the name of progress but his brother Raul (Adam Rodriguez, "CSI: Miami"), a local union leader, is determined to stop it, thus putting the siblings at odds and setting the whole city on a collision course with a bloody race riot.

Which is just what two supernatural entities want. Magda (Natalie Dormer, "Game of Thrones"), a dark goddess, can take any form she wants, including that of Townsend's uber-efficient assistant, and her intent is to fan the flames of discord. When the smoke clears, her sister Santa Muerte (Lorenza Izzo, "Once Upon a Time ... in Hollywood"), the angel of holy death, will be there to collect the souls.

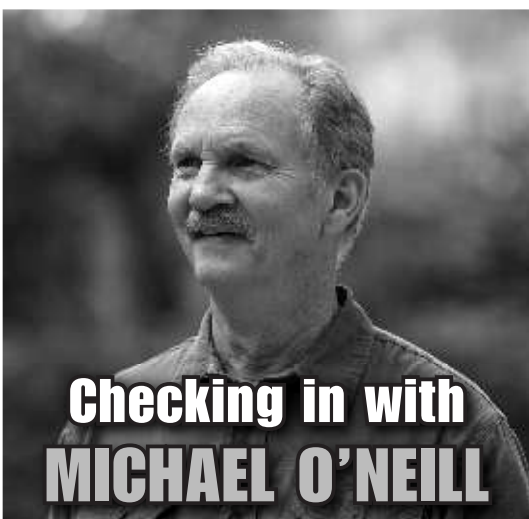

Also in the toxic mix are Nazis, evangelists and elements of political, religious and racial hatred, all of which series creator John Logan ("Genius") says make this story relevant today.

"Although it's set in 1938, it's about 2020," he says. "Looking over the world landscape now, I'm struck by parallels to the late '30s and what's going on now, particularly the rise of extremist political hatred, of a sort of racist demagoguery that is taken for granted, by the pernicious influence in the danger of a foreign power in our electoral process, in our communication, and particularly by the marginalization and victimization of an ethnic community. And as the son of immigrants myself, this is a story that I wanted to tell."

And one of the more insidious characters in "City of Angels" is Magda, the otherworldly being who takes various forms to incite hatred and violence on humanity. It was a formidable acting challenge that required Dormer to play multiple characters through Magda, one that she relished.

"This is the actor's dream," she says, "to play countless iterations and countless characterizations. You see in the first episode ... two of Magda's iterations. There are more. You'll have to wait to see how many there are.

"By adding the supernatural element to it," she continues, "you have this catalyst, you have this metaphor that can lift the story in that way that illustrates John's themes even more emphatically. And every good protagonist needs an antagonist, and I just have a lot of fun interweaving with all the cast, being several antagonists, which I'm thrilled to be doing. And yeah, I mean, every character – a different wig, different voice, different physicality – this is catnip to an actor."

Checking in with MICHAEL O'NEILL

Michael O'Neill long has been a respected character actor, but a new series gives him one of its most emotionally challenging characters yet.

After a March preview, the NBC drama "Council of Dads" begins its regular run Thursday, April 30. O'Neill, Clive Standen and J. August Richards play close friends of a recently deceased man whose survivors they help – including his doctor wife (Sarah Wayne Callies), who's a new mom again.

"Council of Dads" is based on experiences of the late Bruce Feiler, whose same-named book inspired the show. O'Neill has lived a similar situation, since he reveals, "My wife and I had three children in 18 months, and I got cast in a film and had to go away for four months. And a woman with Stage IV cancer came to my home every night and helped my wife bathe and feed those babies, so we had a community of people that was incredibly generous to us."

Though O'Neill has played authority figures on series from "The West Wing" to "NCIS," he explains, "I hit a little bit of an 'I will fight no more forever' moment, where I felt like I'd put a lot of violence into the world and I'd been a part of shows that were apocalyptic and bleak at a time when we needed to explore (the gentler) part of human mythology.

"I wanted something that made me feel like this (new show)," adds O'Neill, "that made me feel like, 'We're going to be OK. We can do this for each other. We're going to get through it. We might cry a little bit, but we've got this.'"

Penny Dreadful: City of Angels Less a sequel to than a "spiritual descendant" of his creepy 2014-16 frightfest "Penny Dreadful," John Logan's new thriller sets its supernatural story in 1938 Los Angeles, a locale equally marked by a spirit of progress and deep traditions of Mexican-American folklore. Daniel Zovatto ("Here and Now") stars as police detective Tiago Vega, who is investigating a murder with his Anglo partner (Nathan Lane) as the story opens. Natalie Dormer ("Game of Thrones"), Kerry Bishé ("Halt and Catch Fire") and Rory Kinnear also star.

The Blacklist
 In a new episode called "Brothers," Agent Ressler (Diego Klattenhoff) has no choice but to finally confront his past trauma and long-kept family secrets when his brother takes him back home to undertake a job that promises to be very risky. James Spader, Megan Boone, Harry Lennix, Amir Arison and Hisham Tawfiq also star.

7 p.m. on 56
Movie: Cocoon
 Sadly, most of the senior stars of Ron Howard's delightful 1985 comedy are no longer with us. But just as their characters in the movie wanted to do, they live forever on film. Do, Ameche leads the cast as a resident in a retirement community where three couples discover alien pods have turned their swimming pool into a fountain of youth. Hume Cronyn, Jessica Tandy and Maureen Stapleton also star in the film, which opens tonight's "We Come in Peace" alien-themed movie lineup on TCM.

7 p.m. on 420
Movie: Don't Let Go
 British actor David Oyelowo ("Selma") stars in writer-director Jacob Aaron Estes' 2019 supernatural horror film, in which he plays homicide detective Jack Radcliff, who finds himself drawn into an eerie case after his niece, her mother and stepfather are found murdered in their home. Shortly thereafter, he begins receiving phone calls that suggest his late niece is contacting him from the past. Storm Reid, Byron Mann, Mykelti Williamson, Alfred Molina and Brian Tyree Henry co-star.

9 p.m. on 3 3
Blue Bloods
 After getting a match from an unfamiliar relative on a DNA website, Sean (Andrew Terraciano) does some sleuthing to identify the mystery person in the new episode "Family Secrets." Meanwhile, Frank (Tom Selleck) gets a call from a worried woman (guest star Bonnie Somerville) who wants him to transfer her son to a safer assignment. Eddie (Vanessa Ray) starts considering becoming a mother after she and Jamie (Will Estes) find a newborn abandoned outside their precinct building. Donnie Wahlberg and Bridget Moynahan also star.

9 p.m. on 435
Movie: Rudy
 Sean Astin stars in the title role as a middling student and athlete from a working-class background who dreams of playing football at Notre Dame. Hollywood embellishes a bit on the details, but Rudy's uplifting story of determination against all odds is true. Ned Beatty, Charles S. Dutton and Lili Taylor co-star in this 1993 drama from director David Anspaugh and writer Angelo

Pizzo, who also collaborated on "Hoosiers."

Betty
 Crystal Moselle's critically acclaimed 2018 feature drama "Skate Kitchen" inspired this series spinoff, a skateboarding comedy that follows a group of diverse young women making their way through the generally male-dominated world of the sport. Rachele Vinberg reprises her movie role as the shrewd Camille, whose as the instincts when it comes to sizing up others plays to her advantage. Dede Lovace, Ajani Russell, Moonbeam and Nina Moran also return from the movie. HBO has given a six-episode order for Season 1.
