FRESH fruits and vegetables don't have to be expensive if you buy them in season and many are in season year round. To learn more, visit www.sdharvestofthemoth.com

FROZEN fruits and vegetables are packed and frozen within hours of harvest, so they don't lose their flavor or nutritional value. Try steaming vegetables in the microwave or stovetop rather than boiling to keep in more nutrients.

CANNED fruits and vegetables often get a bad rap but they are still nutritious. Choose 100% fruit juice with no added sugar and vegetables with no sale added. Remember to drain the water, juice, or syrup and rinse with water to help remove some of the extra sugar and salt.

Lee Jung-jae stars in "Squid Game"

Back in the game: A returning player tries to bring down the 'Squid Game'

Times are tough. A deadly game with a life-changing purse awaiting the winner entices people surviving on the edge to risk it all for a chance at prosperity. The Emmy-winning global sensation "Squid Game" returns Thursday, Dec. 26, for a second season on Netflix. If you're ready to hang on to the edge of your seat during the intense, emotional action after the holiday cheer, then get settled in for a binge.

The first season of "Squid Game" depicted the 33rd annual secretive event in which 456 carefully chosen players, secluded on a private island estate, competed in a series of children's games — with lethal consequences for failure. The last player standing collected a grand prize of 45.6 billion South Korean won — 100 million won for each player who died in the game — more than enough to start over with if they can get over the brutality of the games.

In a trailer for the upcoming season, last season's winner, Seong Gi-hun (Lee Jung-jae, "The Acolyte"), requests to return to the island for entry into another round of killer schoolyard games. This time, however, he intends to put an end to the exploitative games forever. A nearly impossible task on its own, Gi-hun's quest is made even more difficult as he tries to convince a new batch of desperate players to fight back when the glowing, golden piggy bank hangs over their bunks.

Returning alongside Lee Jung-jae is Lee Byung-hun ("The Magnificent Seven," 2016) as the Front Man, the director of the games. Gi-hun and police officer Hwang Jun-ho (Wi Ha-joon, "Little Women"), another returning character from the first season, have the Front Man in an uncomfortable position with their knowledge of the games and desire to destroy them.

While other officers initially brushed off Gi-hun's wild tale of being abducted to the games in the first season, it was Jun-ho who set off to investigate. He sneaked onto the island and found that his long-lost brother, In-ho, was not in fact missing all of these years but had become the Front Man. The two faced off and Jun-ho was shot in a literal cliffhanger but managed to mysteriously survive.

Also returning is Gong Yoo ("Train to Busan," 2016) as the Salesman. New cast additions this season include Yim Si-wan ("Road to Boston"), Kang Ha-neul ("Insider"), Park Gyu-young ("A Good Day to Be a Dog"), Lee Jin-wook ("Sweet Home"), Park Sung-hoon ("Queen of Tears"), Yang Dong-geun ("Moving"), Kang Ae-shim ("A Virtuous Business"), Lee David ("The Fortress," 2017), Choi Seung-hyun ("Secret Message"), Roh Jae-won ("Daily Dose of Sunshine"), Jo Yu-ri ("Mimic-us") and Won Ji-an ("Heartbeat").

If you missed all of the hype around the show's debut season the first time around, here is a quick primer on the events that took place. A critical commentary on class structure and capitalism in South Korea, the first season of "Squid Game" was about a group of people who were all living under the weight of massive debts. Significant gambling debts had made Gi-hun an unreliable father and son, leaving him little to lose when the Salesman offered him a chance to win his way out from under through the mysterious games.

Accepting the offer, Gi-hun was drugged and abducted to the games' grounds, waking just early enough to get a few glimpses of his surroundings and the uniformed game enforcers transporting them. Clad in numbered tracksuits, the 456 players soon began participating in the gruesome games. One wrong step, a shaky hand or a bad toss of a marble led to instant death for those unfortunate players, their portion of the prize dropping into the piggy bank after the game. Skeptical from the beginning, Gi-hun uncovered a conspiracy within the games that, even after his win, urged him to seek revenge.

Series director and executive producer Hwang Dong-hyuk ("Silenced," 2011) confirmed that "Squid Game" will end with its third season, planned release in 2025. However, that's not the end of the games on Netflix. Reality competition series "Squid Game: The Challenge" was one of the most talked-about series of 2023, replicating the games themselves and ethos of the scripted series without assassinations.

Squid Game: Unleashed, a new mobile game from Netflix, lets players compete in digital versions of the games from the show. Finally, there are rumors around Hollywood, reported by Deadline, that director David Fincher ("The Killer," 2023) is in talks to adapt an English-language version of the Korean series for the streamer.

Get ready for more dystopian thrills when a new season of "Squid Game" premieres Thursday, Dec. 26, on Netflix.

Checking in with DOLLY PARTON

Even if she doesn't have a new holiday program to offer, Dolly Parton is a traditional part of the season.

That speaks to the timelessness and popularity of the country music icon's projects, and it will again as NBC repeats her 2022 movie "Dolly Parton's Mountain Magic Christmas," Thursday, Dec. 26. It adapts a premise from other seasonal tales to her persona, with Parton — who recently released the album "Smoky Mountain DNA: Family, Faith & Fables" — playing herself as she prepares to stage a holiday TV special at her theme park, Dollywood. Three wise men suddenly appear before her, intent on restoring her spirit by guiding her back through milestones of her past.

Jimmy Fallon ("The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon"), Willie Nelson ("On the Road Again"), daughter and father Miley Cyrus ("Flowers") and Billy Ray Cyrus ("Achy Breaky Heart") and Parton's sisters Cassie and Rachel ("Nine to Five") also appear as themselves in the film. Tom Everett Scott ("That Thing You Do!," 1996) and "Saturday Night Live" alum Ana Gasteyer are featured as well.

Parton's holiday movie relationship with NBC dates back to "Dolly Parton's Coat of Many Colors" (2015), in which she narrated the story of her own Tennessee upbringing with Jennifer Nettles ("The Righteous Gemstones") and Rick Schroder ("NYPD Blue") playing her parents. That picture's ratings success led to the following year's sequel, "Dolly Parton's Christmas of Many Colors: Circle of Love," and both movies have had several NBC repeats in holiday seasons since.

Long before those, Parton already had been on a yuletide track with ABC's "A Smoky Mountain Christmas" (1986), with Henry Winkler ("Barry") as director, then she went to Lifetime with "A Country Christmas Story" (2013). After her "Many Colors" films, she went to Hallmark Channel for "Christmas at Dollywood" (2019), then she took the Netflix route with "Christmas on the Square" (2020) — which Debbie Allen ("Grey's Anatomy") directed and which won a Primetime Emmy for outstanding television movie.

Dolly Parton and Christmas are no strangers. Even in years when she doesn't have a new movie to mark that, her existing Noel novelties keep that connection strong.

Birthdate: Jan. 19, 1946

Current residence: Brentwood, Tenn.
