FRESH fruits and vegetables don't have to be expensive if you buy them in season and many are in season year round. To learn more, visit www.sdharvestofthemonth.com

FROZEN fruits and vegetables are packed and frozen within hours of harvest, so they don't lose their flavor or nutritional value. Try steaming vegetables in the microwave or stovetop rather than boiling to keep in more nutrients.

CANNED fruits and vegetables often get a bad rap but they are still nutritious. Choose 100% fruit juice with no added sugar and vegetables with no sale added. Remember to drain the water, juice, or syrup and rinse with water to help remove some of the extra sugar and salt.

Calam Lynch as seen in "The Lord of the Rings: The Rings of Power"

Elves, Ents and Orcs: Season 2 of 'The Rings of Power' makes its debut

Ancient evil is nothing new for the Elves, Hobbits, Dwarves and other peoples inhabiting Middle Earth. Beginning with 1914's "The Voyage of Éarendel the Evening Star" — considered to be the first of author J.R.R. Tolkien's ever-developing Middle Earth fantasy saga — up to the modern day, there is seemingly no end to the grip that Tolkien's lore has on the world at large. From the literary series to board games, tabletop role-playing games, video games, movies and more, it feels as though everyone in the modern day has consumed something of Tolkien's within their lifetime.

Newest on the scene, of course, is Prime Video's "The Lord of the Rings: The Rings of Power," which premiered Sept. 1, 2022 on the streaming platform. Across its eight episodes, elves, and distant cousins, Galadriel (Morfydd Clark, "Saint Maud," 2019) and Elrond (Robert Aramayo, "The King's Man," 2021) take on respective missions to regain their race's power and defeat the persistent forces of evil threatening Middle Earth. Ultimately, when their own plans fall short of success, they turn to the infamously coveted Rings of Power to get their way. Unfortunately, gaining power is never clear-cut and simple.

Back to complete their missions or die trying, Galadriel and Elrond must now face an infamous primordial evil in the show's newest season: the powerful future ruler of Mordor, Sauron (Charlie Vickers, "Medici"). Season 2 of "The Lord of the Rings: The Rings of Power" begins Thursday, Aug. 29, on Prime Video.

While the focus of Season 2 is primarily on the rise of Sauron — formerly only seen as Hal-brand in the series — as the leading antihero in Middle Earth, fans of the first season may be happy to hear that the team behind the scenes plans to "[fix] a big Season 1 complaint" regarding the differences between Galadriel's character in "The Rings of Power" and that within Peter Jackson's ("King Kong," 2005) Lord of the Rings trilogy. Much of her character development, as fans of the novel know, can be attributed to her ownership and use of the Elven ring Nenyia.

"This season we get to ... [see] a real different side to Galadriel," explains executive producer Lindsey Weber, as reported by ScreenRant.com. "She's humbled. ... She's had to face the question of whether she's wrong, and decide which way to go to set right what she's had a hand in unleashing on Middle Earth."

Returning alongside Clark, Aramayo and Vickers this season are Owain Arthur ("The Palace") as Prince Durin IV, Ismael Cruz Córdova ("Mary Queen of Scots," 2018) as Arondir, Peter Mullan ("Children of Men," 2006) as King Durin III, Ema Horvath ("Don't Look Deeper") as Earien, Markella Kavenagh ("Romper Stomper") as Nori Brandyfoot and Benjamin Walker ("Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter," 2012) as High King Gil-galad and Calam Lynch ("Bridgerton") in a role that has yet to be named, to list just a few.

Deadline also reported that "15 actors were added in recurring roles at the end of 2022." Among them is notable addition Rory Kinnear ("The Imitation Game," 2014) as friendly Hobbit-savior Tom Bombadil, a man "older than the old," who did not make it into the Jackson film adaptations.

Checking in with
GINGER ZEE

Weather keeps Ginger Zee on the move.

On any weekday, it's a guess whether ABC News' chief meteorologist will be in the New York "Good Morning America" studio or out on location, reporting on atmospheric matters. Particularly when inclement conditions make headlines, it's a sure bet that Zee — also a best-selling author who co-hosts the weekend ABC series "Hearts of Heroes" as well — wants to be where the action is happening.

Named by her Dutch father after Tina Louise's Ginger Grant character on the classic sitcom "Gilligan's Island," Zee (born Ginger Renee Zuidgeest) also leads the climate unit for ABC News and has done a number of related special reports, not only as the subjects apply to the United States but also globally. (She's now very involved in the ABC News-wide initiative "Climate Ready.") When she graduated from college, Zee's intention was to become a meteorologist for NBC's "Today" ... and even if she ultimately landed at a different network, she was eyeing the right time slot.

Zee actually worked at several NBC affiliates as she built her career, the most pivotal one arguably being network-owned Chicago station WMAQ-TV. She got to substitute on the weekend edition of "Today," but it was ABC that came calling for her on a permanent basis in 2011, when she joined the weekend edition of "Good Morning America." She moved to the weekday position in 2013, but her broadcast day doesn't necessarily end when "GMA" does: She frequently appears evenings on "ABC World News Tonight With David Muir" as well.

As part of the "GMA" family, Zee has seen her duties expand to segments on such topics as entertainment and fashion as well, and she's gotten attention for her support of the environment-minded No New Clothes Challenge in recent times. It's part and parcel of her main job, with which she appears destined to stay for some time to come.
