Flooding still ravaging Upper Midwest

Temperatures rising along with river heights.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) -Flooding in the Midwestern U.S. collapsed a railroad bridge and tested a dam Monday after days of heavy rains that have forced hundreds of people to evacuate or be rescued from rising waters.

The flooding brought additional misery to parts of Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota during a vast and stubborn heat wave. In some communities hit by flooding, the temperature Monday afternoon approached 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

More than 3 million people live in areas touched by flooding, from Omaha, Nebraska, to St. Paul, Minnesota. More rain is forecast, and many streams may not crest until later this week as the floodwaters slowly drain down a web of rivers to the Missouri and Mississippi.

The flooding has, over the course of days, damaged roads and bridges, shuttered or destroyed businesses, required hospitals and nursing homes to evacuate, and left cities without power or safe drinking water, the governors of Iowa and South Dakota said.

"I just keep thinking about all this stuff I've lost and maybe the little things I could recover that we put up high," said Aiden Engelkes in the northwestern Iowa community of Spencer, which imposed curfews during flooding that surpassed a record set in 1953. "And then I think about where my friends are, because their stuff is also gone."

Outside Mankato, Minnesota, the local sheriff's office said the Rapidan Dam on the Blue Earth River faced "imminent failure" after it became plugged with debris. But water is carving out land on its west side and relieving pressure, Blue Earth County Sheriff Jeff Wersal said, so "I don't anticipate the dam just crumbling and breaking."

Even if water does overtop the dam, the only two residences downstream have already voluntarily evacuated, Wersal said.

WAKONDA — South Dakota recently became the No. 1 producer of hemp fibers in the nation after being the third-to-last state to make it legal just three years ago.

"We're the highest production and the highest in yield-per-acre, both of those," said Bill Brehmer, board member of the South Dakota Industrial Hemp Association (SDIHA). "We are going to try to hold that for next year. This will be our first year to dominate that category."

One of the people helping to do that is John Peterson, treasurer for SDIHA and a hemp farmer near Wakonda, about 50 miles southwest of Sioux Falls. He started Dakota Hemp LLC in 2021 when hemp was legalized, and it was the second farm in the state to grow the crop.

Peterson, a fifth generation farmer, planted 40 acres of hemp the first year and has since expanded to 450 acres in the 2024 season.

He got started in hemp production after attending a meeting of people who already were growing the crop.

"Once hemp farming became legal with the 2018 Farm Bill, it came across my radar again as a reality and I saw the stories of farmers around the country growing CBD hemp but not much for the fiber or grain yet," Peterson said. "I received a random postcard in the mail announcing an industrial hemp

A four-day party is coming to White, July 18 through 21 with this year's Pioneer Days — a celebration showcasing food, golf, live music and more.

"Our big thing is: it's a weekend for all ages, and we're just a short drive from Brookings," Jennifer Olson, president of the Pioneer Days Committee, said. "We always say, you know, hey just come, and bring a lawn chair, and take in the events and enjoy."

The community of White has observed a Pioneer Days celebration since 1980, pausing only once to cancel the event in 2020 due to COVID. Each year has a different theme, and this year's theme is: Caution — Fun Times Ahead.

'It's because we're kind of under construction in White," Olson said. "We're having a whole bunch of road work done, we're doing some infrastructure work and some road work, and some big things going on. They're updating our water tower. So the town is a little tore up. So that's why we thought we'd go with a construction theme."

Pioneer Days is held the third weekend in July, but events typically spill out into the preceding Thursday and Friday as well. This year is no exception, with a sched-grower's meeting in Hudson, SD, in early spring of 2021. There were about eight farmers and 12 presenters."

That was the start of Dakota Hemp.

"I remember calling one of the presenters on my way home from the meeting to further discuss grain and fiber hemp and get more information, as I really saw that being the better option for my farm. I decided to grow 40 acres of hemp on our farm in 2021, a dual purpose variety grown for the grain and fiber."

After Peterson saw the results of that first crop, he added hemp into his crop rotation of corn and soybeans. The farm is now in its fourth year of planting the crop and plans to expand.

'I realized mid-season (in 2021) that this crop is going to thrive here in SD and fits very well into a crop rotation on a large-scale across the state," he said. "I planted 130 acres of industrial hemp on my farm in 2022, nine varieties, including some of the first fiber variety trials in the Midwest, which did surprisingly well in the drought."

The farm also plants 1,000 to 2,000 CBD plants for hemp products it produces, which include hemp oils, gels and creams. Legalized in SD in 2021

Production of hemp became legal in the United State under the 2018 Farm Bill, which allowed the United State Department of Agriculture (USDA) to start making rules and regulations for commercial hemp production starting in 2019 under the Agriculture Improvement Act.

South Dakota passed a bill through the Legislature to legalize the production of the crop, but Gov. Kristi Noem vetoed it, making it one of three states to outlaw the crop despite federal legalization.

After the law was changed and improved in early 2020, the South Dakota Industrial Hemp Program began in 2021.

Since the legalization, the state has grown to more than 3,000 acres of hemp production, with around 40 farm across the state, and plans to continue growing in farms and acreage.

Hemp grows well in SD

South Dakota hemp growers bring in varieties of the plant from other countries, such as France and China, to grow the crop since it was illegal to grow in the U.S. between the 1930s and 2018.

"Well-developed hemp genetics of Canada and Europe work well in our latitude," said Ken Meyer, board president of SDIHA. "Hemp is a photo sensitive plant. The long daylight hours that we experience in the summer are beneficial to growing hemp. Our lower summer temperatures compared to Southern climate zones are a big help. And we have enough average rainfall but not too much, which can cause - especially in warmer climates more issues with bugs or diseases."

Farmers who started hemp production, like Peterson, found the crop production in South Dakota had better results than other states also growing hemp.

"We're finding that our soil, our weather (let us) grow good hemp here," Peterson said. "We can really grow almost double the crop (compared to neighboring states)."

Growing hemp in fields also has an impact on the soil and how other crops grow. Peterson said there's a clear difference in the organic matter that can be seen after planting a hemp crop.

"You do have good organic matter you're putting back in the soil," Peterson said. "Plus we're giving our microbes a new food source. They have never eaten these hemp roots before. ... That really activates good numbers on our soil."

Industry's value, plan to stay on top

The total value of South Dakota's 2023 hemp crop was more than $23 million, Bremher said.

Nationally, hemp was nearly a $24 billion market in 2023, according to numbers documented by the USDA.

That is expected to continue to climb in the coming years, reaching $30 billion by 2030, USDA said.

"2024 will kind of be a big year in developing and on the processing side," Brehmer said.

As hemp becomes a more popular product, more farms across the United States have started to pop up, making it more of a challenge for South Dakota to stay No. 1 for production.

'To stay No. 1, we've got expand capacity," Brehmer said. "To stay No. 1, our bales either (have) got to go out of state to a processor or we've got to keep expand-

А railroad bridge connecting North Sioux City, South Dakota, with Sioux City, Iowa, fell into the Big Sioux River around 11 p.m. Sunday, officials said. Images on local media showed a large span of the steel bridge partially underwater as floodwaters rushed over it.

There were no reports of injuries from the collapse. The bridge's owner, BNSF Railway, had stopped operating it as a precaution during the flooding, spokesperson Kendall Sloan said. The railroad said the bridge was used by only a few trains per day and did not expect rerouting to have a significant impact.

The Big Sioux River stabilized Monday morning at around 45 feet, over 7 feet higher than the previous record, Sioux City Fire Marshal Mark Aesoph said. Evacuations have begun for homes at low elevations, and more are expected as waters rise.

In North Sioux City, the South Dakota Department of Transportation built a berm Sunday night across ule starting Thursday, July 18 featuring a line-up of food trucks on Main Street, a meal in Arthur Graslie City Park, a kid's tractor pull, a bike parade, and music in the evening at Lefty's Sports Pub.

Activities continue Friday with a golf tournament at Six Mile Creek Golf Course.

"We usually have fortyeight teams. And we do two sessions. We have a morning session, and we have an afternoon session," Olson said. "It usually fills up in an hour and a half. So people stand in line for it."

Friday also features go-kart races on Main Street and a free-admission street dance in the evening with the Rewinder Band performing. Saturday, July 20 serves up the busiest agenda.

"There's a parade in the morning at eleven o'clock. It just comes down Main Street, it circles our park, and that is a big draw. We've one of the bigger parades in the area," Olson said. "That is a huge draw for us. It's a pretty big parade. And of course, we're pretty proud that we still throw candy. So it's a pretty big deal for us, too."

From 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, there will be inflatables and a bounce house in the park.

"Saturday is the big thing for kids," Olson said. "We always say, hey bring the kids with a swimsuit and a towel, because some of our inflatables have water. Especially when it's hot, because this is July." Saturday's events also include a farmer's market, co-ed volleyball tournament, and the traditional chili cook-off.

"We have about twenty-five cooks every year, and they're all local. Everybody is a local cook," Olson said. "We have rules. It's official judging: we have an official judging panel that does it. But if you don't want to cook, everybody who comes can get a wristband or stamp, and you can taste all the chili."

The weekend concludes with a bang Sunday, July 21 ,with the annual demolition derby.

"We have people that fix up old cars. I mean it's a true demolition derby. They go in and smash and smash," Olson said. "We usually have about 800 people attend. And that is there's any problems. We have our tech people who have to look at the cars to make sure they're following all the rules."

Olson said it takes the entire town to make the weekend a success. "And this just brings together, I don't know, to just visit and have a good time," Olson said. "I like to think it's about community involvement and getting people, you know, in the community together to everybody, you know, in socialize and just be neighborly. I don't think that's being done as much as it used to be."

A complete schedule of this year's events is posted at the "Pioneer Days White SD" page on Facebook.

SDSU rover design places third in NASA contest

BROOKINGS Competing against the best and the brightest, a South Dakota State University engineering team finished third overall in a NASA contest and again was awarded for building the best prototype.

The SDSU students were one of 14 teams selected from 75 higher education entries to compete in the finals of the Revolutionary Aerospace Systems Concepts Academic Linkage (RASC-AL) competition June 10-12 in Cocoa Beach, Florida. It is the second straight year for an SDSU team to qualify for the finals.

Traditionally, NASA only awards the top two entries in the overall results. In fact, this is only the third time in the contest's 23-year history that third place has been recognized.

Liam Murray, а mechanical engineering graduate student adviser for the team, said, "The points were so close between Maryland and us that it came down to a judge's vote. They (the judges) knew we did so well and invented a new suspension system, so they wanted to make sure we were properly recognized."

NASA names finalists in four categories. SDSU was competing in the large-scale lunar crater prospector category.

The overall champion was from Virginia Tech, competing in the AI-powered self-replicating probes — an evolutionary approach. Finishing second overall was the University of Maryland, competing in the largescale lunar crater prospector category — the same category as SDSU.

The job of prospector contestants was to design and build a rover that could explore rugged and permanently shadowed lunar south pole craters

It's NASA's long-term goal to be able to mine that ground ice and extract water, which could be used for drinking and possibly for creating rocket fuel.

SDSU finishes ahead of MIT, Stanford

While that's a long way in the future, Murray is excited about the shortterm future for the five mechanical engineering majors who made up SDSU's RASC-AL team. Three graduated in May and are returning to SDSU for a master's degree in mechanical engineering with an aerospace engineering emphasis.

Two just completed their sophomore years and will be back to help steer another lunar project.

An excited Murray said, "We really felt like the people's champion. Everyone was so kind and showing their appreciation for our in-depth effort in our project, including the judges." Among the 14 finalists were the University of Texas, Stanford University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

a 25-minute presentation to a panel of NASA and industry experts and then faced 25 minutes of questions on June 10. The following days they listened to other presentations, participated in poster sessions and toured nearby Kennedy Space Center before attending the June 12 awards dinner.

Murray said hearing SDSU's name called for third place overall and for having the best prototype was a tremendous reward for the hundreds of hours the team spent to get to that point.

"I was humbled and proud of our accomplishments. I believe our greatest achievement was inspiring this group of future leaders to pursue higher education at SDSU. By recognizing the benefits and potential of a master's or Ph.D., they will be better equipped to shape the future of space exploration," Murray said.

prototype, shipped in three packages, was to arrive the same day at the Hilton Cocoa Beach, where the contest was held. However, when the team spoke to judges on the morning of June 10, only one package had arrived. "The judges and National Institute of Aerospace staff were very accommodating, allowing us time to reconstruct the prototype by Wednesday (June 12) morning's poster session since FedEx was unfortunately late with the shipping," Murray said.

While the other boxes arrived late in the day June 10, the team's challenges were by no means over.

"There was a bogie (wheel suspension part) snapped in half, electronic components were malfunctioning and motors broken due to FedEx mishandling the packages. We got some J-B Weld, soldering tape and backup parts. Through the

Bring back some sanity: Put the phones away

Allowing cellphones in the classroom is akin to serving whiskey in the cafeteria.

As far as I'm concerned, they can't put warning labels on social media websites soon enough. Indeed, I'd go a lot further. I'd consider banning smartphones altogether for children under 16.

Me, I'm so old I can remember when what Vice President

Al Gore called "the information superhighway" was going to usher in a new Golden Age of enlightenment and democratic well-being.

Instead, we got flat-earth theorists, high school boys sending "dick pics" to girls in their geometry class, porn addiction and MAGA. Turns out that most people, adolescents in particular, don't need (and certainly haven't got the critical thinking skills to cope with) the veritable tsunami of titillation, disinformation and delusion that comes pouring in over the internet.

I was recently shocked to learn from a friend who's a high school teacher that her students are permitted to bring cellphones to class. What can educators responsible for this situation have been thinking? They may as well shut down classes altogether. There's no chance of getting and keeping high school kids' attention with the accursed things buzzing in their pockets.

Back in my own school days, teachers pretended they were unaware of boys carrying transistor radios during the World Series, but that was a special circumstance — not smutty videos or digitally created nude photos of our female classmates. If we had any sense as a culture, we'd recognize that putting smartphones in the hands of children and adolescents makes about as much sense as handing out whiskey sours in the school cafeteria.

According to a recent article in The Washington Post, "research finds a correlation between cellphone use and lower grades and test scores." How could it be otherwise? Furthermore, "a recent Gallup poll shows teens spend an average of nearly five hours a day just on social media — not including games and texts. A report by Common Sense Media finds teens check their phones an average of more than 100 times a day."

Social scientist Jonathan Haidt, who has made a personal crusade out of warning against what he sees as the dire effects of cellphone addiction, noted: "I recently surveyed my students at NYU, and most of them reported that the very first thing they do when they open their eyes in the morning is check their texts, direct messages and social-media feeds. It's also the last thing they do before they close their eyes at night."

Some think Haidt has contributed to what one academic critic calls a "moral panic" scaring parents needlessly. He counters by pointing to studies showing that the typical American adolescent "now gets 237 notifications a day, roughly 15 every waking hour."

I'm sorry, but that's crazy.

And crazy-making, too. According to Surgeon General Vivek Murthy, writing in The New York Times: "The mental health crisis among young people is an emergency — and social media has emerged as an important contributor. Adolescents who spend more than three hours a day on social media face double the risk of anxiety and depression symptoms, and the average daily use in this age group, as of the summer of 2023, was 4.8 hours. Additionally, nearly half of adolescents say social media makes them feel worse about their bodies."

It's not just in the United States, either. Haidt has pointed out the skyrocketing rates of adolescent depression and suicide — they rose more than 50% between 2010 and 2019, when widespread smartphone use began. "Similar patterns emerged around the same time in Canada, the U.K., Australia, New Zealand, the Nordic countries, and beyond," he said.

Basically, anywhere the wonders of the information superhighway were bestowed willy-nilly upon the young. Academic achievement began to slide around the same time. It's gotten to where a teenager reading a book is a rare phenomenon. We're raising a semi-literate generation. No wonder they're so easily bamboozled by Russian propaganda.

Nobody meant for these things to happen, but by encouraging near-universal cellphone usage among the young, with social media algorithms designed to lure users ever deeper into the online world, we've been conducting a vast, uncontrolled social experiment with unforeseen results upon the most vulnerable members of society.

Skeptics point to other potential causes — financial panics, mass school shootings and active shooter drills, the COVID pandemic, the opioid crisis, even global climate change. But while these events might have been contributing factors in some countries, none can explain both the timing and international scope of the disaster.

The good news is that the damage can be reversed if we have the will. Washington Post columnist Kate Cohen writes of visiting a high school near Albany where cellphones have been banned to nearly everybody's satisfaction - including students', many of whom say they're relieved not to have to deal with the constant intrusion.

That should happen everywhere, and for pretty much the same reason we don't serve whiskey sours in school cafeterias. Kids can't handle them.

Remembering the Forgotten War

The Korean War has been called the Forgotten War because of the nature that it was fought. It occurred five years after World War II (WWII) and the military structure was different in 1950 than in 1941

Also, WWII ended with a victory, the Korean War ended with an armistice and as of this date, there has been no official end of the Korean War.

Soldiers were sent to war as individuals and not complete units, so when they returned, they were often asked where have you been for the past year? Even worse was the Where in the Heck is Korea? was often asked.

The fighting in Korea ended almost 71 years ago with an armistice on July 27, 1953. Brookings County has seven listed as Killed in Action with one of those classified as Missing In Action during the period of June 25, 1950, to July 27, 1953. We plan to remember those seven individuals, SGT Frederick Collins, CPL Frank Coughlin, CPL Kenneth DeGroot, PFC Orvall Larson, PFC Floyd Schultz, PFC Alvin Steffensen, and PFC Marvin Van Ningen on July 27, 2024. The Brookings Disabled American Veterans (DAV) Chapter and Unit No. 22 are honoring these seven individuals and would like to invite anyone who might remember them to submit it to the Brookings DAV Chapter so we can include it during this event.

The state of South Dakota honored one of those soldiers, CPL Kenneth DeGroot, last year with the naming of a Big Sioux River bridge near his hometown of Volga. We want to continue remembering our service members who served in that conflict.

ing what is being done to locate the remains of soldiers like PFC Floyd Schultz from White and others.

I often get asked the question of why I continue to honor the Korean War and its people by holding events such as this and displaying artifacts from that period.

I purchased the first item for my Korean War Collection at the age of 16.

The rifle is a Lee-Enfield No.4 Mark 1 rifle used by the British Commonwealth soldiers.

Two people in my family have influenced my "hobby" of collecting Korean War artifacts. The first one is my Uncle Ellis Midgett, USMC May 1952 to April 1955. He was an Armored Amphibian Crewman and served in Korea from June 1953 to July 1954. The second is my wife's Father Chang, Jun Ik. He told me that he served on Jeju-do Island during the Korean War and trained South Korean soldiers to fight on the mainland.

Although I served in South Korea in 1978-79, 1989, and 1996-97 I never was very interested in studying the Korean War. I served at Camp Edwards (East), Yeongtaeri, 1978-79, Camp Libby, Pohang, 1989, and Camp Casey, Dongducheon, 1996-97 during my service years.

My youngest son, MSGT Ben Hill, also served in South Korea at Kunsan K-8 Air Base, Gunsan in 2004-05.

I was the commander of our local Disabled American Veterans (DAV) Chapter in Brookings and our South Dakota State DAV was sponsoring Honor Flights for WWII Veterans to see the newly opened WWII Memorial in Washington D.C. I went on a trip on the South Dakota Honor on April 23-24, 2010, and escorted a WWII-era veteran who served in Korea in 1945-46. He was a member of the local VFW Post 2118, and I knew him personally.

When I got back from that event, I had a member of my Disabled American Veterans Chapter in Brookings come up to me and ask, "Why are they sending the WW II veterans to Washington D.C. to see their monument but are forgetting about us Korean veterans?'

I made a promise to him at that moment that as long as I am alive, Brookings will never forget about the Korean War and the servicemen and women who served there.

We have been honoring Korean War and Service veterans with our displays since the first one was set up on Veterans Day, Nov. 11, 2010, in Brookings.

In January 2012, I volunteered to serve as a KW60 Ambassador for South Dakota through the Department of Defense 60th Anniversary of the Korean War Commemoration Committee. An event held in Brookings brought an Ambassador for Peace Medal Ceremony conducted by LTC Lim, Yoonkap, the Korean Army Liaison Officer to the US Army Combined Arms Center, in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas acting on behalf of the South Korean Consulate.

Also attending the ceremony was Dr. Kim, Byong Moon, from St. Paul, Minnesota who passed out commemorative socks to the Korean War Veterans in attendance.

Dr. Kim and his wife invited us to bring our display to his annual Korean War picnic, held in St. Paul, MN and we have been attending it ever since. Besides Minnesota, our Korean War Display has been shown in Iowa, Missouri, and throughout South Dakota.

I also want to thank my wife of 45 years, Kil Suk Hill for her support in letting me honor the servicemembers who have served in South Korea from 1945 to the present. All veterans are important, no matter where they served, but I always tend to shake the Korean Veterans' hand a little harder when meeting them.

Car dealerships hit by cyberattacks

NEW YORK (AP) — Car dealerships in North America are still wrestling with major disruptions that started last week with cyberattacks on a company whose software is used widely in the auto retail sales sector.

CDK Global, a company that provides software for thousands of auto dealers in the U.S. and Canada, was hit by back-toback cyberattacks Wednesday. That led to an outage that has continued to impact operations.

For prospective car buyers, that's meant delays at dealerships or vehicle orders written up by hand. There's no immediate end in sight, but CDK says it expects the restoration process to take "several days" to complete.

On Monday, Group 1 Automotive Inc., a $4 billion automotive retailer, said it is using "alternative processes" to sell cars to its customers. Lithia Motors and AutoNation, two other dealership chains, also disclosed that they implemented workarounds to keep their operations going CDK Global is a major player in the auto sales industry. The company, based just outside of Chicago in Hoffman Estates, Illinois, provides software technology to dealers that helps with day-today operations — like facilitating vehicle sales, financing, insurance and repairs.

CDK serves more than 15,000 retail locations across North America, according to the company.

CDK experienced back-to-back cyberattacks on Wednesday. The company shut down all of its systems after the first attack out of an abundance of caution, according to spokesperson Lisa Finney, and then shut down most systems again following the second.

"We have begun the restoration process," Finney said in an update over the weekend — noting that the company had launched an investigation into the "cyber incident" with third-party experts and notified law enforcement.

"Based on the information we have at this time, we anticipate that the process will take several days to complete, and in the interim we are continuing to actively engage with our customers and provide them with alternate ways to conduct business," she added.

In messages to its customers, the company has also warned of "bad actors" posing as members or affiliates of CDK to try to obtain system access by contacting customers. It urged them to be cautious of any attempted phishing.

The incident bore all the hallmarks of a ransomware attack, in which targets are asked to pay a ransom to access encrypted files. But CDK declined to comment directly — neither confirming or denying if it had received a ransom demand.

"When you see an attack of this kind, it almost always ends up being a ransomware attack," Cliff Steinhauer, director of information security and engagement at

Lawsuit filed over Louisiana law on Ten Commandments

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Civil liberties groups filed a lawsuit Monday to block Louisiana's new law that requires the Ten Commandments to be displayed in every public school classroom, a measure they contend is unconstitutional.

Plaintiffs in the suit include parents of Louisiana public school children, represented by attorneys with the American Civil Liberties Union, Americans United for Separation of Church and State, and the Freedom From Religion Foundation.

"This display sends a message to my children and other students that people of some religious dominations are superior to others," said the Rev. Jeff Simms, a Presbyterian pastor who is a plaintiff in the suit and father of three children in Louisiana public schools. "This is religious favoritism."

Under the legislation signed into law by Republican Gov. Jeff Landry last week, all public K-12 classrooms and state-funded universities will be required to display a poster-sized version of the Ten Commandments in "large, easily readable font" next year.

Opponents argue that the law is a violation of separation of church and state and that the display will isolate students, especially those who are not Christian. Proponents say the measure is not solely religious, but that it has historical significance. In the language of the law, the Ten Commandments are "foundational documents of our state and national government."

Plaintiff Joshua Herlands has two young children in New Orleans public schools who, like their father, are Jewish. There are multiple versions of the Ten Commandments, and Herlands said the specific version mandated for classroom walls does not align with the version from his faith. He worries the display will send a troubling message to his kids and others that "they may be lesser in the eyes of the government.'

"Politicians have absolutely no business forcing their religious beliefs on my kids or any kids, or attempting to indoctrinate them with what they think is the right version of a particular piece of religious text," Herlands said.

The lawsuit filed Monday seeks a court declaration that the new law, referred to in the lawsuit as HB 71, violates First Amendment clauses forbidding government establishment of religion and guaranteeing religious liberty. It also seeks an order prohibiting the posting of the Ten Commandments in public school classrooms.

"The state's main interest in passing H.B. 71 was to impose religious beliefs on public-school children, regardless of the harm to students and families," the lawsuit says. "The law's primary sponsor and author, Representative Dodie Horton, proclaimed during debate over the bill that it 'seeks to have a display of God's law in the classroom for children to see what He says is right and what He says is wrong."

During the extra time given to judge the prototype Wednesday, the judges were elated with our design process and capability of our prototype. They hope SDSU continues to return every year with an impressive display of empirical testing through prototypes."

Patent process started on suspension system

Murray said the most innovative feature of the rover prospector the team built is a double wishbone bogie suspension system.

A bogie system, a modular subassembly of wheels and axles (think of a rail car), is common in space applications, team member Dylan Stephens said.

However, the double wishbone feature (think a wheel on each end of a "V") is unique. Rather of the four corners to allow for vertical movement, Murray said. In fact, the students' design is unique enough that they have submitted an invention disclosure, the first step in the patent process.

The 2024 RASC-AL contest featured many of the same judges as in 2023 and as well as the same program coordinator. In 2023, SDSU won the lunar surface transport category by building a highly customized forklift that featured an innovative drivetrain, flexible wheels, a cargo locking mechanism and a universal attachment mechanism for auxiliary systems.

Daniel Olson Huron Nov. 23, 1935 - June 22, 2024

Daniel Olson, age 88, of Huron, SD, passed away on Saturday, June 22, 2024, at the Hendricks Community Hospital.

Funeral service will be Thursday, June 27 at 10:30 a.m. at Singsaas Church in Hendricks. Visitation will be Wednesday, June 26, from 5 to 8 p.m. with a prayer service at 8 p.m. at Singsaas Church and will resume one hour prior to the service on Thursday. Burial will be at the Singsaas Church Cemetery. Houseman Funeral Home, Birk Chapel of Hendricks, MN, is entrusted with arrangements.

Daniel Doyle Olson was born on Nov. 23, 1935, to Ambrose and Hazel (Dorn) Olson in Hansonville Township, Minnesota. He attended District 28 Country School until the family moved to a farm near Astoria, SD. He finished out his high school days in Hendricks, graduating from Hendricks High School in 1953. Upon graduation, he worked for the MinnSoDak Telephone Company before starting school at South Dakota State University.

Daniel married the love of his life, Marjorie "Midge" Kjelden, on Sept. 1, 1955. Dan graduated from SDSU in 1959 with a degree in electrical engineering. His first job was with Boeing in Seattle, WA, where their son Kevin was born. From there, they moved to Minneapolis, MN, Rapid City, SD, where their daughter Kim was born and then to Santa Maria, CA. Dan's choice to bring his family closer to home, led them to Huron, SD, where their daughter Sherri was born. Daniel worked for the U.S. Department of Energy, Western Area Power Administration in Huron for nearly 50 years until his retirement. Over the years, the respect he generated from co-workers turned into friendships which lasted until his last days.

In his youth, Dan enjoyed playing sports with a particular love for baseball. He participated on various teams throughout his years and was noted for his exceptional batting skills. His love for sporting events continued throughout his children's and grandchildren's years in school. He and Midge enjoyed attending many games, matches, and meets over the years.

Daniel's personality was quiet and focused with a streak of wit and a love to tease. He had a warm smile and a twinkle in his eye. He was a born again believer in Jesus Christ. He was an avid reader of the Word of God. He read through the Bible many times and memorized lots of scripture. He was a charter member of Faith Lutheran Brethren Church in Hendricks and attended Calvary Baptist Church in Huron for close to 60 years, holding many leadership positions. John 14:6 and John 3:16 were two of Dan's favorite verses, proclaiming Jesus as the only way to heaven.

In the early 1960s, Dan and Midge purchased "The Prairie Farm" in Lake Hendricks Township. After the work week in Huron, the family spent their weekends at the farm. Dan loved raising Hereford cattle, which included many hours of feeding, fencing and fixing. The farm was the family place where everyone gathered, had fun, and made life long memories including the cattle round up held each fall. The cattle were brought home from the pasture with the help of whoever was willing. It was all part of a wonderful way of life that he sought for his family.

Daniel was a devoted and loving husband to Midge for 65 years. He loved the Lord, his family and his friends until he peacefully passed away on Saturday June, 22, 2024, surrounded by loved ones.

Daniel is survived by his three children: Kevin (Lori) Olson of Hendricks, MN'; Kimberly (Mark) Baker of Minneapolis, MN; and Sherri (Gary) Johnson of Hendricks, MN. His grandchildren: Daniel Olson, Thomas (Mandy) Olson, Jennefer (Jason) Schwartz, Cole (Nicole) Baker, Martha Baker, Wyatt Baker, Greta Johnson, Sophie Johnson and Sadie Johnson. His great grandchildren: Camden, Emma and Olivia Olson, Hazel Baker and Rory Baker. His brother, David Olson and sister, Beatta Sagmoe of Hendricks, MN. Sisters-in-law:, Brenda Olson of Sioux Falls, SD, Joan Krier, LaDonna (David) Thomsen, LuJeanne Kjelden, brother-in-law, Ronald (Marlene) Kjelden all of Hendricks, MN, along with many nieces, nephews and friends.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Midge; his parents, Hazel and Ambrose Olson; brother, Stephen Olson; infant sister, Yolanda Olson; parents-in-law, Pernie and Eleanor Kjelden; brothers-in-law, Deane Sagmoe, Donald Kjelden, Randall Kjelden, Thomas Krier; sisterin-law, Janet Kjelden; niece, Melissa Sagmoe; and nephew, Kyle Kjelden.

Blessed be his memory.

Einspahr garners state auto dealers honor

By JAY ROE The Brookings Register

Like father, like son — Matt Einspahr has been named South Dakota's Franchised Dealer of the Year by the South Dakota Auto Dealers Association, a distinction that his own father, Ron Einspahr, achieved 25 years ago.

The announcement was made June 13 at the association's annual convention in Sioux Falls.

"As they're getting ready to announce this thing, I'm looking around the room going, 'I wonder who it's going to be?' The one thing I was sure of was, it was not going to be me," Matt said. "So I'm looking around, you know, OK — he's already had it, he's already had it. I wonder who it's going to be? And then they announced my name, and I go 'Oh, my God. What?' And unbeknownst to me — my kids, and my mom, and our management team and their spouses, they all snuck in right behind me in the Ramkota, and they were all standing right behind. So they announced it, and I'm just shocked. And then I turn around, and here's the whole crew. And I mean, geez, I bawled like a baby. And it was very special because, you know, this is a year after my dad passed, and this is 25 years after he won the award."

The award also means Matt is now a nominee for the national Time Magazine Quality Dealer Award, which recognizes car dealers who display exceptional performance and outstanding community service. The national award will be announced at an upcoming convention in New Orleans. Each nominee receives a poster-sized mock-up of a Time Magazine cover featuring their photo.

"After the convention's over in January, they'll ship that picture back to me, and I'll have one to hang right next to dad's," Matt said. "The business has changed so much in 25 years, but my dad always really believed strongly in doing business the right way. Everything up front. No games, no hidden agendas, anything like that."

Ron Einspahr opened the Einspahr dealership in Brookings in November of 1969. In 1980, the dealership moved to an expanded location on Eighth Street South, where it remains today. Ron died on May 19, 2023, at age 81.

"Honestly, my first thought was of him. And how he would be very proud. And it got very emotional for me," Matt said. "He left us a good blueprint on where to go and what to do, and I think trained me well. And we just continue on working that same thing. It's kind of like he would say, 'It's doing business by the golden rule.' And that just isn't something that goes out of style. It might not be flashy, it may not be exciting, but it's the right way to do it. And over time, people come to trust in you, and it's served us well for 54 years." Matt said the entire crew at Einspahr Auto Plaza deserve recognition through this award.

"While it's an individual award, it is really an accumulation of how you do business and a reflection on the dealership as a whole — all of the people in the building. You know, you're being recognized for doing business the right way. Having a positive impact on your community," Matt said. "In many ways I think it should almost be the dealership of the year, not the dealer of the year, because it's really about your team, and your people, and the culture and the place. And I'm really proud of

Dacotah Bank donates computer equipment to charitable organizations

BROOKINGS — As part of its commitment to community support and sustainability, Dacotah Bank has recently undertaken an initiative to donate computer equipment generated from its recent equipment upgrade process. The initiative, led by Chuck Haugen and his dedicated staff, has resulted in the donation of 85 computer desktops and 11 laptops to various worthy causes.

"We believe in the power of technology to make a difference in people's lives," said Dave Miller, SR VP technology services at Dacotah Bank. "These donations are already having a positive impact on several local organizations." https://familyconnectionscenters.com/.

Love Inc

Love Inc, an organization working with churches and individuals in need, received six desktops to upgrade staff equipment. This contribution supports their mission to meet a variety of community needs. Further details can be found at https://loveinconline.com/.

WellFully

WellFully, a residential and after-school program for at-risk youth, received roughly ten desktops. This center helps youth develop coping skills for better life choices and addresses issues related to addiction, behavior, and mental health. Spencer Ray ensured the systems reached WellFully, Love Inc, and The Circle. For more information on WellFully, visit https://wellfully.org/. "These donations are making a tangible difference in the lives of those served by these organizations," added Chuck Haugen. "We are proud to support their efforts and look forward to continuing our partnership with the community." "Dacotah Bank extends its gratitude to all involved in this initiative, especially Chuck and his team for their dedication to preparing the equipment. Additional updates will be provided as more donations are made, release from the bank said ...

options outside its App Store.

The European Commission said that according to the preliminary findings of its investigation, the restrictions that the iPhone maker imposes on developers using its mobile App Store had breached the 27-nation bloc's Digital Markets Act.

The rulebook, also known as the DMA, is a sweeping set of regulations aimed at preventing tech "gatekeepers" from cornering digital markets under threat of heavy financial penalties. The commission opened an initial round of investigations after it took effect in March, including a separate ongoing probe into whether Apple is doing enough to allow iPhone users to easily change web browsers, and other cases involving Google and Meta.

Apple has been facing pressure on both sides of the Atlantic to tear down some of the competitive barriers

Rockside Ranch

Three desktops and a laptop were donated to the New Underwood area Rockside Ranch branch, a place where young individuals in crisis can work on a ranch to sort out their lives. The ranch provides instruction in subjects like financial literacy, addiction recovery, work ethics, and family issues. Trish Crawford oversees this branch, and more information can be found at https:// rocksideranch.org/.

The Circle

Over a dozen desktops were donated to The Circle, an organization that assists youth in crisis by placing them in homes and providing them with training and assistance to overcome various challenges. The desktops will be utilized for online training classes to help the youth reach their goals. Joe Barb facilitated the system transfer for The Circle. Learn more about The Circle at

Apple becomes first target of EU's new digital competition rules aimed at big tech

OPEN DAILY 1:00 PM to 4:00 PM around its lucrative iPhone franchise.

The U.S. Justice Department filed a sweeping antitrust lawsuit against Apple this year, accusing it of illegally monopolizing the smartphone market and boxing out competitors, stifling innovation and keeping prices artificially high. By the time that case was filed, Apple had already started to comply with a U.S. court order enabling links to alternative payment systems within iPhone apps, but a judge has expressed frustration with the company's approach and has indicated may changes may be required.

App makers such as Spotify had complained for years about Apple's requirement that subscriptions only be bought through iOS apps, allowing the company to take a commission of up to 30%. Those grievances culminated in European regulators slapping Apple with a $2 billion fine for unfairly favoring its music streaming service over Spotify and other rivals.

¹ Under the DMA's provisions, app developers must be allowed to inform customers of cheaper purchasing options and direct them to those offers.

The commission, the bloc's executive arm, said App Store rules "prevent app developers from freely steering consumers to alternative channels for offers and content."

Apple now has a chance to respond to the findings. The commission must make a final decision on Apple's compliance by March 2025. The company could face fines worth up to 10% of its global revenue, which could amount to billions of euros, or daily penalties.

The regulatory tensions prompted Apple to recently raise the specter of excluding the European market from a package of new artificial intelligence features coming to iPhones because the company believes the new rules within the region are too onerous.

What Certain Noises May Indicate About Your Car

utomobiles have come a long way A since their introduction more than 100 years ago. Though modern cars and trucks still employ some of the same principles as their forebears, the vehicles people drive today bear little resemblance to those that made waves in the early part of the twentieth century.

Modern automobiles are technological marvels, which has made both driving and maintaining a vehicle much simpler. In regard to maintenance, built-in diagnostic systems can now alert drivers when something is wrong with their vehicles. Though that feature is undeniably useful, drivers can still benefit from learning to recognize issues by ear. Many issues that can affect a car or truck produce unusual sounds, and learning what certain noises may indicate can help drivers detect problems as soon as possible.

Rattling sound in a wheel well

Most people have mistakenly placed clothing in a dryer without realizing they had spare change in their pockets. That mistake is immediately apparent once the dryer starts thanks to the unpleasant noise of coins bouncing off the interior of the machine. Drivers may hear a similar sound when behind the wheel and wonder what's behind it. Such a sound is often indicative that there's a loose lug nut inside the hubcap. This issue can arise when drivers don't tighten the wheel properly after changing their own tire, or if mechanics make the same mistake when rotating or replacing tires during a routine maintenance session.

Squeaking sound

The auto insurance experts at Geico® note that rear-wheel or four-wheel drive vehicles may produce a rhythmic squeaking sound when an issue arises with the universal joint. JD Power notes that the universal joint, often referred to as a U-joint, is part of the system that enables the rotating crankshaft in the engine of a vehicle to transfer that rotating motion to the rear wheels. U-joints get a workout

"Many issues that can affect a car or truck produce unusual sounds, and learning what certain noises may indicate can help drivers detect problems as soon as possible."

whenever vehicles are driven, so they require maintenance, and a squeaking sound is one indicator that the U-joint needs to be addressed immediately.

Squealing sound

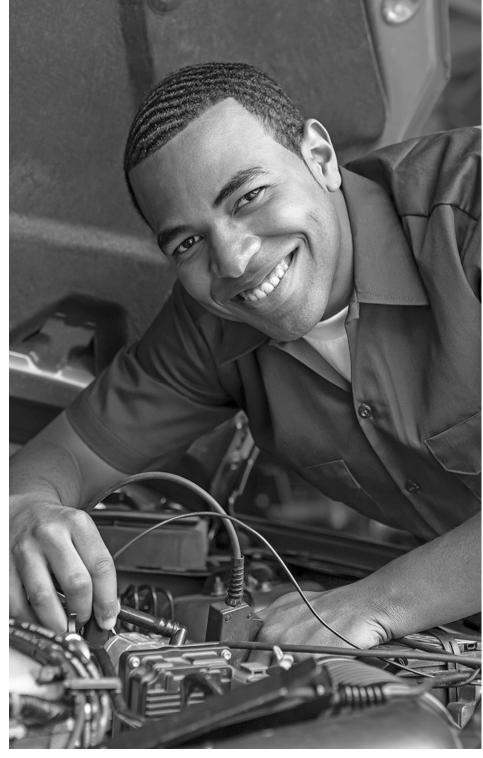

A high-pitched squealing sound is typically indicative of worn out brake pads. However, Cars.com notes that if such a sound is only present when a car is first driven in the morning, it could just be surface rust being scraped off the rotors. After a few initial applications of the brakes, that sound might disappear. If it doesn't, the vehicle will likely need new brake pads.

Scraping on the windshield during rain

The scraping sound on a windshield when the wipers are in use should not be taken lightly or be interpreted as a sign that the rain is only falling slightly. In fact, that sound indicates the wipers are worn out, which means they're not effectively clearing the windshield.

In addition, the wipers could be scratching the windshield each time they produce this sound, ultimately necessitating a costly windshield replacement. Wiper blades can be replaced in a matter of minutes, so address this issue promptly.

Learning to recognize the culprits behind various vehicle noises can help drivers nip problems in the bud before they compromise the automobile and the safety of the people inside it.

3 Simple Maintenance Strategies To Keep Your Car Running

Aging cars may require a little more TLC than vehicles that are right off the dealership lot. But the following are three simple tips that can help drivers keep their cars running longer.

The last few years have not prov-L en the most advantageous times for new car buyers. According to the Consumer Price Index Summary from the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, buyers paid 12.2 percent more for new vehicles in January 2022 than they had in January 2021. Faced with such a significant increase in price, many drivers understandably want to keep their current cars longer than they might have initially planned.

Data released by S&P Global Mobility in early 2022 indicated that the average vehicle on the road is 12 years and two months old, which marked the highest number in the 20-plus years such information was tracked. A host of variables affect how long drivers keep their cars, but the rising cost of new vehicles has undoubtedly compelled many drivers to aspire to keep their cars for longer periods of time.

1. Become a more careful driver.

A careful approach when behind the wheel is safer than aggressive driving and beneficial for your vehicle. When starting, avoid revving the engine, which needlessly wears it down. When out on the road, avoid rapid accelerations, which also contributes to needless wear and tear. Even excessive idling can adversely affect the engine, so keep winter warmups to around 30 seconds to prevent damage to engine components.

2. Know when and how to fill up.

Every driver has likely visited a filling station when an oil tanker is busily filling the tanks. That's traditionally been considered a less than ideal time to fill up, as the theory is that filling the tanks stirs up sediment that could then find its way into consumers' gas tanks, adversely affecting their vehicles. However, that's often dependent on the station itself and how much its owners prioritize maintenance of the tank and filtration systems. Drivers who trust their local station owners can likely fill up when the tankers are present without worry. In addition, avoid topping off once the nozzle clicks when filling up. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency notes that topping off is harmful to the planet and the vehicle, as gasoline needs room to expand. When you top off, the extra gas may damage the vapor collection system and cause the vehicle to run less efficiently.

3. Change oil more frequently as the vehicle ages.

It's true that modern vehicles no longer require oil changes for every 3,000 miles driven. However, as vehicles age, drivers and their vehicles' engines may benefit from more frequent oil changes than the owner's manual necessarily recommends.

Oil changes remove dirt and metal particles from the engine, potentially contributing to a longer life expectancy. More frequent changes can be especially beneficial for vehicles that are routinely driven in stop-and-go traffic.

Rising vehicle costs have compelled many drivers to keep their cars longer than they initially planned. Some simple strategies can help drivers achieve that goal.

Maintenance intervals for drivers

Vehicles are among the most costly expenses individuals have. According to data from Kelley Blue Book, the average price paid for a new vehicle in the United States in September 2022 was $48,094. Canadian car buyers face an equally expensive reality in their country, where the average MSRP for a new car is more than $45,000.

Since vehicles are such sizable investments, it behooves motorists to do as much as they can to keep their cars and trucks running smoothly. Vehicle owner's manuals typically recommend maintenance intervals and should be drivers' first resource for information regarding how to take care of their cars and trucks. But the following are some standard maintenance intervals drivers can keep in mind.

3,000 miles

The 3,000-mile marker used to be the benchmark for changing oil, but modern vehicles can now go longer between oil changes. However, it's still a good idea to check other fluid levels every 3,000 miles. Windshield washer fluid, coolant, brake fluid, transmission fluid, and power steering fluid should all be checked every 3,000 miles and topped off if levels are low.

It's wise for drivers to perform some additional maintenance checkups every 3,000 miles. Check tire pressure, inspect hoses (which should not be leaking or bulging) and clean the interior of the vehicle every 3,000 miles.

5,000 miles

Many vehicle manufacturers now recommend oil changes every 5,000 miles. Tire rotations also can be part of service visits at this interval, and drivers can ask their mechanic to check their fuel filters and batteries every 5,000 miles as well. Many may already do this as part of their comprehensive maintenance packages, but it's still good to confirm if they do and request they do so if it's not part of the plan.

"Vehicle owner's manuals typically recommend maintenance intervals and should be drivers' first resource for information regarding how to take care of their cars and trucks."

Drivers also can request that cabin air filters are inspected at this point, though they can generally last a year before they need to be replaced.

Around the 5,000-mile mark, wiper blades also may begin to show signs of wear and tear, including streaking on the windshield or scratching noises when in use. Each of those signs indicates the wipers need to be replaced. However, drivers should take note of these signs regardless of when they appear. Some may not make it 5,000 miles before they begin to wear down. In such instances, they should be replaced immediately regardless of how many miles it's been since they were installed.

Some vehicles may only require oil changes every 10,000 miles. That's not uncommon in vehicles that use synthetic oil, though drivers are urged to consult their owner's manuals.

Brake pads also may need to be replaced around this time, and one telltale sign of that is a squeaking noise whenever the brakes are applied.

Drivers can ask their mechanics to check the alignment of their vehicles around this interval as well. Though many vehicles won't develop alignment issues, it's best to check for such issues every 10,000 miles or whenever a vehicle feels as though it's pulling in one specific direction.

Maintenance intervals are created to serve as a guideline for drivers. Any issues that arise should still be brought to the attention of a mechanic regardless of how many miles have been added to the odometer since the most recent trip to the garage.

Process of getting off ultra-processed foods complicated

BY MIKE ROIZEN, M.D. AND MEHMET OZ. M.D. If getting off of ultra-processed foods is a complicated process for you, the place to start is by ditching processed meats and ready-to-eat poultry and seafood. That's the conclusion of a study in BMJ. Researchers looked at data on 100,000 folks in the U.S. from 1986 to 2018 and concluded that people eating around seven servings a day upped their risk of death, especially from neurodegenerative diseases like dementia and Parkinson's, substantially. Salami and its cohorts pack the biggest whammy, but sugar-sweetened and artificially sweetened beverages, dairybased desserts and ultra-processed breakfast foods (including cereals and pastries) also shortened folks' lifespan.

So, here's our proposal: For the next two months, swear off processed meats, poultry and seafood.

can do it. Just remember to read all ingredient labels. Stay away from ingredients never used in kitchens and needed to make the final product edible. (Clearly, nobody would eat it if they didn't add those extra chemicals!) For more insights,

Dear Abbv

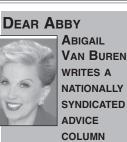

Dear Abby: I dated a guy who hid from me the fact that he was a severe alcoholic. After I realized it, I continued to date him, thinking it was love when it wasn't. Unfortunately, after two years of dating, I became pregnant.

When I told him, he moved back in with his mother in another state. He doesn't work, won't get a job and calls only when he's good and ready. He has never paid any child support. He'll call once every few months and promise our now 4-year-old daughter that he's coming to see her, but he never has.

He saw her only twice when she was a baby, and I had to travel to him for both of those visits. (He wasn't there for her birth, either.) My daughter cries for him. He also has an 18-year-old daughter from a previous relationship I found out about only after I was pregnant. He abandoned her, too.

Should I cut off contact to save my child from being sad for a man she doesn't even know? - Disillusioned In Georgia

Dear Disillusioned: By all means, cease contact with your sperm donor. You have to concentrate on the well-being of your daughter, who understandably is grieving the loss of a father who abandoned her. It was a mistake to allow her deadbeat dad to talk to her and make promises he had no intention of keeping. Do not allow that to continue.

Because the reason he gives for not contributing to child support is he doesn't work (are you SURE this is true?), consider discussing this sorry situation with a lawyer. It might be worth the money to pay for one consultation.

Dear Abby: My husband and I have been married 37 years. We've always been happily married. He gives me loving greeting cards, telling me how much he loves me, and so much more.

Over the past few days, he has been snapping at everything I say. He twists it around and accuses me of saying it nastily. I didn't, and when I repeated it the same way, he disagreed. He's so touchy. He even told me a few times to shut up and not talk to him. For a little while I didn't. Then I remarked. even though he tried to shut me up, that if he hates me so much, he must have a girlfriend. He got furious at that.

I finally suggested he see a doctor. I thought maybe he'd had a stroke. Hopefully, he'll think about that, because something has changed. What do you think? -Mistreated In Illinois

Dear Mistreated: What has been happening with your husband is very recent. Give it a few weeks and see if it is a lasting change. If it is, THAT would be the time to talk to your husband. Tell him the change in his personality is striking, and you are worried about him. His problem may be emotional or financial and have nothing to do with you. If there is a chance that there could be a medical problem, alert his doctor at that time.

Pass All pass 3 NT $1 \,\mathrm{NT}$ Pass Opening lead: • Q cards in the suit. East takes his ace and leads his last club through South's 10-8 into the jaws of West's J-9. The defenders take one diamond and four clubs.

Stick with skinless, broiled chicken, and fresh steamed or broiled seafood, and reduce your red meat intake (to zero is best). You'll be surprised at how much more energy you have, with fewer aches and pains (especially in the morning), and better digestion. Then, let that provide you with the incentive to give up sweetened and artificially sweetened beverages for a couple of months. Psst! Stick with your processed-meat-free diet, too.

You get where we are going with this. And we know you read "What Is Clean Eating?" on iHerb.com's blog.

DES MOINES, Iowa -No Illusions Martial Arts of Brookings competed in the Future Stars Competition on June 15 in Des Moines.

In the Masters 1 Advanced No-Gi Division Cary Bingham came in first place. Micki Twedwell finished in first place in the Adult Female Intermediate No-Gi Division. Logan Straube finished in second place in the Adult Intermediate No-Gi Division. Julian Pal competed in the Adult Beginner No-Gi Division.

In the kids portion of the competition Rebella Raatz came in first in both the Kids/Teens 9-10 White Belt Gi Division and the Kids/Teens 9-10 Beginner No-Gi Division. Joseph Hale finished in second place in the Kids/Teens 13-14 Intermediate Nogi Division and third place in the Kids/Teens 13-14 Grav Belt Gi Division. "These dedicated athletes have shown remarkable commitment and skill in their respective divisions," Bingham said. We are extremely proud of their efforts and accomplishments."

Tennessee wins College World Series

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Christian Moore hit a leadoff homer, Dylan Dreiling went deep for the third time in three games and Tennessee won its first national championship in baseball with a 6-5 victory over Texas A&M on Monday night in Game 3 of the College World Series finals.

The Volunteers bounced back from a Game 1 loss to win two straight and become the first No. 1 national seed in the NCAA Tournament to win the title since Miami in 1999.

Tennessee (60-13) held an Aggies team averaging 8.5 runs per game for the season to six runs over the last 20 innings of the finals, with Zander Sechrist and Nate Snead doing the heavy lifting on Monday before Texas A&M came back to score four runs and get the tying run at the plate in the ninth.

Aaron Combs struck out Hayden Schott and Ted Burton to end the game and set off a Tennessee celebration behind the pitcher's mound.

"Kids are tough these days. They will do what you ask them to do," Vols coach Tony Vitello said. "I know our fans got us through that tough inning. That was a group effort on the mound. If you're in the SEC, you're going to be a superstar player, but you need to be a good teammate, and that's what these guys were."

Minutes after the final pitch, the 45-year-old Vitello shared an embrace with his father, Greg, a longtime successful high school baseball and soccer coach in St. Louis.

"I felt like I was the dad and he was the kid because he wouldn't stop crying," Vitello said. "I had to rub some dirt on him."

Vitello jumped into the stands to share a group hug with fans, players did a lap around the warning track high-fiving fans, and Kavares Tears squatted in right field taking in the moment with a towel over his eves The Vols are the eighth Southeastern Conference school to win a national title in baseball. Those eight have combined for 16 titles. The SEC has won five in a row, all by different schools, and 10 of the last 15.

Texas A&M threatened to cut into a 3-1 deficit in the sixth and seventh innings, but Snead got the Vols out of trouble both times.

Dreiling, the CWS Most Outstanding Player, connected for his 23rd homer of the season and Hunter Ensley evaded Jackson Appel's tag at the plate as he scored on Tears' double to make it 6-1 going to the eighth. Since the CWS best-of-three finals began in 2003, Dreiling is the only player to homer in three games.

The Vols' two homers Monday moved them into a tie with the 1998 LSU team for most in an NCAA Tournament (37) and gave them 184 for the season, four behind the 1997 LSU team's NCAA record of 188.

Texas A&M created some anxiety for the Vols in the eighth, scoring twice and threatening to get more with two runners on base with one out. Kirby Connell struck out Kaeden Kent on three pitches and Ryan Targac on four. Connell pumped his left fist twice, gave a primal scream and skipped over the third-base line on his way back to the dugout.

The Aggies scored twice, the second run coming home on a wild pitch, to make it a one-run game in the ninth before Combs finished it off.

'Tough one to swallow," Aggies coach Jim Schlossnagle said. "You make it this far, you want to win your last game."

Among the fans on hand in Tennessee orange were football great Peyton Manning, football coach Josh Heupel, men's basketball coach Rick Barnes and country music artist Morgan Wallen. Temperature at first pitch was a humid 98 degrees, with most of the Vols' fans in the direct sun along the third-base side until the middle innings and in the outfield bleachers until sundown.

Cary Bingham of No Illusions Martial Arts (middle) stands at the podium after coming in first place in the Masters 1 Advanced No-Gi Division at Future Stars Competition in Des Moines on June 15.

Moore took their mind off the heat, at least for a moment, when he drove Justin Lamkin's fourth pitch, an elevated fastball, off the back wall of the left-field bullpen for his team-leading 34th homer of the season.

Top Cats: Panthers win their 1st Stanley Cup, top Oilers 2-1 in Game 7

SUNRISE, Fla. (AP) There was no collapse. The Florida Panthers are Stanley Cup champions for the first time, and they took about the hardest path possible to the title

Sam Reinhart and Carter Verhaeghe scored goals, Sergei Bobrovsky made 23 saves and the Panthers beat the Edmonton Oilers 2-1 on Monday night in Game 7 of the Stanley Cup Final. It was the third title-round appearance in Florida's 30-year history; it was swept in 1996 by Colorado and routed 4-1 by Vegas last season.

This time, they were on the right side of history — after avoiding what would have been a historic collapse. The Panthers won the first three games of the series, then lost the next three and needed a win on Monday to avoid joining the 1942 Detroit Red Wings as the only teams to lose the final after taking a 3-0 lead in the title round.

"It's not what I thought it would be," Panthers coach Paul Maurice said. "It's so much better."

It wasn't easy. Not even close. But it's done.

"It's heavy," Panthers captain Aleksander Barkov said, after he took the celebratory first lap with the Cup.

But not too heavy. Barkov handed it to Bobrovsky and the celebration was on. It took until the very end for the Panthers to deny Connor McDavid his first title, and Edmonton what would have been its first Cup since 1990.

McDavid won the Conn Smythe as MVP of the Stanley Cup playoffs. He didn't come out for the trophy. It's not the one he wanted, anyway. The Cup is what they play for, and it was Florida that hoisted it.

"It's not a dream anymore. It's not a dream. It's reality," said Panthers forward Matthew Tkachuk, who got traded to Florida two summers ago with this as his goal. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. ... I can't believe how good these two years have been. So thankful for this group of guys. It's the best place, best guys. It's something really special here with what we have?

Mattias Janmark had the goal for Edmonton and Stuart Skinner stopped 19 shots for the Oilers. The Oilers also couldn't snap Canada's title drought; it's been 1993 and counting since a team based in Canada won the Cup.

Montreal was the last to do so, 30 seasons ago. Since then, there have been seven attempts by teams from Canadian-based cities -Vancouver in 1994 and 2011, Calgary in 2004, the Oilers in 2006, Ottawa in 2007 and the Canadiens in 2021 - to win titles, and all were in vain.

South Florida now has one of everything when it comes to titles from the four major pro sports leagues in the Ú.S. The Miami Dolphins were champions twice, the then-Florida Marlins were champions twice, the Miami Heat have three titles and now the Panthers have joined the party.

Welcome, Stanley. The Panthers have been waiting. Maurice hoisted the Cup by the bench, closed his eyes tight to control the emotion and let out a vell. General manager Bill Zito didn't bother even trying to not let the yell out. And in the stands, Tkachuk's family - his father, Keith, never won a Cup - reveled in the moment, knowing their surname will soon be on Lord Stanley.

"This is for them," Tkachuk said.

Bobrovsky was as cool as could be, even in the biggest moments. Oilers defenseman Evan Bouchard had a good look from the right circle with about 14 seconds left in the second period; Bobrovsky blocked the shot, and the puck bounced off him and into the air.

No problem. Bobrovsky took his stick and batted the puck away again, more like he was playing morning pickleball at a park than in literally, the last line of defense against the Oilers, and against a piece of history that the Panthers desperately fought to avoid.

Florida led this title series 3-0, then got outscored 18-5 in Games 4, 5 and 6 to waste three chances at winning the Cup. Edmonton was one win away from becoming the second team in NHL history to win the Cup after dropping the first three games; Toronto did it to Detroit in 1942, and no team has pulled off such a comeback since.

"I just can't believe we did it," Barkov said.

The pregame was raucous. The stage was set.

And the teams came out absolutely ablaze.

The Panthers got the first goal just 4:27 into the game when Verhaeghe waved his stick at the puck that was fired in from the left side by Evan Rodrigues and got just enough to redirect it past Skinner for a 1-0 lead — the first Florida lead since the end of Game 3.

They waited more than a week to be back on top. They stayed there for just over two minutes.

Janmark got behind the Florida defense and beat Bobrovsky over the right shoulder at 6:44, knotting things right back up and ensuring that this Game 7 of the final - like all 17 of the previous such games wouldn't end 1-0.

It stayed that way through wild ebbs and flows - the Oilers controlled long stretches, the Panthers would counter, back and forth - until Reinhart scored late in the second to put Florida up 2-1.

Florida was an NHL-best 44-0-3 entering Monday when leading after two periods this season.

Chutes sweep Yankton in doubleheader at Bob Shelden

FROM REGISTER STAFF REPORTS

BROOKINGS - Strong pitching and defense led to a doubleheader sweep against Yankton on Monday afternoon for the Brookings Junior Legion Chutes.

The Chutes won the first game 5-1 and then followed that with a 7-1 win in game two. Brookings gave up just five hits in the two games and had only two errors.

Brookings is now 4-4 on the season and will play a doubleheader in Fargo on Tuesday night. The first game is scheduled to start at 5:30 p.m.

Game One Brookings 5, Yankton 1

Breck Wilson pitched

a complete game for the Chutes. He gave up two hits and had four strikeouts and two walks. The one run he gave up was unearned.

Brookings took the lead in the first inning with one run. Cooper Schneider hit a one-out single and then stole second base. He then came home on a single from Tyson Antonen and the Chutes led 1-0 heading into the second.

The Chutes extended their lead in the bottom of the third. Max Jensen led off the inning with a single and Schnedier and Antonen were then walked with one out to load the bases. Talon Hyde hit a pop up to the second baseman and the ball was dropped. Hyde was out on the play due to the infield fly rule but two runs came home on the error to make it 3-0. An RBI single from Jay Harris two batters later made it 4-0 heading into the fourth.

Yankton scored on a ground out in the top of the sixth but the Chutes got that run back in the bottom of the inning. Jensen hit a two-out double and Hammrich came in to run for him. Hammrich stole third and the catcher threw the ball over the third baseman's head and he was able to make his way home to make it 5-1 heading into the final inning.

Wilson sent down Yankton one-two-three in the top of the seventh and the Chutes picked up the win in game one.

Brookings had six hits as a team. Antonen was 2-for-2 with an RBI and Harris was 1-for-3 with an RBI. Jensen was 2-for-3 and Schneider was 1-for-3.

Game Two Brookings 7, Yankton

The Chutes went up 3-0 in the first two innings and didn't look back as they kept it rolling defensively in game two.

Brookings scored two runs in the first inning. Tre Christopherson reached on an error to begin the inning and then made his way to third on a single from Schneider. Christopehrson then scored on a sacrifice fly from Antonen and Schnedier scored on a ground out from Harris to make it 2-0.

Jensen hit a two-out single in the bottom of the second and then he made it to third on an error. Christopherson then hit Jensen home with a single, giving the Chutes a threerun lead heading into the third.

Yankton scored its only run of the game on a ground out in the top of the fourth. Brookings answered with three runs in the bottom of the inning.

Tane Friedrich walked to begin the inning and then a one-out walk from Ryder Anderson put two runners on. One run scored on an error and then Schneider hit a two-run single to make it 6-1. Kysin Rauer then stole home in the bottom of the sixth to put the Chutes up 7-1 heading into the final half inning.

Yankton got one runner on in the seventh, but Rauer didn't allow another base runner and the Chutes came away with the sweep.

Hyde pitched the first five innings for Brookings. He gave up one earned run on three hits with four strikeouts and two walks. Rauer pitched the final two innings and did not give up a hit. He had four strikeouts and a walk.

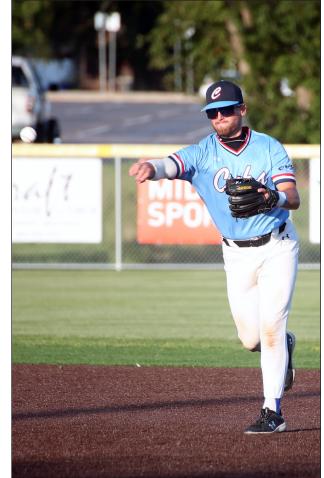

Brookings had six hits again. Schneider was 2-for-4 with two RBIs and Christopherson was 1-for-3 with two RBIs. Antonen was 2-for-3 with an RBI and Jensen was 1-for-3. Harris had an RBI without a hit.
