Body cameras currently used by the Purcell Police Department and the server which archives police video are obsolete, Purcell Police Chief Bobby Elmore told the city council Monday. Elmore explained service is no longer available on the existing cameras, which are 5 to 7 years old.

Taxing travelers

Other towns do it; why not Purcell?

JeanneGrimes The Purcell Register

Purcell is one of just three municipalities along the I-35 corridor without a hotel/motel tax.

And the other two–Marietta and Thackerville–are covered by the 5 percent lodging tax assessed by Love County.

From Blackwell near the Kansas state line to Ardmore, a dozen municipalities along I-35 charge a lodging tax on travelers who choose to rest the night at local hotels and motels.

While Purcell has no such tax, that could change next month with a citywide election.

Save time and increase success by creating a garden calendar

By Melinda Myers

Ringing in the New Year way to help accomplish those two resolutions, while also improving your mood, reducing blood pressure, managing anger, maintaining flexibility and much more.

So, gather anyone that shares in your gardening efforts and landscape projects. Grab a calendar and make some gardening plans for the year ahead.

Consider including a monthly project that you all can share and one that moves you closer to your long-term gardening and landscaping goals.

Start the year right by growing some microgreens. They are quick, easy and require no special equipment. Plus, recent research found that many contain as much as 25 times more nutrients as the leaves of the full-grown plant.

Take some time to inventory your current seed collection. Decide what seeds you want to keep and grow this season and those you want to pass along to gardening friends. You may choose to make seed art with older or improperly stored seeds and invest in fresh seeds that are sure to germinate.

Once you complete your inventory, review new catalogs,

Gardening is a great for the seeds and plants you want to buy.

> While you wait for your seed order to arrive, prepare a space and organize supplies for starting any seeds indoors as needed.

Clear a space, check your grow lights, and gather the needed seed starting mix and clean containers. Soak used containers in a one-part bleach and nine-parts water solution for 10 minutes. Then rinse with clear water before reusing them this year.

Once you know what you want to grow, it is time to create a seed starting calendar. Check the catalogue, University Extension recommendations, and back of the packet to determine when you need to start the seeds indoors or out.

Include dates for starting seeds indoors and directly in the garden.

Note the recommended date for moving transplants into the garden. Add in time as needed to harden off transplants. Gradually introducing plants to the garden environment over a two-week period reduces transplant shock and increases your success.

Mark your calendar for peak and make a list of seeds and harvest times in your region.

time for harvesting and preserving.

Supplement your own harvest with produce from farmer's markets and pickyour-own farms. Most post expected picking and produce availability dates on their website, so you can plan ahead. As the season begins, confirm picking times and invite family and friends for a harvest and preservation party.

Record all this information on your calendar, garden chart or a spreadsheet to help keep your gardening efforts on track. This will also help you identify the best time to embark on larger landscaping projects or hire a plant sitter when you are away from the garden.

Make this the year you resolve to accomplish your gardening goals in a timely manner. You'll maximize your harvest, enjoyment, and other gardening benefits.

Gardening tasks to protect your landscape from winter wildlife damage

By Melinda Myers

As the seasons change, we adjust our gardening tasks and plantings to match. Animals also make changes this time of year, often changing their eating habits and dining locations.

These adjustments can impact your gardens. Reduce the risk of damage by starting to protect your landscape from hungry animals this winter.

Take a walk around your landscape to evaluate plants and plantings for their susceptibility to animal damage. Look for pathways that animals use to access your landscape and areas of potential damage.

damage. Mature trees are usually only bothered during years where the vole and rabbit populations are high and food is scarce. Fencing around garden beds filled with animal favorites is another option. Make sure your fence is high enough, tight to the ground and gates are secure.

You will need a four-feethigh fence for rabbits and at least five- to six-feet-high fence to keep deer out of small gardens. A fence of several strands of fishing line has proven to be successful for some gardeners.

Repellents are another less obtrusive option. These use smell or taste to discourage favorites and those special landscape. Check the label to plantings you would hate see if the repellent works on to lose. Make sure these are the animals and rodents you are trying to manage.

If you opt for scare tactics, be sure to employ a variety of options and change their location to increase your chance of success.

Constantly monitor and evaluate the effectiveness of the methods used and check all plantings for damage. When animal populations are high and hungry, they will eat about anything.

Be willing to change things up if one method is not working. Using multiple tactics will help increase your level of success.

Your Views Lodging tax explained

Why should Purcell implement a lodging tax?

Our community has many attractions to be enjoyed by residents and visitors alike. However, we lack the financial resources to promote, improve and expand those attractions.

The proposed lodging tax will provide the needed money to be used to promote, improve and expand our attractions. AND, IT WILL NOT BE PAID BY ANY RESIDENT OF PURCELL! Only out of town guests will pay the tax when they pay for overnight lodging in our town.

Purcell is one, if not the last, community along I-35, rural, suburban or metropolitan, that does not currently collect a lodging tax. Some claim not having a lodging tax places our lodging industry into a competitive advantage over other communities. The reality is guests make their lodging choices based upon location and room costs. Taxes do not influence those choices along I-35.

Once the proposal is passed and we begin to collect the tax, we will see the funds being spent on promoting our community and enhancing our attractions in order to attract more visitors to our community.

The new visitors will spend their lodging, fuel, food and supply dollars in our community, improving the commerce for our businesses and increasing the sales and lodging taxes. We will see those increases result in more re-investments into our community which will attract even more visitors.

We do not have to look any further than Pauls Valley to see the positive impact a lodging tax can have on a community.

Name recognition, festivals, museums, art galleries, events and even more hotel beds have resulted from Pauls Valley's lodging tax implemented about 15 years ago. The same could happen in our community.

So, the real question we should be asking is: Why do we NOT have a lodging tax in Purcell?

Make it happen by voting YES February 9th.

Goals for a new year

Ihope this finds you and your This year, I'm making a goal family well and rested from the to check out more so that I can holiday season.

Christmastime and New Year's Day is always a busy time for my family; we're always celebrating and preparing for parties with my staff and residents at the nursing home.

Being a nursing home administrator during a global pandemic is not anything I ever dreamed I'd experience and has truly made me value, even more, what time I have with my family. If you have a loved one in a long-term care community, you get it.

With a new year brings new goals, new adventures and fresh starts; I'm ready for all the above. My goals this year sound pretty simple but are things that are difficult for me.

I intend to be more present, become more intentional and to be more forgiving. The past two years have taught me a lot about myself and that's where these goals are rooted. Being more present, to me, is a goal to focus on my family instead of letting my thoughts drift to my "To-Do List."

I oftentimes find myself letting my mind wander during church, during a board game with the kids or answering emails during a baseball game.

check IN more and focus on the things that should be my first priorities.

My friend Liz always says, "When you get home, if you have nothing left to give to your kids and/or your husband, then you need to reevaluate." That really hit home for me this year, and it's the most important goal for me.

My second goal is to become more intentional. What does this even look like? To me, becoming more intentional is about simplifying my life so I can focus on the priorities. I'm the kind of person who hates to say no because I don't want to disappoint anyone.

But...in order to become more intentional, I know I need to say no more so that I can say yes to the things that should get my attention. Instead of volunteering for a thousand things, I'm going to spend more energy on the things that I'm the most passionate about currently in my life.

I'm going to practice gratitude and learn to be more thankful for the little things in life. I'm going to work on being a

Completing citical year-end work

Congressman Tom Cole

This week marks the official start of the 117th Congress, including the swearing-in of newly elected members in the U.S. House of Representatives. However, although the new Congress is already beginning to take shape, it was just several days ago that lawmakers completed critical legislative work for the American people. While I wish the year-end action had come sooner, I am encouraged that the prior Congress came together at all to fulfill its key functions – such as delivering critical full-year funding for the federal government, providing additional coronavirus aid and enacting the National Defense Authorization Act.

Passed by both chambers of Congress and recently signed into law by President Donald Trump, the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2020 is a comprehensive and bipartisan piece of legislation with numerous goals.

First, the legislation fulfills the annual funding that Congress must responsibly provide to keep the government open and operating. This function is achieved through the passage of 12 separate funding bills for the fiscal year.

As you might know, these annual "appropriations" support government programs that touch nearly every aspect of our daily lives as well as various facets of the economy - including national defense, operating national parks, law and immigration enforcement, health care research and a host of other activities.

As the former Chairman and current Ranking Member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee responsible for funding the Department of Health and Human Services, I have always supported incremental funding increases for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the National Institutes of Health (NIH).

I was particularly proud of the increased funding devoted to the NIH this year, helping further support biomedical research and pandemic preparedness, which must remain a priority for years to come. I was also encouraged that it provided the funding and resources for our nation's defense to tackle the evolving challenges of our day, such as cybersecurity attacks and serving on the frontlines of pandemics.

It also included support for the Fourth District's Tinker Air Force Base in Midwest City and Fort Sill in Lawton to continue their ongoing missions.

In addition to fully funding the government for fiscal year 2021, the legislative package finally delivered much-needed and targeted coronavirus relief that should have happened months ago.

Sadly, Speaker Nancy Pelosi intentionally stalled meaningful progress in those negotiations – notably by refusing to agree on anything until agreement existed on everything. However, it seems more likely that Speaker Pelosi thought withholding aid would sway the results of the November election. Either way, the American people needlessly suffered as a result.

Fortunately, critical and bipartisan aid negotiated by congressional leaders in both chambers with the Trump Administration is on its way at last to communities.

This includes the reopening of the Paycheck Protection Program, a highly successful and key lifeline for struggling small businesses and their employees during the coronavirus pandemic.

Moreover, it renews unemployment insurance for those suffering from pandemic-related job losses, and it provides for a second round of stimulus checks for most Americans. Although the Senate did not act on President Trump's requested

2020: A Year of Years

2020 has certainty been a year of years. I do not need to recount the events of this year; we all know them too well. It is just strange to think that it was less than a year ago since we impeached the president, yet it seems more like a decade. As we think back over the events of the past 12 months, it may be helpful to know that 2020 is not unique.

we would survive, especially years in the middle of wars. Yet we always did. One year in particular has come to my mind. As crazy as 2020 was, 1919 gave it a run for its money, and, like always, we endured and overcame.

both years was the same, a nationwide pandemic. Though the outfits we wore looked completely different, one style was the same: facemasks. 1919 was not the worst year for the Spanish Flu but it did see a deadly third wave that caused businesses to close and social activities to end. If anything, technology has made 2020 was not an option then.

As with 2020, the biggest consequence of the pandemic was the death toll, but it also was a massive hit to the economy. Families had the same concerns of watching businesses collapse. Yet in 1919 they had of the de-escalation of WWI.As life it did not beat 1919.

crazy as this sounds, WWI was good for our economy. During the war, we fed the world while most of the men were fighting. When the soldiers all returned to their own nations, American farmers took a hit.

At the same time, the economy was suffering from major labor issues. With the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution, all labor strikes now looked like communist revolutions, throwing We have had other years the nation into a "Red Scare." in which we did not know if Dozens of major strikes and riots occurred in cities, ending in the November Centralia Massacre that left six dead.

In April and May, bombs mailed to important business leaders and politicians, killing two. The government's answer was the J. Mitchell Palmer The biggest problem in raids, where more than 300 suspects were either arrested or deported. All the labor unrest hurt the stock market. In many ways 1919 was harder on the economy than 2020 has been.

This past year has seen what seems like an unprecedented number of natural disasters, yet 1919 had its own share. In July a coal mine collapsed in West Virginia, trapping 221 men and easier than 2019. Going online capturing the nation's attention. None were expected to make it out alive but, in the end, only six perished.

Two months later in Corpus Christi, Texas, one of the largest hurricanes to hit the area came ashore and killed 700 people. 2020 may have had more dithe added burden of the effects sasters, but in terms of loss of

It's hard to top an impeachment and the contested election of 2020, but 1919 did have issues. President Wilson was in the biggest fight of his life with Congress, which refused to ratify the Treaty of Versailles and join the League of Nations. Instead of working with Congress, Wilson stubbornly insisted it step in line and began a whistle stop tour of the nation to convince the American people to support his cause.

In the end, he did not get the support he wanted and instead suffered a debilitating stroke, leaving him unable to function as the president and leaving the U.S. leaderless.

For many, dealing with these issues and quarantine would have been easier with sports. It seemed bad enough when 2020 started with the Houston Astros' cheating scandal, but then in March, right before an Oklahoma City Thunder game, sports was canceled. Sports may not have shut down in 1919, but it had an even worse sports scandal.

In October eight players on the Chicago White Sox were found to have accepted money to lose the World Series. Americans were crushed. With the sanctity of baseball now questioned, what, if anything, was sacred? Then that same year the Red Sox traded pitcher Babe Ruth to the Yankees, beginning the curse of the Bambino which

As you pack away the garden hose, tools and other supplies or transition to your winter garden, do not overlook those leftover seeds.

Proper storage can extend their life so you will need to buy fewer seeds next season. With another shortage of garden seeds predicted for 2021 you will be glad you did.

Leave the seeds in their original packet whenever possible. It contains all the information you need to make planting easier and increase your success next season.

Caddo Nation's past decisons have shaped tribe's present

Jericka Handie Gaylord News

Some experiences are hard to shake when all seems lost.

Tamara Francis, chairwoman of the Caddo nation, said the United States' past decisions have shaped the tribe's present and will potentially affect its future.

"The Caddo were an extremely large tribe," Francis said."What you know as Caddo today is not what Caddo used to be."

According to historical documents, the early Caddo lived on the Red River and East Texas in small, rural communities along rivers and streams. What would become one of the most sought-after lands, the Red River Valley, was inhabited by Caddo people about 2,500 years ago.

By the 17th century, the Caddo had established permanent villages in territories including southwestern Arkansas, northwestern Louisiana, northeastern Texas and southeastern Oklahoma.

They built mounds and maintained central places of worship throughout their villages and ceremonial centers.

By 1800, the Caddo dominated the regional economy in the Red River Valley through trading with early European settlers. However, when the United States purchased Louisiana in 1803 and gained control over the port of Orleans and the Mississippi River, the Caddo found themselves without power or agency with the U.S. government.

In 1835, a treaty was signed by then-United States commissioner Jehiel Brooks and the Caddo Nation, 201 chiefs, head men and warriors of the Caddo Nation of Indians.

removal," Francis said. "Anyone that tried to stay probably got killed."

Francis said only 150 to 200 tribal members made it to Oklahoma.

When they arrived, conditions were poor. The goods, horses and money they were promised were never delivered.

Modern Caddo perspective on the forced land cession:

• With the removal from Louisiana, better yet removal from the United States, the government did not want us living in the US. It truly was a "I don't care where you go, you just can't stay here.'

The treaty was careful to ensure that the government did not allot any land for those Caddo forced out of Shreveport and the United States.

Ancestor Mary Inkanish documented her experience of being removed from Shreveport in a 1927 interview. She explained that when that treaty was signed, her family went down into Mexico. This demonstrated the familiarity Caddos had with Mexico.

Why would they go into Mexico first if they didn't know what to expect? This linked the El Camino Real de los Tejas as the main road used to get there.

The Caddo, who Francis' mother often refers to as "the recycled jar or plastic storage container. If you have lots of seeds, consider organizing them as you pack them away for winter.

Arrange them alphabetically from A to Z using dividers for each letter of the alphabet or organize them by planting season. Group seeds to be started indoors together and those that go directly in the garden by the month they should be planted.

Seal the lid on the container and place in a cool, dark location. The refrigerator is perfect, providing consistently cool temperature that increases seed storage success.

The longevity of a seed not only depends on proper storage, but also varies with the type of seed.

Eggplant, muskmelon, and Brussels sprouts will last five years or more while onions and parsnips may only last a year. Give leftover flower seeds the same care. Heliotrope, verbena, sweet William, geraniums, and Sharing and trading with friends or donating to schools, community gardens, master gardeners, or other groups that may lack the resources to buy their own seeds is a great way to make a difference. Everyone will save money while growing beautiful and productive gardens.

Do not discard older seeds. They often outlast the average and continue to sprout at an acceptable level. You can test the seeds prior to planting. Just take 10 seeds and wrap them in a damp paper towel. Then place in a plastic bag and wait to check for sprouting in a week or two.

If all the seeds sprout, you can plant according to the packet. If only half sprout, you need to seed twice as thick.

And if you find some of your old seeds are no longer viable, use them to create seed art and Happy Anniversary I love you The Caddo were forced to cede their traditional territory.

In previous years the Caddo had built alliances with Spain and France by participating in the French fur trade and exchanging guns, horses and other items. Most Caddo settled along the rich Red River Valley, and as time passed Americans realized the agricultural potential of their inhabited lands and trade was put on the back burner.

The Louisiana Purchase was the impetus for the relocation of the Caddo. When the United States purchased the Louisiana Territory from France, the Caddo were forced out of their original lands on the lower Red River.

Louisiana Caddo moved southwest to join other tribal members in Texas. They lived there until they received threats from an anti-Indian group, which forced them to flee to east-central Oklahoma.

In July 2016, Francis was re-elected as chairman of the Caddo Nation. Her mother. Mary Pat Francis, was the first elected female chairman of the Caddo.

Francis said years of forced assimilation in boarding schools heavily affected the Caddo. Poverty, drug abuse and suicide have come of it, she said.

Regardless of all barriers, Francis said she is working to counteract centuries of federal policies that have put her people at a disadvantage. Whether its rent assistance, paying for school supplies or issues at home, Francis wants to help.

Where dark money went in Oklahoma elections

TrevorBrown Oklahoma Watch

In the days and weeks leading up to election day, dark money groups pumped hundreds of thousands of dollars into key Oklahoma legislative races, with the vast majority of the money helping Republican candidates.

An Oklahoma Watch review of Ethic Commission campaign filings showed organizations that aren't required to television or direct mail addisclose their donors or release detailed information about their leaders spent nearly $1 million trying to influence races throughout the state.

The approximately $961,400 spent by these groups between the August 25 runoff elections and the November 3 general $11.1 million candidates spent weeks of the race, is a staggerthis cycle on the 101 House ing sum for Oklahoma's legisseats and 24 Senate seats up for election, according to Ethics candidates tens of thousands of Commission reports. money: independent expenditures from organizations that unlike independent expenaren't required to disclose their donors; and political action committees that accept money from named groups whose funding sources are close margins. Despite being undisclosed.

In both cases, these groups can raise unlimited amounts of money to support or oppose candidates so long as the spending is made without coordinating with a candidate. The money is often spent on 769-vote margin and received advertising or mailers.

Though legal, dark money groups have drawn scrutiny due and What Do We Know to their lack of transparency and common tactics of mounting untruthful attacks or messages that can't be tied to a candidate or single person.

Oklahoma Watch identified eight groups that spent money between the runoff and the litical operative, is the group's general election. Their efforts filing agent. Where the Money Went?

Oklahoma Democratic Party led the groups in spending.

The Oklahoma MAGA Coalition spent $292,950, with all the money going towards supporting Republicans or opposing Democrats in two Tulsa-area races: the Senate District 35 race won by Dossett, a Democrat, and the House District 83 race won by Roberts, a Republican.

The group spent $90,450 on vertisements directly opposing Dossett, $80,100 combined on mailers opposing Dossett and Branham, the Democrat in the House District 83 race, and $40,800 on mailers that supported Baber, the Republican in the Senate District 35 race.

its independent expenditure reports submitted with the Ethics Commission includes the same number as the Advance Oklahoma Fund, a PAC that spent more than $250,000 in independent expenditure on primary and runoff races earlier this year.

Fund, Advance Oklahoma PAC is funded almost entirely by a group, also with an opaque background. The group, called A Public Voice, contributed $290,000 to the Advance this year.

FEC filings show A Public Voice is linked to a McLean, Va., address. IRS tax records, however, show A Public Voice Inc. is registered as a nonprofit and is based in Thornville, Ohio.

Media reports show the group has been active in spending in its home state as well as others, including Michigan and North Carolina, where politicians accused the group of deceptive practices.

Americans United For Values, a federal PAC that also spent heavily in Oklahoma this year, also has ties to A Public Voice.

The PAC spent more than $132,000 on four general elecsupport of Roberts and Sens. that spent $81,100 on three FEC records show American United for Values is registered to Brian Kinnett, who is listed as the group's treasurer. Messages to the group were not returned.

A 2018 Politico report called Kinnett an Ohio-based conservative activist who then was a spokesman for a dark money group called American Exceptionalism Institute. IRS tax records show Kinnett was the president of A Public Voice as of last year.

Other dark money groups that spent money in Oklahoma include:

•American Energy Action Fund, which spent $104,500 on 10 candidates, including seven Republicans and three Democrats. The group's website says it is a non-partisan group that supports state legislative candidates who are committed to "clean energy technology." • Oklahoma Growth Altionraces, including $44,000 in liance, a nonprofit group, filings show it is registered to Norman resident Gregory Lockhart, who briefly served as former presidential candidate Michael Bloomberg's director of digital communication earlier this year.

• OK Progress LLC, which spent $68,200 supporting Dossett in her race. The group, which was also active in the Democratic primaries, registered as a limited liability company in Delaware. Little other public information is available.

• The Oklahoma Federation for Children Action Fund, which spent nearly $46,600 on 11 candidates, all Republicans. The group is a PAC affiliated with the American Federation For Children, a 501(c)(4) group. The national school-choice group was once led by U.S.Education Secretary Betsy DeVos.

Tommy Ray Wilhite

Tommy Ray Wilhite was born May 18, 1944 at home on the Wilhite land in Lexington, Okla. He was the youngest child of Fannie Mae McNutt Wilhite and T.L. Wilhite. Tom had an older brother, K.D. Wilhite, and an older sister, Saundra Lynette Ferguson.

Tom attended Lexington Schools and joined the U.S. Air Force upon graduation in 1963. That same year, he married his high school sweetheart, Donna Lynn Odom Wilhite.

They were stationed at Barksdale Air Force Base, Louisiana, four of the 13 years that they lived in Bossier City. During his military service, Tom served in the Flag Ceremony for numerous funerals. After his military duty was completed in 1967, he was employed by the U.S. Army Recruiting Office and Veteran's Hospital in Shreveport, Louisiana.

One son, Jeffrey Mark Wilhite, was born while Tom was still in Louisiana. In 1976, Tom and family returned to Oklahoma and have lived in Norman these past 44 years. A second son, Jonathan Richard Wilhite, was born in Norman, in 1980.

In 2000, after almost 38 years of Federal service, Tom retired. This began a time of travel and realization for Tom and Donna as they began to take trips across the country, enjoying their retirement. They toured the wine country in California, took cruises to the Bahamas (having to hide from a hurricane), and explored the Deep South.

Tom loved to laugh. He loved to tell jokes and dance and sing. With his booming laugh and frequent loud claps, he was the life of the party. He and Donna enjoyed going to the OU Football games, and spending time with the family, especially his grandchildren. He adored little dogs and raised and bred Shih Tzus, including his favorites Peppermint and Ruffles. He loved musical theater and movies, especially Wizard of Oz and Gone and the Wind.

Tom enjoyed the outdoors, especially riding his bike and gardening around the house. He was never prouder than when his Burnt Oak house won Yard of the Month in April 1985.

Tom was preceded in death by his father, Thomas Lafayette Wilhite Jr., and his mother, Fannie Mae McNutt-Wilhite-Waddle.

Tom passed on December 29, 2020, at the age of 76, from a combination of Dementia and Parkinson's Disease.

A graveside service was held Monday January 4, 2021, at the Lexington Cemetery in Lexington, Okla.

Flowers may be sent to Havenbrook Funeral Home. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Norman Animal Welfare, in honor of Tom's love of animals.

The U.S. Department of Agri- for quantity losses." culture's (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) has announced that signup for the Quality Loss for which federal crop insurance Adjustment (QLA) Program began Jan. 6, 2021.

Funded by the Further Consolidated Appropriations Act for grazed crops and value loss of 2020, this new program provides assistance to producers who suffered eligible crop quality losses due to natural disasters occurring in 2018 and 2019. The deadline to apply for QLA is Friday, March 5, 2021.

"Farmers and livestock producers nationwide experienced crop quality losses due to natural disasters in 2018 and 2019," said Bill Northey, USDA Under Secretary for Farm Production and Conservation. "We have worked diligently over the past couple of years to roll out meaningful disaster assistance programs to help alleviate the substantial financial loss experienced by so many agricultural producers and are pleased to offer quality loss assistance as added relief. Many of the eligible producers have already received compensation

Barber's unsuccessful Senate unlimited amount of money District 35 bid. The conservative group has largely been funded by Charles Koch and his deceased brother, David.

Dark Money's Role in Politics This type of political spending arose after the U.S. Supreme Court's Citizens United ruling in 2010, which held that the First Amendment prohibited governments from restricting independent expenditures by companies, non profits and labor unions to support or oppose candidates. The amount of that spending rose sharply in national races in 2012 but something we are increasingly didn't see big gains in state races until 2014.

Some organizations, such as the Arizona-based Goldwater Institute, say anonymous political spending by independent groups is allowed by the First Amendment rights to free speech. A 2015 report by the institute said disclosure mandates in some states "have diluted political dialogue, invited harassment and retaliation against speakers, and chilled speech and association."

Some independent expenditure groups voluntarily report their donors or are required to do so if they are an existing political action committee. That is the case for so-called leadership PACs, which are operated by Republican or Democratic legislative leaders.

The Majority Fund, a PAC for Oklahoma House of Representatives Republicans, for instance, spent nearly $260,000 this election cycle on independent expenditures. While the PAC is allowed to spend money supporting candidates without restrictions, it does report its donors.

Both on the state and national level, the amount of disclosure required of these types of groups that can spend an sure say the type and amounts of secretive spending are a "threat" to democracy.

Daniel Newman, president of MapLight, a Californiabased nonprofit that seeks to reveal the influence of money in politics, told Oklahoma Watch in 2018 this type of spending is alarming because it allows outside forces to sway the electorate by spreading potentially misleading messages without accountability.

"It's a concern because it's seeing," Newman said. "Our democracy is based on a free exchange of ideas, but when voters don't know the source of these ads, they can't truly evaluate the message and what is being said."

Rep. Denise Brewer, D-Tulsa, was among the lawmakers who won re-election despite efforts by dark money groups to defeat her.

Advance Oklahoma PAC spent more than $38,000 either opposing her or supporting her opponent, Republican Mike Masters.

Brewer said the dark money mailers that she saw in her race, which were reviewed by Oklahoma Watch, accused her of cutting funding for school and health care while calling her"too liberal" for Oklahoma.

Brewer said the groups and their tactics poison the political process and sometimes aren't all that effective.

"It's just dirt, lies and ugliness," she said. "The only good thing is that some Oklahomans still have manners so sometimes it can backfire."

Applying for QLA

When applying, producers are asked to provide verifiable documentation to support claims of quality loss or nutrient loss in the case of forage crops. For crops that have been sold, grading must have been completed within 30 days of harvest, and for forage crops, a laboratory analysis must have been completed within 30 days of harvest.

Some acceptable forms of documentation include sales receipts from buyers, settlement sheets, truck or warehouse scale tickets, written sales contracts, similar records that represent actual and specific quality loss information, and forage tests for nutritional values.

Payments Calculations and Limitations

QLA payments are based on formulas for the type of crop (forage or non-forage) and loss documentation submitted. Based on this documentation FSA is calculating payments based on the producer's own individual loss or based on the county average loss. More information on payments can be found on farmers.gov/ quality-loss.

2020 is History, but 2021 is Already Looking Good

You've heard it. "I'm so glad that 2020 is over and done." How many times have we heard that? Maybe you've said it yourself.

But I've been thinking about it - and, yes, I understand that 2020 had its share of challenges. But if you and I can look back at that last somewhat-trying year and see that, first, you and those closest to you are safe and well, and, two, you have not gone under financially, then we did not have it so bad after all.

Those who were not blessed to come out of the end of the things intact are the ones we feel the most for. The rest of us have to admit we've been pretty blessed.

Wednesday Bible Study- 7:00 pm

I guess it's a little like the great Bible hero named Caleb whom we discussed in our 'front-porch' visit to end the 2020 year. He is a man who faces more than his share of difficulties, but he had learned that positivism is better than negativism, any way you look at it.

He would tell us that the giant challenge you're facing really isn't the 'main thing." The main thing is what it is you have deep down inside you – and who it is you have standing right there beside you. Those things are the difference-makers.

While some people look at a giant standing before them, and say, "Aw, man, we can't do anything with that. It's a giant" - the Calebs of the world look at the giant challenge standing in front of them and say, "We can do this. Just hang on. The Lord will help us find a way."

You know, Caleb's challenge with that unbelieving generation of Israelites on his team makes 2020's challenges seem minute. He not only has 2020 tunnel with those two to face giants; he has to face them with a flailing and faithless bunch of people whining all around him. Our 2020s are tough enough without having to convert your own before going into the battle.

As a result, Caleb endures and that's what patience is - four grueling decades longing for the Promised Land. But he never gives up, through it all. Yes, Caleb will be eightyfive by the time he reaches his goal. But goals that are worth going after don't have a clock attached to them.

In a way, Caleb has to endure forty long, hard 2020's. But he digs his heels into the dirt and refuses to let up, give up, or loosen up. And, sure enough, when the day comes when he marches across the Jordan River into Canaan, he is high-stepping better than all of them, even at eighty-five.

And, you know, once he crosses over, the previous forty years are history.

Truth is, 2020 is history, too. So, today, who will step up like Caleb, grit our teeth a little, say "We can" do this, then set out with a smile to see what good things 2021 holds?

of the Epiphany of the Lord. Epiphany is a Christian holiday primarily commemorating the Magi's visit to the baby Jesus and the baptism of Jesus by John the Baptist.

Eastern traditions, which usually call the holiday Theophany, focus on Jesus' baptism, seen as the manifestation of Christ as both fully human and fully divine. Western traditions focus on the Magi's visit, seen as the first manifestation of Christ as saviour of Gentiles as well as Jews. Epiphany is among the church's oldest and most important feasts.

Even though the song "We Three Kings," is about the Magi, they were not kings. They were probably astrologers. They charted the stars and attached religious significance to their movements. It is believed they came from the east, perhaps Persia (modern day Iran).

And while most nativity scenes include the three wise men, they did not arrive at the They found Jesus in a house understanding the meaning of Instead, let's focus differently. The Magi were not Jewish, yet they believed something extremely important was happening where "that bright star was." They were not like the shepherds who were told by an angel what was happening.

Instead, they tried to discern what was causing this astrological oddity. When they found Jesus, they prostrated themselves and did him homage. Remember these Magi were wealthy. Yet they lay flat or at Friday in the morning. The full length, as on the ground, face down on the ground, as in token of humility, submission, or adoration. ## Hunting the "elusive" antler shed

Justin McDaniel

Extension Ag Educator

The hunting season is over for white-tailed deer in Oklahoma, but hunting for shed antlers is just getting started. Going for a nice stroll through the woods is relaxing for anyone and can be a great way to introduce youth to the outdoors.

As the days begin to get longer in late winter, whitetailed deer undergo hormonal changes, which cause antlers to cast or drop. The timing of this varies from deer to deer, but typically by early February many bucks have dropped their antlers.

However, it is not unusual to see bucks in late December or early January that have dropped both antlers from the same an antler. This can be due to variations in testosterone levels, injury and age of the deer or nutritional status.

Whatever the case may be, a esting, is not that uncommon.

Warm days in early February are a good time to take a walk and look for these shed antlers. While they can be found anywhere, certain areas do tend to favor sheds.

Look along major deer trails, especially where they cross fences. The impact of a buck jumping a fence often causes antler drop.

Also, areas of thick brush can sometimes yield antlers as bucks tend to stay in heavy cover. If you find a shed antler, look carefully around for others as bucks often group up after the breeding season.

Occasionally you can find deer in close proximity. Once an antler drops, bucks typically shake their head and sometimes this will cast the other antler.

However, it is common for a one-antlered deer, while inter- buck to retain the second antler for hours or days, so don't count on finding both near each other. You could use some of the same tactics used during the hunting season. Checking for tracks or droppings can give you some clues as to areas deer are using.

> As time passes, shed antlers will be consumed by rodents that are seeking the minerals contained in the antlers. Therefore, if you want to find an antler in perfect condition, as well as shake the late winter doldrums, get outside soon. Worst case scenario, you spend some time outside in the peace and quiet and get some exercise.

> Shed antlers have many uses such as belt buckles, chandeliers, baskets, door handles, knife handles, or whatever you can imagine.

They also look fine just the way they are.
