Improvement at Sunset Estates

Baird reports all patients have recovered from virus

The news was much improved at Sunset Estates Nursing Home in Purcell this week.

Owner Tony Baird said he has gotten back his staff that had tested positive and all residents have recovered from the virus and have had no symptoms for more than five days as of Monday.

Baird said he anticipated taking everyone out of quarantine per recommendations of the CDC and OSHD.

“Many of our 21 employees who tested positive are symptom free and back at work,” Baird said.

“We will continue to follow

“I want to express my appreciation to everyone in the Purcell area who have supported us during this difficult time,” he said.

“Doctors Schmidt and Dye and Kem Scully at PMH, Tammy Thompson at Loving Care Home Health and Hospice, Valir Hospice and all of the many family members and friends that have sent food and prayers for our residents and staff.

“We look forward to the future when family visitation can resume,” he said.

Total positive tests in McClain County was up Monday from 77 last week to 85 this week.

There have been no more reported deaths from the virus in McClain County, the state health department said.

The ODH reports 456 positive tests in Cleveland County with 32 deaths, up three over last week. ODH has 217 of those positives and Lexington nine.

ODH reports Purcell has had 59 positives followed by Blanchard with 18, Newcastle and Wayne with five each and Washington with four.

Woman arrested for burglary, vandalism

John D. Montgomery
The Purcell Register

Purcell Police arrested 32-year-old Shareece Lynn Jackson, of Purcell, Monday in connection with burglary/breaking and entering and vandalism of two businesses here.

Jackson found someone had used a fire extinguisher on his back porch.

Also an unlocked mobile home south of his office had been ransacked. Lawson estimated the damage to be over $1,000.

A Bible left on the back porch had Jackson’s name written in it along with an Oklahoma driver’s license with the same name and various pieces of clothing.

Earlier that morning there was a report of a naked woman near Mid-State. A witness said he gave the woman a blanket and then left to call police.

She was not located at that time.

About two hours later police were called to Steeped and Starched about a burglary in progress.

Police said the suspect also damaged property at the dry cleaners. Owner Melinda Lynn estimated the damage at about $500.

They found the naked woman in a front room.

She was transported to Purcell Municipal Hospital by Wadley’s EMS where a toxicology report came back positive for methamphetamine and cannabis.

She was facing two counts of burglary and two counts of vandalism and was in the McClain County Jail as of press time.

New appointments

Staff changes at Cleveland County SO

Following the April 3 resignation of Cleveland County Sheriff Todd Gibson, county commissioners appointed Undersheriff Blake Green to serve as interim sheriff.

Now Green has hired a veteran law enforcement officer, Kent Ritchie, as his undersheriff.

He also promoted Julie Tipton as chief deputy in charge of jail administration.

Ritchie has 34 years experience in public safety and has worked for municipal and state agencies including EMSTAT, Oklahoma Highway Patrol, Norman Police Department and Nicoma Park Police Department.

Previously, Tipton was one of two administrative captains who worked directly under the chief deputy at the Cleveland County Detention Center.

Tipton will fill the vacancy left by Jacob Wheeler who recently took a job with the Oklahoma Department of Corrections.

Tipton began her career at the Cleveland County Sheriff’s Office in 2008 as an entry-level Receptionist but quickly advanced to Detention Clerk responsible for the current and past records for any individual incarcerated in the facility as well as all paperwork from the courts on sentencing and bond amounts set by a judge.

In 2012, she took on a new role as the executive assistant to the chief of detention at the current facility which was newly opened at the time. Initially, in this position, she supervised civilian positions and maintained scheduling and record keeping.

She became an administrative lieutenant in 2015.

Cleveland County voters will elect a new sheriff in November. Green is not running.

Care:

about politics so much as common sense.

“We need to keep the successful momentum we have started,” he said. “I’m wearing my mask to protect you. It’s very unfortunate there’s a contingent that doesn’t want to listen. Your rights end where my rights begin.

“I understand some people don’t believe and want to do anything they choose. Still, there are many people fearful of getting out in public. As more people don’t follow the rules, it’s not going to help the economy.”

Mead recalled John F. Kennedy’s inaugural address in which he said, “Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country.”

“It seems we don’t have the ability to have compassion for others,” Mead said. “We’ve become a ‘me’ society. And that’s exactly what this virus is looking for.

“We don’t want to see this ramp back up. We’re all in this together and I will do whatever I can to protect you.”

Opinion

You’ve got to be kidding

If every dark cloud has a silver lining there is one good thing about the Oklahoma State Legislature getting a 35 percent pay increase.

That’s they only work about four months a year.

You see, their new base salary will be $47,500 starting in November.

They also get meal and travel reimbursement and health and retirement benefits bringing their total average compensation to a staggering $54,992.

Don’t take my word for it. That comes straight from the Office of Management and Enterprise Services and the Legislative Compensation Board who gave the approval for the 35 percent hike.

Doing the math, they work about four months for nearly $55K.

Lucky for us they don’t work a full year or at that rate they’d be raking in $220,000.

Editor’s Notebook

John D.

The median income for an Oklahoma family is $50,000 annually.

For Pete’s sake.

You can tack on another $17,932 for the Speaker of the House and the President Pro Tem of the Senate.

The board that approved the raises is appointed by the governor, House speaker and Senate Pro Tem.

Hmmm....

Stipends paid to other members of the leadership will go up in November from $11,276 to $12,364.

I’ll bet the teachers wish they had such a board.

Or for that matter, any of us would like to have a 35 percent pay increase.

Oklahoma ranks 20th in the nation in base salaries paid to members of the Legislature who are not in leadership positions, according to a 2018 study of state lawmaker salaries nationwide by the National Conference of State Legislatures.

Oklahoma has the third lowest cost of living index of any state in the Union at 87.

Only Mississippi at 86.1 and Arkansas at 86.9 have lower cost of living indexes.

The living wage in Oklahoma is $46,613.

It’s $44,571 in Arkansas and $46,084 in Mississippi.

The what if’s that keep school officials awake at night

Two words.

Just two words that express what many Oklahoma educators are feeling as scientists predict a second and third wave of the global COVID-19 pandemic.

What if?

What if those predictions are on target?

What if life doesn’t return to “normal” by August?

What if the old normal never comes back?

What if there are more quarantines or stay-at-home orders down the road?

What if the 2020-21 school year begins the way the 2019-20 year ended?

Purcell’s new junior high school is ready to open in the fall. But what if it can’t because the coronavirus is still killing thousands of Americans every day?

What if schools get the green light to open, but only if they implement social distancing?

How does social distancing work in a room full of kindergarten students?

Is it feasible to put half of the district’s students on a morning schedule and half on afternoons?

Or could the district drastically cut class sizes, utilizing classroom space in the old junior high and intermediate schools?

Will distance learning and virtual classrooms become the new normal?

Lots of questions. Precious few answers. But you can bet the what if’s are keeping administrators awake at night.

So take some time and ponder all those what if’s. Think outside the box and whatever you come up with, share it with administrators in your district.

The old adage says it takes a village to raise a child. Maybe it also takes a village to educate one.

Be that village.

NEWS FROM CAPITOL HILL

A balancing act

Congressman Tom Cole

Over the last several weeks, the spread of COVID-19 has caused unthinkable disruptions to life as usual, and it will continue to do so for some time, even as we “flatten the curve.”

Following the unprecedented strain on our health care systems and the devastating economic hits to hardworking Americans as a direct result of this coronavirus, the desire for normalcy to return is certainly a sentiment shared by us all.

But as state and local economies slowly and cautiously begin to reopen, it is important to remember that getting back to business does not yet mean getting back to normal.

Even though the fight against COVID-19 is far from over, keeping businesses closed and workers at home is not a sustainable option for the long-term.

While the federal government has provided some short-term relief to help individuals, households, businesses and communities stay afloat during this period of extreme social distancing, our economies need to get moving again and Americans need to get back to work.

However, any such efforts to reopen must continue to keep the health and safety of Americans at top of mind and not undo previous progress in slowing the spread of this coronavirus.

This will indeed be a balancing act. For until there are working treatments, effective therapeutics and ultimately a vaccine to control COVID-19, the risk and danger of the disease remains.

Returning to more regular functions and operations requires gradual action, completed in phases and based on data. President Donald Trump recently recommended criteria for states and communities to achieve before moving into phases of reopening.

This includes a consistent downward trend in reported symptoms, consistent downward trend in documented cases or positive tests as well as hospitals being able to treat all patients without crisis care and robust testing in place for at-risk healthcare workers.

While the president has provided a helpful reopening blueprint that contains three phases, states are not strictly bound to it.

Indeed, just as there are 50 separate and unique states, there may well be 50 different approaches to reopening that carry the same spirit of caution and decision-making based on sound data.

However, the idea behind three phases is to gradually allow businesses and workplaces to open back up, but not immediately at full speed ahead nor without adaptations to prevent crowded environments.

In the earliest phases, this may include limiting the number of employees inside places of work, continuing telework practices, vulnerable and older Americans remaining at home or limiting the number of customers inside retail stores and restaurants.

Regardless of the phase of reopening in our communities, we should not abandon practical and hygienic precautions like thoroughly and frequently washing your hands, not touching your face, daily disinfecting surfaces, keeping a safe distance from others and staying home when you’re sick.

For the latest guidance from the President’s Coronavirus Task Force and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), visit coronavirus.gov. And for health and prevention updates provided locally by the

MOVIES WITH DAVE

By David Stull

I was a little long winded in my reviews this time around, so I’ll keep my intro short this week.

This weekend saw the release of a couple brand new movies on video-on-demand. The first of which is a tragic tale of two friends torn apart by a violent street war, and the other is a musical remake of the 1983 film “Valley Girl.”

Let’s get to the reviews.

First up is “Blue Story.”

Best friends Timmy (Stephen Odubola) and Marco (Michael Ward) go to the same high school in Peckham but live in neighbouring London boroughs.

When Marco’s beaten up by one of Timmy’s primary school friends the two boys wind up on rival sides of a never-ending cycle of postcode gang war in which there are no winners, only victims.

It seems reviewing movies about gang warfare and young people caught in a perpetual cycle of violence is a running theme for me these past couple weeks. First “All Day and a Night” and now this film.

It definitely isn’t something I planned out in advance, but it is interesting to see how similar these films are in theme, yet differ so dramatically in the

Wonderful care

Dear Editor:

Recently my mother, Amadel Wallace, was hospitalized in Purcell Hospital. She is a 98-year-old resident of Sunset Estates in Purcell.

Amadel tested positive for COVID-19. This made me very worried considering all the available information on the virus.

Because Dr. Dye is such a good doctor and Purcell Municipal Hospital provides such great care, my mother is now doing very well and has returned to Sunset Estates.

It is my belief that this says a great deal about the care and intention given by the staff at Purcell Hospital. This hospital did such a wonderful job of care considering the age of my mother being 98.

I hope all the Purcell residents realize what a great hospital and medical staff we have in Purcell.

Sincerely,
Tomas Wallace

We can’t risk progress on cancer research

Dear Editor:

The coronavirus pandemic has put a lot at risk. High among those, the fight against cancer.

With more than 20,530 estimated to be diagnosed with cancer in Oklahoma and 8,430 estimated to die from the disease this year alone, it’s sometimes hard to see the tables have turned and we’re winning this fight against the disease. But it’s the truth.

The death rate from cancer in the US declined by 29 percent from 1991 to 2017, including a 2.2 percent drop from 2016 to 2017, the largest single-year drop ever recorded, according to the American Cancer Society.

But COVID-19 is causing research to slow down or stop altogether as facilities and labs close and funding is redirected. As a cancer survivor the risk of losing momentum when it comes to cancer research is terrifying.

Funding for cancer research has always had strong support from both sides of the aisle. I’m urging Congressman Tom Cole to show his continued support, and prioritize funding for the National Institutes of Health to restart research and clinical trials.

Cancer hasn’t stopped, so neither can we.

OHS asks Oklahomans to share COVID-19 stories

For more than 125 years, the Oklahoma Historical Society (OHS) has worked to collect, preserve and share our history.

Just as the OHS has chronicled World War I, the influenza outbreaks in 1918 and 1919, the Great Depression and Okie migration of the 1930s and 1940s, World War II, the 1980s oil bust and other momentous events, we are dedicated to documenting the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Now, we ask for your help in saving our history during this extraordinary time.

The OHS is dedicated to preserving the history of Oklahomans from all communities, backgrounds and walks of life.

“We invite fellow Oklahomans to share their stories,” said OHS Executive Director Dr. Bob Blackburn. “Firsthand accounts are invaluable to the historical record. By sharing your personal experiences, you can help future generations understand this chapter in our history.”

News from District 20

• Rep. Sherrie Conley •

Legislature passes balanced budget

The Oklahoma Legislature reconvened in both special and regular session this past week.

Our biggest accomplishment was passing a $7.7 billion state budget. The budget was less than we'd planned for when we first convened in February, but that was before the COVID-19 pandemic shut down nearly all sectors of society.

With the loss of business and the plummeting price of oil and gas, the governor and the state Board of Equalization have said we have $1.4 billion less to work with this year than last. This would represent a 17 percent cut.

The Legislature made improvements the past few years to the structure of the state budget, and we saved for the proverbial rainy day, which is now upon us. Combined with some innovative measures, budget leaders in the House and Senate were able to keep cuts to core state services to no more than four percent in most cases even in this dire situation.

Public schools are prioritized in this budget and received only a 2.5 percent cut. With federal relief money factored in, education will actually see no cut this year.

The governor also has discretion over $1.25 billion in federal stimulus money that could be used to help mitigate cuts in other core areas of government such as health care, public safety and transportation.

A number of temporary fiscal measures were used to balance this year's budget. These include bonding some road projects and temporarily reducing the amount the Legislature sends to the state pension funds to help improve their actuarial solvency.

To be clear, no money is taken from transportation or our pension funds. In fact, more than $200 million in additional funds will be sent to the pension funds next year to make up for the lesser amount sent this year.

I'm proud of the budget we produced. I know any cut at all can evoke fear, but when double digit cuts were predicted, this budget is quite honestly a relief. I believe our economy will recover to the point we are able to fill in for some of the cuts.

Regardless, lawmakers will continue to make sound conservative decisions toward saving and solvency that will allow us to continue to meet the needs of Oklahomans now and in the future.

In other news, the Legislature passed several policy bills in the past week. We extended the governor's powers for 30 days under the state's Catastrophic Health Emergency Powers Act to allow him to respond quickly to the COVID-19 pandemic still occurring throughout the state.

We passed a measure that protects our health care workers from frivolous lawsuits filed over treatment for COVID-19. People who experience gross negligence or willful or wanton misconduct would still be able to seek compensation, but this will stop anyone from profiting from the pandemic.

We also passed a measure that will allow certified registered nurse anesthetists to work in collaboration with physicians but not under their direct supervision. This will allow these professionals, who spend years training and getting certified to practice without additional cost and time.

On Wednesday, we passed a bill that will allow voters to maintain personal safety and absentee ballot integrity for the June 30 election using driver's license and voter identification cards. A recent Supreme Court decision identified a technicality in a poorly written statute from 2001 dealing with sworn and unsworn statements.

This legislation corrects that and strengthens this statute that has been on the books in Oklahoma for 18 years and upholds the will of the people from State Question 746 from 2010. This is a great example of how the checks and balances process works for the benefit of all citizens.

In addition, we passed a resolution linking Oklahoma with the National Day of Prayer, which was observed May 7. Please be in prayer for Oklahoma, the U.S. and all of our leaders to guide us during this time!

McClain, Oklahoma and Canadian counties receive program funds

Oklahoma, Canadian and McClain counties have been chosen to receive $283,160 in funding through the Emergency Food and Shelter National Board to supplement emergency food and shelter programs, as well as an additional $403,705 in funding through the recently passed Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act.

The Emergency Food and Shelter National Board is a program of the Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The board consists of representatives from the American Red Cross; Catholic Charities, U.S.A.; National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.; The Salvation Army; United Jewish Communities and United Way of America.

A board consisting of local government and nonprofit representatives will determine how the funds will be distributed among the emergency food and shelter programs run by local service agencies in the area.

The agencies chosen to receive funds must be private, voluntary nonprofits or units of government, be eligible to receive federal funds, have an accounting system, practice nondiscrimination, have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and/or shelter programs and, if they are a private voluntary organization, have a voluntary board.

Qualifying agencies are urged to apply by May 18, 2020.

Public or private voluntary agencies interested in applying for Emergency Food and Shelter Program funds may visit www.unitedwayokc.org/efs for more information.

Two-car collision

Crash sends Purcell teens to hospital

A traffic collision Sunday morning in Coal County put two Purcell teens in the OU Medical Center.

Jacey Renfro, 18, suffered leg and internal injuries and Tara Skaggs, 18, had chest injuries.

Both were airlifted to the hospital.

Another occupant of the vehicle, Coleman Brakefield, 18, of Norman, sustained internal injuries. He was admitted to Chickasaw Hospital in Ada.

Oklahoma Highway Patrol Trooper Tommy Allen reported Renfro was driving a 2012 Nissan Altima northbound on State Highway 48 when a 2007 Chevrolet Cobalt driven by Bernice Chaney, 27, of Ada, failed to stop at a stop sign and struck the Nissan on the driver's door.

Chaney was westbound on a county road.

She sustained multiple injuries and was also airlifted to OU Medical Center in critical condition.

Two passengers in the Chevrolet were ejected, landing approximately 30 feet from the vehicle.

They were a 5-year-old girl and a 17-year-old girl.

The 5-year-old had multiple injuries and was admitted to OU Medical Center in critical condition.

The 17-year-old was admitted to Chickasaw Hospital with multiple injuries.

A third passenger, a 2-year-old girl, was also admitted to OU Medical Center in critical condition.

Allen reported an odor of alcohol on Chaney.

The wreck occurred around 11:24 a.m. approximately 9-1/2 miles south of Tupelo.

Assisting Allen at the scene were Trooper Heath Davidson, the Coal County and Johnston County Sheriff's Departments, Tupelo Fire Department, Clarita 1st Responder and Coalgate and Johnston County EMS.

Act of kindness

Dear Editor:

Last Saturday I was in the Purcell Farm & Ranch Store looking at flowers.

I picked one and went in to pay when this gentleman that I had a brief conversation with outside about mothers and plants stepped up and announced that he was paying for mine also.

When I thanked him and said I couldn't let him, he was adamant, yes he was.

We have been hearing of people who step up and do random acts of kindness but I was floored. I am so sorry that I didn't get his name—he wished me a Happy Mother's Day but I also didn't tell him that day was also our 62nd wedding anniversary.

He was telling me what a wonderful Mother he had and said the mold was broken when they made her!

I want him to know how much he blessed me and also to tell his Mother that she raised a wonderful son who loves her so much.

He made my day and many days to follow.

OSU professor sheds light on 'murder hornets'

Q&A with OSU entomology and plant pathology professor Wyatt Hoback.

What do Americans need to know about this species / what makes their arrival in the U.S. concerning?

The Asian giant hornet is a non-native species with a unique biology. They are large predatory insects. Like all bees and wasps, they will aggressively defend their nests when they perceive a threat.

These insects are predators and feed on other insects. Because of their size, they need to capture lots of prey.

The problem for the U.S., Europe, and parts of the world where these hornets are native is that people have introduced European honey bees.

The hornets get their common name "murder hornets" from attacking bee hives and killing all the workers so they can take the larvae and resources to feed their own offspring. Thirty giant hornets can kill 30,000 domestic bees.

The other concern is, because of their size, giant hornets have a lot of venom and have been characterized as having among the most-painful stings in the world.

Is there a chance we could prevent them from gaining a stronghold in the U.S. or are they likely here to stay?

When a bee keeper in Washington State discovered a bee hive that had been attacked, officials began an aggressive search.

One nest was discovered and destroyed. A single specimen of giant hornet was also discovered in Vancouver Canada which was determined to be from a different nest.

No additional sightings have occurred since 2019 and it appears that for now, the Asian giant hornet is not established in the U.S. We do have other non-native wasps and yellow jackets here.

What effect could they have on bee populations, ecosystems, etc.?

Whenever a species establishes outside of its native range, it often leaves behind the natural checks like disease, predators, and other factors that limit its population.

When a species establishes, it can cause big effects to the ecosystem and to the economy that relies in part on the ecosystem.

Have we seen any Oklahoma yet? Are they well-suited to Oklahoma's climate?

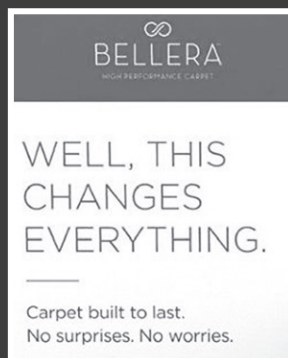

We have not found any of this species in Oklahoma. Because it is native to central Asia, our climate would support it. People should keep an eye out, but also learn to recognize native species that provide really valuable services.

Native hornets eat pest insects including caterpillars, although they have similar coloration, native species are much smaller. This fall, large solitary wasps will emerge. These are cicada killers.

Although the name sounds intimidating, they are not aggressive, have a very weak sting, and help to limit the number of cicadas that feed on plant roots while immature.

Unemployment scams are on the rise

Trisha Gedon
Communications Specialist

Oklahoma has seen an unprecedented increase in the number of unemployment claims, officials said. Unfortunately, some of the more than 51,000 filed claims have proven to be fraudulent since the COVID-19 pandemic began in March 2020.

Cindy Clampet, Oklahoma State University Extension assistant resource management specialist, said reports from the Oklahoma Employment Security Commission indicate at least 3,800 fraudulent claims have been filed since mid-March this year.

“Scammers often are prevalent during times like this, and the COVID-19 pandemic is no exception,” Clampet said.

Businesses and workers who have not filed for unemployment are receiving the troubling letters from the OESC at their homes or through human resources offices at work.

The letters contain copies of unemployment claims made by workers who still have jobs or by someone who has never worked at that business.

Clampet said such claims can hurt the employment record of the employee, as well as the business itself.

For those who find themselves a victim of a fraudulent unemployment claim, Clampet suggests the following steps:

- Contact the personnel department at the place of employment so they can file a fraud claim.
- Call the OESC fraud department at 405-557-7157 or email at fraud@oesc.state.ok.us.
- File a fraud report with the local police department.
- Contact major credit bureaus, including Experian, TransUnion and Equifax, since the breach involves social security numbers, birth dates and other personal information.
- Contact your banking institution to make them aware of the situation.

Clampet said a person’s place of employment also may have additional steps to take.

“Oklahoma Attorney General Mike Hunter encourages these fraud victims to email his office and fill out a claim form to help his office investigate these claims,” she said. “Unfortunately, there always will be people who are looking to take advantage of the system regardless of the effects on others.”

More COVID-19 information is available online from OSU Extension.

Louise A. Gordon

Graveside Funeral Services for Louise A. Gordon, 78, of Purcell were held Wednesday, May 13, 2020 at Hillside Cemetery in Purcell. Services were under the direction of the Wilson-Little Funeral Home in Purcell.

Mrs. Gordon passed away Monday, May 11, 2020.

Louise was born May 7, 1942 in Hamilton, Texas, the fourth of six children born to Hilbert Perry Askins and Ruth Belle (Winters) Askins. She was raised primarily in Post, Texas, where she attended school.

Louise’s life changed forever when she met a young man named Bobby Paul Gordon.

She was working as a waitress and he would come in for coffee. As chance would have it, one night while dragging Main Street, Louise stepped in front of his car, and the rest is history. They were madly in love and not too long after, on May 15, 1960, they were married.

Bob followed his heart and surrendered to the ministry, and Louise followed hers and partnered with him. They Pastored churches in Texas and in Oklahoma for many years. Together they raised three children, son, Randy and daughters, Vickie and Debbie. In 1986, they settled in Purcell to be closer to their grandchildren.

Louise worked for a time for First National Bank in Purcell, retiring as an Administrative Assistant. She stayed busy in retirement, tending to her flower garden, and working in the Church nursery. She was an avid shopper and she loved watching the QVC Channel.

Her greatest joy and the reason she lived was her family; and she cherished her grandchildren and great grandchildren. She was a woman of great faith; an active member of Emmanuel Baptist Church in Purcell, a wonderful mother and grandmother, sister, aunt and friend. She will be dearly missed!

She was preceded in death by her husband, Bob P. Gordon; her parents, Hilbert and Ruth Belle Askins and siblings, Nancy Johnson, Dilbert Askins and Gilbert Askins.

Louise is survived by her children, Randy Gordon of Purcell, Debbie McLain and husband, David, of Purcell and Vickie Gee and husband, Bobby, of Purcell; brother, Bucky Askins and wife, Leona, of Coolidge, Ariz.; sister, Ruth Buckendorff and husband, Dave, of Redmond, Ore.; eight grandchildren, Micah Gee and wife, Emma, of Edmond, Alex Gee of Norman, Micaela Mitchell and husband, Justin, of Edmond, Morgan Stinson and husband, Caleb, of Guthrie, Joshua Gordon and wife, Jana, of Oklahoma City, Jacob McLain and wife, Ashly, of Purcell, Kelsey Jones and husband, Caleb, of Tulsa and Carson McLain and wife, Erin, of Weatherford; eight great-grandchildren, Bennett, Raegan, Elliott, Remi, John, Kaci, John, James and one on the way, Rhett, and a host of other family and friends.

Jeffrey Lee New

Jeffrey Lee New left us on April 25, 2020 in Norman, Oklahoma at the age of 61 years 2 months 18 days.

Funeral Services were held at 2 p.m. Thursday, April 30, 2020 at Wadley’s Funeral Chapel with the Reverend Wayne Brown officiating. Interment followed at Hillside Cemetery, entrusted to the care of Wadley’s Funeral Service. Online condolences may be made at www.wadleysfuneralservice.com.

Jeff was born February 7, 1959 in San Diego, California, to Bobby Lee “Beck” and Elsie (Bloom) New. He was raised in California before the family moved to Purcell.

Jeff loved everybody, especially his family. He enjoyed working at McDonald’s for the last 20 years, and never met a stranger. Jeff could remember everything he was told or saw; however, he couldn’t keep a secret.

Jeff loved to laugh, and joke around, and was fascinated by construction. He enjoyed looking at blueprints, wearing his hard hat and watching anything being built. Jeff loved oil wells and knew every part, and he knew all the plants and trees.

When he was younger, Jeff was in the Boy Scouts, and liked playing basketball with his brother. He was a Merle Haggard fan, and loved western music. Jeff often went to the Moose Lodge with his parents and listened to the music and loved dancing with the ladies.

He loved the Bible and carrying it around. Jeff loved mountains, especially Mount Miguel in San Diego. He also enjoyed going to Disneyland, and of course his favorite ride was the Matterhorn because it was a mountain.

Jeff loved his family and enjoyed all the people that knew him including his friends at Delta Transit, First American Bank and McDonald’s with Sue Parton.

He made an impact in his community, even with his disability, any way he could for over 20 years. The town of Purcell was very good to him. He never forgot a name or a face and loved his town of Purcell in the Heart of Oklahoma. I want to thank you for caring and knowing Jeff.

Jeff was preceded in death by his father, Bobby “Beck” New and his sister, Deborah Wheeler.

He is survived by his mother, Elsie New; his brother, James New and wife, Brenda; his nieces, Amanda and her husband, Daniel, Sarah and Mary; his nephew, James New, Jr.; his great-nieces, Aurora, Auraya and Jaiden; his great-nephews, Ethan and Andrew; and numerous aunts and uncles.

May Beef Month kicks off during challenging time

As Oklahomans face a different environment and a new normal, the Oklahoma Beef Council is encouraging state beef lovers to savor tradition, taste and nutrition as it kicks off May Beef Month in Oklahoma.

Whether it’s hamburgers or steaks, beef provides that nostalgic moment of backyard cookouts, Sunday gatherings and celebratory dinners. Beef Month is also a time to celebrate Oklahoma’s beef community.

Oklahoma’s 50,000 farming and ranching families represent the state’s largest agriculture industry with a production value of $3.7 billion. Through these difficult times, they are proud of the nutritious and wholesome beef they raise for their families and yours.

Consumers can continue to feel good knowing that the beef they purchase is the safe, high-quality beef they have come to know and love. Both the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration are closely monitoring current supply conditions and continue to remind consumers that the food supply is safe.

The Oklahoma and U.S. beef community is committed to delivering safe and high-quality beef to consumers and working diligently to return to full capacity as soon as possible.

“We are all trying to make sense of and adjust to the times we are living in,” said Becca McMillan, a rancher and chairperson of the Oklahoma Beef Council.

“Beef farmers and ranchers are facing the same issues.

However, we want Oklahoma’s beef lovers to know we are committed to providing delicious, safe and nutritious beef products day-in and day-out. Oklahomans can count on our dedication to those who confidently put beef on their dinner tables.”

Oklahoma’s beef farmers and ranchers play an essential role in providing beef support and information in Oklahoma through their support of the Oklahoma Beef Council, which funds outreach efforts in education, promotion and research.

Through the Beef Checkoff Program, funded by a $1-per-head national assessment, OBC helps support efforts such as the Beef. It’s What’s for Dinner. national advertising campaign and international, national and in-state work in the areas of beef promotion, research, consumer information, industry information, international marketing and producer communications.

During May Beef Month, OBC will feature digital billboard advertising in Oklahoma City and Tulsa, new beef cooking videos and Facebook live events focused on helping the consumer prepare beef and stretch their dollars, as well as expanded social media efforts highlighting Oklahoma’s ranching community, recipe ideas and cooking tips.

The OBC will also help introduce the start of a new national campaign called United We Steak.

Then:

Generation, these stalwart Americans who endured more than 10 years of the Great Depression and who freed the world from murderous tyrants in World War II which followed.

Their numbers are dwindling, but those who lived through those harrowing times can tell Americans today a thing or two about deprivation and sacrifice.

Purcell's Ralph Wall – he's Uncle Ralph to those who know and love him – was a youngster during World War II as the war effort helped the nation shrug off the Great Depression.

"Everything was rationed," he recalled.

The shortages included meat, sugar, shoes, gas and tires, among other items.

They could only be purchased if one had ration stamps. And those stamps were treasured currency.

Wall remembers hearing adults talk about a prominent Purcell citizen who dealt in ration stamps on the black market.

"That was the scuttlebutt," he said.

Wall didn't wear shoes very much in the summer, but his parents saved ration stamps and would buy him new shoes before school started in the fall.

The rule of thumb was buy 1/2 to a full size larger and, with luck, he wouldn't outgrow them before school let out the following spring.

You never knew what you would find on the shelves when you went into a grocery store.

"You might get sugar and you might not get sugar," he said.

It was the same with fresh meat.

Wall still has a World War II ration book.

As it turned out, one of the "real heroes" of World War II was Spam, which had been around since the middle of the Great Depression in the 1930s.

The Hormel product had a gelatin coating which had to be washed off before the canned processed pork could be used.

Through Lend-Lease, the United States sent tons of Spam to the United Kingdom and Russia.

Both countries were at war with Nazi Germany by 1938 and there was strict rationing for civilians.

"They called it 'Roosevelt sausage,'" Wall said of the export.

The rationing in England didn't end until 1954 – nine years after the end of World War II.

During the war, three movie theaters thrived on Main Street. The Canadian Theatre was the most elegant with balcony and ground floor seating and concession stands on both levels.

Wall remembers the theatre also hosted regular war bond sales.

Downtown Purcell was often packed Saturday night with sailors on liberty from the gunnery base at Norman.

With shortages on the store shelves, most Americans did the patriotic thing and raised their own food.

Victory gardens were promoted by the government.

The Walls lived on Polk Street and their victory garden – they called it their survival garden – covered 1-1/2 acres.

In addition to vegetables, the garden included several fruit trees.

"Mom canned everything," he said, adding she also made her own lye soap.

The family also raised pigs and at the first cold spell, they would kill one or two hogs. They didn't have electricity, so they used a sugar cure mix to preserve the meat.

They got their news from Movietone and Pathe Newsreels at the movies.

There was also a man who would hawk Daily Oklahoman newspapers on Main Street.

Mail was delivered twice a day and so were groceries.

Wall's father got him a job at a grocery store across from the Canadian Theatre.

All of Wall's underwear and pajamas were sewn from printed feed sacks by his mother.

"Times were tough but you didn't know it was tough," he said.

Wall attended the old North School and later Mary Simpson School.

After graduating high school, he went to Oklahoma A&M and enlisted in the Army after college.

He served in the 3rd Armored Division and was stationed in Germany from 1959-62.

"I liked my time in the Army," he said.

He is the last member of his platoon still living.

He's lived through hardship and prosperity and everything in between.

So from that perspective, what's his opinion of Americans crying about how social distancing infringes on their liberty after four to six weeks?

"They are all wimps."

After the collision the pickup continued south into the west ditch rotating approximately 180 degrees and coming to rest facing northbound in the southbound lane.

Finally, it is critically important that the federal government learns from this crisis and actively prepares to face down another pandemic in the future.

While I am proud that Congress has generously invested in worthy tools and response resources to strengthen our readiness in recent years, it must be an even higher priority in the days to come.

Though the United States was prepared to face an emergency, you can never be fully prepared for what you don't know is coming – in this case, a mysterious and deadly virus originating in China, only identified early this year and for which a vaccine does not yet exist.

The superintendent told the board that earlier projections showed the district would have 10 percent of its fiscal year 2019-20 budget remaining. Instead as of Monday, 12.41 percent of the budget remains unspent.

The district is preparing to begin its summer feeding program.

Although recipients won't notice any change from the meal program implemented this spring during the COVID-19 school closures, the district will be reimbursed at a higher rate in the summer.

Tyler Graves, construction manager with Goldsby Construction, told the board the new junior high school is "100 percent ready" as bond projects are winding up.

The band storage room will be finished in the next 1-1/2 weeks and in June, sidewalks will be installed from the new junior high school to Green Avenue.

Construction has remained on budget for all projects.

Graves said he will have one final update for the board at the June meeting.

The board approved a resolution for schools and libraries for 2020-21 and reappointed Tracy Folsom as their representative in negotiations with the Purcell Association of Classroom Teachers for the 2020-21 school year.

They also adopted Oklahoma State School Boards Association policies.

In other personnel matters, the board hired Jake DeViney to teach high school science, Melissa Feroli as high school counselor and Mackenzie Huffman to teach special ed and Kristy Behrens as a paraprofessional. Huffman's employment is contingent on her completing Special Education Boot Camp.

Also approved were certified contracts for Amanda Clay, Kenzie Cunnius, Lauren Masters, Megan Moreno, Tracy Scott, Angela Terry, Michael Nestlen, who is a 1980 graduate, is the Director of Marketing and Communications for the Regional Food Bank of Oklahoma and is responsible for the public platform of the organization, which provides food assistance for 53 of the 77 counties in Oklahoma.

Together, they are collectively serving their state during its response to the COVID-19 outbreak.

Between the effects of the pandemic and the falling oil prices, the Regional Food Bank is seeing an increase of up to 60 percent in the need for food assistance, said Nestlen.

On top of that, the Food Bank's nearly 45,000 yearly volunteers, who help with packaging the food boxes for families and individuals needing assistance, were sidelined due to the pandemic.

"That really impacts us being able to get food out — not having those volunteers," said Nestlen.

On April 21, 2020, Oklahoma Gov. Kevin Stitt activated 50 Air National Guardsmen for two regional food bank sites - 25 at Nestlen's Oklahoma Regional Food Bank and 25 at the Regional Food Bank for Eastern Oklahoma in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

As the Adjutant General for Oklahoma and the Director of the Joint Staff, Thompson and Harrison have been able to help oversee that activation and response.

"And that's a big thing for both Soldiers and Airmen," said Harrison. "When they talk about their service in the National Guard, the last 17 or 20 years we've been doing a lot of things overseas, but I think they're most proud of the things they do in Oklahoma - whether it's floods or tornadoes or here in this pandemic working at food banks or doing the other things."

"The thing about this is it's the reason people join and put this uniform on, they want to help their communities, and their state and their nation," said Thompson. "Now to have the opportunity to help Oklahomans in this extraordinary time - we're very happy to be a

DRAGONS BEST OF THE BEST

In May of 2016 it was Purcell’s second three-peat in girls golf in 12 year span

John D. Montgomery & JohnDennyMontgomery
The Purcell Register

Purcell’s Dragons are the best in not only the west but the north, south and east.

Their two-day total of 626 was not only the best score in Class 3A by 32 strokes, but would have won any class in the entire State of Oklahoma – and they were playing on a par 72 course at Cherokee Springs in Tahlequah while all the other classes were playing on par 70 courses.

“I’d put them against anybody, on any given day and anywhere,” said golf coach Mike Gowens.

Led by sophomore phenom ShaeBug Scarberry’s medalist performance of 74-71, the Dragons were anything but a one-player team.

Top to bottom, this year’s Dragon team was so dominate it didn’t lose a single tournament it entered and Gowens didn’t back down from the stiffest competition he could muster up.

“What a great job the girls did,” Gowens said. “They haven’t lost a tournament in two years.”

Seniors Ashton Nemecek, Kara Davis and Peighton Walker have never known anything but being called State Champions, a three-peat for the ages.

“The seniors have had a huge impact on the program,” he said.

Simply the best in May of 2016

It was Purcell’s second such three-peat in the last 12 years, leaving even the most knowledgeable high school golf fan scratching their heads for fitting words of praise.

Gowens now has six State Championships as a coach at Purcell, more than any other coach in the Dragons’ storied school history.

Gowens had a three-peat in girl’s golf during 2004-2005-2006 and now another one with the 2014-2015-2016 seasons. He also had a runner-up team in 2007.

The girls were actually not on their A game on Wednesday when they turned in a very respectable 320 team total. Yet, they still led a very competitive Plainview by 16 strokes.

After the first nine holes Purcell’s team total was 153. In his head Gowens doubled that score and thought his team would shoot around 306.

But he said almost everyone on the team got off to a bad start on the next nine.

“We had some loose shots and on that course with the sand and water and out of bounds we had some penalty strokes,” he said.

Purcell came back with a vengeance Thursday and toured the Cherokee Springs links in a much more Purcell-like score of 306, blowing

School Board Election Date Change

The Washington School Board Election has been changed to June 30 due to the COVID-19 outbreak.

Dale K. Graham Veterans Foundation

We would like to introduce board member, Stanley L. Evans. Evans assumed the position of Assistant Dean for Students at the University of Oklahoma College of Law in August 2003, immediately after his law school graduation. His selection for this position was unprecedented in two ways.

for a person to be a student one year and be the Assistant Dean responsible for all student related actions and activities the following year. Second, Dean Evans is the first African American to be appointed to a Dean position at any law school in the state of Oklahoma.

As Assistant Dean for Students, he had responsibilities encompassing the entire range of law student activities and services. Although he retired from OU Law in 2012, he has continued to help students and the college as a counselor, advisor, and recruiter.

Evans retired from the United States Army in March 2000, with almost 32 years of military service, and started law school at the age of 54. Colonel Evans’ final military assignment was as a Dean of the Army’s Command and General Staff College, at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where he was responsible for the daily operations and management of the Army’s premier academic institution that had a yearly student body of over 5700 officers.

He led the Fort’s initiative to provide over 700 computers to Kansas public schools. He was honored as the Alpha Phi Alpha’s “Leavenworth Man of the Year” in 1998 and again in 1999. In the years, 1997-1999, he was instrumental in helping prepare and present the Congressional Proposal that led to the new $130M Lewis and Clark Military College Facility.

We are doing the best we can to assist veterans and their families in many ways. One of the most important that has not been affected by the virus pandemic is the claims for veterans and surviving spouses who are currently in the appeal process.

We have two types of hearings we work on. The DRO (decision review officer) reviews are done by telephone where we can discuss what types of evidence the veteran has to support their claim for service of a disability or for an increased rating based on the severity of the condition.

We encourage all veterans to obtain medical evidence and statements from people who knew about the injury or illness when it occurred. Most of the DRO officers we have worked with have been very fair to the veterans.

The other type of hearings we have quite frequently are the BVA (board of veterans appeals) hearings. These are the claims the VA has had the backlog on for many years. Until just a year or so ago, there were hundreds of thousands of cases that were waiting to be heard by the judges at BVA. We are extremely fortunate to have been approved to hold these video hearings in our building before judges who are in Washington DC.

Not long ago we would be required to commute to Muskogee to meet with judges or DRO personnel there. As most of you know, it is a three hour drive each way for us and the veterans to travel there for hearings. The Department of Veterans Affairs has come a long way in just a few short years to improve the way they operate. Of course, with this virus going around it is keeping a lot of people home which is going to affect their

As some of you know when people give us handicapped items such as wheelchairs, canes, walkers, hospital beds or other medical type items we recycle them to another veteran or their family to use. Currently, we have two electric hospital beds, one twin adjustable bed and one queen size adjustable bed with mattresses available at no charge.

We also have several fire-proof file cabinets looking for a new home. These cabinets are the property of our foundation and are for sale. If you or someone you know needs any of the items listed above, please contact us at 405-550-8806.

Last week one of the veterans we assisted, donated his used car to us after he purchased a new one. He told me he would receive more out of it as tax donation than what it would go for as a trade-in. We usually sell these types of donations then use the monies to fund veteran needs.

We are still receiving about the same amount of rating decisions each week as we did before everything slowed down. Last year we said we would be trying to set another record on the number of veterans who were going to receive a 100 percent rating in 2020. I am here to tell you today this two months of not working veterans' claims is certainly going to affect the overall number of veterans who receive a VA rating for their disabilities.

Last week 19 veterans received a disability rating of 100 percent for their service-connected disabilities. This group will receive a combined annual $712,028. They will also be eligible for the state benefits of sales tax exemptions, property tax exemptions, and other benefits our state provides for disabled veterans.

Thirty-five veterans were awarded disability ratings from 10-90 percent and will receive a combined annual $439,344. This group of men and women will be eligible for VA Health Care, and some of them may also be eligible for other state benefits. One was awarded pension for a total of $2,772 annually.

If you would like to help us make a difference, we welcome your support. We spend over $30,000 each month in direct support of the veterans and family members we serve. We are transporting many homeless veterans to our Norman location each week to begin the process of making a difference in the away the field and hoisting the team trophy for the third year in a row.

Nemecek recoiled from an opening round of 80 to shoot 77 the second day and finished fifth individually.

“Ashton played better than her scores show,” said Gowens. He said she had around 10 penalty shots over the two days.

Davis shot a very uncharacteristic 87 in the opening round but bounced back with a three over par 75 on day two when the Dragons drove a stake in the heart of the competition.

Walker was steady, as she always is, firing an 83-79 for a two-day total of 162.

And there is promising freshman Jade McCurdy who handled the State Tournament pressure for a 93-84 two-day total.

“It was just a great season and a great group of girls. We’re going to miss the seniors,” Gowens said.

Best of the Best

Let’s just take a tour around the state comparing Purcell’s 626. 6A winner Owasso 658. Durant won 5A with a 687 team total. In 4A all Fort Gibson needed was a 650 score to win the tournament and in Class 2A Mooreland won the tournament with a 786 team total.

This year it’s too bad there is not a tournament of champions so the Dragons could square off with the other State Champions for one big playoff tournament. Maybe some JUCO tournaments would be in order.

Notes

Seniors Davis, Nemecek and Walker will all three play golf in college next year on scholarship.

Nemecek was selected to the All State golf team.

Either Davis or Walker could be selected as an at-large selection in the next week.

After winning individual State titles during her freshman and sophomore seasons, Scarberry has a chance to win an individual title all four years of her high school career.

The team broke its own school record this year when they shot 289 at the Kingfisher Invitational.

The old record, 293, was set last year at Lake View Golf Course.

Looking Back . . . The 1960 Dragons winners of 11 games

Dr. Gary Abrams
For The Purcell Register

There was cautious optimism in the summer of 1960 as we anticipated the start of football practice. Optimism for football in Purcell had been hard to come by for years and especially for this group of seniors. While we loved playing and had been together since pee-wee football in the 6th grade, success had never been ours.

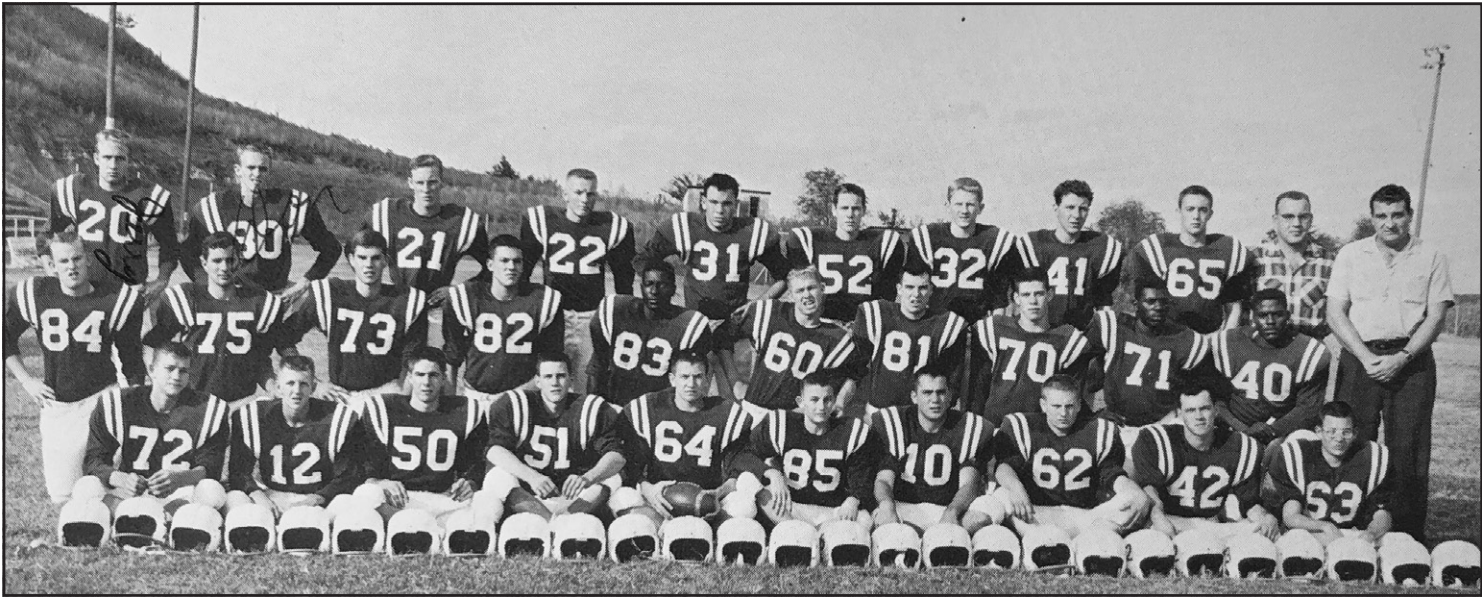

In 3 years of Junior High football, we had won 1 game. As sophomores, we rarely scored and lost every game. Junior year, with changes in our offense and bolstered by the addition of a talented sophomore class, we managed to win 4 games. Toward the end of the 1959 campaign, we nearly beat a highly ranked Ardmore Douglas team and saw that we could actually compete with the best.

We were a veteran bunch in that the 2 classes ahead of us had few football players and many of us had started both sophomore and junior years. Nevertheless, while we hoped for success, we were not confident of it.

Junior year in 1959 had set the stage for a turnaround. Coaches Kenneth Krall and Dennis Rountree decided to completely change our offensive approach.

While most Oklahoma high schools played the Split-T offense of Bud Wilkinson, we started experimenting with the wing-T and double wing-T formations with the linemen spread apart. We would line up in the split-T formation with the quarterback behind center. Then we shifted into a shotgun with the quarterback several feet behind the center and one or both halfbacks outside on each side and the fullback beside the quarterback. Quarterback Eddie Gillihan was short and compact with a great arm and he was able to both throw and run from the formation.

Winners of 11 games, the 1960 Purcell Dragons, front row, from left, 72 Dudley Wells, 12 Bill Swafford, 50 Gary Abrams, 51 Charles Moore, 64 Howard Jackson, 85 Junior Hicks, 10 Eddie Gillihan, 62 Jerry Beauchamp, 42 Larry Wells and 63 Larry Carr. Middle row - 84 Gene Hanner, 75 Gary Blevins, 73 Ted Krapf, 82 Rick McCurdy, 83 Jimmy Cheadle, 60 Ronnie Argo, 81 Larry Hicks, 70 Albert Stiffler, 71 Herman Cheadle and 40 Frank James. Back row - 20 Jerry Idleman, 80 Don Boyer, 21 Dale Green, 22 Larry Ozment, 31 Harold Shea, 52 Charles Dawson, 32 Eddie Tubbs, 41 Joe Niehaus, 65 John Payne, Assistant Coach Dennis Rountree, Coach Kenneth Krall.

Rick McCurdy and Jimmy Cheadle were usually successful. Fakes to the halfback with the quarterback then keeping and running between guard and tackle with the fullback leading the way was a staple of the offense. Eddie could hand off to the halfbacks or fullback or fake and pass or run.

Gillihan became a master at running the offense. Being in a shotgun formation, he had full view of the field for passing. With very little drop back for passing, both running and passing plays looked similar to the defense.

There was great speed in the backfield with both Jerry Idleman and Harold Shea bona fide sprinters and fullback Frank James a devastating blocker.

The line was small with the center weighing 140 pounds, guards weighing 165 pounds each and tackles at 175 and 185. Plays had to develop quickly and rely on touch blocks and traps.

Defense was solid with most of the offensive starters playing defense as well. We had one of the best punters in the state in Rick McCurdy.

During preseason practice in 1960, a big bus pulled into the parking lot at Conger field as we walked out to practice. Coach had not told us, but he had scheduled a scrimmage with U.S. Grant High School from Oklahoma City, a much larger school than Purcell. They were bigger than us at nearly every position, but we outplayed them, giving us confidence that, just maybe, we were pretty good!

The first game of the season was against highly rated Oklahoma City Bishop McGuinness High School. Surprising most of the Oklahoma City media, we beat them 22-0. More surprising to the team and all of Purcell, The Daily Oklahoman ranked us #6 in Class B! Having never been even close to being ranked before, we were ecstatic and even more motivated to continue to win.

We proceeded to post one of the most astounding streaks in Purcell football history when we out-scored our first 6 opponents by a combined score of 234-6! We then went to Ardmore and beat a very good Ardmore Douglas team 18-6.

It looked like we were set up to win the conference championship with only Wynnewood still undefeated and facing us the following week.

On Thursday evening before the Friday night game at Wynnewood, our fullback Frank James, the lead blocker on most running plays and our best defensive player, went rabbit hunting after practice and accidentally shot himself in the heel with a shotgun. Frank was taken to Children's Hospital in Oklahoma City for surgery and we were stunned, saddened and without one of our most important players.

On Friday before departing by bus for Wynnewood, we lined up at the side of the school in our street clothes and ran plays with James Taylor and Larry Wells, both untested reserves, lining up in Frank's place.

During the first half, we were unable to generate any offense at all, had no first downs and did not get beyond our own 35 yard line. Wynnewood, with a good rushing attack, repeatedly drove down the field, but we were able to stop them deep in our territory. Saving us with the best punting game of his high school career, the future University of Oklahoma kicker Rick McCurdy repeatedly boomed punts that pinned them deep in their end of the field.

The game remained scoreless at halftime in spite of our offensive woes.

The most vocal player on the team was Jerry Beauchamp, a small, slow overachiever who played (and talked) much bigger than he was.

After receiving the second half kickoff, as Jerry approached the line for each play, he started chanting block, block, block! and soon the whole line was chanting with him and we began to open holes in the Wynnewood defense.

After moving the ball to midfield, McCurdy pinned Wynnewood deep in their territory with a long kick. When they tried to punt from their 12-yard line, the kicker couldn't control the snap and we recovered on their 1-yard line. Jerry Idleman was able to punch it in for the first score of the game.

Later in the 3rd quarter, a 60-yard McCurdy punt went out of bounds on their ½ yard line. When they attempted a 3rd down quick kick, Herman Cheadle blocked the punt and we recovered on their 12 yard line. As we got inside the 10 yard line, we tried to run the ball into the end zone, but Wynnewood was ready and stopped us the first 3 downs short of the goal. On 4th down, lining up as if to run again, Eddie Gillihan lofted a soft pass to little-used end Don Boyer in the right flat to score and with a 2 point conversion, we were up 14-0.

They scored once in the 4th quarter, but the defense held to seal the win 14-8.

After shutting out Maysville, our last game of the regular season was with Sulphur, the preseason favorite for the Arbuckle Conference championship.

Sulphur had lost to Wynnewood earlier in the season, but if they beat us they could force a 3-way tie for the conference championship. They had beaten us 48-14 in a brutally cold game in Sulphur in 1959. They were bigger than us and had great speed and power in the backfield.

Our offense, still not fully recovered from the loss of Frank James, still sputtered for most of the game and the game evolved into a classic defensive battle. In the 4th quarter with time winding down, the game remained scoreless when tackle Herman Cheadle recovered a Sulphur fumble on their 31 yard line. Moving the ball inside their 10 yard line, we tried 3 times to force the ball over the goal without success using Rick McCurdy as the tailback in the single wing formation. On 4th down, we lined up in the same formation and instead of hiking the ball to Rick, the center hiked the ball to blocking back James Taylor. As the Bo Jackson knew some stuff. But, Purcell's Gavin Nation knows more.

Former professional baseball and football player Bo Jackson was an all-star in every aspect. The former Auburn running back won the Heisman Trophy in 1985 after rushing for 1,786 yards.

He played in the NFL for the Los Angeles Raiders for four years.

Jackson also played major league baseball for eight years for the Kansas City Royals, the Chicago White Sox, and the California Angels.

Bo later became the focus of a Nike commercial ad campaign remembered as "Bo Knows..." with former blues guitarist Bo Diddley saying, "You don't know Diddley."

Nation probably doesn't know how to play the blues guitar like Diddley, either. But, make no mistake. Nation is a graduating Purcell senior who excelled in four different sports – so maybe he knows more than Bo?

Nation ran cross country and hurdles and was a long jumper in track, and played basketball and tennis for the Dragons with great success.

"I would like to think I was a little like Bo," Nation said with a laugh. "My biggest thrill was always getting to play basketball in front of the crowd at the Reimer Center. We played a lot of big games there.

"Nothing excited me more than to play in front of the home crowds in the Heart of Oklahoma.

We had some big Regional games there and we did well in those. That was my biggest thrill."

During his time with the Purcell hoopsters, Nation helped them to three Conference championships and they were four-time District champions.

In 2019, Purcell was Regional champion and the Byng Tournament champion.

Earlier this year, the Dragons finished runners-up in the Heart of Oklahoma tournament and they were the Regional runners-up.

During three years as a starter for Purcell, Nation helped the Dragons to a gaudy 53-26 record.

"My senior season could have ended better with a State tournament berth," said Nation, who averaged 14.4 points and 3.9 rebounds per game his senior campaign. "We made it to the last 16 teams in state. I would say that we were pretty successful."

In cross country, Nation was a 20-time individual medalist. He was a medalist in the 2019 Regional and a four-time State qualifier. Last fall, he was also a senior all-star.

"My best time for a 5K was 18 minutes and 45 seconds," Nation said. "I did that during the Regional meet my senior year last fall. That was my best effort."

In track, Nation was a five-time Regional medalist and he was the 2019 Regional long jump champion. He qualified twice for State in the long jump and was a 300-meter hurdles State qualifier in 2019.

Plus, he was a three-time Regional medalist in tennis and a two-time State qualifier in No. 1 singles. He was the 2019 Regional runner-up in No. 1 singles.

Not only that, Nation was also a superb student during high school.

He had an impressive 4.30 grade point average in the

The Theological Reason for the Pandemic

From the book of the Acts of the Apostles, we get a real feeling for how the early Church evolved into an institution. First, there emerged a problem in some of the small household gatherings—Greek-speaking widows were getting overlooked. It was decided that a division of labor should be established.

The Apostles had much to do with their preaching and healing and administering the movement of the Gospel. And so they set aside seven men to take care of the basic logistical needs of the community – food, clothing, shelter – especially for those who were most in need, such as the widows (Acts 6).

Out of these first “deacons,” two of them, Philip and Stephen, become major figures in the following chapters. And they do more than just the laundry! Stephen is the first martyr and is given the longest speech in the book of Acts (Chapter 7). Philip is seen preaching, healing, and catechizing, as he converts and baptizes an Ethiopian Jewish man (Acts 8).

The Diaconate is still an active ministry in the Catholic Church. Married (or single) men are ordained by the local Bishop. They are then assigned by the local Bishop to either assist a parish or perform special ministries – chaplains to prisons/hospitals, marriage preparation/counseling, or social justice ministries.

Some deacons have the gift of administration or building management. But they are always involved in ministries of Word and of service, just like in the early Church.

We also see in Acts the early Church already being stretched in the movement of the Holy Spirit. The Church is conservative in its holding on to past

Wednesday evening the auditorium Bible class looked at four more songs from the song book the congregation uses and compared the words of those songs to scripture.

Sunday morning the adult Bible class, continuing a study of authority, finished looking at expediencies and went into defining issues.

The Sunday morning auditorium class, continuing a study of authority and specifically the origins of issues that arise on the subject, concentrated on the importance of being led by the word which the Holy Spirit revealed.

During the Sunday morning assembly Keith Shackleford presented a word study on the use of the English word course and synonyms derived from translations of the same Hebrew and Greek words. The lesson gave attention to the course of this age contrasted with the course of the everlasting age.

The Sunday evening message addressed three aspects of what our prayers ought to be: (1) Prayers for ourselves and our loved ones, (2) prayers for others including the church, those who are going through hard times, our political leaders, civil and military front line

It was a wonderful Mother's Day as we met together for worship in our sanctuary for the first time since the coronavirus quarantine began in late March.

Special music was presented by James and Pam Kyzer, who sang “‘Til the Storm Passes By” and by Debbie Clark who sang “Consider the Lilies” and played an instrumental medley of hymns.

Brother Dennis spoke about “Faith That Acts” from Hebrews 11: 29-31. He told how faith helped the Israelites cross the Red Sea. By faith, the walls of Jericho fell down, and the harlot Rahab, who had received the spies, believed where others did not and was saved.

The writer of Hebrews tells that Christ is better, sufficient and supreme. Satan tries to take advantage of most situations and uses fear to stop God's people.

Realizing who our enemy is should make us draw closer to God. He indwells us with the Holy Spirit to strengthen and direct us. He gives us His Word, the truth that only He can give.

Faith shouldn't be dictated by how we think God should act or by circumstances. We should just believe God. Christ is the only way to get to God.

We are planning to meet the Mother's Day this past Sunday we discovered that something was different. For mom's health, we continue to do the social distancing, some due to location and others due to our current bane. So I just want to share with you something about my mother and wife. I will throw a little Jesus in for good measure because I am sure Mary had a great deal invested in her son, just as all mothers do.

We read some of the things Jesus did as a child and Luke 2:40-52 is a good story to read. While the story in Luke tells of an extraordinary event it also tells of a young boy that is much like all young children. You know, not telling your parents where you are and I am sure we can all relate to both Jesus and Mary when she discovers that Jesus is not, “from Mary's perspective” where he should be.

I have always considered myself to be very fortunate to have the mother that gave life to me and it was not just that moment of birth “mom wrote me a letter about the day of my birth.” Mom taught me how to climb trees and play baseball.

Early in my life, I was a little slow in school due to my eyesight. I was more or less blind, but that is another story. In those early years of school, mom and I did the dishes every night and while she washed, I dried and we stood over that sink doing spelling and math problems and just talking about life at a very early age.

I have no doubt that Mother

Sittin’ at a King’s Table for Mother’s Day

There’s just something about Mother’s Day. You noticed on Sunday that you didn’t see any fireworks. And you didn’t see cedar trees decked with flashing lights, an aisle full of candy stacked to the ceiling, or enough turkey and dressing to feed the Crimson Tide. That’s because this is Mother’s Day, and all you expect to see is a bouquet of flowers and a big smile on your mama’s face. Oh, we love all the hoop-la associated with the other holidays, but we love Mother’s Day in a special way. It takes us back to a time of good old-fashioned simplicity. That’s because that’s the way mama is. It doesn’t matter if she’s the president’s mama or Coca-Cola Mike’s mama, Maw-Maw, mamas bring no frills to the table, just pure love and down-home simplicity. I guess I learned this lesson sitting all the years at Grandma’s table. Maybe it meant even more since, later, we only had that privilege a couple times a year. Her long rectangular table was always the center of her home – figuratively speaking – and it was the first place we went when we pulled up into her driveway. You really weren’t home until she sat you down and put some hot cornbread in front of you. Her table was the consummation of that gradual trip into the South. By the time you get to the Chattahoochee, you know Grandma’s table is getting close. You’re already seeing plenty of kudzu hanging off trees, tall pines surveying the distant hills, and miles and miles of that bright Georgia red clay. Seeing those sights, you know you’ll soon be at that little red-brick house on Truitt Avenue. We say things were simple there at Grandma’s, but that term may be a bit relative. Simplicity doesn’t mean scarce or meager, not by a long shot. For a week Grandma Miller treated all of my family like a king. She gave ‘simplicity’ a whole new meaning. The first question you’d hear inside her modest home is, “What’d you want tonight for supper? I’ve got collard greens, turnip greens, or mustard greens.” You don’t get that verbal menu handed to you at a run-of-the-mill table. Ah, there really is no place like home. And that first welcoming meal was just Grandma’s appetizer. For breakfast: Eggs and grits and hot homemade biscuits with sorghum syrup and crisp bacon and coffee – cream and sugar, please – and orange juice. Every morning. Grandma always had the eggs and biscuits on as soon as you awoke. There was no alarm clock, so – for a rare few days in the year – your body got up when it was good and ready to get up, not a moment sooner. Then, in the evening, you could look for hot cornbread with homegrown green beans, fresh corn, onion, and whatever the “greens” of the day was, all topped off with a glass of buttermilk and cornbread. You all understand this, I know, because you were born and bred in the South. And if you weren’t, you have learned to adapt to the rare amenities the South offers with unparalleled hospitality. After each meal – feast, I should say – my family and I sat and talked with Grandma awhile, catching up with everything from the past half a year, then we’d clean off the table while she washed the dishes. I might try to wash sometimes, but she’d usually refuse. I may have been the king that week, but she was always the boss. We’d run around during the day – catching up with the boys down at the Y and Coca-Cola Mike and Glory -- then when the sun retired, we always gathered together again, to sit and write or read, while Grandma caught up with the Apostle Paul or John the Revelator. Talk about breaking life down to its most simple elements before heading back west and tackling a hundred Texas challenges that wait on the back burner! Those blessed coming-home Georgia trips were healthy for the soul, just like sitting at a table with mustard, turnip, or collard greens was healthy for body and soul alike. No, I cannot think of Mother’s Day without thinking of Grandma’s table and how simple life seemed to get whenever I could make my way to it. Oh, Grandma’s been gone now for almost two decades, but that didn’t matter this past Sunday. We were sittin’ at her table on Mother’s Day, just as before. ~ Steven Ray Bowen coachbowen1984@gmail.com.

Lexington United Methodist Church

We have scheduled our next Food Bank Give-Away for this Saturday, May 16, although we are still emphasizing “sheltering in place.” If you are getting low on food, please call the church or call Pastor David directly to arrange to get more food. What was Jesus really like? We don’t really know, but we have some idea given in the New Testament of the Bible. Here we have descriptions of his actions and words that are attributed to him. We see his kindnesses to sinners (the woman at the well), his love shown to all of the marginalized (the Samaritans, the beggars, any who were looked down upon), yet we also see his anger poured out in at least three places. Twice it was when bad people used the Temple in the wrong way. One of the easiest for us to remember is when Jesus threw the money changers out of the Temple. These were people who were breaking God’s Law by making a profit from the system of animal offerings rather than focusing on worship of the Lord. What we may not remember is that this occurred twice, once at the beginning of his ministry (John 2:13-22) and again in his last visit to Jerusalem (Matthew 21:12-17 (also found in Mark 11:15-19 and Luke 19:45-48)). Another time we see his anger was when Jesus called the Pharisees a “brood of vipers” and “blind guides” in Matthew 23. Jesus’ anger stemmed from love for the Pharisees and his concern for their spiritual condition. It had nothing to do with hatred or ill will. He is pronouncing woes upon the teachers of the law for not practicing what they preach and in the way they were horribly leading those put under their care. What does this mean? Jesus was a good example for us: to practice kindness and love, yet using anger appropriately. Choose our times of anger wisely. Do not bully or be hypocritical. Be just and fair. Do not practice prejudice. There are many other things we can learn about who Jesus really was if we study. Then we get to practice to be like him. Most of us look forward to the day when we can gather in worship and celebrate the presence of God. Until then may God bless and protect all of us, helping us take care of ourselves and others. Let us remember to be kind and loving to all God’s creatures and all earth’s children. In order to protect ourselves and each other, we continue to temporarily suspend worship and church school. However, Pastor David Cook will still be at the church on Sunday mornings at 9:30 a.m. for prayer and counsel. Our address is 631 East Ash, near Lexington High School. For more information, please call the church at (405) 527-3506 to leave a message, or contact Pastor David directly at (405) 406-6174.

Johnson Road Baptist Church

It was great to have the church doors at Johnson Road open last Sunday morning. The number of attendees was small, but the renewed fellowship was wonderful. Two of our ladies, Ann Gilman and Donna Brown, were recognized as the Senior Mothers. We were pleased to have two visitors who spoke good words about the church. As protection against the spread of the coronavirus it will be weeks before our elderly members feel safe to attend church. We want all of our members and friends to show caution in venturing out into public places. Special music was provided by Gynean Gentry. Sermon text for Sunday morning on Mother’s Day was taken from John 19:25-30. Where would we be without the love shown to us by our Mothers? We should take note that the Apostle John in 19th chapter of his book records the loved expressed by Jesus for his Mother Mary. From His birth in Bethlehem to His crucifixion on the cross outside Jerusalem, Mary was present to support her son, Jesus. Mary knew her Son was a miracle sent from heaven. She knew all about His love for others, His power to change the water into wine, His power to feed the hungry multitudes and His power to calm the stormy seas. Mary must have prayed often for her Son when the religious leaders scorned and harmed him. John said the last two words Jesus spoke from the cross were “I thirst” and “It is finished.” Minutes before His death, Jesus honored His mother and provided for her welfare. In His agony of pain, thirst, rebuke and suffering Jesus lifted His head, raised His sweet voice and spoke directly to the Apostle John, “Let My Mother be your Mother and accept her into your home.” Mary became an extended member of John’s Family. Jesus set an example for all children to follow. Mothers deserve nothing but the best in love and care. Mothers earn their title. Mothers deserve our love. Mothers must never be left alone. Our story book will never be large enough to contain all the accounts of the love our Mothers have shone to us. Mothers Day should be celebrated every day of our life. We hope to see you in church this Sunday. The sermon is “The Upper Room.” Our pastoral services will still be available 24 hours daily.

traditions - traditions of the prophets of Israel and trying to maintain its Jewish identity. At the same time, it is open to the Holy Spirit in its acceptance of non-Jewish (Greek-speaking) people into the faith and developing new forms of ministry beyond the Apostles. Both aspects of conservatism and progressivism are healthy in the Church’s personality. Many churches have been now about seven weeks without public services. What is the reason and purpose of this pandemic? We know the natural, ecological reasons. Whenever a population gets too large – whether it is rabbits, songbirds, human beings – nature will try to restore a balance by either the work of predators, loss of habitat by overgrowth, famine, or disease. We have created ideal conditions for a virus to replicate – encroachment upon wilderness areas, combined with increased contact with live animals, fast times of air travel, over-crowding in urban areas. Nature will restore a balance. This is the way God created it. But what is the theological reason? As believers, we believe that all natural crises come to us with God’s purpose attached – whether tornado, earthquake, or natural pandemic. What does God desire us to learn from this? My parishioners have given solid answers. God wants us to “slow down” and make more time for silence and quiet prayer. God desires us to have more family time, time to rediscover who we are as individuals and as family. We should also now feel more connected with one another – not only other Americans, but also with Italians, Spanish, Chinese, Brazilians, etc. Or perhaps God is forming us to be the next “Greatest Generation,” a people who are frugal and not wasteful, able to live on a tighter budget. We might now appreciate simpler things – walks in the park, dominoes or card games, being satisfied with what we have. Humility is the virtue of being aware of our fragile nature before God, He who brought us into the earth has provided now a quick escape as well. “Awake, O sleeper, arise from the dead, and Christ will give you life!” (Eph 5:14). The risen Lord has gone before us to prepare a place for us. That is reason enough to be hopeful, to be unafraid. Our public Masses will resume on the weekend of May 23-24, with 33 percent capacity and social distancing measures to protect public health. Please continue to pray with us via Facebook and our web page.

Washigton:

Mary spent many nights talking with Jesus about life and hopes and dreams. I’m sure from time to time Mother Mary had to tell Jesus to wash behind his ears and to quit slamming the door. Mom never missed one of my ball games, I always understood when she was angry “mother could really run fast in those years” and when times were difficult mother was always present with encouraging words and love. While I believe most mothers are like this I also look at Linda and have known for some time she is much like my mother and yes probably like Mary. Protective of her children, a good listener, and yes she hurts when her children suffer. This Mother’s Day I missed my mother as she has gone on and in the coming years, there will be other mothers that will leave their children. I want to encourage you to think about your mother and not just on Mother’s Day or Christmas or even when you realize all the lessons of life she has given you. Think of her and all she does for you and how she loves you when you have victories or fall short of your hopes and dreams. Jesus’ last thoughts on the cross were for his mother; as I have grown older, my thoughts are for how great a mother I had and the one I am married to. Take time to do something special every day, take time to say thank you to your Mom.

whole Sulphur team pursued and tackled Rick McCurdy, James Taylor waltzed into the end zone untouched to score the touchdown!

Sulphur unbelievably marched 70 yards to score on the last play of the game to tie the score, but the 2-point conversion failed, preserving a 6-6 tie.

We remained undefeated and were the Arbuckle Conference champions!

We beat Healdton 36-24 in the first round of the playoffs but had a much tougher game against Walters in the State quarterfinals the following week.

Trailing at halftime 6-0, we tied the game in the 3rd quarter.

In the 4th quarter, after stopping them deep inside our own territory, we were on our own 20 yard line facing fourth and one.

Coach Krall from the sideline was signaling us to kick with a frantic kicking motion of his foot, but in the huddle everybody wanted to go for it. Gillihan faked to the left halfback into the line and handed to the right halfback going off-tackle to the left and, through a huge hole. Jerry Idleman broke free for an 80 yard touchdown. We scored another easy touchdown. The defense held and we won the game 18-6.

What to say about the last game? It was the State semi-finals and we got crushed; we were never in the game and Choctaw, the eventual State Champion, was a better team. I often wonder what would have happened if not for Frank James' accident. It was over. It was finished. Football careers ended for all of us but Rick.

Rick McCurdy went on to a stellar career as a starting end and punter for OU.

I wish I could remember all of it. I wish I could remember every game. I sometimes lie in bed at night and try to remember exactly what it was like and how it felt, but I can only capture the small scenes and not the whole
