A grinding five vehicle pile up on Interstate 35 Friday morning resulted in the death of a Nichols Hills man and the interstate being closed for over five hours.

The Oklahoma Highway Patrol reported Joshua Leffler, 35, of Nichols Hills was killed when a 2011 International driven by Jonathan Postal, 66, of Foley, MO, struck his 2017 Ford 150 Raptor.

Trooper Mat Conway said after the collision Leffler fell out of his vehicle.

from the weather." If you'd rather not turn the tree into a bird feeder, check with your community about a tree recycling program. Trees are collected and turned into mulch for plants in community parks and gardens.

If you enjoyed seeing the birds around the old Christmas tree, when spring arrives, consider planting a few evergreens such as cherry laurel, wax myrtle, holly, cedar or pine to provide more permanent protection for the bird population in years to come.

Adding evergreens to your backyard also gives birds a place to duck for cover from predators such has hawks. An added bonus is some of these evergreens provide berries, which are a much-needed food source when other foods are hard to find. However, you can still add food sources to these new trees in your landscape.

"Christmas trees bring a lot of joy to families and it's a shame this joy is relatively short-lived," Hillock said. "Recycling your tree into a bird feeder is just one way to extend that joy and happiness a little longer.

"Keep in mind that even if you've already disposed of your Christmas tree, you can still decorate an existing tree in your yard with edible ornaments. The birds and other critters will appreciate it."

With six to eight people in his immediate family suffering from COVID-19 it's pretty easy to understand why Purcell Mayor Ted Cox is talking about a mask mandate for the city.

Cox told me privately recently the council was going to address the issue.

Sure enough they did discuss it in open meeting Monday evening at the Community Room of the Police Service Building.

The council, less the quarantined Graham Fishburn, all seemed in agreement to proceed with allowing city attorney Ted Haxel to draw up such a resolution.

It wouldn't be that big of a stretch for many who are already wearing a face covering when attending school, church or going to the grocery store.

He just figured Santa would automatically come if the tree was in the living room.

At the cost of a little more than the price of a single ticket at the theater, you can pay for a month of HBO and watch their latest film as many times as you want in the comfort of your own home.

I suppose I should mention a slight caveat though.

With this hybrid model, each of these movies released to HBO Max will only be available on the platform for one month. Afterwards they'll leave the platform, but continue to play theatrically.

So in the case of "Wonder Woman 1984," I assume you'll have until January 25 to watch it before it'll leave the service, and afterwards your only

More than mask wearing

Dear John D.:

Yeah, it's been a real bummer to have to wear a mask. Missing out on attending weddings and high school football games is devastating. And let's not mention – as you didn't – the families of 275,000 dead people who are thinking that if most of us had donned masks and worn them consistently then their loved ones might have lived to celebrate Christmas 2020.

Adding to the truly abhorrent and socialist view that we should do unto others as we would have them do unto us by wearing a mask to protect all of us, is your concern about the United States descending into collective or governmental ownership and administration of the means of production and distribution of goods (Merriam-Webster's definition of socialism) because we elected Joe Biden, the well-known radical leftist who has not once in 47 years advocated the overthrow a national election, but certainly is exhibiting strange conciliatory tendencies such as saying he wants his cabinet to reflect the makeup of America and publically stating he would not prosecute his political opponents nor recommend taking anybody out at dawn and shooting them. Yeah, now we are in real trouble.

It's really great that your office is right next to the Veterans monument. You can walk out there and look at all the names of our friends and family members who fought against socialism. You know how many there are? None. Nary a single one.

Do you know how many fought against fascism? Every man and woman who sacrificed for us in World War I and World War II, fighting to eliminate those embracing the political philosophy that exalts nation and race above the individual and standing for a centralized autocratic government headed by a dictatorial leader, severe economic and social regimentation, and forcible suppression of opposition (Merriam-Webster's definition of fascism). Wow, sounds sinisterly familiar.

So what about all those anti-fascist veterans commemorated next door at the memorial? Are we cherishing their sacrifice and breathing a sigh of relief that we may have just avoided becoming a fascist nation? Or were they all suckers and losers? Because, you know, wearing a mask is so much harder that taking incoming enemy artillery on Omaha Beach or at the Battle of Midway.

Reflections on Pearl Harbor

Congressman Tom Cole

This week marks 79 years since the devastating surprise attack at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, which former President Franklin D. Roosevelt called "the date which will live in infamy." It was this event that officially drew the United States into the Second World War.

As we remember the 2,403 innocent Americans lost that day at Pearl Harbor, we also gratefully reflect on the millions more who courageously joined together to defend the United States and our allies and ultimately end the WWII conflict nearly four years later.

When I think about the American losses at Pearl Harbor, I am always reminded of the battleship in the bay that proudly bore the name "U.S.S. Oklahoma."

As you might know, this ship was one of the first struck unexpectedly by Japanese torpedoes, the force of which caused the ship to roll over and sink deep into the harbor. Hundreds of service members were trapped in the overturned wreckage.

while others swam out to safety.

Sadly, despite the daring efforts of Navy Yard employees and sailors to save their fellow service members, the damage was staggering. Aboard the U.S.S.Oklahoma, 429 marines and sailors were lost – a death toll second only to the losses of the U.S.S. Arizona.

Moved by the compelling accounts of survivors more than five decades after the U.S.S. Oklahoma was destroyed, an effort was rightly initiated to preserve and honor the memory of the ship and its crew by creating a memorial.

As part of that process, 15 years ago, I was proud to insert language in the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) that authorized construction of this memorial at Pearl Harbor, which was officially opened to visitors 13 years ago this week. While we reflect on the tremendous bravery and sacrifice of Americans at Pearl Harbor, during World War II and other conflicts throughout our nation's history, we are reminded of the ongoing need to prioritize a strong national defense in

Some were able to be cut free order to keep the United States and its citizens safe.

A critical component includes passing the NDAA. This annual legislation authorizes funding for our national defense, including the programs and resources needed to keep our nation safe and to support our men and women in uniform. As the home to several military installations, our state certainly recognizes the importance of providing for a strong national defense. Thanks to the incredible leadership of Oklahoma's own Senator Jim Inhofe, I am encouraged that both chambers of Congress are closing in on approving a final version of NDAA for this year and sending it to the president's desk. As Chairman of the Senate Armed Service Committee, he certainly understands what we have faced in the past and the importance of strengthening our nation's military readiness into the future.

I will continue to work with him to support the interests and needs of the nation's active duty service members, military families, retirees and Department of Defense workers.

Still, that's a whole month started to become possible. where you can watch a new for only $15. Not a bad deal, especially for families or for shut-ins like I've become for to this film, "Mank." the past nine months.

But as good as this news is for movie fans, I can't help but worry about the ever worsening ly accurate portrayal of events, outlook for theaters.

Even if they do deliver a better movie watching experience, I can't imagine many people passing up a deal like HBO Max to watch new Warner Bros. films. Especially with the ongoing pandemic getting worse and worse by the day.

Even after a vaccine is successfully deployed, will most people even want to go to theaters after being able to watch nearly every new movie from home?

Will studios want to deal with theaters if this business model proves successful?

Heck, will theaters even be able to survive the next six months with so few people going to the movies?

I suppose only time will tell. As of now though, the future for theaters doesn't look terribly bright.

Speaking of the death of cinema, this week I saw two movies which would have seen a wide theatrical release any other year, but instead made their way to Netflix and Amazon Prime Video.

The first is the story behind later. the screenplay "Citizen Kane," a movie which is now considered by many to be one of the best films of all time. Plus a film about a musician who suddenly becomes deaf and is forced to cope with the aftermath.

Verde Ranch outside of Los Angeles. While resting there, he begins work for a young Orson Welles (Tom Burke), writing the script for "Citizen Kane," a film that will eventually be considered one of the greatest movies of all time.

While writing, Mank reminisces about his time at William Randolph Hearst's estate where he becomes friends with rising starlet Marion Davies (Amanda Seyfried) and works with legendary movie moguls David O. Selznick (Toby Leonard Moore) and Louis B. Mayer (Arliss Howard). Experiences which find their way into his upcoming screenplay.

This right here is the movie companion I wish I could have had when I first watched "Citizen Kane" over a decade ago.

For those who haven't heard of the film, "Citizen Kane" is quite simply one of the most revered movies in cinematic history.

Whenever people compile ers believe. lists of "the greatest films of all time," it's a movie that is inevitably added to the mix. Both for the quality of the film itself, and for its influence on cinema as a whole.

From the movie's nonlinear storytelling, to its use of cinematography, and even the special effects. The techniques used in "Citizen Kane" weren't necessarily invented by its filmmakers, but it is arguably the first movie to combine them all into one film.

Even today, nearly 80 years later, the movie still holds up quite well. The methods used might seem unremarkable option to see the film will be and commonplace by today's chronic alcoholism. in theaters. At least until the standards, but you have to movie eventually releases on remember this film came out video-on-demand and blu-ray. about a decade after "talkies"

The fact that it holds up at all "theatrical release" at home is a testament to the talented people behind it.

Which I suppose brings me

While not a complete picture about the production of "Citizen Kane," or even a historicalit did give me something I felt like I was sorely lacking while watching the classic 1941 film all those years ago.

Context.

Perhaps I'm in the minority here, but when it comes to 1930-40s political and cinematic history, I'm about as useless as it gets.

Sure, I know the broad strokes and some of what lead to World War II, but I barely know anyone outside major world leaders and I certainly didn't know much about the people involved in producing the media of that period.

And this is where the inspiration of Charles Foster Kane comes from. The main character in "Citizen Kane" is based, in part, upon American media barons like William Randolph

Hearst may have been a recognizable figure at the time of the release of "Citizen Kane" due to his political aspirations and his ownership of dozens of U.S. newspapers, but someone like me would completely miss the obvious reference decades

That's what I love about this movie. It made me want to know more about this era.

While watching the film, I must have paused it at least every five minutes, just to look up someone's name, what they were known for, and to see how bling, let's get to the week's they connected to each other.

> It really makes for an excellent learning opportunity, even if the movie does play fast and loose with some of the facts, the most noticeably Mank's political leanings.

While Mank is writing the screenplay for what would become "Citizen Kane," the film frequently flashes back man), a.k.a. to the 1930s.

This includes interacting at the North with Hearst, his mistress I still felt a little lost at times. Marion Davies, of whom Mank becomes fast friends with, plus the studio heads at MGM.

> These dealings also include a subplot surrounding the 1934 California gubernatorial election between Frank Merriam, a Republican, and Upton Sinclair, a Democratic who was a member of the Socialist Party right up until this campaign.

In the movie, MGM and its executives are hellbent on keeping Sinclair from winning, causing a rift between the studio and Mank.

This is where the film likely veers the most from the truth.

Because while it is factual that MGM produced a number of pseudo-newsreel propaganda films, created to smear Sinclair and his campaign, it seems unlikely that Mank felt nearly as sympathetic to the former Socialist candidate as this movie would claim and he definitely didn't get as involved as this story would have view-

This is an inaccuracy I can mostly forgive, since it does lead to the film having a more cohesive and satisfying narrative. Still, I do have to admit being somewhat disappointed by how dramatically this film strays from the truth.

On the positive side of things though, the performances in "Mank" are universally fantastic all around.

Gary Oldman rarely disappoints, and he certainly doesn't here, portraying the film's title character as eccentric and incredibly likeable despite his many debilitating flaws including a gambling addiction and

For her part, Amanda Seyfried was effortlessly charming as Marion Davies. She truly encapsulates the persona of the jetsetting Hollywood star during its golden age.

Though Davies and Mank never have anything remotely resembling a romantic relationship, the two of them have a wonderful chemistry whenever they're on screen together. Like two familiar cogs in the Hollywood machine, always happy to enjoy the other's company whenever they happen to cross paths with one another.

Beyond the acting, this movie is painstakingly crafted to capture the aesthetic of this bygone Hollywood era.

No detail was too small for filmmaker David Fincher.

Everything from audio, which was purposefully degraded to sound more analog, to the picture quality, which is black and white and filled with classic film imperfections, including the old cue marks which would signal to the projectionist that a film reel was at its end.

Heck, everytime the film flashes back to the 30s, the establishing text on screen telling the audience where and when this scene is taking place is actually seemingly written on a typewriter, formatted exactly how it would be in a movie's screenplay.

probably comes across as a little pretentious, but I appreciate the effort nonetheless.

To be clear, while I did enjoy this movie, I really don't think I'd recommend "Mank" outside of cinephile circles.

Unless you're really a student of 1930-40s history, this film will likely seem like a barrage of names and events that come and go in a flash. Things that this movie often doesn't intend to explain whatsoever.

Unless you're willing to stop frequently and do a little research on the side, like I did, it's likely you'll end up lost under a sea of references, with little context to make sense of everything.

Heck, even with 20 plus tabs open on my web browser, each with a different article about a film this week is "Sound of Metal."

During a series of adrenalinefueled onenight gigs, punk-metal drummer Ruben (Riz Ahmed) begins to experience intermittent hearing loss. When a specialist tells him his condition will rapidly worsen, he thinks his music career, and his life, is over.

His bandmate and girlfriend Lou (Olivia Cooke) checks the recovering heroin addict into a secluded sober house for the deaf in hopes it will prevent a relapse and help him learn to adapt to his new situation. But after being welcomed into a community that accepts him just as he is, Ruben has to choose between his equilibrium and the drive to reclaim the life he once knew.

While it might not be quite as common as I'd like, I am very fortunate to watch a number of unquestionably excellent films every year.

Most are filled with incredible performances, captivating characters, and compelling narratives that keep me entranced from beginning to end.

To be very up front, "Sound of Metal" contains all three of those elements in spades.

However, as many great movies as I've seen, few have ever delivered anything like the sensory sensation I experienced while watching this film.

I don't like to throw this phrase around flippantly, so trust me when I say that this movie is truly a work of art. It's kind of a no-brainer when you think about the premise, but it's the sound design that really sets this movie apart. This film makes the audience experience hearing, or the lack thereof, in such a shockingly realistic way, I was blown away. While I myself haven't quite experienced the same level of hearing loss of Riz Ahmed's character Ruben, I do have a left ear that does oddly stay clogged, except for on rare occasions. So from my limited experience, hearing loss isn't like a switch that suddenly turns off all noise going in your ear holes. It's more like the sound around you is just harder to make sense of.

You can still hear people around you talking, but the voices are harder to separate in your head, and unless you're looking at someone's lips it's a lot harder to make sense of what they're saying.

This is the experience this It's all very nerdy, and it film nails. Honestly, it's kind of uncanny in how accurate it all feels.

> The movie often alters the audio, making you suddenly hear the world just as Ruben does, muffled and utterly incomprehensible, enhancing the isolated feeling that can only come from the loss of a basic sense.

And just as true to life is Ruben's response to his sudden condition.

Exactly like when I have a clogged ear, Ruben goes through all the usual steps of attempting to fix his ears. He tries rubbing the area around his ear, holding his nose and blowing, and popping his jaw. All to no success.

This is when the panic begins to set in. After all, losing your hearing would be devastating person who appears in the film, to anyone, but it would be an absolute nightmare as a musi-

> Riz Ahmed embodies this man who's just had his life completely turned upside down to perfection.

The emotions on display here are exactly what I imagine "Mank" is rated R and is many of us would feel placed in Ruben's position.

> There's a raw frustration and The other outright anger at his circumstances. Not only is he out of a career as a drummer, but he can't even communicate with his girlfriend without her writing everything down.

Though not quite as frequently featured in the film, Olivia Cooke does quite well in the few scenes she has, nailing the more difficult emotional moments.

Frankly though, the other main actor that stood out to me beyond Rizhad to be Paul Raci, who plays Ruben's mentor at a community for deaf people.

As far as I can tell, Paul hasn't had many major roles in movies beyond this one, but considering Paul is the son of two deaf parents, this seems like a case of inspired casting. Not only is the man completely fluent in American Sign Language, but he also brings a genuine sense of compassion for a musician like Ruben who just lost his hearing, as the actor himself is a musician.

All these elements combined made for a beautiful, if occasionally bittersweet, experience that placed me firmly in the shoes of the main character like few films I've seen before

If this movie doesn't at least earn an Oscar nomina-

Exrtra care needed for fresh trees

Brenda Hill Extension Educator

Did you know when cared for properly, real trees are less of a fire risk than artificial trees? It's true!

Newsmakers

a fun, family tradition that makes memories to last a lifetime. And if you choose a pine, spruce, fir or juniper, they will make your house smell like Christmas, too! That's a quality you don't get Leyland cypress is not aromatic. If you plan to have a real tree this year, be sure to observe some safety rules. John Kushla, MSU Extension forestry specialist, explains how to care for your real tree so that it does not become a fire hazard.

- Put the tree in water as soon as you get home
- Make a fresh cut. Remove at least 1 inch from the base of the trunk before placing it in the tree stand.
- Use a tree stand that holds 1-2 gallons of water. The tree needs 1 quart of water per inch of diameter.

Fill the stand daily, checking the water level several times a day. This recipe from the U.S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service will help keep the tree fresh and fire resistant.

- Keep the tree out of direct sunlight and away from heat sources, such as fireplaces, heaters, and stoves.
- Decorate your tree with LED or mini lights. Inspect used decorative lights to make sure wires are in good condition with no cracks or frays.

If you don't live near a Christmas tree farm, you can find real trees at many different retailers. When buying one of these trees, be sure the tree is not already dried out. Dropped needles at the base of the tree is a good sign the tree is already dry.

Another way to tell is to grab a branch and pull your hand toward yourself. If the needles come off, the tree is dry. You can also bend a twig to see if it snaps.

If any of the checking methods from above occur, it is best to try and find another tree or tree lot.

Home in Purcell.

Wanette, Oklahoma, one of 10 children of Harold and Celestia (Reynolds) Caskey. She was raised on a farm in Wanette and attended school there graduating with the Tiger's class of 1962. She was a star basketball player for the Wanette Tiger basketball team starting all four years of high school and actually joined the high school team when she was in the eighth grade.

After graduating from high school, she attended the Norman Business School where she obtained her Associates Degree in Business.

On May 22, 1965, she married Richard Melot and to this union, two children, daughter Lisa and son John were born. They first made their home in Humeston, Iowa, before moving back to Oklahoma. They lived in Owasso and Norman for a few years, before purchasing a farm two miles east of Lexington.

Jane worked as a bank teller for a time and later at a doctor's office. The family purchased a gas station in Norman and she assisted with the daily books and bank deposits.

Jane's greatest joy in life was serving her family. She was an outstanding cook and served a four-course dinner every night as well as being a short order cook at a moment's notice. She was an immaculate house cleaner and every time you entered the house it was not uncommon for the dishwasher, washer, dryer, vacuum cleaner and dust buster to be running simultaneously. People often joked that you could eat off the floors in her house because it was so clean.

Her favorite time of year was the holidays. She cooked the traditional meals, but she made outstanding Christmas candy and deserts. She made enough candy to feed an army. She loved hosting and entertaining family and friends. She always greeted everyone with a smile and served everyone that walked through the door.

She enjoyed traveling and sports. She even coached Lisa's softball team and attended all of Lisa and John's sporting events. She went to every OSU sporting event she could attend. She loved to play cards, especially spades and bridge. She hosted a weekly card game at her house with her fellow members of the Bethel Baptist Senior Choir.

Her greatest, most joyful calling in life was to be a grandmother. When Meagan and Zack were born, she beamed with pride and spoiled them like no other. It gave her a new purpose that added years to her life. She was affectionately called "Grandma Jane."

She loved her brothers, sisters, nieces, and nephews. They all worked hard growing up on the family farm in Wanette and she truly loved visiting the family at numerous gatherings and working in a game of spades or two...or maybe 100!

She was the best daughter, mother, grandmother, sister, aunt and friend you could ask for. She had a big heart and was always pleasant to be around. Her spirit was pure gold like no other. Her smile and her laugh will be missed fore by all. We were all truly blessed by God to know her.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Harold and Celestia Caskey and sisters, Sue Dickerson and Patricia Caskey. Jane is survived by her daughter, Lisa Andrews and husband, Rodney Andrews, of Purcell; son, John Melot of Norman; four sisters, Linda Davis and husband, Steve, of Valdosta, Ga., Kathy Starkey and husband, Kenneth, of Norman, Mary Pitts of Norman and Alice Sweeten and husband, Bill, of Ada; three brothers, Wendell Caskey and wife, Gail, of Lexington, Leon Caskey of Purcell and Billy Bob Caskey and wife, Nila, of Wanette; two grandchildren, Meagan Klein and husband, Justin, of Manhattan, Kan., and Zackery Andrews of Purcell; two great-grandchildren, Bennett and Sutton Klein and a host of other nieces, nephews, family and friends.

Dale Edward Huffman

Dale Edward Huffman was born March 28, 1941 in Los Angeles, California. He left this earth for his heavenly home on December 5, 2020 at Southwest Community Hospital in Oklahoma City.

Dale spent his early years in California, but the family moved to Oklahoma when he was 10 years old. They settled east of Norman where he attended Norman Public Schools, graduating from Norman High School in 1959.

Dale joined the U.S. Air Force in 1959 and retired after 24 years in 1983 as a Chief Master Sgt. He then became a civilian employee working at Tinker Air Force Base and retiring from there as well. Dale served active duty and in three tours of Vietnam and was a proud Vietnam Veteran.

Dale married Linda McCalip Hinkle, the love of his life on December 12, 1981. He lovingly referred to her as his "Slaughterville Queen" throughout their marriage. They lived in Noble briefly after marrying, while building a home on the childhood family land that Dale was raised on. In 1983, they moved into their new home and continued to live there for 36 years. A few years ago, taking care of all the land became too much, and they moved to Newcastle in 2019. They lived there until his passing.

Dale was an avid outdoorsman and always loved to hunt, fish, raise a garden and "tinker around." He had a hunting cabin that he loved to go to each year and take his son, grandsons and friends to hunt. He also loved to watch old Western movies (while chewing his tobacco) and Sooner

As members of Bethel Baptist Church in Norman for 30+ years, Dale and Linda both taught Sunday school. Dale was also a volunteer for many years at both the Oklahoma Juvenile Center in Norman and with the Prison Ministry.

Memorial services for Garland Hope Jr., 77, of Purcell will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, December 18, 2020 at the Wilson-Little Funeral Home Chapel. Services will be under the direction of the Wilson-Little Funeral Home in Purcell.

Mr. Hope was born July 18, 1943 in Oklahoma City. He was born on the same date and time of day as his father. He was the oldest of three children born to Judge Garland and Juanita Hope.

He died December 6, 2020 after a hard fight with COVID-19.

He lived with his parents in Huntsville, Texas, during the Second World War. After the war his parents moved back to Oklahoma City until the second grade when he and his family moved to Maysville, Oklahoma. There he graduated from Maysville High School in 1961. He was in the band and National Honor Society and a member of the First Baptist Church of Maysville. He was a member of Boy Scout Troop 78 and obtained the rank of Star Scout before the troop folded. He attended American Legion Boy's State in the summer between his junior and senior year of high school.

He entered the University of Oklahoma and was in the Pride of Oklahoma Marching Band, OU Judo Club, Kappa Alpha Fraternity and Army ROTC.

He graduated college from Central State University in the spring of 1967 with a degree in History, and minor in Business Administration. He received his commission in the Army later that spring.

He worked in the diplomatic mail room in the US Embassy in Rome in 1962 where he received his first top

On his dream sheet the Army gave him an option where he would like to serve. He was an artillery Lieutenant and at that time all artillery Lieutenants went to Vietnam and so he put down Vietman, Thailand and Greece.

He was sent to Greece. He often said someone in the Pentagon saw his dream sheet and said he was too crazy to go to Vietnam and sent him to Greece. That is his story and he is staying with it.

While in Greece, the Six Day War took place, the king was deposed and Greece and Turkey almost went to war. There were also several smaller incidents that also happened that could have sparked a war. He often said he came as close to getting shot in Greece as might have in Vietnam.

While in Greece, when Greece and Turkey almost went to war, at his base they woke up and the base was surrounded with tanks and half-tracks with mounted quad 50 caliber machine guns all pointed in at them. The official story was the Greek Army was there to protect them.

His mission in Greece was to train the Greek Army in the use of "Special Weapons "and he had his second clearance, Top Secret-Restrictive Data-Two Man Control-Crypto. He often said the documents he was assigned to deliver often had "Burn Before Reading" stamped on them. He said this in jest.

After serving in Greece he was sent to Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and while there put in for transfer for any place but Fort Bragg including Greenland. He often said his service record would mostly be blacked out. This was due to what he worked with, even the names of the schools he was sent to in the Army, the names were classified. He stayed true to his security oath and never revealed the true nature of his service.

He left the Army after Fort Bragg and went to computer programing school and about the time he was to graduate Congress slashed NASA and the market was flooded with programmers, later he went to work with ASCOT. He was in the Oklahoma National Guard after leaving the Army and reached the rank of Captain upon leaving the guard.

He was with ASCOT till 1975 when an opportunity to buy a business in Purcell came up and it became later Hope True Value. He was co-owner of that business from then on living in Purcell.

He became affiliated with Purcell Lodge 27 AF & AM, raised a Master Mason and later served as master of the lodge twice. Later he was named one of the lodge trustees and was one of the first two Perpetual Members of that lodge. He was also a lifetime member of the 1889er's Society, made up of descendents of those who made the run into the unassigned lands that are now central Oklahoma or were on the 1890 census in said territory.

He was also a 32nd degree mason in both the Scottish Rite and York Rite. He was also a member of the American Legion and lifetime Member of the National Rifle Association.

For the last 25 years he participated in the American Legion wreath laying ceremony at the Maysville War Memorial every Memorial Day.

He was proud to say he was a lifelong DINO, Democrat In Name Only.

His hobbies included hunting, fishing, shooting, photography, reading and computers. In later years he would catch and release and salute game saying he did not want to clean what he caught or shot. He liked to travel and square dance when he was able, he was a member of Single Squares Square Dance Club in Oklahoma City.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Judge Garland and Juanita Hope; grandparents, Lawrence and Alabama Hope; grandmother, Ocie Smith; aunts and uncles and great-aunt and uncles and a few cousins.

He is survived by his brother, David Hope and sister-inlaw, Mary Hope of Pauls Valley; nephew, Virgil Hope of Purcell; one sister; two nieces; two great-nieces; two greatnephews; numerous cousins; special four legged friends Lucy, Bonnie, Fontana, Pete, Fuzz-ball of Pauls Valley and Grey-Katt of Purcell.

Burial will be at the National Memorial Cemetary in Honolulu, Hawaii.

In lieu of flowers make donations to the Second Chance Animal Sanctuary Inc. or to any Boy Scout troop to help offset membership fees or to its campership fund. A Boy Scout troop and NOT a council office or BSA National, he said that way it will all get to the youth that need help in membership and or summer camp fees.

God never forgets or abandons his children. This has been true with the recent fears and results of the coronavirus.

We must never forget that the relief and solution to the deadly virus will come from our Heavenly Father.

The complete reversal of our troubled times has not ended, but there is a new spirit of survival and a return to normality.

We each have especially important people in our lives. When we know that one of them is coming to visit us, we are nearly giddy. We can hardly wait. How do we prepare? First, we want the house to be spotless. If there is time, we might even do a little painting. We clear out some space in the closet. We explain to our family members why this person is so important to us.

In the song "Joy to the World," one line is "let every heart prepare him room." We know how to prepare for family and friends. Do we also know how to prepare for Christ?

tered into this world at Purcell, Oklahoma on Nov. 23, 1914. Dick was the youngest child of Floyd and Rittie Estep. Dick graduated from Purcell High School in 1933.

The secret to the successful life of Dick Estep was his salvation experience as a young man. His profession of faith and baptism happened at the First Baptist Church of Purcell. From that day forward, Dick knew the destination of his soul.

From Jesus, Dick received forgiveness, peace, joy, security and promise of a heavenly fishing at Lake Texoma.

Dick was almost 26 years of age when he discovered his true love. On October 30, 1940, Vivian E. "Dick" Estep and Annette Milford were united in marriage. God gave Dick and Annette Estep two wonderful children. Kenneth Estep and Claranna Morton were always near their father, ready to express their love.

In October 1989, Dick was diagnosed with cancer. He was given 18 months to live. Dick beat the odds by over four years. He was not one to surrender without a fight.

The words of love that came from Dick Estep during his last days in the world were beautiful. To his wife Annette, Dick said, "It has been a good life."

"You do the mowing." To his daughter, Dick said, "Pray that Jesus will come and take me home."

On July 1, 1994, Jesus came to the Estep home. The Master stood beside the bedside and said, "Dick you have fought a good fight, you have kept the faith, now it's time to enter your heavenly home."

With those words, the Master lifted Dick Estep into his arms and carried him through the gates of heaven, down the golden streets and into the presence of God's eternal family.

Pursuant to the Order for Combined Notice, all creditors having claims against Henry Wyatt Smith, Jr., Deceased, are required to present the same with a description of all security interests and other collateral (if any) held by each creditor with respect to such claim, to Dr. Angela Smith Finn and Tony Kendall Smith, Co-Special Administrators, at The Law Office of Tyler R.
