Purcell Elementary CRISIS

Pre-K through first grade back in class Wednesday

The educational detour from in-person classes to virtual learning was blessedly brief Monday for all but second graders at Purcell Elementary School. The district announced on social media late Sunday that the school would be closed until October 26 due to "COVID-related issues."

But by Monday afternoon, superintendent Dr. Sheli McAdoo, after conferring with the McClain County Health Department, was able to report youngsters in pre-kindergarten through first grade would be back in class starting Wednesday.

The decision to close the school and implement distance learning for the students wasn't

Volunteers in the pandemic

Bringing religion, hope, encouragement to prisoners

In a normal year, this is the time the Rev. Ron Lindsey would be busily planning a dinner to honor his volunteers at Lexington Assessment & Reception Center.

But nothing in 2020 is normal — including recognition for non-Department of Corrections people who make a difference in the lives of those incarcerated.

Lindsey, LARC chaplain and head of religious and volunteer services, announced the recipients of LARC Volunteer of the Year and Volunteer Organization of the Year in an email last week.

The Volunteer of the Year is Wendell Holland.

The certificate of appreciation cites Holland for "extraordinary service, dedication and significant contribution to the Oklahoma Department of Corrections at LARC."

No Options: Uncontested races cost Oklahomans a key vote

Trevor Brown Oklahoma Watch

There will be something missing on the ballot when thousands of Oklahomans living near the southwestern corner of the state vote this fall.

Residents in a large swatch of land covering most of Tillman and Comanche counties won't be voting for any state legislative candidates.

Without a single vote needing to be cast in either the primary or upcoming general election, their state House and Senate races were decided months ago. No one from any party challenged the two sitting incumbents, both Republicans, in those seats.

Although most in the state will see at least one legislative race on their general election ballot, it won't be unusual for many to miss out on voting on at least one of their legislative representatives this year.

With 50 entirely uncontested state House or Senate district races — and 22 that were decided after the primary season (where only candidates from a single party filed for a seat) — nearly 60 percent of the 126 legislative seats up for election this year have already been decided.

That total is more than the combined number of uncontested legislative races during the 2018 and 2016 election cycles.

Jan Largent, president of the nonpartisan League of Women Voters of Oklahoma, said it is "discouraging" that the state evidently took a step backward in fielding competitive races that could boost turnout and further engage voters in the democratic process.

“As we know, if races aren’t competitive and there’s no race for voters to even decide, candidates won’t have to work as hard for their constituents,” she said. “It really is a problem.”

Oklahoma is not alone with this issue, but is among the states that struggle the most with fielding contested races.

A recent report from Ballotpedia, a nonprofit organization that tracks elections across the country, found that Oklahoma has the fifth highest percentage of races without two challengers from major parties among the 44 states that have legislative elections. Massachusetts, where 80 percent lack major party competition, has the highest percentage.

What’s Driving the Lack of Contested Races?

An Oklahoma Watch review of candidate filings found that Republicans fielded at least one candidate in 95 of the 126 legislative races this year. Democrats fielded at least one candidate in only 55 races.

Oklahoma Democratic Party Chairwoman Alicia Andrews said she believes the COVID-19 pandemic was a leading cause.

As the national crisis was still emerging during the early April filing period, she said concerns about campaigning during an unprecedented pandemic ended up causing many candidates to cancel or postpone plans to run.

“For a lot of folks it can be challenging navigating how to run for election, especially for the first time candidates,” she said. “Over the past year we had been talking with a bunch of folks about the importance of door knocking and going to events, and then all of sudden they couldn’t do things like that.”

During our candidate recruitment efforts over the last year, we would always talk about the importance of knocking doors and going to events,” she said.

In a deeply Republican state, with more than a million registered Republicans and fewer than 740,000 registered Democrats according to the latest stats, Democrats have long struggled to field candidates in large parts of the state, particularly rural areas where the party divide favors Republicans even more.

One of the Democratic party’s largest showings, however, came during the 2018 election cycle. That year’s historic teacher walkout and the fight for K-12 funding was a catalyst that spurred several educators, education advocates and other political newcomers to file for office in a record-setting filing period.

Many of those candidates ran as Democrats as the party ended up fielding candidates in 106 of the 125 House or Senate contests up for grabs that year.

Republicans fielded more candidates then (at least one candidate in 110 of the races), but the number of Democrats vying for races was still much higher than this year.

Andrews said she believes 2022 will bring Democratic candidate filings even or above the 2018 numbers. Even in Republican strongholds, she said it’s still her goal to field as many qualified candidates as possible.

“We know there are going to be longshots out there, but sometimes you have to run two or three times to build up the support to actually win,” she said. “I also believe the saying, ‘absolute power corrupts absolutely,’ so we don’t want to give (incumbent Republicans) a free pass.”

David McClain, chairman of the Oklahoma Republican Party, said he didn’t think COVID-19 played much of a role in dissuading Republican candidates from running for election this year.

With at least one GOP candidate running in about 75 percent of the legislative races, he said this shows that Republican support in the state remains strong.

“I think with the president at the top of the ticket and with the recent restructuring of the party, we are just seeing a lot of interest right now,” he said.

McClain added that any state party leader hopes to field candidates in as many districts as possible. But he said he wants the party to be strategic and prioritize races where a possible win is at least realistic.

“You have to put resources where you feel that victory lies,” he said. “We are very guarded over our incumbents and our nominees, so you want it where you can put the right resources after the primary.”

Years Without a Race

But for some residents, this has become a yearly tradition. Oklahoma Watch’s review of legislative filings since 2014 shows that of the 101 House seats, which are all up for election every two years, 40 House districts were decided without a vote in at least two of the last four election cycles.

This includes 13 districts (11 currently held by Republicans) that haven’t had a contested race in three of the last four cycles and one district (currently held by Minority Floor Leader Emily Virgin, D-Norman) that hasn’t had a contested race in six years.

Races have been more competitive in the state Senate, where lawmakers serve four-year terms and represent almost twice as many constituents than their House colleagues.

There are eight uncontested Senate races that were decided without any votes needing to be cast in either the primary or general contest this year. That is up from four races in 2018 and zero uncontested races in 2016. But it is fewer than the nine uncontested races in 2014.

Largent, with the League of Women Voters, said residents in these areas are at risk of being left out of the political process.

“We think it’s positive that everyone should have an opponent because it forces the incumbent to communicate more with the voters,” she said. “And if they are not campaigning, it’s not going to help educate and engage voters.”

Welcome back to Red River?

As if Saturday's 2020 edition of the Red River Rivalry wasn't weird enough with no one at the Texas State Fair and only 24,000 in the stands that holds a smidgen over 96K but the announcers kept saying we were in Red River.

If I didn't know the stadium and had not been there some 45 times, I would have guessed we were playing in New Mexico.

Fox Sports personalities Gus Johnson on the play-by-play and Joel Klatt on the color analysis job weren't the most unbiased duo I've heard.

But when they kept welcoming me back to Red River, I wanted to unpack my snow skis.

I wanted to hear what they had to say about, "Big Sam" after he threw the game losing interception, only his second interception thrown in his five appearances in the storied series.

But the noise level in our TV room didn't allow me to hear what they had to say.

No problem I thought, I'd just run the tape back to the end and hear how they took the bad news for the Longhorns.

But alas, due to the five hour game, the tape quit taping in Texas' third overtime possession.

I wonder how they took the loss. My guess is they took it pretty hard by the way they were calling the game.

Instead of saying welcome back to Red River they might have said Fair Park.

That would have been quite a bit more accurate.

In all fairness, the Cotton Bowl is just a mere 10 hours and 44 minutes west of Red River, N.M.

Pandemic hair

The pain of this malady weighs heavy on our heads

In case you didn't know, pandemic hair is real.

I know. I've grown quite the head of it since my last haircut on Dec. 12, 2019.

Oh, I had plans back then of keeping to a regular haircut schedule.

In fact, before I left the salon that day, I scheduled my next haircut – on March 17.

Well, that didn't happen thanks to COVID-19 closures.

And though the salon was among businesses allowed to reopen in the summer, I wasn't comfortable with the idea of potentially risking my health for a haircut.

My hair is now a few inches past my shoulders and most often I wear it pulled back.

Bill is braver, or more desperate.

He's had one or two haircuts

MUCH ADO

Jeanne Grimes

since the pandemic started. But about of pneumonia, bronchitis and strep throat caused him to miss his latest appointment a few weeks ago.

He is getting more shaggy by the day, but turns down all my offers to shorten his locks with a snip here, a few clips there.

He doesn't care that all haircut mistakes grow out eventually.

The other evening I told him I thought his hair was almost long enough that I could give him a man bun.

Or in keeping with his Native American lineage, perhaps a nice braid.

I was joking. But he didn't laugh.

Then I shared this tidbit. With pandemic hair rampant among men, the mullet was making a comeback.

Who knew that one day Mike Gundy and Joe Exotic would turn out to be style setters?

The look he gave me when I shared this defies description.

Just more proof that pandemic hair is real and so is the suffering that goes with it.

NEWS FROM CAPITOL HILL

Can't trust communist China

Congressman Tom Cole

No country has been spared from the repercussions of China's coronavirus missteps and cover-up that accelerated the current global pandemic. However, the coronavirus crisis is not the first time the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) has demonstrated it is an untrustworthy competitor.

For over four decades, the U.S. diplomatic strategy regarding China was based on the belief that by engaging the CCP, China would become more western-like and evolve into a responsible player in the community of nations.

Instead, China views western values as an existential threat and actively works to weaken the United States' alliance system and reject key principles of international law. Unfortunately, China is moving ahead using its financial and military power to shape a world in which it is the leading global power.

There is increasing recognition that relations with China are strategically, economically and ideologically competitive. Indeed, there are fewer areas of cooperation than most had thought, and many more areas of intense competition.

During President Trump's first year in office, the U.S. officially declared China a major strategic competitor.

In fact, the December 2017 National Security Strategy plainly described China as a "revisionist" power that "seeks to displace the United States in the Indo-Pacific region, expand the reaches of its state-driven economic model, and reorder the region in its favor."

There is no doubt that the CCP is now angling for greater power and recognition in the world order and with freedom-threatening motives, which makes it even more urgent for the United States to take serious and coordinated steps to counter this competitive, security and ideological threat.

In response to this threat, I was very encouraged by the recommendations recently put forward by the China Task Force (CTF) to hold China accountable and strengthen America's national and economic security.

Led by House Foreign Affairs Ranking Member Michael McCaul, the select panel of lawmakers in the U.S. House of Representatives spent months participating in numerous briefings and hearings with key experts.

Before drawing conclusions and outlining a path forward to keep China accountable, their work included conversations with more than 130 leaders – including current and former Administration officials, ambassadors, business executives and other relevant experts.

The resulting CTF Report published recently not only detailed their extensive work but also provided 82 key findings, along with more than 400 policy recommendations to protect U.S. interests from the growing China threat.

The CTF Report focuses on six important pillars: ideological competition, supply chain security, national security, technology, economics and energy and competitiveness.

It's worth noting that, although Democrats declined to participate in the panel's work, many of their recommendations actually reflect bipartisan legislation already introduced or passed in the House or Senate.

Perhaps most alarming this year, the coronavirus pandemic exposed vulnerabilities in our supply chains, which have become heavily entwined with and reliant on China.

To combat and loosen our dependence on China, the CTF recommended commonsense steps to boost American production of goods and services. This would include providing tax incentives for drug and

Our Views

Epic failure

Epic Charter Schools didn't pass the smell test to us quite some time ago.

According to the Oklahoma State Auditor and Inspector's Office, turns out, they stink.

Oklahoma's elected officials appropriated millions of dollars to the charter school that could have gone to the state's public schools.

With funding for education and teacher pay already issues that the Oklahoma Legislature has no answer for, what in the world are they doing appropriating that kind of money for basically a private school?

Among the allegations against Epic are illegally transferring $203,000 of our money to a California charter school.

The auditor said Epic's founders, Ben Harris and David Chaney, own a private company that helps manage the charter school.

The company receives 10 percent of the school's revenue as a management fee.

Oklahoma public schools with enrollments of over 1,500 cannot spend more than five percent of funds on administrators.

State Schools Superintendent Joy Hofmeister said the auditor's findings are "very significant and alarming".

If we were an Oklahoma educator we would be more than alarmed; more like outraged.

It's high time Epic repay the $11.2 million to put back in the coffers of Oklahoma's public schools.

MOVIES WITH DAVE

By David Stull

I don't have time for much of a preamble this time around.

This week I saw a romantic teen comedy with an explosive twist, and a thriller about two parents who are forced to cover up a murder committed by their own teenage daughter.

So without further ado, let's get straight to the reviews.

First up is "Spontaneous."

When students in their high school inexplicably start to explode, seniors Mara (Katherine Langford) and Dylan (Charlie Plummer) struggle to survive in a world where each moment may be their last.

As an unexpected romance blossoms between them, they soon discover that when tomorrow is no longer promised, they can finally start living for today.

That's quite a premise isn't it? In a lot of ways this film feels very much like many other teen comedies.

You know, something like "Easy A" or "The Edge of Seventeen" where the main character is a little more self-aware and a little more cynical about the world around them.

But then you add in a romance, and the dark twist of the teenagers randomly exploding, not like a bomb, but like an overfilled water balloon, and you've got something a bit more unique. Or at least something I've seen a lot less of.

A satirical teen romantic comedy which is also a horror movie.

I suppose "Zombieland" could also fit this category as well. It certainly has similar genre elements. You know, comedy, horror, romance. The characters there aren't quite teenagers, but it's still a coming of age story as well.

To me though, the horror aspect of "Zombieland" always seemed much more overshadowed by the comedy. This doesn't make the movie bad of course. I enjoyed the heck out of it.

But while there's plenty of horror elements in "Zombieland," including zombies and a whole heap of gratuitous violence, I rarely felt the tension or even shock that usually accompanies horror.

This is where "Spontaneous" truly shines. Because not only is the film a genuinely funny comedy and a sweet romance, it's also a horror movie that'll genuinely leave you stunned and maybe even a little disturbed at times.

It all starts out fairly normal, at least for the first few seconds.

It's just another ordinary day at Covington High School. Mara's and her classmates are disinterestedly listening to their precalculus teacher drone on about his lesson, until suddenly without warning the girl right in front of Mara explodes just off camera, covering the entire classroom in red.

Naturally, this freaks everyone the heck out.

The school is temporarily

Please see Cole, page 5A

Please see Dave, page 5A

evacuated, all the students who were in the room are taken to the local police precinct for questioning, but are allowed to leave later that night.

The next day people begin to mourn, there's a funeral, and the girl's fellow classmates make a makeshift memorial out of her locker.

Eventually though, people begin to get over the shock of the girl's death and slowly start moving on.

Then another student explodes. And the panic sets in. In the midst of all this horror, Mara meets Dylan.

Well, they knew of each other before all this started to happen. They are classmates after all. But facing the potential of imminent and unexpected death has a way of motivating people to be a bit more bold.

And I have to say right up front, Katherine Langford and Charlie Plummer are absolutely adorable together.

The two of them have such an authentic chemistry together. Some of my favorite scenes involved just the two of them hanging out, enjoying each other's company.

Sure, Dylan is a little awkward at times, but he's a teenage boy. Awkwardness is the name of the game when you're that age.

Through all this emotional pain and terror of wondering who might be next, it's heartwarming to see these two find some happiness and even some laughs occasionally.

Speaking of humor, the comedy here is very much gallows humor. You know, the kind of jokes people make when they think they might be facing an early grave.

These are not students gleefully mocking the deaths of their classmates. Mara and Dylan are just trying the best they can to cope with all the madness.

Honestly, it feels like a fairly realistic reaction to watching a bunch of people die right in front of them. You can either cry yourself to sleep, curl into the fetal position and enter a catonic state, or you can try to find the humor in the situation, dark as it may seem.

For its part, the writing here is also chock full of comedic callbacks, and lines of dialogue are often repeated to hilarious effect.

There's so many genuinely funny lines here, which is a little surprising considering how dark the story gets.

Still, despite what would seem like a film filled with themes and elements which are seemingly at odds with each other, it all seamlessly comes together in a package that somehow doesn't result in an experience that feels like completely tonal whiplash.

That right there is an accomplishment on its own.

This is not only accomplished due to some really good writing, but also a fantastic performance from the film's star Katherine Langford.

Much like her contemporaries, Emma Stone in "Easy A" or Hailee Steinfeld in "The Edge of Seventeen," Langford's down-to-earth and relatable character holds this story together and helps make this movie the emotional a-bomb that it is.

This is a narrative that could have easily come across as heartless and cruel with just one misstep, but everyone involved managed to narrowly navigate this minefield and create something truly special.

Look, I'm not gonna say this film is for everyone.

If blood makes you squeamish, you obviously aren't going to have the best time with this movie.

But if you can manage to stomach the gore, and don't mind your comedies being on the darker side, there is an excellent experience to be had here.

One that easily ranks this movie as one of my favorite films of the year.

"Spontaneous" is rated R and is available to rent for $9.99 or purchase for $14.99 on video-on-demand.

The other movie this week is "The Lie."

While on their way to a ballet class out of town, a father (Peter Sarsgaard) and his daughter Kayla (Joey King) spot the girl's best friend on the side of the road at a lonely bus stop.

But when they stop to offer the friend a ride, their good intentions soon turn tragic as Kayla's father and mother (Mireille Enos) are forced to deal with the consequences of their teenage daughter's lethal mistake.

It truly is remarkable seeing the number of films Blumhouse Productions comes out with year after year.

But that's just the model which has made Jason Blum's production company the horror juggernaut it is today.

Beginning with "Paranormal Activity," a found-footage horror movie produced on a shoestring budget, Blum has taken the "throw everything at the wall to see if it sticks" approach to movie making.

Basically, make as many movies as you can, for as cheap as possible, and hope at least a few of them turn out to be hits. This is philosophy which has worked out quite well for Blum over the past decade.

Naturally, this has resulted in a number of duds over the years, but his company has also made incredible hits, even an Oscar winning film in the case of "Get Out," and has helped transform the modern horror landscape into what it is today.

Of course these days, in the era of COVID, no movie studio is able to rely on theaters to make anything resembling a profit. So Blum did the sensible thing and made a deal to release some of their films straight to streaming.

In this case, Blumhouse partnered with Amazon to release eight films straight to Prime Video, four of which are scheduled to come out this month.

This is one of those films. So what kind of Blum movie is "The Lie?" Does it stick to the proverbial wall, or does it fall flat like so many of their films?

Well, I wish I could say I enjoyed this movie, but that'd be a lie.

Sorry, I couldn't resist making a joke at the expense of the movie's title.

I suppose on the surface I don't hate the concept.

Two separated parents forced to come together because their teenage daughter killed someone? That's a pretty intense premise.

Both mom and dad are forced to lie to everyone, including the victim's father, and before they know it things quickly begin to spiral out of control.

It's a case study in just how far a parent would go to protect their child.

If only their kid wasn't such an insufferable, obvious, and outright moronic teenage girl.

Kayla is just so frustrating as a character. Some of this is due to Joey King's grating performance, but the majority of it is how poorly her character was written. Especially for a 15-year-old.

As far as I can tell, Kayla seems to have the emotional maturity and mood swings of a toddler.

Kayla straight up murders someone, and then after crying a little she just goes on with her life.

Meanwhile her parents are in complete crisis, yet she seems completely oblivious to that fact and doesn't have a care in the world.

I could have chalked it up to Kayla just being a cold blooded sociopath if the story had decided to go in that direction. Her character would have at least made some sense, though she'd still be incredibly annoying.

But they didn't and she isn't. She's just a regular teenager who can't seem to grasp just how terrible her situation is.

Her parents are panicking, desperate to do anything to keep their little girl safe, but all Kayla wants to do is act like a playful seven-year-old.

This is where I think the decision to cast Joey King as Kayla went most awry.

If Kayla was actually played by a younger actress, maybe someone under 10, her predicament might be a little more believable.

I could buy a little kid not quite grasping the seriousness of killing someone. But a 15-year-old? I just can't do it.

Of course this aggravating story can only end in the dumbest way possible, as each character seems to quickly lose all sense and they all become complete and total morons.

In the end it's impossible to feel sympathy for anyone in this family based on how guilty and idiotic they constantly act.

Then, just when you think the movie can't get anymore dumb, the film throws you one last curveball, leading to an ending so frustrating I nearly wanted to put my face through the closest wall.

I think the final note I wrote down about this movie right before it ended sums up my feelings about it most succinctly.

"Ugggggh." That right there is the experience of watching this film in a nutshell. Save yourself the trouble, not to mention all the frustration, and skip this one. "The Lie" is rated R and is available to stream on Amazon Prime Video.

No on 805

Dear Editor:

Protect our community by voting no on SQ 805. Our rural community means a lot to me. I raised my children here, my grandchildren go to school and play here, I worship here and some of my dearest friends live here. The safety of my family, friends and neighbors in rural Oklahoma is so important to me. That's why I'm voting no on State Question 805 on Nov. 3 and I'm urging you to do the same.

If passed, SQ 805 will amend the Oklahoma Constitution to prevent a person's former non-violent felony convictions from being used to enhance his or her current sentence for a non-violent felony conviction. Essentially, the measure will forever treat criminals convicted of non-violent felonies as first-time offenders by banning the use of enhanced sentencing for repeat offenses.

In rural Oklahoma, especially as a farmer and rancher, I'm concerned with the real possibility that someone who comes on my farm and steals animals or equipment will be able to do the same to my neighbors or friends. If SQ 805 passes, a cattle rustler who is convicted for the fifth time will be punished as if it's his or her first time. And that's no OK with me.

Though the state question may have good intentions, it could put the safety and security of our rural community in jeopardy for decades to come. I fully believe in giving people second chances, but a person with a repeated pattern of criminal activity must be punished accordingly.

Let's stand together and use our voices to protect the rural way of life in Oklahoma. When you cast your ballot this November, I hope you'll join me in voting no on State Question 805.

Sincerely,

Johnny Taylor endorsed by Bruce Key, Gregg Dowdle, Steve Mainord, Mike Leverett and all farmers and ranchers in McClain County.

medical supply research and development and creating grant programs to encourage domestic production of important technologies.

The CTF Report also outlined steps to strengthen our national defense in response to China's military capacity and force improvements in recent years. This would include stopping material support of China's military industrial base companies, enhancing counterintelligence capabilities and focusing more on U.S. military protection of space capabilities and carrying out space exploration goals.

Finally, the CTF Report rightly raises the alarm about the very real cyber security risks posed by China. To identify and counter bad actors in Chinese technology, the CTF recommended strengthening cooperation between our friends and allies abroad.

This would include imposing sanctions on CCP-connected telecommunications companies, especially those engaged in economic or industrial spying, and any entity attempting to hack and steal our intellectual property. Considering that China has already tried to steal U.S. research into a COVID-19 vaccine, this is an incredibly urgent matter.

Certainly, CTF's recommendations rely on America's own ability and capacity to compete with China. That must include long-term investments and some institutional reforms.

According to the CTF Report, this should include doubling the funding of basic science and technology research over the next 10 years, boosting funding and support for STEM education to improve our own workforce, strengthening the protection of research at our higher education institutions and mandating annual reports of all Chinese donations received by colleges and universities.

As the nearly 150-page CTF Report reveals, the China problem isn't a small or easy problem to solve. It will take hard work as well as shared determination and resolve across the Capitol and in the White House to keep China accountable, protect U.S. interests and preserve freedom.

Remember, because of China's dishonesty, irresponsibility and lack of transparency with what they knew and when about coronavirus, the whole world needlessly suffered and is still suffering. More than a million lives have been lost to date, and many economies are barely hanging on. We cannot wait until the next crisis to get serious.

Homegrown garnishes can make meals special

By Melinda Myers

Make your meals just a bit more special with homegrown garnishes. You invest time and money growing, purchasing, and preparing quality ingredients.

But do not stop there. Add a nutritional and decorative flair as you plate your meal by adding a garnish of homegrown herbs.

Parsley is a traditional garnish that is usually left behind on the plate. But the dark green leaves should not be ignored. This herb is high in Vitamin C and A, has cancer and inflammatory disease fighting qualities, and promotes heart health. A perfect fit for your healthful eating goals.

Although the curly varieties add texture to your plantings and plate, you and your guests may find the milder flavor of the flat leafed variety more palatable. All this and it helps freshen your breath too.

A sprig of mint looks good next to or on top of most desserts. Its cool flavor will help settle your stomach – an asset when we overindulge.

Like parsley, it is high in Vitamin C and A and helps in the fight against cancer and inflammatory diseases. In addition, it relieves breathing problems.

And the best part; both are easy to grow right in your kitchen window.

Start by purchasing healthy plants from your local garden center or the produce section of your grocery store.

Plant them in separate containers or together with other herbs in a larger pot. Either way, make sure the container has drainage holes and a saucer to protect the windowsill or furniture it sits upon.

Gently loosen any tangled or girdling roots before planting your herbs in a well-drained quality potting mix. Plant them at the same depth they were growing in their original pots.

Grow these and other herbs in a sunny window. Add a grow light to boost productivity or grow your garden in lower light locations. New LED plant lights are now more affordable and use less energy.

Water the soil thoroughly after planting and whenever it is slightly dry. Be sure to pour off any excess water that collects in the saucer to avoid root rot.

Another option is to add pebbles to the saucer, elevating the container above any excess water that remains.

Use kitchen shears or pruners to harvest the herbs. Cut mint just above a set of leaves and parsley at the base of the stem. Trim the sprigs as needed to dress up your holiday meals.

Your guests will be thrilled and more likely to take a bite of these healthful garnishes when they discover you grew them yourself.

Grow garlic this fall for flavorful meals and health benefits

By Melinda Myers

Add a bit of flavor and health benefits to your main course with some homegrown garlic. This vegetable has been used for thousands of years as both food and medicine.

Today it is credited with fighting heart disease, lowering blood pressure and cholesterol, and boosting the immune system while fighting cancer.

Grow garlic in a well-drained soil and full sun. Plant cloves in fall about six weeks before the ground freezes in cold climates and early winter in warmer regions.

Garlic needs six to eight weeks of cool temperatures below 40 degrees for the shoot and bulb to develop. The leaves will form during cool, short days then slows as bulb growth begins when the days are warmer and longer.

Plant individual cloves with the pointed side up and the base of the clove two to three inches below the soil surface. Space cloves six inches apart in rows 12 to 14 inches apart or more depending on the variety.

Mulch the soil with weed-free straw after the ground freezes in regions with cold winters. This provides added insulation and helps prevent frost heaving that occurs when temperatures fluctuate, causing soil to alternately freeze, thaw and shift throughout the winter.

Water thoroughly and often enough to keep the soil evenly moist during active growth. Inconsistent moisture during the growing season results in misshapen bulbs.

Mulch the soil with shredded leaves, evergreen needles, or other organic matter to conserve moisture, suppress weeds, and improve the soil as it decomposes.

Double your garlic harvest by using the curly Q stems, called scapes, in cooking and flower arrangements. Watch for these curled stems about a month after the spring leaves appear.

Remove the scape soon after the swollen part appears at the tip of the stem. Cut or break the scape off just below the swollen area.

All parts are edible and can be used fresh or cooked just like garlic. You will not only enjoy the mild flavor but removing the scapes helps increase the size of the garlic bulbs.

Harvest garlic when about one third, but less than one half of the leaves turn brown. Start by digging one plant and checking the garlic for maturity.

Cloves should be plump and fill the skin. Immature garlic does not store well while over-mature bulbs are subject to disease.

Cure garlic for three to four weeks in a warm, well-ventilated location. Once dried, remove the tops and store in a cool, moderately humid location with good air circulation and out of direct sunlight. Properly harvested and cured garlic will last for up to eight months.

So, plant some garlic this fall and add flavor and health benefits to your meals.

OFE seeking nominations for 2020 Academic All-State Scholars

The Oklahoma Foundation for Excellence, a nonprofit organization that recognizes and encourages academic excellence in Oklahoma's public schools, is seeking nominations for its 2021 Academic All-State Awards.

Scholarships totaling $100,000 will be presented at the foundation's 35th annual Academic Awards Banquet on May 15, 2021, at the Cox Business Convention Center in Tulsa.

In addition, the foundation will recognize five innovative public school educators who were selected in 2020 as Medal for Excellence winners but were unable to be honored last spring due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The Academic Awards Banquet, which has been described as the "Academy Awards for public education in Oklahoma," is typically attended by nearly 1,000 guests and is broadcast statewide on public television.

"The Oklahoma Foundation for Excellence Academic Awards Program is the Oklahoma's premiere awards program honoring academic achievement, innovation and leadership among students and educators in our public schools," said Executive Director Emily Stratton. "By working together to give outstanding students and educators the recognition they deserve, we send a strong message to our state and to the nation that Oklahomans value academic excellence."

Academic All-State Award nominations are being accepted through an online portal at www.ofe.org. The award honors 100 public high school seniors with a $1,000 merit-based scholarship.

To qualify, students must meet at least one of the following requirements: a composite ACT score of at least 30; a combined SAT evidence-based reading & writing and math score of at least 1370; or be selected as a semi-finalist for a National Merit, National Achievement or National Hispanic Scholarship.

Eligibility must be verified by the district superintendent or high school principal. Academic All-State nominations must be submitted by 5 p.m. Thursday, December 3.

The foundation will not be doing a selection process for Medal for Excellence Awards for educators this year so that it may honor the 2020 Medal winners, whose recognition was postponed due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Academic All-State Award recipients are chosen by an independent selection committee, chaired by retired Tulsa attorney Teresa B. Adwan, and comprised of business, education and civic leaders, as well as former Academic All-Staters and Medal for Excellence winners.

Since 1987, the Oklahoma Foundation for Excellence has awarded more than $5 million in academic awards and scholarships.

For more information, visit the foundation's website at www.ofe.org or call (405) 236-0006.

Hello again neighbors. Did you catch the OU-Texas game on Saturday? Whew! I stood three feet from my television screen for the last three overtimes, doing my best to help the good guys beat the Longhorns.

I told my wife earlier in the day that I would help her decorate the house and yard for Halloween as soon as the game was over. By the time the Sooners finally won, she almost had everything done. Sorry honey, not my fault. Boomer Sooner!

STATE QUESTION ANALYSIS

Two state questions will appear on the November 3 general election ballot. State Question 805 was placed on the ballot by gathering signatures from citizens; State Question 814 was referred to a vote of the people by the Oklahoma Legislature. Each question is reprinted here as it will appear on the ballot followed by a brief summary.

STATE QUESTION NO. 805 INITIATIVE PETITION NO. 421

This measure seeks to add a new Article II-A to the Oklahoma Constitution. This new Article excepts and does not apply to persons who have ever been convicted of a violent felony. It would prohibit the use of a former felony conviction to increase the statutorily allowable base range of punishment for a person subsequently convicted of a felony. Individuals who are currently incarcerated for felony sentences that were enhanced based on one or more former felony convictions, and whose sentences are greater than the maximum sentence that may currently be imposed for such felonies, may seek sentence modification in court. The new Article sets forth a detailed process for such sentence modification, including but not limited to requirements for a hearing, appointment of counsel for indigent petitioners, and notification of victims, and requires that the court impose a modified sentence no greater than the current maximum sentence which may be imposed on a person convicted of the same felony with no former felony convictions, and which results in no greater time served in prison than under the original sentence. It establishes an appeal procedure, provides an effective date, and contains a severability clause.

SHALL THE PROPOSAL BE APPROVED?
 FOR THE PROPOSAL - YES
 AGAINST THE PROPOSAL - NO

SUMMARY: State Question 805 will be on the Nov. 3 ballot after nearly 250,000 Oklahoma voters signed an initiative petition. It was billed as a "smart on crime" measure that could result in up to $186 million prison cost savings. The measure prohibits Oklahoma judges from using previous nonviolent felony convictions as a reason to increase prison sentences for defendants convicted of new nonviolent crimes. Current inmates who received enhanced sentences for nonviolent felony convictions could ask the court for sentence reductions. If approved, new guidelines require the court to impose a sentence no greater than the current maximum sentence given for a person with no former nonviolent felony convictions for the same crime. The Constitutional Amendment establishes a hearing process, appointment of counsel for indigents, notification of victims and an appeals procedure. Proponents say Oklahoma inmates convicted of property and drug crimes currently spend more than 70 percent more time behind bars than the national average. Opponents, including some law enforcement groups, anti-domestic violence advocates, and the state district attorneys association, say the measure is a misguided attempt to give repeat offenders multiple chances. In reality, they say, the measure is a get-out-of-jail card for career criminals who could return to their communities and commit more crimes. They say non-violent offenses could include domestic violence in the presence of a child, animal cruelty, home burglary, arson, DUI or soliciting sex from a minor using technology.

STATE QUESTION NO. 814 LEGISLATIVE REFERENDUM NO. 375

This measure seeks to amend Article 10, Section 40 of the Oklahoma Constitution (Section 40), which directs proceeds from the State's settlements with or judgments against tobacco companies. Currently, Section 40 directs 75% of proceeds to the Tobacco Settlement Endowment Trust Fund (TSET Fund), where earnings may only be used for tobacco prevention programs, cancer research, and other such programs to maintain or improve the health of Oklahomans. Meanwhile, the remaining 25% of proceeds are directed to a separate fund for the Legislature (Legislative Fund). The Legislature can also direct some of that 25% to the Attorney General.

This measure amends Section 40 to reduce the percentage of proceeds that go into the TSET Fund from 75% to 25%. As a result, the remaining 75% will go to the Legislative Fund and the Legislature may continue to direct a portion to the Attorney General. The measure would also restrict the use of the Legislative Fund. Section 40 currently states only that the Legislative Fund is subject to legislative appropriation. If this measure passes, money from the Legislative Fund must be used to get federal matching funds for Oklahoma's Medicaid Program.

SHALL THE PROPOSAL BE APPROVED?
 FOR THE PROPOSAL - YES
 AGAINST THE PROPOSAL - NO

SUMMARY: State Question 814, referred to voters by the state legislature, changes the amount of money directed to the state's Tobacco Settlement Endowment Trust (TSET Fund) from 75 percent of the annual payments to 25 percent. Currently TSET receives 75 percent of the annual payment and the remaining 25 percent is directed to the legislature and the Attorney General. Oklahoma voters created TSET to manage smoking cessation, cancer research, obesity and other healthy living programs from the 1998 master settlement agreement between tobacco companies and 46 states. Only earnings on the state's accumulated $1.3 billion fund are used each year. That amounts to between $70 million and $75 million payments to divide between TSET and the legislature. A yes vote on Nov. 3 would let lawmakers redirect TSET funds to pay for the current Medicaid program and the expanded program Oklahoma voters approved when they narrowly passed State Question 802 in June. If passed Nov. 3, the money from the Legislative portion of TSET would be used to get federal matching funds. Gov. Kevin Stitt, who opposed the Medicaid expansion, supports State Question 814 as a way to pay the state's portion of Medicaid costs. A Constitutional amendment is required to change the settlement proceeds formula as voters earmarked the funds in 2000 by approving SQ 692 by nearly 69 percent. Some health groups, such as the American Cancer Society's Cancer Action Network, oppose SQ 814 on the grounds that it diverts funding from programs that improve the health of all Oklahomans.

OSU EXTENSION News

There's a mouse in the house

Trisha Gedon
Extension Educator

They typically live near people throughout the year, but with cooler weather arriving, many mice are looking to move a little closer.

Mice scramble to locate shelter before winter hits, said Kevin Shelton, Oklahoma State University Extension associate specialist and coordinator of OSU's Pesticide Safety Education Program.

"The house mouse, also known as Mus musculus, primarily is nocturnal, but it isn't uncommon to see them during the daylight hours," Shelton said.

"They aren't welcome guests because they are a nuisance and will cause damage by chewing on wiring and drywall in a home. They also contaminate food, grain and other stored products. Damage is caused by chewing, as well as urine and fecal matter."

There are a few telltale signs of a mouse in the house, said Gina Peek, OSU Extension housing and consumer specialist.

"Mouse droppings are a good indication of an infestation and typically are found along runways or feeding areas. Also, tracks may be seen on dusty surfaces or shelves where flour may be stored," Peek said. "Consumers also may find gnaw marks on boxes or bags of food, on doors or other surfaces in the home. Keep an eye out for smudge or rub marks. Mice leave behind oil and dirt from their fur on frequently traveled routes."

Mice also can be heard running across upper surfaces of ceilings and climbing within walls. Also, watch for nests in attics, basements, storage sheds and garages.

Peek suggested a few simple steps for mouse control:

- Eliminate food and water sources.
- Household garbage should be removed from the house and placed in an outside bin with a secure lid.
- Pet owners should feed pets only what the animal can eat at one time.
- Store pet food in a container with a tight-fitting lid.
- Fix indoor and outdoor water leaks.
- Eliminate breeding and nesting sites.

- Store firewood away from the house and off the ground.
- Remove rubbish and trash from outside the home.
- Remove clutter inside the home.

Shelton said it is important to develop a control program to help cut down the mouse population.

"Focus first on reducing food sources, pest entry points and places where mice can take refuge. Consider traps as a last resort," he said. "They may seem rather 'old school,' but snap traps are an effective method of rodent control. Typically, mice have small territories, so traps must be placed in those areas in order to be effective. Trap placement and orientation are important, so be sure to read the package directions."

Live-catch traps also can be purchased commercially and baited with food or rodenticide, Shelton said. In addition, mice are nibblers, so it is best to put a little bait in several bait stations to increase consumption.

"I would suggest using several different kinds of bait until a preference is detected, then use that one until feeding stops," he said. "Always use an enclosed bait station and never place it where children or pets can access it."

Although commercially available, glue traps do not discriminate on what they catch, and can be a danger to animals that are not the intended target, Peek said.

"Animals that touch a glue trap immediately are caught and stuck to the board, which usually results in a slow death by starvation or suffocation," she said. "It's best to avoid using these traps."

Consumers have likely seen ultrasonic devices advertised as a method to repel mice. Although mice are timid and will run away from many sounds, they will get used to the ultrasonic devices in a day or two.

"Mice aren't protected by law and may be controlled using any pesticide registered by federal or state authorities for this purpose, or by mechanical methods," Shelton said.

"Before the cold weather hits, take some time to look around your home for areas that would attract mice and to seal up any openings that would provide access to your home," he concluded.

Racing Horseman Dee Raper Dies

We've lost another legend

Longtime Oklahoma horseman "Dee" Raper, 82, passed away Tuesday, September 1.

Born in Milburn, Okla., on Feb. 5, 1938, Thomas DeArmond "Dee" Raper, gave a lifetime of devotion to the Quarter Horse racing industry and Oklahoma.

He was always around horses and his journey into racing started with hauling horses. Raper purchased a farm in Yukon, Oklahoma where he began to immerse himself in a total involvement in the business of horse racing.

Working alongside his wife Betty, they moved the operation from Yukon to Lexington, Oklahoma in 1983 before relocating to Norman in 1992. Named after a lake near their Lexington farm, Belle Mere Farm has been a major influence for both Oklahoma racing and horse racing in general.

Dee and Betty began building relationships with many influential horsemen and they stood the legendary Easy Jet in 1985.

Raper became involved in the drive to make Oklahoma a pari-mutuel racing state, serving as the coordinator for the movement in Cleveland County. After years of hard work, the campaign to bring pari-mutuel horse racing to Oklahoma was approved in 1983. The first races with wagers took place the following year at Blue Ribbon Downs in Sallisaw, Okla.

Raper continued his involvement in the Oklahoma horse racing industry by serving as the president of the Oklahoma Quarter Horse Racing Association (OQHRA), for 14 years. As a leader for Oklahoma horsemen, he was influential in getting additional revenue streams going for racing in the state.

While the business of racing for Oklahoma improved, so did the success of Belle Mere Farm and their line of prominent stallions, led by Bully Bullion. The 1988 AQHA Racing Champion Aged Stallion, Bully Bullion earned over $225,000 in his career on the track and has been an extreme force at stud, siring champions on the track and in the arena and as a top broodmare sire.

Grade 1 winner Mr Eye Opener began his stallion career at Belle Mere in 1994. He became one of the industry's leading sires, producing a number of stakes horses including 2000 All American Futurity, champion Eyesa Special. Also one of the industry's top broodmare sires, Mr Eye Opener died at Belle Mere in 2018 at age of 28.

Dee and Betty's multiple stakes winner, Eye Yin You, is a direct product of the two aforementioned stallions. The homebred by Mr Eye Opener from the Bully Bullion mare Take After Me, pulled off an unprecedented racing feat at Remington Park. He is the only horse to win both the Remington Park Futurity and then the Remington Park Derby, achieving the illusive double in 2004 and 2005 respectively.

The Rapers also started the career of the young sire Freighttrain B. The stallion who stood his first three seasons at Belle Mere Farms has quickly become one of the industry's top stallions, including siring the morning-line favorite in this year's

All American Futurity (G1), Whistle Stop Café, at Ruidoso Downs.

Respected for his contributions to the sport beyond the boundaries of Oklahoma, Raper was honored by the AQHA in 2007 with the Gordon Crone Special Achievement Award. In 2010, Raper was inducted to the Oklahoma Quarter Horse Association Hall of Fame and in 2012 the Oklahoma Horse Racing Hall of Fame. Belle Mere Farm was inducted into the Oklahoma Quarter Horse Hall of Fame in 2019.

Services were held at Heritage Place, Oklahoma City, on September 24.

Mr. Raper is survived by wife, Betty; sons, Tommy Raper (Teresa) and Shawn Raper (Rip) Sisneros; daughter, Dawn Smith (James); grandson, Matt Raper and granddaughters, Rachel Ellis (Cale) and Rebecca Miller (Cory); and great-granddaughter, Scout.

A special tribute was given to Phyllis Norvell, devoted bookkeeper, employed with Dee and Betty for 38 years, and his caretakers, Angela and Blake Weaver.

Dee's legacy will continue.

On January 22, 1953, at First Baptist Church in Purcell, Alma married her best friend and life partner, Bill Huddleston. They made their home in Purcell where together they raised two children, son, Bill Jr. and daughter, Patti.

In 1969, Alma stepped out in faith and started her own business, Alma's Flowers. Throughout the years, now with more than 50 years of service, Alma served Purcell and the surrounding areas, sharing her gifts and talents, including serving as President of the Oklahoma Florists Association. Bill and Patti would later join her, all to build the family business, and her legacy continues today in her granddaughter, Amye.

When she wasn't working, Alma enjoyed traveling, and especially looked forward to trips with good friends, Doyle and Kay West. She was an avid sports fan, and rarely missed watching an OU football game.

Her greatest joy was her family and she was never happier than the day she became a grandmother and eventually great grandmother. Known as Mee-maw, Alma chased her grandbabies in all their activities and sporting events, and she was their biggest fan.

Alma was a true servant; a devoted Christian and a longtime and faithful member of the First Baptist Church in Purcell. She was a wonderful wife and mother, grandmother, great-grandmother, sister, aunt and friend. She will be dearly missed!

She was preceded in death by her husband, Bill Huddleston; her daughter, Patti Wilhoit; her parents, Lloyd Blackwell and Helen Blackwell Campbell; brother, Wyman Blackwell and sister, Elizabeth Jeffries.

Alma is survived by her son, Bill Huddleston Jr. and wife, Karen, of Muskogee; grandchildren, Brad Huddleston and wife, Lindsay, of Muskogee, Amye Jennings and husband, Jerry, of Purcell, Geoff Huddleston and wife, Branica, of Muskogee and Kerry Wilhoit and wife, Sharie, of Purcell; great-grandchildren, Karson, Brynley, Klaire, Karter, Burkely, Blaire and Gentry; sister, Betty Jordan of Lubbock, Texas, and a host of other family and friends.

Experts urge caution as COVID-19 haunts Halloween

In a year that's had its share of scary, Halloween 2020 offers a familiar fright: the risk of spreading the coronavirus. New CDC guidance on fall festivities lists door-to-door trick-or-treating, parking lot "trunk-or-treat" events and indoor costume parties as high-risk for coronavirus transmission.

According to experts at the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation, parents should take these recommendations to heart. "The CDC guidelines are rooted in the viral spread potential from children coming into repeated contact with high-touch surfaces — like bowls of candy or doorbells — as well as the lack of physical distancing that naturally occurs when trick-or-treating or attending parties," said OMRF physician-scientist Eliza Chakravarty, M.D. While serious illness related to the virus is rare in infected children, contact tracing studies show they play a role in community spread. "The risk of community transmission is bigger with a high viral load. Traditional Halloween activities could lead to a spike that sweeps through families and schools, affecting large numbers of at-risk individuals unknowingly," Chakravarty said. With cold and flu season upon us, we should all work diligently to stay healthy, added OMRF immunologist Hal Scofield, M.D., even if that means a change of plans. "Cold and flu season, allergies and Covid create a perfect storm," said Scofield, who also serves as associate chief of staff for research at the Oklahoma City VA. "So many early symptoms of these seasonal conditions are the same, and the only thing that rules out COVID-19 is a test. Rather than setting ourselves up for a fall of nasal swabs, we should do everything we can to avoid the sniffles." Still, the coronavirus needn't turn Halloween into a pumpkin. Like so many other celebrations adapted for 2020, it just requires innovation. "Let kids decorate Halloween-themed cloth masks," said Chakravarty. She also suggested alternatives like social media costume contests, family pumpkin-carving contests or spooky movie marathons.

Seneca-Cayuga Tribe doing its part to honor the warriors of the nation

Anna-Kate Weichel
Gaylord News

A military veteran kneels to the ground and bows his head to appreciate the stone that has been dedicated to his tribe. The veteran is being thanked, not just by this gift, but by the entire tribal community.

The Seneca-Cayuga Tribe, headquartered in Grove, is doing its part to honor the warriors of the nation.

The members of the tribe celebrate their veterans, said William Tarrant, cultural preservation director of the tribe. He said he grew up immersed in the Seneca-Cayuga culture and tribal ceremonies.

A stone monument honoring veterans was donated in 1999 by the Seneca-Cayuga Tribal Daycare. It was placed beneath the U.S. and tribal flags to emphasize that the veterans served their country and their community.

Bryan Wencil, a former candidate for a position on the tribe's grievance committee, said "I am a veteran and served honorably with pride."

Wencil said tribal members make a connection between serving in the military and the service their ancestors provided as hunters and warriors for their communities.

"Military service is a way of becoming a warrior," Tarrant said.

The men of the tribe in the early days hunted deer or elk used for food, clothing and shelter.

They used a bow and arrows or a spear, similar to the one that is etched on the stone, and also used them as weapons to protect their tribes.

The Seneca tribe originated from New York and Canada and migrated due to the Revolutionary War. They were then forcibly moved to Indian Territory as a result of the Indian Removal Act.

Over time, they kept moving due to readjustment of borders within the territory. By 1937, the tribes combined, and under the Indian Reorganization Act were recognized as the Seneca-Cayuga Tribe. Since then, the tribe has been located in Oklahoma.

"I regard our warriors and veterans with utmost respect and they should be treated with such," said Dillon Dougherty, whose cousin is a veteran. "They risk their lives for their people and not just anyone could do that."

Crisis:

an easy one, nor one taken lightly.

"I understand the burden it places on parents and I am truly sorry for the inconvenience," McAdoo said in a prepared statement.

As of last report, there were 35 active COVID-19 cases in Purcell. Included among the dozen new cases for the city were three elementary school staff and students.

Still, McAdoo explained it is the mandatory quarantines for family and friends of those diagnosed with COVID-19 that present more of a problem for schools than the low number of positive cases themselves.

The decision to partially reopen the elementary school was possible because of contact tracing conducted by the health department, the superintendent said.

In addition, the upcoming 4-day fall break weekend will lessen the impact of the hiatus on in-person learning for second graders.

The intermediate school, junior high and high schools are not affected, school officials reported.

McAdoo urged parents to continue to monitor their children's health at home with the self-assessment checklist.

"Do not send them to school if they do not feel well, have fever, have lost their sense of smell or taste, are coughing, have a headache or sore throat," she said. "These are all recognized symptoms of COVID-19."

"Safety is our number one priority for students and staff. Thank you for your cooperation and support as we navigate through the pandemic."

There are many options for free testing in the area. For more information on testing, call the McClain County Health Department at 527-6541.

McAdoo said the school will continue to provide breakfast and lunch for all second graders while their classes are closed.

Those meals may be picked up from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Elementary principal Cindy Stone echoed Dr. McAdoo's remarks.

"This is not fun but we knew it was possible," Mrs. Stone said. "But the good thing is we have a plan and will continue to provide meals."

"We are working diligently to make sure the kids have everything they need," she concluded.

For more information, email McAdoo at macdoos@purcellps.org or call her at 442-0099, Ext. 105. To reach elementary principal Cindy Stone, call 442-0099, Ext 205 or email her at stonec@purcellps.org.

What To Do if You Receive a Scam Email, Call or Text

Email or Text

If you suspect that an email or text you receive is a phishing attempt:

- Take a deep breath.

In most cases, it's perfectly safe to open a scam email or text. Most modern mail apps detect and block any code or malware from running when you open an email. The key is not to click links or download any attachments.

- Don't download any attachments.

Attachments may contain malware such as viruses, worms, or spyware.

- Don't click on links.

Links in phishing messages direct you to fraudulent websites.

- Don't reply.

Ignore any requests from the sender and do not call any phone numbers provided in the message.

Help fight scammers by reporting them.

- Forward emails to the Anti-Phishing Working Group at reportphishing@apwg.org.

Call

If you receive a phone call that seems to be a phishing attempt:

- Hang up or end the call.

Be aware that area codes and prefixes can be misleading. A phone number that looks local isn't a guarantee that it actually is.

- Don't respond to the caller's requests.

Never give personal information to the incoming caller. Financial institutions and legitimate companies will never call you to request your personal information.

Volunteers:

"visited the sick in the infirmary, sat with those who are terminal, read Scripture to them, prayed for and encouraged them with cheerfulness, with the firm belief that no inmate should die alone without knowing someone cares about them."

Recognized as LARC Volunteer Organization of the Year is Prison Fellowship, a nationwide program based in Lansdowne, Va.

The ordained Baptist minister said 34 inmates at LARC are enrolled in the Prison Fellowship Academy at LARC.

"But it has been shut down since March," he said.

Also, chapel services have been severely limited at the prison since March because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

In that void, Prison Fellowship has been a religious lifeline. The organization "sends us a whole variety of material to load and show on the Chapel Channel, which has been so helpful during the COVID crisis," Lindsey said.

That material includes church services from around the country, Christian movies, testimonials, encouraging messages and more.

Lindsey loads 16 to 20 "great programs" on the closed circuit channel and the shows are looped to replay numerous times over the span of two weeks.

Then the channel is updated with new material.

Lindsey said the Chapel Channel is available to any inmate with a television in his cell.

Volunteering with Prison Fellowship are Aaron Cosar of Midwest City and Carl and Karen Wooten of Oklahoma City.

Due to COVID-19, volunteer visits are on hold and regular chapel services are limited.

Occasional chapel services are scheduled one unit at a time. Restrictions include no more than 30 people in the chapel. Social distancing and masks are mandatory.

"So the Chapel Channel has been a huge help in providing religious services to inmates," Lindsey said.

Prison Fellowship also originated Angel Tree, a ministry to furnish Christmas presents to children whose parents are incarcerated.

In addition to the video feeds and encouragement "during this difficult year," Prison Fellowship has donated care packages of snacks and treats to all LARC inmates during "the worst times of the COVID-19 lockdown," according to the certificate of appreciation activity, nutrition, injury prevention, tobacco use prevention and oral health education.

Knowles said the focus at the intermediate school is physical activity and nutrition.

The teacher utilized $1,000 from HSOK to purchase a projector and large monitor for her P.E. classes.

The students in grades three through five are "super excited" when they come to the gymnasium now.

"They don't realize they are exercising," Knowles said, citing the result as a benefit of becoming a healthy school.

The board welcomed Kevin Andrews after voting unanimously for him to fill the vacancy created when Chelle McCaskill resigned her seat.

McCaskill was elected to a 5-year term in 2016.

The Office 1 seat will be back on the ballot in 2021. The board on Monday approved a resolution calling for an election.

Candidates will file December 7-9.

In her comments to the board, superintendent Dr. Sheli McAdoo praised school officials for their response after learning late Sunday of three COVID-19 cases involving second grade staff and students at the elementary school.

While other grades returned to in-person classes at the school on Wednesday, the second grade will continue virtual learning until October 26.

Those students will continue to receive breakfast and lunch, with pickup available from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The meals will be delivered daily to those virtual learning students whose parents don't have a way to pick up the food.

McAdoo also encouraged all residents to complete the 2020 census, which will close on October 31.

In a special presentation to the board, city council member Jay Tate urged the board to name the basketball court at Purcell High School for the late Lester Lane.

Lane, a standout player at Purcell High School, attended the University of Oklahoma where he was the last athlete to letter in three sports.

He went on to play professional basketball.

Lane suffered a fatal heart attack in 1973.

McAdoo said the district is "down significantly" in state aid. But she predicted the funding picture will rectify after the COVID-19 pandemic ends.

In other business, the board:

- approved utilizing a Chickasaw Nation grant to purchase 200 student Chromebooks and licenses for $51,250;
- approved the board meeting calendar for 2021;
- appointed administrators McAdoo, Cindy Stone, Jason Sanders, Jay Solomon, Jerry Swayze, Tina Swayze and Carol Testa as personnel evaluators;
- approved the district's Teacher Induction Program for first-year teachers – Sara Nichols, teacher, and Michelle Hall, mentor; Kayla Sweeney, teacher, and Stephanie Knowles, mentor; Taryn Johnston, teacher, and Samantha Marion, mentor, and Mackenzie Huffman, teacher, and Jacinda Carroll, mentor;
- approved Kristen Vick, Alen Misak, Steve Clary, Jack McNeely, Ray Samford, Mike Wilson and Jerry Swayze as the district's 2020-21 textbook committee;
- approved the $59,670.42 purchase of pre-K through second grade reading curriculum and online resources from McGraw-Hill; and
- approved the hiring of non-certified personnel, including Casandra Salinas, paraprofessional; Troy Bounds, bus driver; and Jazmyn Short, Angela Plier and Addison Stanton, Education Station assistants.

Senior quarterback Kody Kroth threw four touchdown passes and Purcell brushed aside Holdenville here last Friday night for the 2020 homecoming contest, 42-22.

The game really wasn't all that close since Holdenville left their starters in the entire game and threw over the top on Purcell second and third units and also kicked onsides in the waning minutes of the district contest.

At one point it was like Kroth was fishing and hit a school of hungry perch.

He was throwing touchdown passes about as fast as he could reel in fish.

When the dust had settled Kroth was 18-26 for 354 gaudy yards and four scores

Mojo Browning, who caught eight total balls for 209 yards, hauled in a pair of Kroth touchdown tosses one for a cross country 69 yards and the other from 17 yards out.

Creed Smith grabbed a 33 yard scoring strike from Kroth and also crashed into the end zone from one yard out giving him one rushing and receiving touchdowns. Smith finished with six catches for 87 yards.

Sam Wofford smashed the line for a five yard touchdown burst and junior Hayden Harp was on the receiving end of a 37 yard touchdown pass off the arm of Kroth with Purcell eventually building a 42-0 lead.

Purcell Head Coach Tracy Scott singled out the play on offense of Smith, Harp and Kroth.

"Kody threw the ball well and played well overall," Scott said. "Also, Payson Purcell did a good job of running the ball for us. Sophomore Jace Clary did a good job in the offensive line in his first start grading out at 98 percent before he got hurt."

Wofford was his usual standout self on defense leading the team with 13 tackles. Jakeb Pollard and sophomore Jose Ochoa both finished with 10 stops for the Dragons against the Wolverines.

Jaysen Shea and Johnny Marquez finished with four and six tackles each.

Washington Junior Kobe Scott stepped in front of CCS's second pass attempt of the night last Friday and took the intercepted pigskin 60 yards to the house, kick starting a 37-8 shellacking of the then No. 10 Royals.

Depending on the poll, Washington is ranked anywhere from No. 2 to No. 4 in Class 24 with their unblemished 6-0, 3-0 season record.

After senior Kaden DuBois' 27 yard field goal, Washington eventually stretched their first half lead to 24-zip after a pair of Emmitt Wilk touchdown runs of eight and 16 yards.

CCS put together a late second quarter scoring drive that garnered 99 of their 192 rushing yards leaving the score 24-8 at intermission.

They never scored again. But Washington did. Twice in the third period on a 16 yard scoring pass from Jaxon Hendrix to Kelton Schultz and a 36 yard Chase Allison scamper to pay dirt.

Allison finished the night with 13 carries for 84 yards.

"But they were tough yards," head coach Brad Beller said. "They (CCS) blitzed on every play bringing seven. It took us a little bit to get the run game going."

Beller said getting Wilk back from injury helped stabilize the offense, Beller said.

"He played both quarterback and slot. It was great having two quarterbacks with experience. That is a big deal for our offense."

Beller praised the play of sophomore Hendrix, who stepped in and stepped up when Wilk went down with an injury in the Lindsay game.

"Jaxon stays calm and collected. He's steady," Beller said "That's why he's so good and effective. He doesn't lose his cool. I'm really excited about the way he's played."

But Beller said early on when the run game wasn't exactly hitting on all cylinders it was the work of junior wide receiver Luke Hendrix that kept the Warriors afloat.

"Early on I felt like Luke Hendrix kept us going. He had three big receptions for 52 yards in the first half and all three were on key downs. He continues to make big time plays for us."

Defensively in the key district game, Beller credited his defensive secondary with making big play after big play so the Warriors could remain undefeated.

"Our secondary played really, really well," Beller said.

He was praising the play of Scott, who had the pick six, Luke Hendrix, Jaxon San-

Wayne back on the road

Travel to Dibble for Thursday game at 7 p.m.

JohnDennyMontgomery
The Purcell Register

Wayne hits the road today (Thursday) to Dibble after their homecoming date called in sick last week.

Healdton was forced to cancel their game against the Bulldogs due to COVID-19, forcing Wayne administrators to move homecoming coronation to 2:30 p.m. at D.S. Zack Powell Stadium last Friday.

Wayne will face a talented Dibble Demon squad at 7 p.m. this Thursday.

"Dibble is extremely athletic," Wayne head coach Brandon Sharp said. "Their running backs are the best group we've seen so far this season."

The coach said they line up in multiple offensive formations and their linemen do a good job up front blocking.

"They have athletic receivers and their coaches put them in positions to be successful."

Defensively the Demons

Sharp said the linebackers are good at filling their gaps.

"They will punish you when they get there," he said.

"They have a defensive end-outside linebacker type who is very active," Sharp said. "He's a good player, that's the bottom line. We'll have to block

Last season Dibble finished with a 9-3 record.

"It is going to be a challenge and this is the best team we've seen to this point," Sharp said. "Coach (Richard) Norman has them playing well right now."

Lose to Tishomingo 3-0 in State finals

JohnDennyMontgomery
The Purcell Register

The Washington Warriors battled to the final inning of the season before finally succumbing to the Tishomingo Indians (34-3) in a 3-0 loss at ASA Hall of Fame Stadium.

Still, silver is a pretty color and there are about 62 other teams in class 3A who would gladly trade spots with Washington.

In the finals sophomore Maggie Place pitched a shutout until the final inning. She struck out eight batters while only walking two. She gave up five hits.

Washington was never able to crack Tishomingo pitcher Grace Anderson, who threw a no-hitter against the Warriors while striking out 15 batters.

Washington defeated Pocola 5-0 in the semifinals to advance to the championship game.

Place struck out eight batters in the contest.

Kaydence Andrews was 2-2 at the plate while Mattie Richardson, Ellie Loveless and Abby Wood were all 2-3.

Washington breezed by Chisholm 19-1 in the opening round of the tournament - which was played at the Ballfields at FireLake in an effort to socially distance because of COVID-19.

Tinley Lucas was 3-4 with a home run and a triple. She knocked in four runs on the day.

Senior Emma Curry had five RBIs in the game and was 2-3 at the dish.

Washington ends a well-played season with a 37-6 record.

Purcell softball ends

Sandwiched around a 6-1 victory over Anadarko in last week's fast-pitch Regional Tournament at Lone Grove were a pair of losses to Newcastle.

The Racers pinned a 5-2 opening round loss on the Dragons limiting Purcell to four hits.

Sophomore Lauren Holmes led the offense going 2-3 including a sixth inning double.

Brook Fleming went 1-3 and Hannah Buchanan lined a double in three trips to the plate.

Newcastle pounded out 10 hits in the game.

The Dragons bounced back to post a 6-1 victory over Anadarko in an elimination game.

Buchanan swung the hot bat going 2-4 with a pair of RBIs.

Khia Tyler, Kaylee Stephens went 1-2 and Karson Jennings had a double in four at bats.

Purcell out-hit Anadarko 8-4.

The tournament continued on Friday when Newcastle put an end to the 2020 season posting an 8-2 loss on the Dragons.

Buchanan went 2-3 at the plate with Jennings, Fleming and Holmes all getting a hit.

Purcell had four costly errors and were out hit 7-5.

From page 1B

Dragons:

Purcell Head Coach Tracy Scott singled out the play of Wofford, Shea and Marquez.

"It's pretty much the same guys that are playing well, but Pollard and Ochoa both played pretty well," Scott said.

Overall, Scott was pretty pleased with his defensive performance since the Dragons built a 42-0 lead before calling off the dogs while Holdenville elected to leave their starters in the game.

"We played pretty well against them. They showed a lot of formations and we adjusted well and played pretty well," the coach said.

"We played pretty well overall but we're still making mistakes getting penalties where we don't need penalties. In a close game that's going to hurt us," Scott said. "We've got to clean those up in a hurry."

The Dragons will take a 2-4 and 1-2 record on the road with them tonight Thursday night when they take on the Ruf-Nex of Crooked Oak.

Crooked Oak is 0-2 on the season having only played a pair of games due to COVID issues.

The Ruf-Nex will operate out of a spread on offense with some empty backfield sets and base out of a 3-4 on defense.

Their roster includes only 17 players so depth is a factor for them.

Scott said the key for the Dragons is to simply go out and execute.

"We need to not make mistakes and get stupid penalties. We need to go out excited to play. We were excited to play last week and so this week we need to get out there and get after it," Scott said.

Dragon notes:

Purcell Head Coach Tracy Scott nominated Kody Kroth as the Offensive Player of the Week.

Kroth connected on 18 of 26 throws Friday night for 354 yards, four touchdowns and no interceptions.

Nominated as the Defensive Player of the Week was Jakeb Pollard. Pollard had 10 tackles on defense plus a couple on special teams.

"He does a lot of things for us," Scott said.

Johnny Marquez was nominated as the Defensive Lineman of the Week for his six tackle performance against the Wolverines.

Sophomore Jace Clary, making his first varsity start in the offensive line, was nominated as the Offensive Lineman of the Week.

Clary graded out at 98 percent before leaving with an injury.

Max pressure

Dalton Matthews (58) and Cam Conner (66) pressure the Christian Heritage Academy quarterback Friday night. Lexington was defeated 26-14.

From page 1B

Warriors:

chez, Reese Stephens, Jamison Holland and Lane Steele.

"We played a lot of nickle and dime sets," Beller said. "They all played well. They played really well in pass defense.

"Our guys struggled stopping the run. We didn't have the best game (against the run) but we got off the field when we needed to. We had three fourth down stops all against the run," the coach said. "We were able to stop the run when we needed to."

Beller tabbed the game balanced overall.

"It wasn't great or a complete game but we held them to 76 yards passing. In the run game we bent but didn't break."

CCS rushed for 192 yards but 99 came on one possession. "Overall, I was pleased with the defense," Beller said.

And that is considering they played a game the Saturday before due to COVID issues at Bethel.

Up next for the Warriors is home game tonight (Thursday) against Lexington's Bulldogs who will make the trip for a 7 p.m. kickoff.

Beller reports the Bulldogs are a very fundamentally sound defensive football team.

"They are well coached. Everyone knows their roles and responsibilities. They will bring pressure but it is mainly from the outside making you running their big defensive line.

"We need to keep them from dictating what we do and stay balanced. Their offense has seemed to find a rhythm," the coach said.

He said his defenders will be focusing on stopping running back Heath Winterton and quarterback Dylan Cottrell.

"Cottrell is big and fast," Beller said. "I saw him outrun everyone against Christian Heritage and I think they are pretty quick. We'll have to corral their playmakers and not let them get going."

Warrior notes:

Washington Head Coach Brad Beller nominated Jaxon Hendrix as the Offensive Player of the Week.

Hendrix was 12-23 passing for 160 yards and one touchdown.

Beller nominated Austin Smith as the Offensive Lineman of the Week for his 80 percent grade against CCS.

Getting the nod as the Defensive Lineman of the Week was Seth Tague, who registered four tackles including one for a loss.

Washington's nominee for Defensive Player of the Week is Kobe Scott, who made five tackles and had one interception for a touchdown against CCS last Friday night.

outstanding and Cam Conner controlled the middle.

In the third quarter, it seemed as though Lexington had corrected their offensive mistakes. Dylan Cottrell scored on a 54-yard run to open the second half. The two-point conversion was good, staking Lexington to an 8-0 lead.

CHA came back with a five-yard touchdown run less than a minute later. The Crusaders' two-point attempt was not good.

Lexington relied on Cottrell's legs again when he dashed 45-yards into the end zone. The PAT kick was blocked.

The wheels fell off for Lexington in the fourth quarter. The Crusaders scored from seven yards out and converted the two-point PAT to knot the score.

CHA forged a 20-14 lead on a 74-yard touchdown pass with 1:49 left in the game. The two-point try was not good.

A pick six by the Crusaders provided the final tally.

"The defense played outstanding," Bolles said after the game. "I thought we would go into halftime and make some adjustments. We came out and started the second half pretty good.

"We had some kids step up but we had a bad break here and there. I hate that for our kids and we're just going to regroup and be ready to play again this week."

Lexington ran more plays and outgained the Crusaders, but five turnovers sealed the Bulldogs' fate.

Cottrell rushed for 147 yards and two touchdowns on 17 carries. He was 8-17 for 84 yards passing in the game but was picked off four times.

Heath Winterton ran the rock 22 times for 68 yards. Defensively, he had five tackles with two tackles for losses.

"We worked really hard this past week for CHA," Winterton said. "We did a lot of conditioning and tried to get better. A lot of us were out of shape but we'll get better as the season moves on. We played as a team on defense in the first half. We did our best."

Bolles thought the team played well last Friday - save for the fourth quarter flubs. He thinks Cottrell, Winterton, and his entire squad are giving it all they have.

"I think the world of those two young men," Bolles said of both Cottrell and Winterton. "When the lights come on, they're giving it everything they have. They don't leave any question mark about their effort and I'm very proud of them as well as the entire team.

"Our offensive line did a great job, especially in the second half. Winterton and Cottrell fed off each other. Things went well for us in the third quarter. We just have things we have to put together for an entire game."

Bulldog notes:

Lexington Head Coach Keith Bolles nominated quarterback Dylan Cottrell for Offensive Player of the Week.

Bolles nominated Heath Winterton for Defensive Player of the Week.

Bolles nominated Wyatt Webb the Offensive Lineman of the Week. Webb graded out to an 88 percent.

Bolles nominated Dalton Matthews as the Defensive Lineman of the Week. Matthews finished with four tackles, including two for losses.

Green Avenue Church of Christ

The Wednesday evening Bible class examined four more songs from the songbook the congregation uses comparing the words to those songs to scripture.

The Sunday morning adult class continued a study of the concept of judging righteous judgment rather than judging by appearance. This week's class concentrated on an example of an incident recorded in the second chapter of Mark where Jesus' critics accused some of His disciples of violating the Sabbath by picking a few heads of grain.

Jesus then responded by comparing that situation with an incident found in the 21st chapter of First Samuel where David and some of his soldiers were given consecrated show bread from the tabernacle when they were hungry.

During the morning worship assembly Keith Shackelford brought a lesson on what the New Testament reveals about heaven and why we should want to go there. The message pointed out that heaven is the permanent dwelling of God the father (Isaiah 57:15) and Jesus (Matthew 5:45) and will be the permanent dwelling of those who go there (Eccl 12:5).

Scriptures were also cited comparing heaven to a city (Hebrews 11, verses 10 and 13-16) and an ideal marriage (Ephesians 5:22-30).

The Sunday evening sermon addressed a written indictment of unknown origin which accuses churches of Christ of "holding to a Pharisaic 'Biblical literalism' that blinds its members to their mission in today's world and makes it impossible for them to meet modern problems in an effective way, and being a blueprint with exact details for all work and procedures."

The "non-instrumental aspect of worship" is one of the aspects of the church which the author asserts makes it impossible for the church to meet modern problems in an effective way. Each argument was addressed and either refuted or defended.

The church meets at 407 Jackson and Green Avenue. Worship assemblies are at 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. every Sunday and Bible classes at 9:45 a.m. Sunday and 7 p.m. Wednesday.

James and Pam Kyzer sang "They'll Know We Are Christians By Our Love" for the special at our morning service. Brother David used Ephesians 4:1-16 for his sermon, "Worthy of the Call". We can live a life of gratitude for what Jesus has done for us. We need to walk worthy by following Biblical examples, by being humble, and working hard.

We should be patient and diligent guarding the oneness we have in Christ. In Jesus, we have all riches. We are to work with the strengths God has given us. We should grow in ministry and unity. We should grow in maturity, taking responsibility for our life. We are to grow in love, being righteous and real. We should join with other believers to help us grow.

Most everyone stayed and enjoyed fellowship and good food at our annual Ladies Casserole Cook-off lunch. This has become an annual tradition during our Pastor Appreciation Day service. There was no evening service.

We at Sunray are blessed to have David Pickard as our interim pastor. He carries on the tradition of solid Biblical teaching taught for the past 33 years by Dennis Clark. Our goal is to worship God and to allow His love to be revealed through us in our services to others. Brother Clark will be preaching at this coming Sunday morning service. There will be no evening service.

There is a van trip scheduled for Thursday, October 22, at 4:30 p.m. We will be driving to Chickasha to eat at Jake's Rib and then enjoy a Jeff and Sheri Easter concert at College Heights.

Please join us for all activities and services at Sunray Baptist Church. We are a small traditional church and have a place for you. We are located at 2223 North 9th Street in Purcell. For additional information call 527-6808.

Here's Something to Go Back About Right Now

Good week to all. Welcome to the "front porch."

We're glad to say that the amazin' blonde and I are up in the Smokies this week for our annual trip with Coca-Cola Mike and Glory. Of course, it's a different world now than last year's trip - ah, there's an understatement.

But, with all the differences, I'm glad that one thing that never changes is the gospel of Jesus Christ. With the Smokies as our majestic backdrop, let's go back there one more time.

The apostle Paul sums up the glory of the gospel well: "For I determined not to know anything among you," he says, "save Jesus Christ, and him crucified" (1 Corinthians 2:2).

The grand story of Jesus Christ - with all its splendor and demands - is the story a man needs to preach when he hits the dusty road with a few gospel sermons in hand.

With that truth in mind, let's remember to go back to an old gospel, regardless of what's happening around us. Here's what I'd ask a man to preach when he chooses to walk up to the pulpit to deliver the message:

Preach, my friend, the gospel - nothing more. Preach the story of Jesus. Don't hold back in telling it all. Don't preach about philosophy, politics, or social issues. Just preach to me the gospel.

Remind me often of what my Lord did for you and me, of the tremendous cost He paid for hope. Don't go along without walking me often up to Calvary, and without reminding me of what all of it means.

Show me, please, the Lord's nail-scarred hands, and show me the blood and water that flow from his side. Remind me to believe, not doubt; trust, not falter; walk, not faint. But preach to me more. Preach what it is I need to know - what I need to do, and the changes I need to make.

Remind me where I easily could stumble, or fall, and show me where the obstacles

October 11, 2020 was the 28th Sunday in Ordinary Time. Ordinary Time is the time of the liturgical year that is not a major season like Lent, Advent, Christmas or Easter. During Ordinary Time, the readings focus on Christ's time on earth and the miracles he performed.

Jesus teaches using parables. Sometimes we need an interpreter to understand. This Sunday the Gospel Reading was from Matthew 22:1-14. 2 "The kingdom of heaven may be likened to a king who gave a wedding feast for his son. 3 He dispatched his servants to summon the invited guests to the feast, but they refused to come."

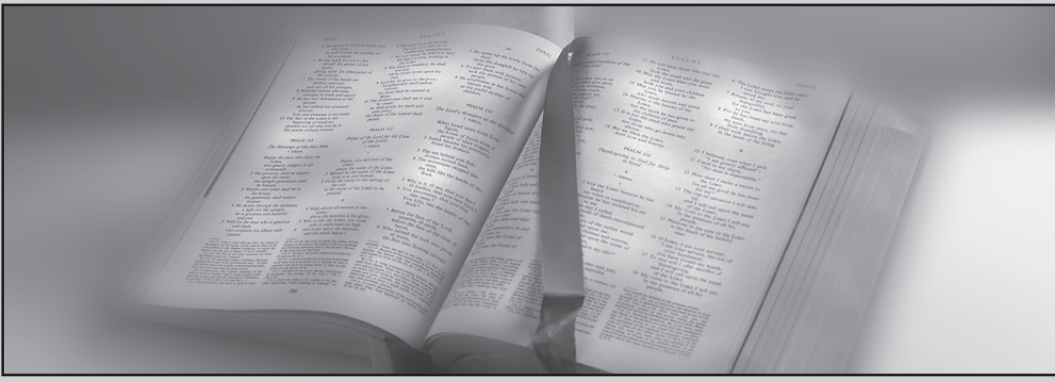

Most of us can easily identify the king as being God and his son is Jesus. The messengers who tried to summon guests were the prophets. The invited guests who refused to come were those people who rejected the teachings of the prophets.

In verses 4-6, the king told the servants to tell those who were invited that everything was ready and to come to the feast. Some ignored the invitation, but others laid hold of the servants, mistreated them, and killed them.

In verses 7-9, the outraged king sent his troops, destroyed those murderers, and burned their city. Then the king has the servants to invite to the feast whomever you find because those previously invited were not worthy to come. This

The next Food Bank Give-Away is planned for this Saturday, October 17. We fed approximately 50 families last month. Please wear your mask, or we can provide you with one.

On Sunday, we will have our monthly breakfast. Bring your appetite, and join us at 9 a.m. to see what Chef David has cooked.

Last week we started a series of articles on being gracious. Remember our definition from Webster's online dictionary, "abounding in grace or mercy; manifesting love, or bestowing mercy; beneficent; merciful; characterized by charm, good taste, and generosity of spirit; doing or producing good; characterized by kindness and warm courtesy; exhibiting politeness." Recall that God designed us to be in relationship with others, to form a community where we can get along in harmony.

Last week we talked about the four directives that can help us live in God's church in peaceful community. They are let peace be our goal, let patience be our attitude, let pleasing words be our means, and keep a perspective about the divine part that is inside each of those with whom we interact. We looked at letting peace be our goal last week. This week we will explore letting patience be our attitude.

Do you recall how exasperated our parents could get when we were young and we kept trying their patience in different ways? Or maybe even more recently, how impatient can you get with your children or even grandchildren?

I know all the things that I do wrong must make God sad and maybe even impatient with how many times it will take me to learn how to live in harmony with my earthly family. When we ask for God's forgiveness, we are usually aware of how imperfect we humans are. So, if I'm imperfect, how dare I lose patience with someone else!

The Scriptures promote the virtue of patience. One of the most familiar readings we find is I Corinthians Chapter 13. In I Corinthians 13:4, Paul wrote, "Love is patient." Later in the same chapter, he writes that love "bears" and "endures" all things. This is quite a challenge to us as human beings. However, we must remember that, as followers of Christ, the Holy Spirit dwells in us.

In Galatians 5:22, we are reminded of the fruits of the Spirit, and "Patience" is one of those fruits. We should pray daily to help us cultivate this virtue in our relationships with other people, our earthly family.

Next week we will explore using pleasing words with our interactions with others. Choosing kind words is part of this process.

Something that goes along with graciousness is remembering to pray for others. In our prayers on Sunday morning, Pastor David leads us in praying for not only our country and state, but all of our city. We pray for our church, but we also pray for all of the other churches in our community and for their members. It always makes me feel good to do this because I think God wants all of us to work toward God's kingdom.

This Sunday we invite you to breakfast with us at 9 a.m. and hope you might stay for worship at 9:30 a.m. We have plenty of room to spread out in the sanctuary and distance ourselves.

We also encourage each other to wear masks. Wearing one keeps us from giving the virus to someone else, not necessarily to protect ourselves.

Our address is 631 East Ash, near Lexington High School. For more information, please call the church at (405) 527-3506 to leave a message, or contact Pastor David directly at (405) 406-6174.

I wonder how many heart attacks occurred among the attendees and TV watchers during the Red River bedlam in Dallas last Saturday.

The sad part about being surrounded by local football and softball teams is the impossibility that every favorite team in our area will be a winner.

How sad it is that someone will be disappointed with the outcome during the week and on Friday night. End result may be victory or a lesson learned for future victory.

Gyean Gentry and Mark Brown provided the special music for Sunday morning.

The scripture texts for the Sunday sermon were taken from Proverbs 3:5-10, Psalm 32:10-11 and Ephesians 5:15-16.

The wise man in Proverbs 3 encourages Christians to trust in the Lord with all their heart. The wise man in Psalm 32 reminds Christians that sorrow comes with wickedness and happiness comes with trust in the Lord.

Several years ago there was a popular bracelet worn by many young and old that admonished the wearer to think, "What Would Jesus Do?" The purpose of the phrase was to encourage the wearer to make good decisions and behave in accordance to the teachings and behavior of Jesus.

The bracelets have disappeared, but the message never fades. Commitment, knowledge and alertness are valuable gifts that produce great results.

As children we played the game "Mother May I?" Before we make our daily decisions, we should receive the Master's answer, "Yes, you may."

As Christians we are obligated to put our trust in God. We must put God first in our life, try to think like God and try to behave like God. Trust in God produces fantastic gifts from God.

My file cabinets hold many wonderful stories about my Christian brothers and sisters that have moved on to Glory Land.

Recently I found the life history of a precious lady whose influence stretched from Wewoka, Gene Autry and Purcell to Norman.

Edna Pauline James was born in Wewoka on Aug. 11, 1913. During her lifetime she was known as Mere, Polly, Mrs. James or Pauline. Polly was born running, always on the move. Speed was her trademark.

Polly married a young educator with a great Choctaw heritage. The wedding took place June 28, 1933 at Ada. Before long Polly and Bill James moved to the Arbuckle Mountains and the small community of Berwyn (Gene Autry).

Preparations for their eternal home were sealed the day Polly and Bill James met the Master of Life, Jesus. Pastor Ross Hughes baptized Polly and Bill James.

Bill was a busy superintendent and coach at the school house. Polly was always busy serving others in the community.

The three children of Polly and Bill were Billie, Rita and Gordon. After 25 years in Gene Autry, the James family moved north to Norman. Bill and Polly became part of OU.

Polly and Bill spent wonderful days visiting in Purcell with their daughter, Rita, and husband, Frank Conway.

Polly experienced great sorrow when Bill was suddenly transferred to his heavenly home on Nov. 13, 1973. She never felt alone.

Early on Oct. 3, 2002, the Master Jesus arrived to say, "Polly, it's time to go. You've fought a good fight and finished your course." Polly was prepared for her short trip to heaven.

The earthly marker of Polly and Bill James is Hillcrest Memorial Park in Ardmore. Their eternal address is Heaven.

Sermon title for this Sunday will be "Hatred Hurts."

Visitors are always invited to attend our Wednesday evening Bible Study at Johnson Road. The one hour study begins at 6 p.m.

OLV:

welcoming of the rest of the population tells us that God is inviting everyone to the banquet, not just the Israelites. 10 The hall was filled with guests.

Now the king has invited everyone but in verses 11-13, he seems to change his mind. 11 But when the king came in to meet the guests, he saw a man there not dressed in a wedding garment. 12 The king said to him, 'My friend, how is it that you came in here without a wedding garment?' But he was reduced to silence. 13 Then the king said to his attendants, 'Bind his hands and feet, and cast him into the darkness outside, where there will be wailing and grinding of teeth.'

What does this mean? God (the king) has invited all of us to eternal salvation through his son (Jesus). If we choose to accept the invitation, our lives need to reflect that commitment. A proper wedding garment (our demeanor) should reflect love, compassion, faith, and fidelity. If we present ourselves as Christians and our daily lives do not reflect that, we are like the man who was not dressed in a wedding garment. Like him, we will be cast out.

The hymn, "Table of Plenty," written by John Michael Talbot, paints the picture of what God offers us through Christ. Come to the feast of heaven and earth/ Come to the table of plenty/ God will provide for all that we need/ Here at the table of plenty. O come and sit at my table/ Where saints and sinners are friends/ I wait to welcome the lost and lonely/ To share the cup of my love.

We are practicing social distancing and everyone is asked to protect each other by wearing a mask.

lie. Point to me the very place where many before have lost their way.

Don't make your preaching fancy, but make it direct. Don't make it flowery, make it powerful. Give me truth, not rhetoric. Make me tremble, if need be, just like the jailor of old. Don't let me get too comfortable with the sound of warm, fuzzy words, but keep me alert with a "thus saith the Lord."

Oh, share the good parts, the best parts - and never omit them - but warn me, too. Reprove, rebuke, exhort, as much as needed, and as often.

Preach to me, and don't be afraid. Hide behind the cross of Calvary. Hide courageously. Preach boldly, and confidently. Preach with an outreached hand of love and the sobering rod of discipline.

And before you step down, offer me the call of the gospel - "And the Spirit and the bride say come" - Call me once again, while I ponder, for it may be that I have faltered along the way.

And when you finish, pray that the blessed seed you have sown will make a difference, that it will lead me some day to heaven's door.

When you think of it that way, it doesn't matter all that much what is going on during this time, does it! When it's all said and done, it's the gospel, and the cross, and God's unsearchable riches - those are the things that have led us thus far; and those are the things that will lead us home.

Dale K. Graham Veterans Foundation

As the coronavirus continues to cause health problems to many in our communities, our new way of assisting veterans and their families is helping keep us and our clients safe.

We are working on veteran and surviving spouse claims for VA benefits using our new system to process and file their claims electronically. Both those who want to file a claim and our volunteers can do so from their home.

Almost every day, I receive calls from veterans' surviving spouses requesting possible VA benefits for dependents. When I receive these inquiries, the first thing I do is offer our condolences for their loss; the next thing asked is was their veteran receiving VA benefits.

It is much easier to help the families of veterans who had previously filed a claim for VA benefits. One of the essential things that allow surviving spouses to receive VA benefits is the veteran's cause of death or contributing condition. If the veteran's service-connected disabilities or presumptive needs are on the death certificate, the spouse and dependents would be eligible to receive DIC payments.

I believe that all veterans should apply for VA benefits even if they only want VA medical care. Any veteran who has a service-connected disability rated zero percent or more should be eligible to receive VA medical care.

Some veterans may also be eligible for health care based on their income and number of dependents.

Thank you to all veterans and their families for their service to the United States of America. Semper Fi!

Oklahoma technicians key to fixing D.C. radar

By Jessie Christopher Smith
Gaylord News

A team of six technicians from Oklahoma's Radar Operations Center arrived Saturday in Virginia to repair the main Doppler weather radar for the U.S. capital.

The National Weather Service's most powerful radar, operating out of Sterling, Va., near Dulles International Airport, covers the skies for northern Virginia, central Maryland, the eastern part of West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Since the radar suddenly stopped working, however, in late September, forecasters have been forced to depend on airport radars and other weather service radars scattered throughout New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia.

Two inspectors were called from Oklahoma on September 25 and assisted local technicians in assessing the radar and the extent of the damage.

"The bull gear failed, and that's the gearing for the entire radar, and unfortunately it's at the base of the whole unit that spins around inside the dome," Chris Strong, coordination meteorologist at the Baltimore/Washington office for the National Weather Service, said. "It's a lot of work to get at it, to replace it, and then put it all back together again."

This significant and unique failure required the expertise of specialized workers, a group of six engineers that the Radar Operations Center in Norman deployed.

"The situation with the Sterling radar is the type of situation that a local technician there might only see once in their entire career, or maybe never at all," Jessica Schulz, deputy director at the Radar Operations Center, said. "It's a pretty rare occurrence for any given radar, and it also requires heavy equipment and special training to make sure that the job is being done safely."

The operations center, frequently called the "ROC" because of its importance, is a national resource for the 122 forecast offices across the United States. The Oklahoma team drove tons of equipment more than 1,000 miles to the Virginia radar site.

"For anybody that hasn't seen one of these Doppler radar towers, it looks like a big golf ball or a big volleyball in the sky, held up by this big tower," Strong said. "And within that round white dome is this big piece of machinery that spins around on its axis, that goes up and down to scan the sky, and it's constantly spinning and moving."

The tower itself is about 100 feet tall, so "logistically, it's quite an effort" to hoist the equipment needed for repairing the radar to the top of it, Strong said.

A Doppler radar bounces a microwave signal off a cloud formation to gather key data of a storm, such as wind speed and rain. The widespread adoption of Doppler radars resulted in major meteorological advances for the forecasting of tornadoes.

The Sterling radar will stay down until Oct. 16, according to a statement from the National Weather Service while the six-technician team works to restore it.

In the meantime, weather coverage will be primarily handled by four smaller weather radars operated by the Federal Aviation Administration and located at the major airports Dulles, Reagan National, and Baltimore-Washington International, as well as Joint Base Andrews.

"You're always concerned about weather threats here in the mid-Atlantic, but if you're going to have an outage like this, it's great that it's happening now and not a month ago when we were having a lot of severe storms, a lot of severe weather, at the height of the summer," Strong said, alluding to the tumultuous hurricanes Laura and Marco which ravaged Atlantic coastlines in August.

"If we're going to have longer stretches of settled weather, they tend to be in late September through October, so hopefully we can keep that going until the radar comes back and gets us back to 100 percent."
