Accident claims Davis woman

John D. Montgomery The Purcell Register

A Davis woman was killed Monday morning while traveling northbound on Interstate 35 near mile marker 82 in McClain County.

According to investigating Trooper Shayne Ballard, a 2016 Volvo Semi, driven by Johnny Lee Spradlin, 58 of Tarrant, Texas, struck the rear of a 2016 Chevrolet Traverse, driven by Julia Kraus, 63 of Davis.

Ballard said Kraus was pronounced dead at the scene by Wadley's EMS.

The Trooper said the semi struck the Chevrolet from behind forcing it into a 2018 Freightliner Semi, driven by Auden Carrasco, 47, of Dallas at 9:26 a.m.

A passenger in the Chevrolet, James Kraus, 71, was transported to OU Medical Center by Wadley's EMS with leg, trunk and internal injuries.

The vehicle Kraus was in departed the roadway to the right, Ballard reported.

Neither Spradlin or Carrasco were injured.

The Trooper cited the cause of the collision as inattention.

Ballard said all three of the vehicles were traveling at a slow rate of speed in traffic congestion while approaching a construction zone.

Ballard was assisted at the scene by Trooper Brian Ozment, Trooper Ken Pittman, Trooper Lyle Lubbers, Wadley's EMS and the Wayne Fire Department.

Flu worse than coronavirus

I'm not sure why the coronavirus is so media sexy when the flu is far worse here in the United States.

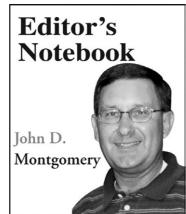

Sure it's bad. We've had seven fatalities from the virus, but so far this year the CDC reports the flu has killed 18,000 with 32 million people infected in the United States.

Among those 32 million infected people are two members of our own family.

We don't not travel or take public transportation even though the flu is a worldwide pandemic.

We wash our hands more often during flu season and take the regular precautions.

It's unclear why there isn't more information disseminated about the flu.

Instead we get a steady diet on the nightly news about the new coronavirus that is far, far less prevalent here than the flu.

Both are bad, don't get me wrong.

It's just curious why one gets the lions' share of the news coverage and the other just keeps making people sick.

A wartime moment

The flag raising on Mount Suribachi

February 23 marked the 75th anniversary of Marines raising the Stars and Stripes atop Mount Suribachi.

The troops were fighting to take Iwo Jima from entrenched and determined Japanese forces.

That close to the Japanese homeland, the enemy fought to defend every square foot of the island and force the Americans back into the sea.

The Japanese were holed up in countless caves. Though they were losing the war at that point, they were willing to die to forestall the inevitable.

When I met them, most were in their 70s and 80s. They'd had regular reunions over the decades but this one, I was told, would be their last. Reunion numbers had been dropping for some time and old age was accomplishing what the Japanese on Iwo Jima couldn't.

A highlight of the reunion was a reenactment of the flag raising on Mount Suribachi.

In that moment, the years seemed to drop away and they were young men once again. It is interesting that it took the Pentagon decades to finally identify the Marines in the iconic photograph. I think in a sense every American on that island raised that flag.

And every American back on that bleak island.

of session, and it's been a busy

The first month of session is typically spent heavily in committee meetings, because all bills must pass through committee before they can be brought to the House floor. Bills that didn't pass committee by Feb. 27 cannot proceed through the rest of the legislative process.

On Wednesday, I presented one of my bills through the House Children, Youth and Family Services Committee. House Bill 3559 would create a path for licensure for lay midwives in Oklahoma.

The bill is called "Shepherd's Law" in honor of a young boy who sadly passed away within a few days of birth due to negligent care by the midwife. Leyce Doolen, Shepherd's mother, told the committee how an investigation after his death found that the midwife's decisions lead to Shepherd's passing.

In Oklahoma, non-nurse midwives can deliver babies

The House has officially outside the hospital without passed its first major deadline a license or oversight. The midwife in Leyce's situation simply removed the word "nurse" from her title and continued practicing, and at least one other baby has since died in her care. Previously, the nurse midwife had her license revoked by the State Board of Nurses.

This bill is supported by OBGYNs across the state, the director of the Board of Nurses, the OK Hospital Authority, the OK Medical Association, the Attorney General, the State Health Dept., and multiple groups of caring, professional midwives.

I'm glad the bill passed 15-0 and I'm looking forward to presenting this bill on the House floor and seeing it become law.

Last week, the House celebrated FFA Day and hosted hundreds of students from chapters across the state. From District 42, I visited with students from Lindsay, Maysville, Dibble, Washington show is from the little I saw of it. These guys publicly embarrassing themselves to the amusement of their friends and the audience.

I hate this kind of comedy. I can't stand the feeling of secondhand embarrassment.

The worst by far was when one of them would be forced to speak in front of a large crowd, saying aloud whatever their friends told them to through a hidden earpiece.

These bits would send my stomach into knots, instantly spiking my anxiety through the roof.

I really don't see the appeal an origin story of sorts, with the hide my eyes and screech at the of this kind of comedy. I never have. Watching public humiliation is a painful experience for me. And yet this show seems to be nothing but that.

I couldn't watch the show for And that's basically all the more than a few minutes at a time without feeling physically ill. To sit through a whole 90 minutes of it sounded like pure psychological torture to me.

Turns out, I was right.

I did not enjoy the experience of watching this movie. Not one bit.

As far as I can tell, the film version of "Impractical Jokers" is almost exactly the same as the television format, except the movie has the thinnest veneer of a plot attached to it.

The film begins in 1994 with four guys dressed as teenagers in period appropriate clothing and given slightly more hair.

Basically, it shows how the four of them came up with the format of their TV show, daring each other to do things. And it also introduces Paula Abdul as an antagonist of sorts, who vows revenge after they crash a performance of hers.

This is the least painful part of the movie.

25 years later, Paula runs into the group again. Due to the passage of time, she's seemingly forgotten our four jokers, and starstruck herself, invites them to see her show in Miami.

This all conveniently happens at a Red Lobster so TruTV can get in some quick and shameless promotional credit.

Then, with the tiniest bit of story established, the bulk of the movie can finally begin. And wouldn't you know it, it's the exact same stuff they've been doing on television for eight years.

A mix of challenges, where the men are forced to embarrass themselves in front of actual people by repeating lines fed to them by their friends through an earpiece.

And pranks, where one of the guys is humiliated in some way. Like being forced to wear some kind of ridiculous outfit while riding a horse. Or in one particular cruel instant, being trapped in a locked motel room with a live tiger.

Throw in a few hundred cutaway shots showing their friends cackling like hyenas at their buddy's misfortunate, and that's about it.

Sure, there's a smidge of plot to wrap up the movie at the end. Not much though. As far as I can tell, this is basically just a longer, more involved episode of their TV show.

Naturally, I thought the entire experience was dreadful.

This just isn't my kind of comedy. I hate it. I hate everything about it. This movie was my own personal hell. I couldn't imagine willingly subjecting yourself to it.

But obviously, tastes in comedy vary wildly. And if their YouTube comment sections are any indication, the Impractical Jokers have a sizable fanbase who think their content is consistently funny.

Personally, I don't get it. I'll give them this though. At least it looks like the guys are having a good time despite my agony.

Bottomline, if you enjoy the show, you'll probably like the movie too.

Don't go into the movie expecting some kind of drastic shift from what you've seen on television. It's more of the same, which for my money, makes for an absolutely unbearable viewing experience.

"Impractical Jokers: The Movie" is rated PG-13.

Next this week is "Onward."

Set in a suburban fantasy world, this animate d adventure follows two teenage elf brothers, Ian (Tom Holland) and Barley Lightfoot (Chris Pratt)

After receiving a precious gift, the two of them set off on a perilous and magical journey in order to spend one last day with their father, who died when they were too young to remember him.

That right there sounds like the making of a classic Pixar movie.

The acclaimed animation studio seems to really have a thing for buddy adventure stories. You have Woody and Buzz in "Toy Story" where it all started for Pixar. Then of course Mike and Sulley in "Monsters, Inc.," Marlin and Dory in "Finding Nemo," Carl and Russell in "Up," the list goes on and on.

Seriously, it's like a third of their filmography. The buddy adventure is basically their goto formula at this point. And to their credit, it usually works wonderfully.

I say usually, because "The Good Dinosaur" exists, and that movie is a tonal disaster.

Generally though, despite relying on a standard formula of sorts, Pixar usually manages to create worlds that ignite the imagination. Bringing to life stories that enrapture audiences from beginning to end, and creating characters we'll all never forget.

This is why the announcement of a new Pixar movie is almost always welcomed news in my book. Even despite a couple recent duds here and there, it's impossible to ignore the studio's incredible track record for amazing storytelling.

Enter "Onward."

Looking at the synopsis, the film does seem to follow the tried and true Pixar buddy adventure formula. Which is fine. The formula has served them well in the past.

Sadly though, a tried and true framework doesn't automatically guarantee a good film.

For it to truly shine, you need good characters. And to be perfectly honest, Ian, the main character here, is kind of bland.

He feels like a dorky selfinsert character, with very little personality beyond being awkward. His defining character traits are missing his dad and wanting to be more like his confident deceased father.

That's fine motivation to begin the adventure, but it doesn't exactly make for the most compelling of protagonists.

In stark contrast is Ian's older brother Barley. He also misses his dad, but in addition to that he has an obsession with the past, old magics, and the classic adventures of yore.

Now that's a guy with a bit more to work with. It's almost enough to make you wonder why the film needed a younger, less interesting brother in the first place.

I suppose they wanted the conflict added by the opposing personalities of the two guys, but I don't necessarily think that element added to the overall story that much.

Instead of a story focused on two brothers, I would have rather there had been more time devoted to the concept of a modern fantasy world. You know, like how it works, and what it's like living there. Which is exactly where this movie suffers the most.

The setting of "Onward" feels noticeably shallow. Like the filmmakers just threw a generic fantasy skin on a modern world and called it good.

Even "Monsters Inc.," where the monsters lived and worked in a suspiciously similar world to our own, there was still a fair amount of creativity at work. Like using the screams of children for energy, or thousands of unique doors each of which lead to the bedroom of a child. In "Onward," they just briefly tell us that people used to use magic, but now they don't because technology is just easier. Beyond that, the only difference between our world and theirs is the larger variety of sentient creatures and a slew of fantasy themed names for locations and brands.

like us, who somehow know what we are experiencing and can relate to us, the Founders envisioned our representative to be our betters. If we were going to elect someone who was like us, we might as well have a direct democracy. envisioned representation.

Edmund Burke was born in 1729 and was a leading states-worth examining another influence on the Founders

I recently wrote an article for his column about a lesser known

This was a practice taken from the British, where the masses could vote, but had to vote for a nobleman who had the time to understand the issues. The reason the Founders chose a republic over a democracy was not just out of practicality but because most people do not have the time or ability to comprehend and study every issue and vote.

The concept of virtual representation also came from the British. Think of it this way. Once you vote for your congressman or senator, they represent all Americans. Every decision they make affects everyone, not just people in the state or district where they live.

In this way they represent everyone virtually. It was never meant that our representatives poll their constituents. Instead they were to vote their own conscience or intelligence. As Burke said, representatives owe us their judgment. That is why we elected them. If we decide we do not like their judgment, that is why our representatives are voted on every two or six years.

With the acquittal of President Trump on his impeachment charges, I have actually found there is more talk of Senator Mitt Romney's decision to vote for conviction then the acquittal itself. I assume it is because everyone already knows of the outcome of the senate trial before it even started, but the idea of a politician breaking ranks goes against the current norm.

Not all, but most, of the praise for Romney is coming from the left while the vilification of the senator is coming from the right. This is not surprising. The left is praising a man who dared break ranks to stand up for what he thought was right. I have even seen the word hero being used.

Of course, I doubt they would use those same words if one of their own broke ranks and voted their conscious supporting the President. Those people would be traitors.

That is how the right is seeing Romney, a traitor who is only jealous because he lost his presidential bid. Many have argued that Romney is breaking his trust with his constituents in voting against Trump.

One comment I read said that he owes nothing to his faith or his family, the reason Romney claimed he voted to convict. Rather, the only people he owes anything to are the ones who voted him into office. Though I understand the frustration of the right, party loyalty has replaced virtuous representatives, but historically speaking Romney has acted exactly how the Founders expected our representative to act.

All of this isn't to say "Onward" is a bad movie.

Overall, it's fine. It's perfectly watchable and Pixar's animation quality is as beautiful as ever. It just doesn't live up to what we've come to expect from the studio.

It's strange. Nearly all the same storytelling elements that make a good Pixar movie are here. They just don't carry the same emotional weight for whatever reason.

Sure, on the scale of animated movies, this film is still better than most. Certainly higher quality than anything Illumination has been releasing.

Sadly though, when graded on a curve with its Pixar brethren, "Onward" can't help but be placed near the bottom of their filmography.

Sure, "The Call of the Wild" with Harrison Ford was a perfectly decent remake. But if It reminds me a lot of a only I had known I could have waited one more week for an even better example of a high quality reimagining of a classic, my argument would have been that much easier.

Oh well.

Anyway, this movie is absolutely incredible.

While I generally don't mind remakes and reimaginings, it's still very rare to find a film based on classic source material that not only does the original concept justice, but also surpases it in many ways.

And that's not to say the 1933 version of "The Invisible Man" is a bad movie. Quite the opposite. Even by modern standards, much of the film holds up quite well.

Revisiting the original, I was surprised to see how much of an edge the nearly 90-year-old film had.

But what it does best is flesh out the concept of an invisible

How can you fight a person you can't see? How can you plot against someone who can hear your plans without you even knowing it? And how can you avoid being tormented or killed by a man you can never see coming?

These are the elements that work so remarkably well in the 1933 film. Yet they work even better here.

This is largely due to a change in villains and victims.

Instead of The Invisible Man Last this being a mad scientist who seeks week is "The revenge on an assistant who betrayed him, in this film he's an obsessive and incredibly controlling tech mogul who wants to isolate his ex-girlfriend and make her feel like she's going insane.

It's terrifying. Yet, the relationship here between Cecilia and her ex is something horrifyingly believable.

It's a textbook abusive relationship. Down to the gaslighting, making Cecilia question her own sanity. The isolation, the abuser alienating Cecilia But when Cecilia's abusive from anyone who might care ex (Oliver Jackson-Cohen) about her. And of course, the

These are all tactics employed by real life monsters who abuse their partners every day. They effectively destroy the lives of people they claim to love,

Now just think if one of those lowlifes gained the ability to become invisible. That is the concept of this movie.

person can be. Especially one laser focused on destroying your life.

It's impossible not to emphasize with Cecilia here. Not just because of Elisabeth Moss's wonderful portrayal of the character, but also because it's easy to imagine people in your own life becoming trapped in similar, if less imaginative circumstances.

Seriously though, Elisabeth Moss does a fantastic job making her character likeable, despite Cecilia's waning sanity as she's forced to endure the worst of abuses.

The horror elements here are bone chilling. I haven't watched a movie this genuinely scary in a long time.

I can't ever remember ever screaming in a horror movie before, yet there's a scene in this film that actually made me audibly yelp from the sheer shock of it all.

I was absolutely stunned. My jaw was practically on the floor, I had tears streaming down my face, and it felt like I didn't blink for at least five minutes after it all happened. I just couldn't believe it. And as if a movie with terrifying horror, engaging characters, and a poignant story wasn't enough, this movie also has a few fantastic action scenes as well. Anyone who saw Leigh Whannell's previous sci-fi film "Upgrade" will immediately recognize his handiwork in this movie. Especially in the action. Leigh, and his cinematographer Stefan Duscio, are doing some really clever things in the way these movies are shot.

I absolutely love how the camera matches the movement of the characters in both these films. It's not quite as attention grabbing in "The Invisible Man" as it is in "Upgrade," but it is there. And it makes any action shown that much more engaging.

I have nothing but praise for this film. It's one of those experiences where I didn't want to blink, I didn't want to breathe, in fear that I'd miss any mesmerizing moment of it.

The horror drought of 2020 has officially ended. If you have any interest in scary movies, "The Invisible Man" is a must watch. Heck, if you have any interest in good movies period, I'd say you're missing out if you skipped this film.

A modern day example that all without any superhuman not only proves remakes and reimaginings can be just as good as the original films they take inspiration from. They can be even better.

Remington Park Inducted into the 2020 Oklahoma Quarter Horse Hall of Fame

The Oklahoma Quarter Horse Hall of Fame held its 16th annual convention and Hall of Fame inductions on January 24 at the Embassy Suites Medical Center.

Remington Park received the Equine Business/Ranches Quarter Horse Association, the show organization, and the Oklahoma Quarter Horse Racing Association, the racing

Remington Park, Oklahoma City's premier horse racing and casino entertainment venue, was built by the late Edward J DeBartolo, Sr, the shopping mall developer. He also owned Thistledown in Cleveland, Ohio, and Louisiana Downs in Bossier City, La. Remington Park officially opened on Sept. 1, 1988 and conducted its first American Quarter season of racing in the summer of 1989.

Remington Park has long been associated with championship racing, with superstars routinely beginning their careers here, while others found their top strides as older horses in Oklahoma City. Legendary runners like Refrigerator (bred and foaled by Sonny Vaughn, Sonny Vaughn Quarter Horses, Wayne, in 1988 then sold to James E Helzer, who won the All American Futurity with "Ole 'Frig" in 1990), Junos Request, Winalota Cash, SLM Big Daddy, Tailor Fit, Cold Cash 123, Jess Good Candy, Jessies First Down and many others have all established major stakes scores at Remington Park on their way to championship status.

The Quarter Horse racing season is in the first half of the year, normally beginning in early March and concluding by early June. This early start makes Remington Park a must destination for horsemen attempting to find the nest millionaire futurity horse and to ready their stables for rich racing opportunities in the second half of the year.

Trying times for horse racing in Oklahoma had Remington Park on the brink of closure in the early 2000s. Horsemen from both the racing and show arenas came together, held meetings and rallies all over Oklahoma, many of them organized by Purcell area horsemen and held at our own Expo Center, supporting State Question 712, which Award. The Oklahoma Quarter was overwhelmingly passed by Horse Hall of Fame is a collab- the great people of Oklahoma in orative event of the Oklahoma the November elections of 2004. Fame and honored for their State Question 712 allowed Remington Park to embrace casino gaming and to have a more level playing field for the entertainment gambling dollar in the state. Opening on November 21,2005, the Remington Park Casino expanded the track's business, which contributed to drastically increased horsemen's purses in all races there, provided millions in new revenue to the state and secured the future of horse racing and breeding operations in Oklahoma for generations to come. Had State Question 712 not passed, horse racing farms would have moved out of Oklahoma.

Remington Park is home to the first million-dollar futurity every year. The Heritage Place Futurity reached million-dollar status for the first time in 2008 and is run on the final day of the Quarter Horse season yearly. The Remington Park Futurity and Remington Park Derby became premier events for Oklahoma-bred horses in 2011 and 'quickly developed into the richest state-bred race series in America.

Newfound success led to new ownership for Remington Park when Global Gaming RP, a subsidiary of the Chickasaw Nation of Oklahoma, purchased the facility in 2009, beginning operation full-time in 2010. Owned for the first time by an Oklahoma entity, Remington Park experienced a reinvention with interior and exterior makeovers for the property, something that had not happened since the original opening.

Restaurant partnerships were formed to bring name-brand dining opportunities to the facility.

The up-close racing experience was enhanced with the plaza near the racetrack receiving aesthetic waterfalls and garden features and a 50-foot tall highdefinition super screen to offer everyone a better view of the

Accepting the award was Scott Wells, President and General Manager of Remington Park from March 2005 to present.

Inducted into the Hall of outstanding contributions to the American Quarter Horse and the Oklahoma Quarter Horse industry, along with Remington Park, which received the Equine Business/Ranches Award, were leading racing breeders and owners Melvin and Jackie Bollenbach, Bollenbach Farms, Oklahoma City; leading racing breeder and owner Charlie Claborn, Claborn Farms, Mustang; former AQHA and Oklahoma Quarter Horse Association President Mike Perkins, formerly of Owasso, Okla., now living in Bentonville, Ark.; plus horses Country Zevi, Golddust Dee Doc and Shawne Bug.

The Bud Breeding Oklahoma Spirit Award went to Primrose Cockrell, professional trainer for show horses and former Purcell area resident. Her biography and picture ran here last week.

Henry Walter Allen, III

Funeral services for Henry Walter Allen, III, 81, of Lexington were held Friday, February 28, 2019 at the Watts Memorial Chapel in Madill, Okla. with Brett Allen and Brenda Royals officiating. Interment was at the Woodberry-Forest > Cemetery in Madill under the direction of the Watts Funeral Home in Madill.

Henry Walter Allen, III, born January 19, 1939, to Leona Mae Allen and Henry Walter Allen, Jr. went home to be with his Lord and Savior Jesus Christ on February 24, 2020, at Norman Regional Hospital while surrounded by his loving family.

Walt, as he was affectionately known to all, graduated from Enid High School in 1958, where he was of course, the class clown. Following graduation, he entered the Marine Corp where he served his country performing in the intelligence field and worked his way to the rank of Corporal E-4. When telling his numerous stories from his Marine Corp days, he loved to tell everyone he was a "spy."

Walt married the love of his life Diane Soucek on March 2, 1963, and soon started a family. He began his career with GMAC, where he worked his way up to District Representative. In 1970, the family established roots in Madill, where Walt took a position as Finance and General Manager of Courtney Chevrolet.

Years later at the request of the town council, he applied for City Manager and began a new career path and found his calling. He retired after 34 years of City Management, serving 14 years for the City of Madill and 18 years for the City of Lexington. Walt served 11.5 years on the OMPA Board for the State of Oklahoma and was awarded the national Seven Hats Award for superior energy management.

Walt was a family man at heart and loved being surrounded by his family no matter what kind of situation, large or small. He cherished the family vacations with his children in his younger years and then grandchildren during his seasoned years. He loved taking four-wheeling trips to Little Sahara and Lake Murray.

He was also an avid fan of OU sports, especially OU women's basketball. But the thing he loved most was making people smile. We all know this from the crazy poems, jokes, and stories from his past.

Walt was proceeded in death by his parents, Henry and Leona Allen.

Walt is survived by his spouse, Diane Allen of Lexington, Okla.; son, Brett Allen and wife, Dawn, of Owasso, Okla.; daughter, Brenda Royals and husband, Drew, of Kansas City, Mo.; grandson, Dalton Royals of Kansas City, Mo.; granddaughters, Courtney Allen and Camryn Allen, both of Owasso, Okla.; sister, Joan Tinneman of Yukon, Okla.; nephews, Kirk Karrenbrock and wife, Cathy, of Highland Village, Texas, Tim Tinneman of Oklahoma City and Tom Tinneman of Blanchard, Okla.

Casket Bearers were Billy Allen, Jeff Robertson, Lonnie Holderman, Harry Grider, Justin Karrenbrock, Brandon Karrenbrock, Marc Pierce and Basil Savage Jr.

Condolences may be sent to wattsfuneralhome.com.

The couple moved to Midland, and then in 1974 to San Angelo, Texas.

An avid horsewoman, Sonnie shared her knowledge and skill with both daughters. She helped them learn to train horses for Western Pleasure, Showmanship, trail and other events from a very young age. Sonnie was a leader in 4-H, and was employed by the Texas A&M University Research Center. During that time, she continued to assist her daughters through many aspects of 4-H, as well as high school.

Sonnie and Chris were the "rocks" in their daughters lives. They attended every possible school, 4-H, and sporting event, often times being the sole parental representative of the entire team. Sonnie would write motivational poems and letters to share with team members and others prior to games and events. She was an exceptional writer, artist and played the piano. Sonnie's love of animals and kids continued in 4-H through 1989, when they moved to Goldsby, Oklahoma. She brought her animals with her and continued to raise and show horses until the present time.

Sonnie enjoyed her friends, and was active in her horse group, a bunco group, and working for several veterinarians at a clinic close to home. After a small stroke in 2010, she stopped working, but stayed engaged. Sonnie loved people, but due to her Alzheimer's, it became more and more difficult for her to communicate. This frustrated her tremendously, and even though she could not say the words, we know that she continued to have that same love for her family, her friends, and of course, her animals.

Sonnie was preceded in death by her parents, Dub and Ruby Hill; and her daughter, Dana Lea Olin.

Survivors include her husband, Chris of Goldsby; daughter, Krista Lynn Meeks, and husband, Danny, of Grandview, Texas; grandson, Payton Meeks and wife, Jessica, of Waterloo, Ill.; granddaughter, Karlie Meeks and fiancé, Colter Sexton, of Diamond, Mo., and brother, Butch Hill of Sapulpa, Okla.

The Lex boys' lost to the Class 3A No. 15 Purcell Dragons, 63-23, at Purcell last Thursday.

On Friday night, the Dawgs traveled to Jones, where they beat the Washington Warriors, 52-36.

Lexington ended its season at 11-15 with a 52-43 defeat at the hands of the Jones Longhorns inside Jones' gym.

"Purcell played hard," Lexington head coach J.D. Beck said of the Purcell contest. "They just came out and hit us in the mouth - hard! We just fell down and had a tough time getting back up."

Purcell held the lead the entire game and never gave Lexington any breathing

Jaylen Cottrell and Josiah Dawley were the 'Dawgs' top scorers, each with just six points.

But, Beck's team held its collective chin up and proceeded to Jones to face the Warriors the next night. The result was a 52-36 win over Washington, who ended the season 11-15.

"We knew that because of the way we played last night (against Purcell) that people were going to put pressure on us," Beck said on Friday after playing Washington. "We went into this game tonight knowing how to handle it. Early on, we started off slowly.

style of basketball."

Beck had praise for several players after the victory over Washington.

"I'm proud of Heath Winterton and Teagin Pruitt for the way they handled the pressure late in the game," Beck said. "I'm also proud of Colton Penner and Josiah Dawley for really coming through down low for us.

"Everybody seemed to be calm and collected - making sure we made good passes and got the ball down the court against Washington tonight. In the game of basketball, you have to find a way to fight adversity. I think after the Purcell game last night, we did a good job of fighting adversity tonight."

Last Saturday night, Lexington was hoping for one more win to send them to the Area tournament. But, the 'Dawgs were denied by the Longhorns.

Penner had 11 points for Lexington while Cottrell had 10, Dawley had nine, and Muniz had seven on the score sheet.

"Jones was the second time for us playing a team here in the playoffs inside their own gym,"

Beck said. "We would have liked to have gone on a different path."

Beck is proud of his team at season's end. This year's squad made improvement for the third year in a row under Beck's tutelage.

"I can't say enough about being around such great kids," Beck said. "I've never been one to worry about the wins and losses. For me, the willingness of the kids to work and get better at the game has been phenomenal. Things got but they knew how to rebound and, at the end of the third quarfrom adversity throughout the season."

Girls

The Lexington girls' team beat Purcell, 42-37, last Thursday at Purcell as Lauren Beason scored a team-high 14 points Lexington 42 and Amanda Graddy added 10 for the Lady 'Dawgs.

But, things fell apart against Lexington ....... 11 10 7 14—42 Jones the next night inside Jones' gymnasium.

The Lady Longhorns simply annihilated the Lady 'Dawgs, 72-26, with a beating that Lexington hasn't endured in quite some time.

Jones came out with an 18-9 first-quarter lead. The 'Horns

Dragons:

The Dragons came up on the enville game, all in the first short end of the stick at the free throw line where the Bobcats shot 19 charity tosses to only six for Purcell, who made all but one. Star Spencer made 12, more than making up the difference in the game.

"We really battled Saturday night,"head coach Roger Raper said. "It wasn't always pretty but we battled.

"They are a very difficult match up but we were in the game to the end," Raper continued.

"This team continues to fight each night and that will be needed this week in the Area Championships. One game at a time and leave everything on the court. We look forward to the challenge."

Browning connected on three buckets from beyond the arc, a number matched by Nation in the first quarter of first round of the Regional Tournament in a 63-23 dismantling of Lexington.

Nation made four treys on the night and led all scorers with 20 points.

After leading 31-16 at halftime, the Dragons really turned up the defensive pressure and pulled away with a 25-4 fourth period.

In that quarter, Nation splashed a trey, scoring five points in the frame. Jorge Sotelo scored five of his seven points and Browning and Willis both scored six in the quarter.

For the game, Willis finished with a dozen and Browning chipped in 10 in the lopsided victory.

"I am super proud of our guys. We brought an incredible amount of energy against Lexington," the coach confirmed. "We played with energy like that all summer long. It was great to see.

Raper said the last two weeks of practice have been extremely good for the Dragons, who will take a 20-5 record into the Area Tournament. Comanche is 13-14 on the season.

Purcell's girls bowed out of post season play after losing to Lexington in the District Tournament, 42-37 and 47-34 to Holdenville in the first round of the Regional Tournament.

Alicia Baker and Emily Madden were both in double figures against Lexington with 15 and 12 respectively.

Purcell would close the gap on the Lady Bulldogs but were never able to get over the hump. Despite fouling out, Baker scored 11 points in the Hold-quarter. The Dragons were led by Kora Keith's 15 points that led all scorers.

After an opening quarter of 16 points to match Holdenville, Purcell cooled off and only scored 18 points the remainder of the contest.

"We looked tired and just didn't have the energy we normally bring," head coach David Sikes said. "We hated to end the season playing like that but we are proud of this team and how far they have come."

Purcell finished 15-10 on the year.

Congratulations to our Veteran of the Week, Tom Isaacs of Prague. Mr. Isaacs served in the Korean War as a member of the United States Army. Thank you for your service and sacrifice, Mr. Isaacs, and thank you for serving our great nation.

Graham Veterans Foundation is one of 21 Oklahoma organizations that are finalists for a $10,000 award and are competing for the title of Oklahoma's top non-profit for the Oklahoma Non-profit Excellence (ONE) Awards, presented annually by the Oklahoma Center for Nonprofits. Although most of those who visit us are from one of the 77 counties in our state, we usually have veterans from 7-10 states represented each week. The men and women veterans who visit us know that we are only interested in helping them receive the VA benefits they are eligible for. We did have our first veteran Mission Friends (Pre-K and from Canada visit us last week for assistance with his application to increase the ratings on his service-connected disabilities. The largest number of veterans we see are from Oklahoma with Texas being in second place with 40-50 from their state visiting us each week. If other organizations used our system of filing only evidenced-based claims for veterans, I doubt if we would see so many from other places.

Last week 39 veterans were rated at the 100 percent rate and will receive a combined annual $1,345,706. Seventythree veterans received ratings between 10-90 percent. This group of veterans will receive a combined yearly of $1,379,706. Two surviving spouses were awarded benefits totaling $32,170 a year.

We are in the process of adding more volunteers to our second shift to enable us to increase the number of veterans and surviving spouses we can accommodate each day. If you would like to join our team of volunteers, please stop by for a volunteer application. A background check with OSBI is required.

The Foundation is excited to partner with the Oklahoma Dental Foundation in providing free dental care for veterans. The mobile dental clinic will be onsite and will see patients on April 6-9. The Knowledge of Good and Evil the first woman. And in the Garden where they lived, there were two trees near the centerone was the tree of eternal life and the other was the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. As long as Adam and Eve would not eat of the fruit of either of these trees, they would be like God. They would live forever.

But they disobeyed God. When Adam and Eve chose to eat the fruit of the knowledge of good and evil, they lost eternal life. They were cast out of the Garden. For the rest of their lives, they would have to choose between good and evil, what is morally right and what is morally wrong.

The story shows us what it means to be human. We humans are not like God. But we are not like the animals either. Animals live only by instinct. But we have the power to choose between what is right and what is wrong. As we grow in our faith and love of God, we see more clearly the difference between what is right and what a conscience.

Lent. Lent is the time in which we are making the choice be- come from the heart, and they Facebook.

God created the first man and tween right and wrong, good and evil.

There is a difference between sin and sinfulness. Sin is an act that we do that is an offense against God or our neighbor. But sinfulness is a state of being, an orientation that is away from love of God and love of neighbor.

If I miss Mass (or my church service) on Sunday only because I slept late in the morning, then I have committed a sin – a single act for which I can express my sorrow and ask forgiveness. It is not grave, not serious. It is simply a blip in the positive pattern of my life.

But if I continue to miss church on Sunday because I am selfish-I prefer to go shopping, for example – or because I have forgotten that the blessings of my life have come from God, then I have fallen into sinfulness. This is a state of being, and I need to receive the grace of forgiveness in a more formal way, such as the sacrament of confession.

Lent is a time of conversion. is wrong. We say that we form We shine a bright light upon our lives. This light reveals the This is a good story with darkness of our sin that keeps which to begin the season of us from happiness with God.

But the Catechism reminds us that the heart is also the font of charity. From the heart come the riches of goodness and light. (CCC, No. 1853)

Man does not live on bread alone. We need the knowledge of good and evil in order to live as true human beings. Come, let us turn to the Lord with all our heart and all our soul and all our mind as we choose the good over the evil.

Thursday, March 5, we are celebrating Mass with the Anointing of the Sick. Every Friday during Lent we are sharing a meager meal at 6 p.m., followed by a discussion of the pastoral letter on evangelization and the Stations of the Cross. All are welcome to join us!

We welcome all visitors to our services! Our weekly Mass schedule is Saturday at 5 p.m. (English), Sunday at 11 a.m. (English) and 1 p.m. (Spanish).

We won't have to cross Jordan alone!

things I've ever heard was when my first cousin Janice came to me and told me about her mama's final day. "You know, Steve," she said, "the last thing Mom asked for was for somebody to bring the paper to her so she could read your column."

I had to pause and take in a deep breath at that one. It's true, you know: You never know who's watching, listening - or reading.

I hadn't thought of that story for a long time, until I came to a section in a book we're writing based on the book of Joshua. Perhaps I should say that we are writing stories based on the old Jordan River, because we're spending most of our deliberations on one side of the river or the other.

You probably remember a hundred songs from ages past about the symbolism of the ol' Jordan – "On Jordan's stormy banks I stand and cast a wistful eye ..." - and you know well that the old rolling stream running through Palestine is a great symbol for the Christian's crossing over into heaven's Canaan-land.

It has been a blessing to pause lately to stand over by that river and draw as much inspiration as we can from its picturesque. Of course, if we plough through life a hundred miles an hour, we likely will never get a sense of how it will be at that crossing. We'll never be able to imagine what that closing sunlit hour will be like when we stand by the that a thing cannot be true if singing out a most beautiful welcome to us.

Once when I referred to such a scene, a gentleman who professes to be a Christian said to me, "How do you know the angels come?" That question surprised me, even as I am sure it does you. I am a little shocked to write it, because it is the first time I've penned the careless question.

How could anyone - a Christian, nonetheless – take issue with the belief that the angels will gather around us at that hour and, I am sure, make that river crossing as peaceful and gentle as floating into a sweet

But you know, I've learned something through the years, most of it from those blessed red-clay guides who knew they had nothing better to hold onto than an unshakeable faith.

One thing I've learned, though, is that God's Word will always step in and settle every matter. When you come to such questions, remember that it is no time for lengthy speeches. The beautiful writer Luke in his gospel settles the issue with just a passing thought, in just two seconds. He notes matterof-factly that at the death of the beggar Lazarus the angels carried him to Abraham's bosom. With it said, Luke moves on.

Perhaps skeptics don't slow down their freeway-speed intellectual thoughts long enough to catch the beautiful scenery just outside the window. Or perhaps they figure

One of the most humbling river and listen to the angels they cannot conceive it in a feeble mind of clay. How could unseen angels, they may think, steal our departing spirits away and transport them to heaven's grand paradise – and nobody, even once, ever see it happen?

Some people, truly, need to stand down by that old Jordan and look across to the other side a great deal more. If they did, perhaps their faith would grow outside of infancy and mature into something greater, more powerful, and fonder. And perhaps they would have just a little bit more of something of substance to grasp when the time comes that they themselves must brush the dew on old Jordan's banks.

No, I never know who will be reading what I write on any given Saturday morning, even as I do not this morning. I learned that lesson humbly long ago. But I hope that, wherever you are in life, that you'll keep these thoughts close to you all along the way.

Oh, no, I cannot deny that the old Jordan is deep, and I know she is awfully wide. Her raging tide is swelling, and the roar of her waves can easily make us shiver in fear.

But as wide as she is - as deep, powerful, and raging -I want you to know that the Christian need not fear. You see, you won't have to worry, because you won't have to brave her swelling tide – and you'll never have to cross her raging billows-alone.~Steven Ray Bowen

Our next Food Bank Give- hundreds of years. Away will be Saturday, March 21, between 12 and 4 p.m. As always, it is firstcome, first-served, and there is plenty for all! The Food Give Away is always on the third Saturday of the month, so put it on your calendar. The following day, Sunday, March 22, we have a free breakfast, so bring your appetite and join us for food and fellowship!

This past Sunday we were blessed by guest speaker, Mark Harvey, who spoke to us about Jesus' time in the wilderness. This is referred to in the following gospels: Matt 4:1-11, Mark 1:12-13, and Luke 4:1-13. The shortest reading (from the book of Mark) states that Jesus was "driven" into the wilderness, while the other two refers to Jesus being "led" into the wilderness to be tested by Satan.

This place where Jesus stayed for more than a month is believed to be in the mountains near Jericho. This place is a bleak and rocky area of caves where people had gone to meditate and be alone for sought God's direction in dedirectly at (405) 406-6174.

We often think that Jesus carried out his mission with no questioning. However, we have to remember that he was not only the son of God but also fully human. My thought is that Jesus was driven into the desert because he was reluctant to begin his ministry at that time.

Just before this, Jesus had been baptized in the Jordan River by John the Baptist. His intimate relationship with God didn't necessarily mean that Jesus didn't have to pray and meditate on the path in fulfilling his earthly purpose. He had to decide the direction God wanted him to take in his ministry. Maybe Jesus felt a need to contemplate how to begin this mission.

Fasting has been a common way to concentrate on prayer and devotion to God for thousands of years. Humans can live without food for around three days, but we can't live without water for very long. Because of his long fast, Jesus was open and vulnerable, both physically and mentally. Jesus ciding how to being.

Sensing a possible victory over someone who was weak and hungry, Satan attacked and tried to get Jesus to be the wrong kind of Savior. He tempted Him with pride, power, and popularity, yet Jesus stood strong in the Word of God and did not give into these temptations.

Jesus answered every attack by quoting Scripture written during the time when the Israelites were in the desert (on their way to the Promised Land).

In this season of Lent, we remember this incident early in Jesus' ministry. He overcame all three challenges levelled by Satan/the Devil by citing scripture to the Devil at which point Satan left Jesus, angels ministered to Jesus, and Jesus began his ministry.

The burns over some 60 percent of her body required a three month stay in a hospital and many painful days of recovery.

One day Virginia saw Jesus at the foot of her bed. He didn't say a word, but Virginia promised if she survived, she would spend the remainder of her life dedicated to God. Virginia recovered from her burns and she has kept her promise of being faithful to the Lord.

The second beautiful story was told Sunday at Westbrook by Alma Huddleston. Alma was persuaded by Pat Connors, the owner of the local funeral home, to open a flower shop at Sparlin's Motors when Pat about by our salvation. Connors came in to tell her he had a job for her.

against being hearers of the Word and not doers of good works. The first step is recognizing the problem. The second step is correcting the problem. The doing takes more time and effort than listening and observing. Doing God's work takes verbal action and physical action. Attending church services, praying, singing praises and fellowship with our brothers and sisters is vitally important, but the real work begins at the exit when the church doors swing open and we step out into the world in service to our Lord.

Jesus saw the needs of mankind. Jesus heard the sobbing pleas of mankind. Jesus knew what His Father wanted and went straight to work carrying out his commission.
