"The Wheel of Time"

Long shadow of the past: Darkness encroaches in new season of 'The Wheel of Time'

He's got the whole world in his hands. In the much-anticipated third season of the expansive fantasy series, "The Wheel of Time," premiering Thursday, March 13, on Prime Video, the Dragon Reborn contends with dark threats against the light as the last battle looms on the path ahead.

Once simply a shepherd from the village of Emond's Field, Rand al'Thor (Joshua Stradowski, "Gran Turismo," 2023) has proven himself to be the prophesied Dragon Reborn, a powerful figure with the ability to either save the world from the Dark One or break it again.

Rand was discovered by Moiraine Damodred (Rosamund Pike, "Saltburn," 2023), an Aes Sedai of the Blue Ajah, a matriarchal order committed to protect humanity and heal it from the devastation brought on by the last Dark One. This season, Moiraine and Rand, tragically tethered in every timeline that lies ahead of them, must face an agonizing reality.

"I have seen a thousand thousand futures. In every future where I lived, Rand dies," Moiraine narrates over a montage of possible ends in the official teaser trailer for the upcoming season. "The only way he lives is if I don't," she makes very clear.

The future of humanity rests on Rand's survival and the choice he must make between darkness and light. As he grows stronger, the darkness begins to turn his head away from the light and his allies, Moiraine and Egwene al'Vere (Madeleine Madden, "Pine Gap"). Per Prime Video,

"these powerful women, who started the series as teacher and student, must now work together to prevent the Dragon from turning to the Dark...no matter the cost."

Also starring in "The Wheel of Time" are Daniel Henney ("Criminal Minds") as al'Lan Mandragoran; Zoe Robins ("Black Christmas," 2019) as Nynaeve al'Meara; Marcus Rutherford ("Funny Woman") as Perrin Aybara; Donal Finn ("Rogue Heroes") as Mat Cauthon; Ceara Coveney ("Young Wallander") as Elayne Trakand; Kate Fleetwood ("Scoop," 2024) as Lian-drin Guirale; Natasha O'Keeffe ("Peaky Blinders") as Lanfear; Ayoola Smart ("Juliet, Naked," 2018) as Aviendha; and Kae Alexander ("Collateral") as Min Farshaw.

Joining the cast this season are Isabella Bucci ("Finally Me," 2023) as Faile Bashere, a Saldaean relic hunter; Nukaka Coster-Waldau ("Agent") as Bair, a wise elder member of the Taardad Aiel; Salome Gunnarsdottir ("Pennyworth") as Melaine, a Wise One of the Taardad Aiel with mystical powers; Bjorn Landberg ("Unter uns") as Taardad Aiel clan chief Rhuarc; and Synnove Macody Lund ("Ragnarok") as Melindhra, a Malkieri raised by the Taardad Aiel.

"The Wheel of Time" is an adaptation of the book series of the same name by authors Robert Jordan and Brandon Sanderson. The series includes 14 installments, a prequel and three companion books, and its popularity has inspired comics; card, video and role playing games; and even a soundtrack.

Checking in with

Melissa Fumero has had several television "lives," and now she has another that's uniquely its own.

Also a director, the "Brooklyn Nine-Nine" alum proceeded as an actress from daytime drama work to prime-time gigs, and her latest role is colorful enough to supplant memories of more-conservative characters she has played. In NBC's new seriocomic Sunday show "Grosse Pointe Garden Society," which also streams on Peacock, Fumero portrays Birdie, a wealthy author whose approach to life is defined by the title of her memoir, "Digging for Gold: Dancing Through Divorce."

Convinced that the others in her gardening club — played by AnnaSophia Robb ("Dr. Death"), Aja Naomi King ("How to Get Away with Murder") and Ben Rappaport ("For the People") — hate her, she's linked to them through a murder. And, indeed, they don't trust Birdie not to give them up if it means clearing herself. Reminiscent of such other shows as NBC's "Good Girls" (which was developed by "Grosse Pointe Garden Society" co-creator Jenna Bans) and ABC's "Desperate Housewives" (for which Bans wrote), the show also features Alexander Hodge ("Insecure"), Nancy Travis ("Last Man Standing") and Matthew Davis ("The Vampire Diaries").

Fumero started her career soon after her college graduation — within hours, literally — when she was cast as Adriana Cramer in the ABC soap opera "One Life to Live." A regular on the show for four years, from 2004 to 2008, she returned to it occasionally after that, but she mostly spent the several years immediately afterward doing guest roles on prime-time series.

The police satire "Brooklyn Nine-Nine" gave Fumero her next major TV role as Det. Amy Santiago, starting on Fox, where it remained from 2013 to 2018, before closing out its run on NBC from 2019 to 2021. Fumero also made her directing debut on that show, and while she has continued that pursuit, acting remains her main occupation. Before her current job, she had a major role in Season 2 of Peacock's "Based on a True Story" as a secret-keeping new friend of Kaley Cuoco's ("The Big Bang Theory") central character.

Now, Fumero is turning any preconceptions of her upside-down as she pulls out all the stops in "Grosse Pointe Garden Society," and plants seeds for more variety in her career.
