Rochelle Aytes
stars in "Watson"

The doctor will see you now: 'Watson' premieres on cable, streaming

Throughout history, there have been many notable Watsons in the public interest, but one of the most famous and most referenced is a Watson of fiction; one who dedicated his on-page life to helping mastermind detective Sherlock Holmes solve mysteries in the novels of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. While much of Doyle's work focused on the detective leading the charge in his deerstalker cap, plenty of thought has since gone into Dr. John Watson's own ambitions, and CBS is the latest to take on the task of modernizing the good doctor's story for contemporary times.

The network's new hour-long medical drama series "Watson" premieres Sunday, Jan. 26, on CBS and the Paramount+ streaming service. Scheduled to begin immediately following the NFL's AFC championship game, the exact start time may vary slightly from its anticipated debut.

Hailing from Craig Sweeny, executive producer of "Limitless" and "Medium," "Watson" marks the second Sherlock-inspired drama for the producer and showrunner after "Elementary," the procedural dramedy — in which Lucy Liu ("Charlie's Angels," 2000) portrayed Dr. Watson — that ran from 2012 to 2019, also on CBS. Despite the evident tie-in opportunities, it appears Sweeny's new series is completely devoid of any references to "Elementary" and remains staunchly unrelated to its predecessor, with the exception of drawing inspiration from the same source material.

Starring Morris Chestnut ("The Resident") as the titular character, the series follows Watson and his team of sleuth-adjacent doctors at Holmes Clinic as they work overtime to find answers to some of the most curious ailments known (and unknown) within the medical world. This may sound like a familiar premise to fans of the 2004-2012 series "House," but there is an additional, literary tie-in to the Sherlock Holmes stories outside the clinic.

"Watson" takes place six months after the death of the titular character's friend and partner Sherlock Holmes at the hands of Moriarty," reads the Paramount news release, which later adds that Watson "resumes his medical career as the head of a clinic dedicated to treating rare disorders."

"Watson's old life isn't done with him, though," the release continues, confirming "Moriarty and Watson are set to write their own chapter of a story that has fascinated audiences for more than a century. 'Watson' is a medical show with a strong investigative spine, featuring a modern version of one of history's greatest detectives as he turns his attention from solving crimes to solving medical mysteries."

As of writing, however, there is no news as to whether the series will allude to Watson's past as a military surgeon or his time spent (and injured) in Afghanistan.

In a statement on Paramount Press Express, the official CBS press site, Amy Reisenbach, president of CBS Entertainment, said, "We are thrilled to feature such a beloved character from the world of Sherlock Holmes at the center of this series and have it brought to life by Morris Chestnut in a fresh and unexpected take on the immortal doctor."

"Craig Sweeny's bold new vision for the complex Dr. Watson deftly interweaves rich character storytelling with edge-of-your-seat medical mysteries," Reisenbach added.

Appearing alongside Chestnut is "The Night Agent" actress Eve Harlow as fellow Holmes Clinic doctor Ingrid Derian; "The Dark Knight's" (2008) Ritchie Coster as Shinwell Johnson; "So Help Me Todd" actress Inga Schlingmann as Dr. Sasha Lubbock; Rochelle Aytes ("S.W.A.T.") as Dr. Mary Morstan; and Peter Mark Kendall ("The Americans") doing double duty as doctors Stephens and Adam Croft.

Checking in with
JOHN DICKERSON

As John Dickerson assumes a co-anchor role on "CBS Evening News" permanently, he's carrying on the legacy of his trailblazing mother.

Nancy Dickerson also worked for CBS News in her first job in television journalism, then went to NBC News, where her milestones included being the first female correspondent to report from the floor of a political convention. Later, she stayed in the business by doing work for syndication and PBS, and her son wrote a 2006 book about her titled "On Her Trail: My Mother, Nancy Dickerson, TV News' First Woman Star."

Now, John Dickerson is adding another entry to his resume by teaming with Maurice DuBois to anchor the weeknight CBS newscast starting Monday, Jan. 27. They will succeed Norah O'Donnell on the program, which also streams on Paramount+. "Face the Nation" host Margaret Brennan will contribute reporting from Washington, D.C., and network regular Lonnie Quinn will cover weather.

Dickerson has been a "CBS Evening News" anchor previously, but either as a fill-in or on an interim basis. However, he has had regular stints in an anchor seat on other CBS shows: he presided over "Face the Nation" (for which his mother was an associate producer early in her career) from mid-2015 until early 2018; he was part of the hosting team (with O'Donnell and Gayle King) of the then-named "CBS This Morning" in 2018-19; and he fronted "The Daily Report" on the CBS News 24/7 streaming service from the fall of 2022 until last October.

Former CBS News political director Dickerson now assumes a position that famously has belonged to such broadcasters as Walter Cronkite, Dan Rather and Katie Couric since what evolved into "CBS Evening News" began in the early 1940s. And in the process, he continues a professional pursuit that has been in his family's fiber for many decades as well.

Birthdate: July 6, 1968

Birthplace: Washington, D.C.

Current residence: New York

Marital status: Married to media consultant Anne Dickerson; they have a son and a daughter

Other television credits include: "Face the Nation," "CBS This Morning," "CBS News Sunday Morning," "60 Minutes," "The Daily Report," "The Slate Political Gabfest," "Washington Week," "Charlie Rose"

His other employers have included: Slate magazine, Time magazine

Education: Sidwell Friends School, University of Virginia

Books he has written include: "Whistlestop: My Favorite Stories From Presidential Campaign History," "The Hardest Job in the World: The American Presidency," "On Her Trail: My Mother, Nancy Dickerson, TV News' First Woman Star"
