Checking in with KEVIN BACON

Whenever Kevin Bacon tackles series television, the result tends to be unique. The concept of his latest venture virtually guarantees the same outcome again. Streaming all eight of its half-hour episodes starting Thursday, April 3, Prime Video's horror-drama show "The Bondsman" casts Bacon as Hub Halloran, a bounty hunter who was murdered in the course of doing business ... but he rises from the dead, thanks to the Devil himself, and sets out to right earlier wrongs by pursuing escaped demons. Singer-actress Jennifer Nettles ("The Righteous Gemstones") and Beth Grant ("The Mindy Project") also are in the regular cast.

The prolific Bacon has enjoyed a steadily active movie career, so it's typically an event when he decides to do TV on any sort of regular basis. The half-hour length — rare for a drama — and relatively limited time commitment likely helped make "The Bondsman" an appealing prospect for him, but his work in the medium dates back to two daytime serials whose ensemble nature didn't require him to be present constantly, "Search for Tomorrow" and "Guiding Light" (both of which were on CBS at the time he was in them, in the late 1970s and early 1980s).

It was some time before Bacon committed to a series again, and when he did, it was a show that became known for its darkness both thematically and literally. Fox's "The Following" (2013-15) cast him as an FBI agent brought back to duty to help find a serial killer (played by James Purefoy, "Saint Pierre") who assembled a cult of murderers. Later, in Showtime's "City on a Hill" (2019-22), Bacon also played an FBI veteran, though one of questionable repute who teamed with a district attorney (Aldis Hodge, "Cross") to combat crime in Boston.

Clearly, Bacon has a history of edginess in his TV work, and he's all but certain to bring all the degrees of that — and not just his famous "Six Degrees" — to his other-worldly new role in "The Bondsman."

When it comes to long-running scripted British television series, several titles rush to mind. From popular sci-fi/fantasy series "Doctor Who," which boasts 40 complete seasons and several specials since its premiere in November 1963, to ongoing ensemble cast series like "EastEnders" (40 seasons), "Emmerdale" (54 seasons) and "Coronation Street" (66 seasons), it is clear that the U.K. has a lush culture of appointment television, which remains alive and well to this day.

Another series that appears to be joining the U.K.'s ranks of long-running televised content is "Call the Midwife," the medical period drama that began its run on BBC One in 2012. Headed into its 14th season on Sunday, March 30 — a number of seasons that would border on astounding in nearly any other market — "Call the Midwife" is available to watch on PBS or to stream via the PBS Passport streaming service. For those who hold a BritBox subscription, Season 14 of "Call the Midwife" has been available since its U.K. premiere in January.

"Call the Midwife" focuses on "the nurses, midwives and nuns from Nonnatus House," reads the official PBS description, "who visit the expectant mothers of Poplar, providing the poorest women with the best possible care." The series is based on the memoirs of the late British nurse Jennifer Worth, who practiced in one of East London's most impoverished areas in the 1950s. And while the BBC series began its first season set in 1957, 14 seasons later the women of Poplar are ushering in a new era: the 1970s.

According to PBS, in this newest season, "chaos erupts as the Isle of Dogs bid for independence. Amid the turmoil, the midwives work tirelessly to keep Nonnatus House running while addressing complex social and health challenges."

While looking ahead to the excitement and challenges of portraying another new decade within the series, Thomas reflected that "we are a family behind the scenes, on the screen and in front of the telly, and I'm thrilled that we're all heading into the 1970s together."

Birthdate: July 8, 1958

Birthplace: Philadelphia

Current residences: New York and Sharon, Conn.

Marital status: Married to actress Kyra Sedgwick; they have two children, musician Travis Bacon and actress Sosie Bacon

Other television credits include: "City on a Hill," "Story of a Girl," "The Following," "Taking Chance," "The Closer" (director), "Will & Grace," "Saturday Night Live," "Losing Chase" (director), "Lemon Sky," "American Playhouse: The Little Sister," "Mister Roberts," "Guiding Light," "Search for Tomorrow"

Movie credits include: "Beverly Hills Cop: Axel F," "Leave the World Behind," "The Toxic Avenger," "One Way," "They/Them," "You Should Have Left," "Patriots Day," "The Darkness," "Black Mass," "Cop Car," "R.I.P.D.," "Crazy, Stupid, Love," "X-Men: First Class," "New York, I Love You," "Frost/Nixon," "The Air I Breathe," "Death Sentence," "Where the Truth Lies," "Beauty Shop," "Loverboy," "Cavedweller," "The Woodsman," "In the Cut," "Mystic River," "Trapped," "Novocaine," "Hollow Man," "My Dog Skip," "Stir of Echoes," "Wild Things," "Telling Lies in America," "Digging to China," "Picture Perfect," "Sleepers," "Balto" (voice only), "Apollo 13," "Murder in the First," "The River Wild," "The Air Up There," "A Few Good Men," "JFK," "He Said, She Said," "Queens Logic," "Flatliners," "Tremors," "The Big Picture," "Criminal Law," "She's Having a Baby," "Planes, Trains and Automobiles," "White Water Summer," "Criminal Law," "Footloose," "Diner," "Only When I Laugh," "Friday the 13th," "National Lampoon's Animal House"

Honors he has received include: A Golden Globe Award, two Screen Actors Guild Awards, a Saturn Award

To call the cast of "Call the Midwife" a "family" is hardly an overstatement, as much of the cast has returned year after year to tell the many harrowing medical tales of the women in the community of Poplar. From attending to teenaged, geriatric and complicated pregnancies of all kinds, to other on-the-job duties such as caring for patients with sexually transmitted diseases, psychiatric illnesses and those who require emergency attention, there is hardly much time left for the women of Nonnatus House to have to any sort of personal life. Nevertheless, Season 14 sees plenty of out-of-office romance, protests and personal troubles for these hardworking women.

Returning to the screen for the series' 14th season are Judy Parfitt ("Ever After: A Cinderella Story," 1998), Rebecca Gethings ("The Thick of It") and Jenny Agutter ("An American Werewolf in London," 1981) as Sisters Monica Joan, Veronica and Julianne, respectively; Linda Bassett ("Kinky Boots," 2005) as Nurse Crane; Laura Main ("Murder City") as Shelagh Turner; Helen George ("The Three Musketeers," 2011) as Trixie Aylward; Megan Cusack ("The Cherry Orchard," 2020), who is scheduled to leave before Season 15, and emerging talent Francesca Fullilove as Nancy and Colette Corrigan. Also returning are Cliff Parisi ("From Hell," 2001) and Annabelle Apsion ("Lolita," 1997) as Fred and Violet Buckle, alongside Stephen McGann ("Emmerdale Farm") as Dr. Turner and Georgie Glen ("Waterloo Road") as Miss Higgins. Andrea Irvine ("Red Rock"), meanwhile, joins the cast as Esther Noble.

Likewise, Trinidadian-born midwife Joyce Highland (Renee Bailey, "Rebel Cheer Squad: A Get Even Series"), who joined the cast of characters last season as a midwifery pupil and is now a full-fledged English nurse, returns to the cast alongside this season's newest member: nun and midwife Sister Catherine, a nun in training played by Molly Wevers ("The Rig").
