

FELONY traffic stop

Driver held on $18,500 bond

Jeanne Grimes
The Purcell Register

When Purcell police got word from the McClain County Sheriff's Department that a pickup stolen from Pauls Valley was headed to Purcell from Byars on June 7, they took action.

The officers — Zach Paulk, Daniel Ashbridge and James Bolling — placed their patrol units near the intersection of Chandler Road and Green Avenue and waited.

Approximately 10 minutes later, they spotted the 1985 Chevrolet C10 pickup and conducted a felony traffic stop, taking the driver into custody.

On Friday, prosecutors charged Justin J. Johnson, 30, of Yukon, with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, possession of a controlled dangerous substance and unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia.

The charges were filed after a former felony conviction and Johnson's bond was set at $18,500.

He remains in the McClain County Detention Center.

A preliminary hearing conference will be at 9 a.m. June 22.

According to an affidavit, Bolling noticed Johnson moving around in the vehicle before he was ordered out and taken into custody.

A search of his person yielded a cigarette box containing a baggie with a substance that field tested positive for methamphetamine.

Also found were two used glass pipes containing a burnt residue, a new pipe, several plastic baggies of the type used to package narcotics and a scale.

In addition, police noticed the pickup's ignition had been broken and was being operated by a screw driver.

According to the affidavit, the vehicle's license tag had

City budget allots funds for FY16-17

Jeanne Grimes
The Purcell Register

Estimated use will outstrip resource estimates by $890,000 for the City of Purcell during fiscal year 2016-17.

But that isn't as grim as it sounds.

The city's total estimated expenditures is actually pegged at $1,057,150 less than the $22,969,965 estimated resources pot.

It is only when estimated uses totaling $1,947,150 are included that total jumps to $23,859,965.

That is the gist of a budget summary included in the budget.

The resources totaling $22,969,965 are broken down as follows:

- $7,565,400 in the city's general fund;
- $12,239,071 in the Public Works Authority; and
- $4,055,494 in special revenue funds.

Within the general fund, the largest share — 32.6 percent — goes to the police department.

Prosecutors charge Purcell man

Jeanne Grimes
The Purcell Register

An arrest warrant is outstanding for a 22-year-old man who is charged in McClain County District Court with permitting invitees under 21 to possess or consume alcohol or drugs.

Prosecutors charged Blake C. Harrington on June 8.

According to an affidavit, McClain County Sheriff's deputies were called to Harrington's residence at 22223 State Highway 24 around 2:30 a.m. May 21 to investigate a report of possible underage drinking at a party.

While one deputy secured the perimeter, two others went to the front door.

After they knocked on the front door numerous times over several minutes, a guest opened the door.

Harrington was found hiding in a closet containing multiple firearms, according to the affidavit.

He told the deputies he'd given a cousin permission to have guests over to the house for a party following their high school graduation.

Harrington reportedly admitted he knew the guests were underage and that they were drinking alcohol.

He also reportedly said he had been drinking with them.

Tuesday's election

What voters need to know explained

Voters will go to the polls later this month for the June 28 Primary Election, McClain County Election Board Secretary Karen Haley said today.

Haley offered the following information and tips for voters to keep in mind as the election approaches:

- Early voting will be available at the County Election Board office from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. today (Thursday) and Friday. Early voting is also available from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at the McClain County Election Board office.

- Polls are open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday. Lines are possible at peak voting times. Wait times will likely be shortest at mid-morning and mid-afternoon. Anyone in line to vote at 7 p.m. will be allowed to cast a ballot.

- Anyone who needs to look up their polling place, verify their registration information or view a sample ballot can do so online at www.elections.ok.gov. Those who vote by mail can also check the status of their ballot using the Online Voter Tool. Sample ballots are also available at the McClain County Election Board office.

- Oklahoma law requires every voter who votes in person at the precinct polling place or during early voting at the county election board to show proof of identity before receiving a ballot. There are three acceptable proofs of identity — a valid photo ID issued by federal, state, or tribal government; the free voter identification card issued to every voter by the County Election Board; or the voter may sign an affidavit and vote a provisional ballot.

If the information on the affidavit matches official voter registration records, the ballot will be counted after Election Day.

- Physically disabled voters who cannot enter the polling place, need help marking their ballots, who are blind or visually disabled and illiterate voters may be assisted by a person the voter chooses.

In all cases, the person providing such assistance may not be the voter's employer, agent of the employer or an officer or agent of the voter's union. A person providing assistance also must swear or affirm that the voter's ballots will be marked in accordance with the voter's wishes.

Alternatively, all blind, visually impaired and physically disabled voters in McClain County may use the audio-tactile interface, a feature offered on all Oklahoma voting devices, to vote privately and independently, either at McClain County Election Board during early voting or at their assigned polling place on election day.

- Voters who have moved since the last election, but who have not transferred their voter registration to their new address, may do so on Election Day by going to vote at the polling place where their registration has been in the past. While voting, they may fill out a form instructing the county election board to transfer their registration to the new address before the next election.

- Those who became physically incapacitated after 5 p.m. June 21 still can request an emergency absentee ballot. Those who might qualify for an emergency absentee ballot should contact the county election board office at 405-527-3121 as soon as possible for more information.

- Any violation of election law will be reported to the proper law enforcement authorities. Electioneering is not allowed within 300 feet of a ballot box. It is also unlawful to remove a ballot from the polling location, possess intoxicating liquors within half a mile of a polling place or to disclose how you voted while within the election enclosure.

For additional election-related information, visit www.elections.ok.gov.

Permits are required prior to installation of swimming pools. There is a $19.50 fee for above-ground and $29.50 fee for in-ground. No permit is required for children's blow-up pools. Outdoor swimming pools.

An outdoor swimming pool, including an in-ground, above-ground or on-ground pool, hot tub or spa, shall be surrounded by a barrier (fence) at which shall be at least 48 inches high.

According to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention, in 2009 children one to four years old have the highest drowning rates. Among children one to four years old who died from an unintentional injury, more than 30 percent died from drowning. Among children one to four years old, most drownings occurred in home swimming pools.

One factor that influences drowning risk is lack of barriers, such as fencing, which prevent children from gaining access to the pool area without a caregiver's awareness.

A four-sided isolation fence, separating the pool area from the house and yard, reduces a child's risk of drowning by 83 percent, compared to a three-sided property-line fencing.

State could fall to bottom in average teacher salaries

Jennifer Palmer
Oklahoma Watch

In South Dakota, one of two states with lower average teacher pay than Oklahoma, the Legislature in March approved a half-cent sales tax intended to boost salaries by thousands of dollars.

The other state, Mississippi, also is phasing in a teacher pay increase.

By contrast, when Oklahoma legislators adjourned Friday, they left ambitions of higher salaries for teachers unfulfilled. That means the state could find itself dead last in teacher pay soon unless more funding is generated.

The only viable option left this year — a penny hike in the state sales tax — awaits the decision of voters in November.

The situation means that school districts are bracing for continued teacher shortages as candidates seek higher pay in surrounding states or choose different professions. Some out-of-state districts, including Dallas and Las Vegas, are recruiting Oklahoma teachers, dangling the carrot of higher pay.

Teachers here haven't had an across-the-board increase in eight years, though the idea appeared to be gathering steam. In 2015, State Superintendent Joy Hofmeister, a Republican, proposed a $5,000 pay raise to be phased in over five years. In her State of the State address on Feb. 1, Gov. Mary Fallin called for a $3,000 a year pay hike, noting that Oklahomans overwhelmingly support the move. "And we can do it without raising the state sales tax rate to the highest level in the nation," Fallin said. "We can do it. I'm excited about it."

A half-dozen bills were introduced this session to boost teacher pay.

Then, oil and gas prices continued to fall, state income tax cuts proceeded, and the state suffered revenue failures, contributing to a projected $1.3 billion shortfall next year. Teachers' hopes dimmed.

In the end, appropriations to the Department of Education were reduced by 2 percent for fiscal year 2017, compared with and South Dakota, according to National Education Association data. The figure represents total compensation, including paid health and retirement benefits.

In Mississippi, teachers received a boost of $2,500 over two years, thanks to legislation signed by their governor in 2014.

Penny Tax Option
A penny hike would push the state's combined state and local sales tax rate from 8.78 percent to 9.78 percent, higher than any other state.

State Question 779, being championed by University of Oklahoma President David Boren, would hike the state sales tax rate from 4.5 percent to 5.5 percent.

The tax hike was originally estimated to generate anywhere from $570 million to $615 million, with about 60 percent of the money earmarked for common education. Most of that money would fund a $5,000 a year raise for teachers.

With the economy still struggling, though, the projected haul is slipping. Current estimates by the Office of Manage-the appropriated 2016 budget. At $44,921, Oklahoma ranks 49th in the country in average teacher salary among states and the District of Columbia, above Mississippi

Trump bitter pill for some

Many Republicans are struggling with the prospects of the nominees from which to choose in the presidential race.

That was the case last Saturday morning when the entire Congressional Delegation was on hand for a panel discussion during the Oklahoma Press Association’s State Convention in Oklahoma City.

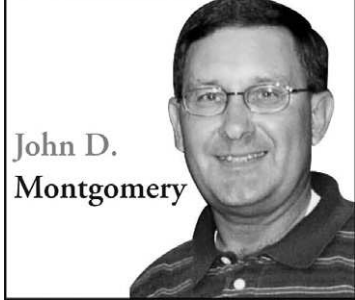

When the question came up about who they would support in the race for president they all seemed to shuffle their feet but eventually said they would support the party’s nominee.

Indeed, Trump is a bitter pill to swallow for many. Fifth District Congressman Steve Russell had the best line of the session.

“I don’t think we need to have eight more years of limiting our armed forces,” he said.

“I don’t know if I can trust Donald Trump but I am sure I cannot support what I know Mrs. Clinton has done or will continue to do.

Editor’s Notebook

John D.
Montgomery

“It comes down to this,” he deadpanned. “Am I going to jump off a cliff and know where it’s going to take me or do I walk down a dark tunnel and hope there is a light at the end of the tunnel?”

Fourth District Congressman Tom Cole said in 1950 nine percent of the Gross National Product (GNP) was spent on defense.

“Now that figure is down to four percent,” Cole said.

“We have drawn down way too rapidly trying to get down to 450,000 troops and that’s a big mistake.

“It’ll take several years for us to get our military back to where it needs to be.

“Some countries have noted we have let our defenses go way down and (that) maybe we won’t use it any more. That is a very dangerous situation,” Cole said.

Second District Congressman Markwayne Mullen had a similar message.

“We have to spend money to defend our country. Otherwise, nothing else matters,” Mullen said.

“Under president Reagan we had 1.6 million troops and now the president wants to take it down to 450,000.

“We are putting our nation at risk with all the domestic initiatives,” Mullen said.

Mullen concluded by saying, “If we continue to reduce our military we will fill our nation’s cemeteries.”

NEWS FROM CAPITOL HILL

Suspicious confirmed

Congressman Tom Cole

As intentionally spelled out in the U.S. Constitution in the first and arguably most foundational amendment, “Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press.”

Because of those profound words inspired and adopted by our forefathers in the first years of our nation, citizens have enjoyed the right to hold and exercise their personal beliefs, regardless of religious or political persuasion. Sadly, the Obama Administration has a poor record of respecting those freedoms—in particular, at the Internal Revenue Service.

In 2013, on the current administration’s watch, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) was exposed for purposefully targeting conservative and religious groups seeking tax-exempt status, most noticeably those associated with the tea party. The unconstitutional and illegal targeting had existed for at least three years and involved drawing out a usually quick process for months and months or leaving applicants neither approved nor denied.

When this unacceptable abuse was discovered, House Republicans immediately launched investigations in the committees of jurisdiction to determine the culprits, right the injustice and look for other signs of fraud at the IRS.

Now three years after the IRS scandal was reported to the public, it is clear that the facts of the situation are even worse than predicted. According to a comprehensive list released by the IRS last week, more than 425 conservative groups were victims of targeting. Back in 2013, the Treasury Department’s inspector general expected “only” 298 groups had been singled out.

Sadly, the latest news regarding the scandal further confirms the Administration’s wrongdoing that Republicans long suspected. But it also further affirms that abuse of power and unfair scrutiny must not and will not be tolerated.

I am proud to reassure my constituents that House Republicans have not stopped seeking answers, demanding accountability or reining in power at the IRS. Just last week, the Appropriations Committee on which I sit approved the Financial Services funding measure for fiscal year 2017, which included significant cuts to the operations budget at the IRS.

Furthermore, the bill included guidance for combating and preventing fraud and abuse. In addition, this week on the House floor members will consider the Preventing IRS Abuse and Protecting Free Speech Act, which prevents the IRS from collecting unnecessary identifying information from taxpayers.

As I’ve said before, regardless of political affiliation, all Americans have a reasonable expectation that their freedom of speech and religion shall be protected. In response to the wrongdoing at the IRS, I am pleased that House Republicans continue to take steps to restore trust to the American people and prevent the occurrence of future violations.

Ice cream is good, sherbert is better

I was rooting around in the storage room the other day and found parts of my ice cream freezer.

My first thought was: Thank heavens for electricity. Cranking one of these things would be really hard on an aging shoulder.

My second thought was: might be time to make some lime sherbet.

In the spirit of full disclosure, I feel compelled to admit that I really don’t care much for ice cream these days and rarely eat it.

Can’t take the gaggy after-taste of the milk.

Such was not always the case. When I was growing up, we often made ice cream, particularly at Grandma Solomon’s house during warm weather holidays.

Grandma had nine surviving kids with spouses, 26 grandkids and enough great-grands to stock a small county, so it took several freezers of ice cream to have enough.

Vanilla was the standard, but we usually had strawberry and banana, too.

I particularly liked the strawberry because of the mashed-up fruit. Biting into a piece gave you a nice tangy countertaste to the sweetness of the ice cream. And I liked the soft-frozen texture of the crushed strawberries. Good stuff.

I would eat several bowls of it and would get a brain freeze with each one.

Some years ago, I read that you can cure a brain freeze by holding your tongue to the roof of your mouth for a few seconds. Upon testing, I discovered it actually works.

But I digress.

Even though I no longer eat ice cream, I love sherbet and eat enough to regret it when swimsuit season rolls around.

Many years ago, we were visiting my parents and someone suggested making ice cream.

I amended that suggestion by saying: “Hey. The blackberries are ripe. Let us pick some and make blackberry sherbet.”

So, we did.

Mom crushed the blackberries much the same way that one could crush strawberries and we made a batch of blackberry sherbet, which turned out to be a light purple and tasted great, except: who threw these kidney stones in here?

It was then that we discovered that one should strain the seeds before freezing.

Otherwise, they become little pellets hard enough for a goose to use in its gizzard.

And make your teeth hurt.

Say what?

I recently saw a man wearing a lettered T-shirt that read, “If you’re too busy to hunt or fish, you’re too busy.”

A fella told a group of us women the other day (and I quote), “My wife told me she would like for me to take her somewhere she hadn’t been in a while, so I took her to the kitchen.” I wonder if he got a hot meal after that!

A friend has a wall plaque that says, “I would agree with you, but then we’d both be wrong.”

Some years ago, we ate breakfast, dinner and supper every day. Now we eat breakfast, lunch and dinner. Why the change? I don’t know.

Shining star

Dear Editor,

With the adjournment of the legislative session now behind us, most are aware of the many budgetary challenges our Legislators faced during the 2016 session. There is much to criticize, argue about and certainly much of which to be concerned. With that said, let us also look at a very bright spot of which those of us here in Purcell can be extremely proud.

Twelve years ago, we sent a young lady by the name of Lisa J. Billy to represent us at the State Capitol. The “naysayers” said she could not be elected. There had never been a woman elected from District 42; certainly not an American Indian woman and a Republican at that. Lisa was elected by an overwhelming majority vote and has been our shining star as she served our area of the state with dignity and integrity.

Her colleagues at the Capitol have, through the years, had nothing but great things to say about her work ethics during times of some very difficult issues. Lisa has remained upbeat, positive and very approachable. She has never forgotten the people who sent her there to represent them and she has never forgotten her Christian and rural Oklahoma values.

Now as she term limits out of her legislative position, we wish to express our appreciation to Lisa for her superb dedication and service, wishing her and her family nothing but the best as she embarks upon a new chapter in her life.

Seasons of love

As you get older, you start to notice something: people get married.

Last year I went to a wedding for a girl who is only one year older than me. This summer, one of my college friends will be tying the knot with her fiancé.

My college even has a running joke called “Ring by Spring.” It means that campus couples who date in the fall will be engaged by the spring semester.

There’s nothing wrong with getting married young, but I’ve noticed that people my age (20) seem to be in a rush to get to the altar.

Illicit Encounters, a British dating site, held a random survey of 1,000 people to find the age that most people fall in love for the first time.

They found that 55% of the survey pool claimed to have fallen in love between the ages of 15 and 18. Twenty percent claimed to have fallen love between the ages of 19 and 21.

There is a drop in the statistics after the age of 21. Only 8% claimed to have fallen in love for the first time between the ages of 22 and 25.

You’d think the number would increase by the time people get in their 20’s. By that time, most people have gone to college, have a job and acquired some life experiences and maturity needed to maintain a long, healthy relationship.

Then again, maybe maturity is one of the reasons why the numbers are so low for people in their 20’s.

When you’re a teenager, you have fewer responsibilities. It’s easier to give yourself over to

New front in asset forfeiture: Authorities get mobile devices

Clifton Adcock
Oklahoma Watch

The Oklahoma Department of Public Safety has purchased several devices capable of seizing funds loaded on to prepaid debit cards to aid troopers in roadside seizures of suspected drug-trafficking proceeds.

The portable card scanners are designed to be carried in law enforcement vehicles, allow troopers to freeze and seize money loaded on to a prepaid debit card, and to return money to an account whose funds were seized or frozen.

The vehicle-mounted scanners are also capable of retrieving and storing limited account information from other cards as well, such as banking debit cards, credit cards and "payment account information from virtually any magnetic stripe card," according to the website and patent documents of the device manufacturer, Texas-based ERAD Group Inc. ERAD stands for Electronic Recovery and Access to Data.

The card readers could reignite debate over civil asset forfeiture in Oklahoma and across the nation. State and federal laws allow law enforcement agencies to seize property and cash believed to be involved in the illicit drug trade and then take ownership of the assets through a civil-court action.

Law enforcement officials say that civil asset forfeiture is essential in disrupting drug trafficking operations. Civil-rights advocates argue that the process violates individuals' property and civil liberties and sometimes results in innocent people having money seized on the roadside without being arrested or charged.

The new devices will now allow law enforcement to not only seize money in physical possession of a person being stopped, but from a financial institution holding the money loaded onto a prepaid debit card as well.

Brady Henderson, legal director for ACLU Oklahoma, said the new tactic could easily run afoul of the Fourth Amendment and land the issue in court.

"I think this is likely to expand pretty radically the scope of civil asset forfeiture procedures," Henderson said. "This is a capability that law enforcement has never had before and one that is very likely to land DPS in litigation."

However, law enforcement officials say the devices are essentially part of the arms race between police and drug traffickers, who in recent years have been loading pre-paid cards with millions of dollars for transport as part of the drug trade, thus decreasing the likelihood of seizure by law enforcement.

"They're basically using prepaid cards instead of carrying large amounts of cash," said Lt. John Vincent, public information officer for the Oklahoma Highway Patrol.

The contract signed by the state and ERAD Group, obtained by Oklahoma Watch, states that Department of Public Safety will pay a one-time $5,000 implementation charge and a $1,500 training charge for the devices.

ERAD Group will receive a

7.7 percent cut of all funds seized via the card readers. Vincent said the 16 prepaid card readers obtained by the department were installed in May.

The card readers will not be used to randomly swipe motorists' gift or prepaid cards, Vincent said, but only in cases in which the trooper suspects criminal activity is taking place. The device logs which trooper is using the device when a card is swiped.

"If we have reasonable suspicion to believe there's a crime being committed, we're going to investigate that. If someone has 300 cards taped up and hidden inside the dash of a vehicle, we're going to check that," Vincent said. "But if the person has proof that it belongs to him suspects that law enforcement is checking the card, the patent states.

Once the card's account balance is determined, the officer can use the device to freeze the funds, preventing withdrawal or use of the money in the account, or seize the funds by having them transferred to a law enforcement financial account, the patent states.

Although the device does not allow funds from non-prepaid cards to be frozen or seized, it can provide the officer information about those cards such as the card number, the name on the card, expiration date and the card issuer.

That data, along with any accompanying notes, is then saved in a case management database for future use, allowing law enforcement agencies to search for additional illicit funding by analyzing other card seizures, transactions and trends associated with the card issuer. The agencies also identify any accounts linked to the seized card, the patent and contract documents show.

T. Jack Williams, ERAD Group president and one of the leading magnetic stripe card consultants for federal and state law enforcement, said the device has three main purposes: intelligence, forensics and asset seizure.

"The seizure stuff is really secondary, even tertiary," Williams said.

Williams declined to say exactly how many law enforcement agencies across the country now ERAD Devices.

"I can tell you it's in the hundreds," Williams said.

Williams said freezing or seizing funds from prepaid debit cards is not the same as freezing or seizing funds from bank or debit cards, since prepaid cards come from pooled accounts held by financial companies and are not protected by the Bank Secrecy Act.

"Prepaid cards are cash, they are not bank accounts," Williams said.

Scoop of the Century!

Local editor uncovers truth about Federal Reserve, price fixing, and shady politician

The Good Folks of Lennox Valley

In all the years Iris Long had served as editor of Hometown News, she had never felt faint while covering a story. Never, that is, until she stood on Marvin Walsh's porch and listened as Elbert Lee Jones placed the blame for inflated egg prices directly on the shoulders of Raymond Cooper, local celebrity and aspiring politician.

As she sat to catch her breath, she realized the significance of what had just taken place. This story could destroy Cooper's credibility within the community. At least half of the valley listened to "Renderings with Raymond" each weekday and saw the host as their knight in shining armor. Their champion was about to lose his most valuable weapon, and the ensuing reaction was impossible to predict.

Being Friday, it was four long days before the next issue of Hometown News would go to press. How in heaven's name could she keep the story from leaking before Tuesday? She knew four days would be plenty of time for Cooper to weasel out of this predicament, just as he had many others.

As she sat in her car in Walsh's driveway before driving away, she considered her options. To Iris, the most likely scenario was the two farmers rushing over to Cooper's radio station to tell him what had just happened. Elbert Lee was furious, and she didn't imagine he would be able to contain his rage at being implicated in the scheme. They might keep quiet, she thought, hoping Raymond would take the fall, but that wasn't likely. The good folks of Lennox Valley weren't known for keeping quiet.

As she started her car, she heard Raymond beginning hour two of his Friday show. It was unusual for Raymond to have a guest, as it took away from time for him to lecture his audience about the plight of local government, rising egg prices, illicit involvement by federal agencies and the "radical" press that was more interested in selling newspapers than informing the public. But on this Friday, he was joined by Brother Jacob, associate pastor of Lennox Valley Lutheran Church.

Brother Jacob expected to discuss upcoming activities at the church and answer spiritual questions from callers. Raymond had something else in mind.

"Pastor," began Cooper, "it is a pleasure to have you in my humble studio."

After exchanging a few pleasantries, Cooper moved straight to his first question: "Did you happen to hear my prayer to begin the show today?"

Brother Jacob responded he had heard the prayer and, for some odd reason, it seemed familiar. "No doubt," Raymond shot back. "We are both called to serve by the same Lord and we undoubtedly hear similar phrases echo from his voice as he inspires us."

Cooper didn't want his pastor to remember that the prayer was uttered by a famous church leader 1600 years earlier, so he quickly moved on to another subject. "Do you buy a lot of eggs, Pastor?"

By then, Iris had begun her drive back to town. As she heard Raymond's words, she almost stopped the car to take it all in. She could barely believe what she was hearing, but having known Cooper for more years than she cared to remember, she knew it was true.

Hometown News had printed only two special editions in all the years Iris had been editor, and one was just three months earlier when news broke concerning the appointment of Sarah Hyden-Smith. Iris hated to give Cooper days to spin his version of the story before hers came out in print. On the other hand, she knew she needed more facts before printing the story. As it was, it would be Elbert Lee's word against Raymond's, and Iris knew Jones didn't stand much of a chance in a fair battle.

"I bought four dozen eggs for the children's Easter egg hunt at the church," Brother Jacob acknowledged, "Otherwise I don't normally purchase many eggs."

"You know," countered Raymond, "our country was founded on the separation between church and state. But it sounds to me like the actions of the state are causing our church to spend too much for Easter eggs."

"I guess I wouldn't know much about that," muttered the pastor.

"I suppose," Raymond quickly responded, "that's why the good Lord sent me to you."

Treating a poison ivy rash

Sean Hubbard
Communications Specialist

There are too many old wives' tales to count about how to get rid of poison ivy. Some of the more dangerous include using bleach, or even gasoline, to try and dry up any rashes caused by the plant.

According to Dr. Aaron Lane D.O., clinical associate professor of emergency medicine at Oklahoma State University Medicine in Tulsa, an oatmeal bath may help, but that is about it.

"There aren't any shortcuts when it gets bad," he said. "It's going to miserable for a while."

The first step to avoiding the burning rash associated with poison ivy is to be able to identify it, and leave it alone. While that is easier said than done, there is a window of opportunity to not get a rash even if someone comes in contact with it.

"If you get the oil from the plant on you and wash it off in time, you won't get the rash," Lane said. "It's not a typical wash though. You need to use a lot of soap and water and really scrub to remove all of the oil."

If someone happens to miss a spot of oil, or comes into contact with the oil from some clothes, shoelaces or pets, a rash may appear.

"If the rash isn't very bad and you just have a little spot, the treatment is topical hydrocortisone cream, which you can get over the counter," Lane said. "You could also take Benadryl for the itching."

For more significant rashes, a trip to the doctor's office will be required to get a two-week treatment of steroids.

"People always want a shot, but the effectiveness of steroids are the same whether you get a shot, an IV or take them orally," said Lane. "Patients believe the oral steroids prescribed are not working, but when they return for the shot, it works."

"It's not because the injection works better than the pills, but the injection typically is a much higher dose than the patient was initially given," Lane said.

The route of administration of the steroids makes no difference; it is strictly the strength of the medication. Rather than just asking for a shot, Lane suggests making sure you are prescribed an adequate dosage and duration of therapy of the steroid.

"We typically give a high dose of the steroid for the first few days and then taper it back to where the last few days are a very small dose," he said.

Whether someone has just a couple small dots, or a full-blown, body covering rash, the area should be left alone. Scratching will irritate and break the skin, which will increase blood flow to the area and bring more histamine.

The good news is the rash will not spread simply by scratching it.

"Poison ivy can't spread in your blood," Lane said. "You can spread it by scratching an area that has the oil and then touching somewhere else. We always have people cut their fingernails to get rid of any oil that may be trapped under there."

ment and Enterprise Services project the penny hike would bring in about $550 million a year. However, that would still be still enough to pay for the salary increases.

With more than five months until a vote, the chances of passage are unclear.

Hofmeister has neither endorsed nor opposed the tax. Fallin has alluded critically to the proposal. Some cities have come out in opposition, saying the tax hike would hamper their ability to fund local projects with sales taxes. Advocates for the poor have warned that sales taxes are regressive, meaning they fall disproportionately on low-income residents.

The Legislature briefly unveiled an alternative plan, but it was quickly scuttled before the end of the session.

Boren and other supporters acknowledge that a higher sales tax is not the preferred solution to education funding, but say they have no other choice because state lawmakers refuse to address an education crisis that could harm the state for generations.

"It is the only option that is being talked about that is gaining momentum," said Alicia Priest, president of the Oklahoma Education Association. "We think our children deserve it."

South Dakota's 'Heavy Lift'

South Dakota's half-cent sales tax, intended to raise the state's average teacher pay by $8,500, kicks in June 1.

Melody Schopp, the state's secretary of education, characterized the initiative as "a really heavy lift" led by the state's governor.

"For a conservative Republican state to make that sort of significant investment in teachers is kind of a landmark," she said.

But the need was there, Schopp said. South Dakota was no longer regionally competitive and was struggling to recruit and retain teachers.

Revenue generated by the sales tax will be distributed to school districts based on a formula, with a portion set aside for property tax relief. Schools are required to spend 85 percent of the funds on teacher pay.

Schopp said one school district recently negotiated $9,000 across-the-board pay increases for its teachers.

The half-cent tax passed by the South Dakota Legislature follows a failed 2012 ballot measure to raise sales tax by a penny, with half earmarked for education and half for Medicaid.

Schopp said after years in 50th place for pay, teachers in South Dakota finally feel respected.

"They truly, finally feel like the work they do has been recognized," she said.

Coast Anti-Money Laundering Forum, using the card readers to obtain information on cards' magnetic strips do not run afoul of the U.S. Constitution's Fourth Amendment protections against unreasonable search and seizure and warrantless searches.

Citing an Oklahoma case in which 83 Walmart gift cards were seized after the cards were loaded with drug funds, Williams' presentation states that because prepaid cards are treated like currency, they can be seized like currency. "Individuals do not have privacy rights with magnetic stripe cards" because the information on the strip "literally has no purpose other than to be provided to others to read," the presentation said.

Henderson, of the ACLU, said usually in freezing or seizing money from financial accounts, "there are all kinds of steps where courts get involved so that there's a check and balance there. All of that would be eliminated in this situation."

It's a situation where you have an instant freeze with zero due process."

Sen. Kyle Loveless, R-Oklahoma City, said he, too, was concerned with the constitutional and due process implications of the ERAD devices.

"Until this, we didn't even know these things were in existence," Loveless said. "It's scary to know that technology even exists and that government agencies are using it without an arrest or without a warrant."

Last legislative session, Loveless introduced legislation to change aspects of the state's civil asset forfeiture laws. The move triggered sharp criticism by law enforcement officials, and the legislation died in committee.

Before the session, Loveless said he was told by law enforcement that the presence of large sums of money packed into a vehicle was an indicator of possible criminal activity.

"It seems to me this new technology is taking the argument away - 'we don't have the cash here, but it's somewhere,'" Loveless said.

However, Vincent, of DPS, said the devices are not only for seizure of suspected illicit funds. Although no seizures have yet been made with the devices, troopers have been able to use the card readers to uncover cases of identity theft, he said.

"The asset forfeiture part will definitely help us as far as we have people trying to courier large amounts of money, but it also, and is probably seen more as, helping with identity theft, credit card fraud and all of that," Vincent said. "This isn't solely about asset forfeiture. This isn't about money. We're not in the business of making money. We're in the business of solving crimes."

Larsen's paintings

Martha and Mike Larsen are shown with "Cloud People" a two-panel painting commissioned by the Oklahoma City branch of the Federal Reserve in 1995. The painting has been on display in Kansas City for 10 years but was recently returned to Oklahoma when the branch office moved to Leadership Square II in downtown Oklahoma City.

Larsen painting 'back home' after 10-year hiatus

Mike Larsen's eyes poured over two huge acrylic paintings he created 21 years ago.

"This painting of an Arapaho holy man and his people brings back many emotions," Larsen explained. "It was painted right after the Oklahoma City bombing. Two of our children are included and the others are close friends; many of them now gone," he said as he soaked in the brilliant colors and textures of his creation.

After 10 years in Kansas City, Larsen's two-panel painting "Cloud People" is back in Oklahoma. It was relocated to Kansas City in 2006 when the Oklahoma City Federal Reserve branch moved into a new office without the capacity to properly display it.

"I'm glad it's back home where it belongs," said Larsen, a world renowned painter and sculpture who has been honored with induction into both the Chickasaw and Oklahoma halls of fame.

The Oklahoma City Federal Reserve branch commissioned the painting after the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building was bombed.

The two 7X6-foot paintings were first envisioned as part of a project in 1994 by Larsen and his wife, Martha.

The Larsens were researching and capturing images of holy men - often called shamans - from each of Oklahoma's 39 federally-recognized tribes. "A few of the tribes no longer had living holy men, so 36 paintings were completed," the artist noted.

"Cloud People" is the largest painting in the series.

Larsen was approached by the Oklahoma City Federal Reserve branch in summer 1995. "They made it clear that, in some way, they wanted to pay tribute and honor people who had lost their lives on April 19 of that year," Larsen told a gathering of Oklahoma City and Kansas City Federal Reserve staff and executives June 2.

Additionally, officials wanted to honor "all of the families that were so affected."

"We had not yet painted a work on the Arapaho. When I presented the idea of an Arapaho holy man wrapping his cloak around an extended family in an act of comfort and protection, it proved to be exactly what the Federal Reserve wanted," Larsen said. "This painting expresses what we all were looking for - a little piece of mind."

The Larsens are a team. While Mike Larsen's work - paintings and sculptures - are located throughout the world, Martha Larsen plays an intimate role in the success of each project the couple launches.

The Larsens have two volumes of work honoring Chickasaw elders.

"We visited them. We got to know them. I took my sketch pad and Martha shot an average of 300 photographs per elder. We used two photographs to create each portrait," Larsen said.

The culmination resulted in two books "They Know Who They Are" and "Proud to Be Chickasaw" featuring portraits of almost 50 Chickasaw elders painted by Larsen. Each is accompanied by a story written by Martha Larsen and award-winning artist Jeannie Barbour, Chickasaw Nation creative development director.

The portraits are displayed at Chickasaw Nation Headquarters in Ada and at the Chickasaw Nation Cultural Center in Sulphur. The books are available at Amazon and at the Chickasaw Press.

Larsen was commissioned by the state of Oklahoma to paint a 26-foot-long mural for the Capitol Rotunda of five internationally prominent Native American ballet dancers, all born in Oklahoma.

He has painted eight murals, four about teaching the arts and four about local Native American History, for the Oklahoma Art Institute and six murals for the University of Oklahoma Donald W. Reynolds Performing Art Center and School of Dance.

The next project for the Larsens is in the planning stage. Its focus is Oklahoma history.

"There's been a lot of books and things like that on the history of Oklahoma, but we haven't done them," Larsen said turning to his wife for an affirmative response. "We think it will be extremely interesting to explore all the differing perspectives of the topic artistically," he added.

future and the eventual need to build a new jail facility.

“We’re now in a holding pattern,” Lyles said. “We’ve just touched on discussion.”

Lyles said there are two upcoming sales tax elections already.

The first, a penny sales tax earmarked for Purcell Municipal Hospital, will be decided by Purcell voters on August 23.

“We wish the best for them with that,” Lyles said.

And voters across Oklahoma will be asked in November to approve a statewide penny sales tax to help fund higher education and give public school teachers a raise.

The suspect ran into a house around 6 a.m. and later fled the house into a pasture.

Joining deputies in the search where they put the dog out to track him,” the sheriff said.

Hewett added the area has a lot of blackjack trees.

Several large suitcase style bags were also in the cab and bed, along with bolt cutters and other burglary tools and a dark

There were also multiple warrants outstanding for Johnson’s arrest from Oklahoma and Murray counties.

Johnson is charged in Oklahoma County with second-degree burglary and in Murray County with possession of controlled dangerous substance, two counts of knowingly concealing stolen property, and unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia.

Felony stop

Purcell Police Officer Daniel Ashbridge holds Justin J. Johnson at gunpoint after the Yukon man was stopped driving a stolen pickup on June 7. He is being held in the McClain County Detention Center in lieu of an $18,500 bond on charges of unauthorized use of a vehicle, possession of controlled dangerous substance and unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia.

agreements included Cynthia Grissom, Maggie Mullenix, Laura Smith and Amy Woodruff. Their agreements will run July 1 through May 19, 2017.

Nikki Keck will be visual consultant from July 1 through June 30 and Jennifer Martin will be psychologist/special education testing from August 13 through June 30.

The board also approved an agreement with Tom Cameron & Associates to manage the district’s federal programs for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Superintendent Jason Midkiff spoke briefly on the budget lawmakers approved in the final hours of the session.

“The Legislature passed a budget. My honest opinion – it’s not really a good one,” Midkiff said. “The state is looking at a $750 million deficit next year.”

“It was touted as a flat budget (for education). But they forgot to mention it eliminated $33 million for new textbooks.”

That omission will cost Purcell $69,000, Midkiff said.

Across the board, Purcell Public Schools anticipates $102,000-104,000 in cut-backs for the coming school year.

Midkiff criticized as backward the current system that requires school districts to adopt “fictitious budgets based on what we think will come in.”

He added work on the district’s budget will begin once new figures are received from the State Department of Education.

“I hope it gets turned around,” he said of the state’s financial condition.

Distance runner

OKC half marathoners

Coaches Graham and Wollenberg

Purcell coaches Heather Graham and Taylor Wollenberg were participants in the half marathon in the Oklahoma City Marathon in April.

Graham was training for a full marathon in Seattle, WA., this summer but an illness in her family postponed the full marathon attempt.

Graham and Wollenberg are the head and assistant head coach for the Purcell Dragons. Both are Wayne High School grads, Graham in 2005 and Wollenberg in 2010.

"We trained for 12 weeks right in the heart of our basketball season," Graham said. It was Graham's fourth half marathon.

"I started running after I graduated from college," Graham said. "It was my way to still be competitive and push myself to stay healthy."

Graham usually runs with her brother, Marcus, but this year it was Wollenberg.

"Training for the half marathon kept me healthy and active," Wollenberg said.

Both runners agreed the OKC Marathon is a great organization.

They said it is a good way for Oklahoma to come together.

"I will definitely compete in the half marathon again," Wollenberg said. "There's no other feeling like it."

Graham narrowly finished ahead of her fellow competitor and colleague, finishing in two hours and one minute.

Wollenberg, whose husband, Kyle, also competed in the marathon, ran a 2:14.

Jail nurse charged

Kristi Stricklen freed on $4,500 bond

Jeanne Grimes
The Purcell Register

McClain County prosecutors last week filed three felony counts against a nurse alleged to have provided a cell phone and methamphetamine to inmates in the McClain County Detention Center.

Kristi K. Stricklen, 38, of Harrah, is charged in McClain County District Court with possession of a controlled dangerous substance, unlawful use of a communication facility in commission of a felony and bringing contraband into a jail.

She is free after posting $4,500 in bonds. A preliminary hearing conference will be at 9 a.m. July 6.

According to two affidavits, detention deputies found an AT&T cell phone charging in the jail's laundry room on June 4.

Three inmates were in the laundry room at the time and one of them, Johnny Shea, admitted the phone was his.

With exams gone, uncertainty over school report cards grows

Jennifer Palmer
Oklahoma Watch

The elimination of end-of-course tests that Oklahoma public school students take each year will throw more uncertainty into the state's efforts to develop a new system of measuring school performance.

The state's much-criticized A through F report card system relies on students' scores from standardized end-of-instruction exams, which were eliminated when the governor signed into law House Bill 3218 on June 6.

The law is intended to preserve time in the classroom for learning, reduce what many educators say is a culture of over-testing and potentially save the state millions of dollars.

But the letter-grade system will now need revisions because it relies on those student test scores, including a year-to-year comparison to evaluate growth, or academic improvement.

The grading system is already undergoing an overhaul, and it's unclear what the future report cards will look like. Under the legislation, the department is required to develop a new school accountability system by January 1.

The department is expected to release the latest school report cards this fall, based on results from the 2015-2016 school year. The law allows for 2016-2017 to be a transition year, and the department is tasked with adopting a statewide system of student testing aligned with the new academic standards, adopted by the Legislature in March.

That year won't be comparable to previous years to determine student growth.

The report cards have already been denounced by many stakeholders, including State Superintendent Joy Hofmeister. She has called the current grading system an unreliable measure of school accountability and wants the state to create a better system. She hasn't specifically called for abandoning letter grades.

"She is committed to the A-F accountability system, but wants to ensure it is valid and meaningful," said Deana Silk, a spokeswoman for the Department of Education.

Last year, 212 schools received an A. Most schools received a B (597) or a C (546). There were 333 schools that received a D and 183 that scored an F.

Under the new law, a result

New crop of white-tailed deer beginning to emerge

Sean Hubbard
Communications Specialist

Most fawns in Oklahoma are about a month old at this point. Typically born in late May or early June, the first few weeks of their lives are fairly secretive.

Fawns are often hidden in dense cover to avoid predation, but by now, they are getting a little more daring and beginning to travel with the doe.

"For the past few weeks you may have noticed small, cloven tracks in soft soil indicating white-tailed deer fawns are on the ground," said Dwayne Elmore, Oklahoma State University Cooperative Extension wildlife specialist. "Look for them at this time near dense cover in early morning or late afternoon."

June is a taxing time for lactating does, as they must not only meet their own nutritional needs but also those of one, two and occasionally, three fawns.

Fortunately, early summer is a time of abundance.

"Most plants are actively growing and are palatable due to high protein levels and low lignin, chemical defenses and silicate levels," he said. "At this time of year, white-tailed deer are relying heavily on forbs, which are broad-leaved herbaceous plants."

Assuming the doe is able to find sufficient food resources, fawns will grow rapidly. With that in mind, landowners should carefully consider their herbicide and mowing plans as it could be removing not only critical cover, but also food for white-tailed deer and other wildlife, such as eastern cottontail and northern bobwhite.

"Occasionally, you may stumble upon a hidden solitary fawn. If so, resist the urge to rescue it, and leave it alone," Elmore said. "The doe is nearby and is patiently waiting for you to move along so she can nurse the fawn."

Once the fawn is about 10 weeks old, it will be weaned and will forage with the doe for the remainder of the summer and into the fall.

The recent rains across the state have dramatically improved forage quantity and should help with fawn survival this season, ensuring a new crop of white-tailed deer on the hoof.

Caught in a crossfire

Landri Lucas, 1-1/2, finds being caught in a water cannon crossfire is a good way to beat summer's heat at Purcell's splashpad atop Red Hill.

Bond:

Shea refused to say from whom he'd received the cell phone other than it wasn't a guard. He also told an investigator that officials should have done a better job hiding the surveillance camera in the nurse's station.

When Deputy James Harryman looked through the phone's log, he found numerous texts between Stricklen's phone and the contraband phone, according to the affidavit.

The nurse was interviewed by Harryman, Deputy Chris Grace and Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation Agent

David Gatlin.

She reportedly admitted bringing the phone into the jail. She also admitted picking up approximately 14 grams of methamphetamine from an Hispanic man in Oklahoma City.

She said she delivered 12 grams of the drug to a man known as L.D., at the Taco Bell in Purcell.

The remaining two grams were given, one gram at a time, to Shea.

According to court records, Shea, 53, of Purcell, was arrested October 16 and charged in district court with trafficking in illegal drugs, possession of controlled dangerous substance and unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia.

He is jailed in lieu of an $85,000 bond. On May 17 prosecutors offered Shea a deal that he serve 18 years in prison. His formal arraignment is set for 9 a.m. June 30.

Stricklen also said she'd done this before with another prisoner, Warren Rawls.

A search of Stricklen's car on June 6 turned up a glass pipe containing residue that field tested positive for methamphetamine.

Grades:

of HB 3218 by House Speaker Jeff Hickman, R-Fairview, high school students will be given a single comprehensive assessment aligned with the state's new academic standards and a nationally-recognized college readiness exam, such as the ACT.

Scores will no longer be tied to graduation; previously, students had to pass four of seven end-of-instruction exams to receive a diploma.

The test load will be reduced to 18 tests, from 26, that students take between third grade and their senior year of high school. All but one of the remaining tests are federally mandated.

Student testing in Oklahoma costs $18.8 million a year, about 20 percent of which is paid with federal funds. Eliminating end-of-instruction exams is expected to save $7.3 million but could be offset by the costs of administering a college readiness assessment such as the ACT in future years.

System Revisions Continue

As revisions to the A-F report cards are considered, the department and the governor's office are continuing to work with the Foundation for Excellence in Education, a Florida-based think tank founded and led by Jeb Bush. The foundation was involved in the initial implementation of Oklahoma's A-F system under former superintendent Janet Barresi.

In an email dated April 6, obtained by Oklahoma Watch, the foundation outlines its model system for school accountability under the federal Every Student Succeeds Act. The report was emailed to Jake Yunker, deputy policy director for Gov. Mary Fallin, and copied to Hofmeister and several other education department administrators.

The foundation emphasizes in the email that the recommendations are strictly a draft framework until the U.S. Department of Education releases final regulations.

Its model relies on three measures given "substantial" weight: academic achievement, English language proficiency and another academic indicator such as growth or the graduation rate. Additional indicators could be added with less influence on the overall grade.

Oklahoma's current system does not measure English language proficiency, but it will be required under the ESSA. Oklahoma's letter grades evaluate schools using two equally weighted categories: student performance, measured by the percent of students achieving a passing rate on state tests, and student growth, comprised of overall student growth and bottom 25th percentile student growth.

Schools receive bonus points on markers such as school attendance, dropout and graduation rates. The result is a single, simplified letter grade.

Critics, however, say it's too simplified, and the process obscures the performance of poor and minority students. University researchers who evaluated the state system recommend focusing instead on college and career readiness and grading schools with a more detailed profile that does not summarize with a single grade, but instead includes scores in multiple areas, such as student progress, college and career readiness and achievement gaps.

Oklahoma Watch is a non-profit, nonpartisan media organization that produces in-depth and investigative content on a range of public-policy issues facing the state. For more Oklahoma Watch content, go to www.oklahomawatch.org.

Library Day at Sam Noble Museum

Library Day will be celebrated from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 25, at the Sam Noble Museum. During this event, held in partnership with the Metropolitan and Pioneer library systems, visitors who present a library card will get complimentary admission.

Throughout the day, Pioneer library staff will be on hand to register anyone who does not already have a library card.

In addition, every half-hour, Metropolitan and Pioneer libraries will offer story times that feature entertaining, engaging stories for all ages. Both also will provide various craft projects for museum visitors.

"Library Day is a wonderful opportunity for young readers in the Oklahoma City metropolitan area to experience stories in a fun, exciting setting, and it hopefully encourages new readers to explore their local libraries," said museum spokesperson Elyssa Mann.

Staff from six Pioneer hometown libraries, Tecumseh, Shawnee, Blanchard, Newcastle, Moore and Norman, will participate in this year's event. Each library will present its own story time, as will representatives from the Metropolitan library system.

For more information, visit or call any hometown library. Also, follow both libraries on Twitter @mylibrary2go and @MetroLibraryOK or on Facebook at facebook.com/PioneerLibrarySystem and facebook.com/MetroLibrary.

The Sam Noble Oklahoma Museum of Natural History is located on the University of Oklahoma Norman campus at J. Willis Stovall Road and Chautauqua Avenue. For accommodations, call (405) 325-4712 or visit SamNobleMuseum.ou.edu.

Dale K. Graham Norman Veteran's Corner

We are not affiliated with any other organization. We are available each Tuesday and Thursday only at the Faith Pointe Baptist Church in Norman.

Please note we will be closed on Tuesday, June 28, as the church will be used as a polling place for area voters.

Each week we recognize a volunteer who is part of our organization. There are several members of the church congregation who have volunteered to help us. One of these is Marie Cape of Norman. She is part of the Coffee Crew who makes sure there is always a freshly brewed pot available.

Her ready smile has helped to put many veterans and their families at ease as they are waiting their turn for assistance. Marie's husband Sean was a pilot in the Vietnam War where he honorably served our country as an Air Force Officer.

I would like to take this opportunity to encourage all veterans and surviving spouses to establish an E-Benefits account with the Department of Veterans Affairs. This will enable veterans to view the status of their claim at any time. Veterans are also able to upload information requested by the VA. When using this system, please remember anytime you send unsolicited information to the VA your claim may be taken out of the Fully Developed status and worked under the old system, which could add more time for the VA to make a decision.

We now have an address for declassified military records that has proven beneficial in some of our DIC and veterans' claims. For information please contact Shirley Clark-Cowdin any Tuesday or Thursday morning.

In January, one of the veterans I represent asked me to go with him to a DRO hearing (one with a VA Decision Review Officer) in Muskogee. We were able to prevent a reduction of benefits on his hearing loss claim and we also filed a Notice of Disagreement (NOD) on his other claim. I received a decision letter yesterday that awarded him 100 percent back to 2014 on the NOD claim. Needless to say he is a very happy veteran today.

One of the statements I hear from many veterans is they don't feel they deserve any VA benefits. When they say that, I always ask them to think about what will happen to their families when they are no longer around to take care of them. Every person who served in the United States Military earned VA benefits. The families of veterans who do not file a claim for VA benefits will probably have a more difficult time receiving them after the veteran's death.

Our ladies who assist surviving spouses of veterans are processing from 15-20 of these ladies each week. One of the main reasons they are successful is that we are very well trained in filing claims for VA benefits. If one of the veteran's service connected disabilities is listed on the death certificate as a primary or secondary condition, then the surviving spouse's application for DIC benefits should be approved for VA benefits. If the veteran has service connected disabilities that were not listed on the death certificate, an amended death certificate can sometimes be obtained that will probably help the surviving spouse to be approved for DIC benefits. Please visit with Shirley or one of our ladies with your questions on this subject.

There were 16 ladies who were assisted by our surviving spouse benefits crew of ladies on Tuesday and Thursday morning last week. Some of these ladies will be eligible for the following VA benefits, DIC, Pension and Aid and Attendance. The DIC benefit is $1,250 per month. The pension is based on medical expenses and income and the Aid and Attendance benefit is based on the daily living needs. Contact Shirley at (405) 550-8806 Extension 104 with any questions you may have.

As the VA Accredited Claims Agent for more than 5,000 veterans and spouses, I receive the rating decisions on each of their claims. This allows me to review each one of their decisions to make sure the veteran or surviving spouse receives all of the benefits for which they are eligible. We then send a notice to each recipient detailing what other state or federal benefits are available. For those of you who do not have an Accredited VA representative you may not be receiving all of your VA benefits. Ask the person helping you with your VA claims if they receive a copy of your VA rating decision.

Many times when a veteran or spouse receives a VA decision the veteran or spouse will not know what to do, which is why we send an informational letter including a request that they return for a follow up visit.

Last week there were 14 veterans who received a 100 percent rating for their service connected disabilities. The annual combined financial impact for these men and women who served our country is $462,974 per year. There were 24 veterans who received VA ratings from 10-90 percent and these men and women veterans will receive a combined annual amount of $339,730 per year.

We are a 501(c)(3) non-profit that operates solely on grants and the donations of people who care about the men and women who served our country. Without your help we would not be able to provide our services to the thousands of men and women in our community who are in need of assistance.

Since February, we have spent more than $27,000 for veterans' medical testing. During that same period, we were able to give away 40 food baskets and 40 gift cards to be used to purchase gas and perishable groceries. Although this is a short time span, we have provided more than $3,000 for veterans' utilities and more than $9,700 to help with veterans' housing needs. Your donations have enabled Dale K. Graham Veteran's Corner to be a viable alternative to keeping veterans and their families out of homeless shelters and off the streets.

We are currently looking for a few more volunteers to work with us on Tuesday mornings. We offer quarterly training classes to keep up with the ever changing VA forms and regulations. At this time, we can only process the first 70 or 80 veterans and surviving spouses a day. I would like to add a few more volunteers to raise the number who we assist to 100 or so on Tuesday mornings. The need in our communities is unbelievable as we saw 187 folks last week, which includes a remarkable total of the 124 people we helped last Thursday alone.

A couple of things are sometimes needed to file for VA benefits are D214 discharge papers, bank account information (voided check), marriage information, social security information, and all VA rating decisions.

We have volunteers from Legal Aid to help veterans and their families with questions. They arrive at 9 a.m. on both Tuesday and Thursday, and there is no charge for their services. We also have Pastor Jim Gann available each day to help you with your spiritual needs.

Please remember that to reach us we have a phone system that automatically routes your call to the person who can help you the quickest. Please call (405) 550-8806 and select the option that best suits your needs.

On each and every visit, veterans should bring all of their DD-214's (discharge papers), all VA rating letters, and all VA forms that have been filed. For privacy reasons, Dale K. Graham's Veteran's Corner does not keep your information on file and does not have access to any of this information.

Graham Veteran's Corner, PO Box 592 Washington, OK 73093 or you may make a donation online at dalekgrahamveteranscorner.org/donations. We have an account at Republic Bank and Trust that is used for all of our monies.

Dale K. Graham Veteran's Corner has food boxes available to those in need. An application for this type of assistance will be available on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. A DD-214 or military discharge will be needed to apply. Please contact Rhonda 405-550-8806 Extension 103 at the number above to apply for a food box.

To schedule an appointment for Tuesdays, please contact Diana at (405) 550-8806 Ext. 102.

We are at Faith Pointe Baptist Church each Thursday morning at 7 a.m. and located at 3404 NW 36th in Norman. Duo brings soulful sound for free concert

As the musical duo Adam & Kizzie, Adam and Kim Ledbetter are making beautiful music together.

But that's just part of the lives of this couple, whose musical talent has been blended together even as their lives have blended. And it's a talent they'll share with audiences in hometown libraries during this year's Summer Reading Program. They'll be at the Purcell Public Library at 6 p.m. Thursday, June 23, for their presentation "Flexercise Extravaganza."

Once choir classmates in junior high school at Classen School of Advanced Studies, they had gone their separate ways for more than a decade before their paths again crossed in 2001.

"We came back together as friends, and things like blossomed almost like magic," Adam said with a big smile. "We were developing this whole romantic thing, but the music was still kind of separate. It's taking my Duke Ellington influence and Kim's pop-rock influence and putting it all together," Adam said.

He was raised on the classics, and was taking piano lessons from age 10. It didn't click at first, but his mother kept him involved, and his skills on the piano and keyboards, as well as in song writing grew.

Kim's style came from, as she says, "growing up on the hits."

"My mom was a huge lover of music and she just brought that love to me," she said. "I was always singing growing up, we'd be in the car and one day singing Bette Midler, the next might be the Aladdin soundtrack and the next might be Earth, Wind and Fire."

It took the couple some time to blend those varied styles and interests, but it's all come together to create a sound that has been popular with audiences not just around Oklahoma City but on a scale that grows a little bigger every day.

And it all started from a place of love.

"When we fell in love we had been in darker places in our lives and we weren't doing music," she said. "But we came together as friends and when the love came, the music seeped back in. The music is a part of who we are together. Coming together, we fused what we offered individually."

Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church

By Fr. Jim Chamberlain

In our Confirmation class this year, we learned about Blessed Chiara Badano (1971-1990), a teenage girl whose nickname was "Luce" (which means "light"). In so many ways, she was just like any other Italian teenage girl - she loved to play tennis, listen to pop music and have coffee late at night with her friends. She even failed math one year.

She never did anything "big" like found a hospital or religious order, but she went to Church regularly and tried to love God and live the Gospel in her life. As a young girl, she joined the Focolare movement, a lay spiritual group that focused on the image of the Forsaken Christ (Christ on the Cross) to help us through difficult times.

When she was 17, a sharp pain in her shoulder was diagnosed as osteosarcoma, an aggressive bone cancer. The prognosis was grim and Chiara Luce struggled to say "yes" to this will of God for her, but she did. Each time a new, painful treatment was performed she would say, "For you, Jesus; if you want it, I want it too!"

Despite her pain she refused to take morphine so that she could remain lucid and offer all her suffering up to Jesus. Paralyzed in her bed, she stayed cheerful and kept loving. People who visited her in the hospital would notice the bright light shining in her eyes. While undergoing a painful medical procedure, Chiara was visited by a lady, "...a lady with a very beautiful and luminous smile came in. She came up to me and took me by the hand, and her touch filled me with courage...my heart was filled with a immense joy and all fear left me. In that moment I understood that if we're always ready for everything, God sends us many signs of his love."

During her final hours, Chiara made her final confession and received the Eucharist. There has already been one miracle from her intercession, and she is one step away from sainthood. I pray that I may have the courage of this humble, cheerful, modern saint.

Erin Snow, our Pastoral Associate for Youth and Faith Formation, will be teaching a course in June entitled "Theology of God: Unity and Trinity." The course is held on three consecutive Wednesday evenings, June 15, 22 and 29, from 7-8:30 p.m. at the Parish Hall. All are welcome! Contact her at erinsnow11@gmail.com or 420-3971 for booklets and more information.

Our weekly Mass schedule: Saturday at 5 p.m. (English), Sunday at 11 a.m. (English) and 1 p.m. (Spanish).

First Baptist Church Purcell

Sunday morning at FBC Purcell was a special morning as we celebrated Adoption Sunday. As Christians, we are adopted into the family of God through His Son, Jesus Christ. Ephesians 1:5 tells us, "He predestined us for adoption through Jesus Christ, in accordance with His pleasure and will."

We heard two powerful testimonies of those who know first-hand the blessings of earthly adoption. One family spoke about the five children they have adopted, and how God has blessed their lives through each of these children. Many members of our church family have also been adopted into their earthly families.

David Platt, pastor and Christian author, sums up the feelings of many with his statement, "We adopt not because we are rescuers, but because we are rescued." As children "adopted" into the family of God, maybe more of us should ask God if we are being called to adopt children in need here on earth.

Curtis Vass brought the morning message entitled, "Look Below the Surface." Curtis spoke about swimming in goggles, and how things look very different underwater when we use goggles.

Curtis said that while we need goggles to see clearly below the surface of the water, Jesus doesn't need goggles to see below the surface and to see the heart of people.

Man sees what is visible, but the Lord sees the heart. Christians need to seek to view others as God sees them. Only then, can we truly understand His love. The outward appearance of someone may mislead us.

We make judgments based on what people look like and what they do. God isn't only concerned with what people do, but with the reason they do it. Only God can know our true motives.

Curtis asked us if we were following God's plan for our lives or our own plan. The truth is, most of us are not consistently following God's plan.

King David was a man who the Bible describes as "a man after God's own heart." Yet, even King David did not consistently follow God's plan. David pursued his own desires, which led to him being an adulterer, a liar and a murderer! But David repented, and God knew his heart and forgave him.

If God can use someone as sinful as David to further His Kingdom, we can be used of God, also. First, we must have a heart change and truly repent of all sin. When God sees our true heart, He will look past our sin, and see His Son, Jesus, who died to take away our sins!

Johnson Road Baptist Church

This Saturday night will be the second in a series of Christian movies to be shown at Johnson Road. The movie for Saturday is "God Is Not Dead." Showtime begins at 6 p.m. Members and visitors are invited to attend. Activities are planned for the children. Come early to get your popcorn, snacks and drinks. Everything is free.

Please remember, this Sunday, June 19, is Father's Day. Make your father happy by joining him in the worship at the church of your choice.

After church Sunday morning, all the children are invited to pizza dinner and a movie. Sandra Mayo will be in charge of the activities.

Sunday afternoon a large group enjoyed the 25th Annual Carnie Barnes Fish Fry. The three cooks, Michael Cagle, Scott Pounds and Josh Kimbrell, had the cooks blazing by 3 p.m. At 5 p.m. the prayer of thanksgiving was offered and the assembly line was open for service.

The hush puppies, French fries, catfish, side dishes, pies and cakes disappeared in a hurry. In spite of the morning rains, the attendance equaled or exceeded last year's attendance. We appreciate all those that prepared the food, washed the dishes and swept the floors. We had a great day of food and fellowship at the Lord's table. Look forward to the 26th Annual Fish Fry in June 2017.

Sunday morning Gynean Gentry was recognized for having celebrated a birthday, two years short of retirement. Gynean also provided the morning special music. She sang "There's Something About That Name."

Scripture text for the morning sermon was taken from Psalm 103:8 and Ephesians 4:4-10. The congregation was reminded how compassionate and gracious God is in dealing with sinful individuals and groups of people.

God is always rich in mercy. His heart is broken when we foolishly and intentionally do harm to ourselves and others. God is always waiting at the end of the road for us to recognize our mistakes and return to the mourner's bench.

God's heart was broken when the first two human beings disobeyed his command and ate from the tree of good and evil, but God still loved Adam and Eve. If you doubt whether God is slow to anger and rich in mercy, look at yourself. God must love you, you are still alive.

God hasn't abandoned you, he still walks with you in the garden. God hasn't divorced you, he still calls you his partner in service.

God hasn't starved you, he still feeds you his daily bread. God hasn't disinherited you, he has made you an heir to his heavenly mansion. God has showered us with an abundance of gifts from heaven.

Sermon titles for this Sunday are "Father's Are Important" and "The Forgotten Command."

Sunday school begins at 9:45 a.m. and morning worship is at 11 a.m.

Welcome, everyone, to the "front porch."

As you read through the Psalms and many other sections of the Old Testament, you will readily recognize "Zion" as one of the beautiful images splashed repeatedly throughout the inspired story. The magnificent temple Solomon built once rested on Zion's western slope, the highest hill in Jerusalem. From her fixed position high above the hills, Zion served as a fortress of protection and a beacon of light to the land of Judah.

Old Testament writers honored this place called Zion and often wrote of her as they looked ahead by faith to a better Zion, the church of our Lord. The apostle, in contrasting the limitations of the old regime with the blessings in the Lord's church, reminded the Hebrews that they, indeed, had come to that better place:

"But ye are come unto mount Zion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels" (Hebrews 12:22).

We, today, have come to that place. We have come to Mount Zion, to the heavenly Jerusalem and city of the living God. Sometimes I think we tend to take for granted the grandeur of the church of our Lord that we become a part of when we obey the gospel of Jesus Christ (Romans 6:1-6, 17). But the faithful prophets of old did not take Zion for granted. They loved her even as we are to love the Lord's church today.

Many song poets through the years have taken this grand imagery of Zion as a fitting representation of the Lord's church and used her in their music, one such song referring to her as an old ship. In 1977 Conrad Cook penned the beautiful words to "Is that the Old Ship of Zion," a song that tells the story of a man standing on a river bank, looking out and seeing the old ship of Zion sailing in the distance. As he strains his eyes to make out this ship, he realizes that "its hull was bent and battered."

He describes the scene further: "Waves were rough," he writes, "but that old ship was sailing. Is that the old Ship of Zion I see?"

What a true and poignant image of the Lord's church! Surely, through the ages, the church has been "bent and battered." She has had to endure many storms and a multitude of attacks and will do so until "the Lamb shall overcome them" (Revelation 17:14).

Long before John's vision, however, Daniel of old reminded us that Zion "shall never be destroyed," that she "shall stand for ever (Daniel 2:44).

Today I am so glad to be part of that everlasting ship of Zion, to be able to sail life's sea in this old ship. I want to tell you that I love this church, and I hope that this look back at her beauty will excite you to a greater love for her, too.

There are so many reasons I love old Zion, but there is one timely one here that we want to pause to remember: We love the old ship of Zion, today, because of her history.

True, all of those who have followed the command of Peter in Acts 2:38 to "repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins" have begun their own history in the church of our Lord. But the church of Christ goes further back than our lifetimes and the lives of our parents and grandparents (2 Timothy 1:5). The church's history is rich and deep, going back, prophetically, thousands of years to the Old Testament.

Remember Isaiah's great sermon, in the second chapter of Isaiah:

"And it shall come to pass in the last days that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem" (verses 2-3).

What a timely prophecy of the future coming of the Lord's church! What rich and powerful history! We have come today to the "mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob."

We have come to Mount Zion, that grand and glorious "city of the living God."

Thank you for joining us this week for a look at Zion. We will plan to look closer at this great theme next week, here on the "front porch."

Until then, God bless!

Green Avenue Church of Christ

The Wednesday evening auditorium Bible class studied the latter part of the fifth chapter of First John five which discusses the confidence Christians have in prayer and the concept of sin which leads to death.

The Sunday morning auditorium class looked at a number of chapters in I Kings, Ecclesiastes and 2 Chronicles which record the end of the period of the united kingdom of Israel and the division into two separate kingdoms. Class discussion centered on major events and characters of that period.

During the Sunday morning assembly Keith Shackelford brought a lesson comparing the effect that God's word has on the lives of those who live by it with the effect of salt on food, bringing out the flavor of humility, moderation, peace, and unity, beginning with the reading of Mark 9:49-50.

The Sunday evening message was an examination of King

Jeroboam's changing of feasts and their dates, and setting up of idols and places to worship that were different from that set forth by God as recorded primarily in I Kings 12.

The church is located at 407 Jackson Street in Purcell. Bible classes begin at 9:45 Sunday morning and 7 Wednesday evening, with worship at 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday. Bible study correspondence courses are available. You can call the office at 527-4052.

Bowman Methodist Church

Greeting to all and wishing you all a blessed week. If you get a chance, drive by our church and see the progress that has been made toward the repair of our church. Progress is being made toward painting our church with donated paint. This is wonderful as our church is small and any donations help us tremendously. Come by our church and fellowship with us for Sunday services which start at 11 at 716 South Canadian Street.

Our scripture from the Bible was from Psalms 40:1-3 and Pastor Bryan gave an eloquent sermon titled "In the Pit with the King". When problems happen such as family relationships, financial problems, or additions, it is a common thing to be in the hole in the ground and to be trapped. The same God that is in the pit with you is also in the palace. You need to worry when you think there is no way out. When things go good, we might not think to praise God like we should and just give Him small thanks. When we get trapped and fall into the pit, we realize that we need God to rescue us. You have to wait on God. You just can't ask Him for His help and then go and fix things on your own. You have got to wait for God as He is always on time. We keep getting in the same pit every time. You may say the trouble is different, but you're still in the pit. God has no problems; He fixes problems for us. God can bless you. God can lift us from the pit; God loves us. God has given us a firm place to stand all our lives. He has never left us in a slimy pit. Some people don't know anything better than a slimy pit and miry clay. Some people need God only when they are in trouble. Why not come to church and get some of that slime off you? When God shows up and pulls you from the pit you have a song—"This Is My Story".

God is the one that keeps me planted on solid ground and a solid rock. King David was in the pit. While in the hole, he probably thought how people ridiculed him and how people were trying to kill him. While in the hole, he probably thought he was not worthy and how he was low life. King David cried out to the Lord to lift him out of the pit. God lifts him out of the situation—a real pit. God fixes our problems, our finances, our relationships, and whatever stuff we get ourselves into. There is a difference in being with the Lord and in being on your own. You no longer have to dwell in the bottomless pit, because God can place your feet on solid ground. Have you covered your hole? Have you covered the pit? Psalm 40:2 He brought me up also out of a horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings.

Purcell Senior Citizens

By Fredda Perry

The rain stopped for a few days but back it came with a vengeance. It seems like every morning the clouds gather, the thunder rumbles and the lightning strikes, then down comes the rain. When the rain stops and the sun comes out, the humidity rises as well as the temperatures. It looks like summer is close by.

The seniors had a good garage sale last week and they are especially thankful to the people who donated items to the seniors. Hester works very hard to keep everything straightened and displayed so it will be easy to shop. Due to some activities that are happening at the center, the next garage sale will be postponed until July 15.

If you are looking for a place to have a birthday party or family reunion, the senior center is available to be rented. The center rents for $70 per event. If you are interested, give us a call and let us fill you in on all the particulars. Dates are filling up for the summer so if you are planning to use the center, let us schedule your date before someone else gets it. All dates are scheduled on a first come basis.

Bingo will start at 10 a.m. sharp Thursday morning at the center. Everyone wins before the games are over so come and join us in some good fun and fellowship, then stay and enjoy lunch with the seniors. Anyone 60 or over can eat for a $2 donation.

Just a reminder for those seniors who like to dance and fellowship with like minds, there is a dance at the center every Friday night beginning at 6:30 p.m. and ending around 9:30 p.m. The price is $6 per person. There is a live band which can be enjoyed for those who do not dance.

The seniors invite anyone 60 or above to come visit the center where there is always something good cooking and some good activities and fellowship. If you are looking for something new to do, give us a try.

As has been mentioned in some of the other seniors news, there are going to be some changes coming in the nutrition program. However, at this time we do not have any definite facts. The seniors will be notified as soon as the staff knows something definite.

Washington Senior Citizens

By B.K. Barker

One of the seniors was recounting of earlier years, here's his story. "A cop stopped me late one night for driving under the influence of alcohol. He asked me where was I going so late at night and I told him I was headed to a lecture over the use and abuse of alcohol and the evil effects it has on the human body." "Really?" said the police officer, "and who would be giving that lecture at one in the morning?" "My wife."

The seniors of the Washington Senior Center had their annual raffle for the quilt. The raffle brought an amazing and much needed $360 for the Washington Firefighters. Butch Bond was the lucky winner of the quilt. Congratulations Butch. It's rumored he blessed Justin Taylor with it for those sleepless nights he and his wife will have once the new baby arrives. Thanks to everyone who bought a raffle ticket and participated in the raffle and came to the fish fry! The raffle was a blessing and the fish fry was delicious! To those who cooked, brought food, vegetables, desserts, etc., we appreciate you!

Be sure to come down tomorrow morning, Friday, for "Just Jammin" at the center. We never know how many will come to play and sing but they're always a blessing. Meals are served at 11:30 a.m. at the center and delivered between 11:15 a.m.-12 p.m. "Just Jammin" always eats with the seniors every Friday, so why not you? Come on down and enjoy good music, good friends, good food, and a lot of fun!

Changes are coming and coming soon to the senior center. Menus will be different, cooks will be different, and hopefully the attendance will increase a bit. The goal is to have good quality restaurant-quality meals served daily at the center with good quality conversation and time spent together with friends, laughing and enjoying each other's company. If you have any questions or comments, please feel free to call the center any weekday morning and ask for either Lewie, Bill, Harold or Rowena. Any of those four can give you the answers to any questions, comments, or concerns you might have.

One thing is for sure, everyone is excited about the new menus and the blessing of their taste buds once these changes are being made. No need to drive to Purcell, Norman, Blanchard or Pauls Valley. Great food will begin being served every day at 11:30 a.m. at the Washington Senior Center. The date of the new menu service will be announced soon. Keep reading because I promise you, you will not want to miss out!

The Bible says laughter is like a medicine. I hope this helps someone. "When do cows go to sleep? When it's pasture bedtime!" Have a great weekend!

Do not confuse poison ivy with imposters

Sean Hubbard Communications Specialist

Poison ivy is nasty, commands attention and needs to be dealt with through management practices. However, misidentifying other plants as the itch-causing agent is a common occurrence.

Perhaps one of the most commonly misidentified plants is Virginia creeper, said Dwayne Elmore, Oklahoma State University Cooperative Extension wildlife specialist.

“This vine grows throughout Oklahoma and the eastern United States. It can be found in forests and prairie edges where it is often mistaken for poison ivy,” Elmore said. “While both plants are vines, they can be readily distinguished as poison ivy has three leaflets and Virginia creeper has five.”

Virginia creeper is an important plant for many wildlife species. White-tailed deer consume the foliage of Virginia creeper, birds eat its purplish fruit during the fall and several species of birds will nest in the dense foliage the plant provides.

Incidentally, poison ivy also is an important wildlife plant despite the bane it is to humans.

“Beyond the value to wildlife, Virginia creeper is a wonderful landscape plant,” said Elmore. “It can grow in both deep shade and full sunlight, although the foliage is larger and a darker green in shaded lawns.”

During fall, it often provides a brilliant splash of color before dropping leaves for the winter. The fruit, while small, provides winter color as well, until birds consume them.

The vine can be vigorous when well watered, making the plant a good choice as a ground cover or for arbors and trellises.

“Another nice attribute is Virginia creeper is drought and heat tolerant and will grow in a wide variety of soil types,” he said. “While this plant can be found commercially, it is readily available along roadsides where it can be transplanted, assuming enough root biomass can be retained.

The seeds will readily germinate as well, although it will take a few years to establish into a robust addition to your landscape,” Elmore concluded.

Another common misidentifications are of boxelder. The boxelder plant is actually a tree and looks very much like poison ivy when it is young.

“One of the big differences between boxelder and poison ivy is the arrangement of the leaves of the stem,” said Karen Hickman, professor in OSU’s Department of Natural Resource Ecology and Management. “Boxelder leaves come out at the same spot, where poison ivy and poison oak leaflets will be staggered.”

As boxelder becomes older, it will grow more leaflets and be distinguishable from poison ivy.

White Dog Press releases children's book application

The Chickasaw Nation introduces a children's mobile book application compatible with Apple and Android devices.

The modern and traditional combine with a read-to-me children's book application recently released by White Dog Press, a secondary imprint under the Chickasaw Press.

The app is based on the 2012 Oklahoma Book Award winner, "Chikasha Stories Volume One: Shared Stories."

"Even readers who know Chikasha Stories will enjoy this updated version with sound and music," Wiley Barnes, director of Chickasaw Press said. "We're excited about the endless opportunities apps offer to enhance our great publications and continue to share Chickasaw history and culture in a modern way."

Both the book and the app are a collection of stories drawn from Chickasaw oral tradition. Stories are artfully told in English by premier Chickasaw storyteller and tribal elder Glenda Galvan, and in Chickasaw by JoAnn Ellis, Jerry Imotichey and Joshua D. Hinson.

The highlighted narration allows users to read along with traditional stories in both English and Chickasaw, with the ability to choose to listen to each story or read it themselves. Children will be able to touch images and objects to hear the image's or object's names in English and Chickasaw.

The collection serves as an introduction to the Chickasaw language, while preserving the Chickasaw storytelling tradition. It is all brought to life with the vibrant illustrations of award-winning Chickasaw artist Jeannie Barbour.

Volume One introduces the kindred spirit Chickasaw people have always shared with animals and nature. Each tale teaches life lessons and provides an ancient Chickasaw perspective on why things in nature occur the way they do.

The Chikasha Stories Volume One: Shared Stories app is available on Apple devices and can be downloaded through iTunes or the Appstore at itunes.apple.com/us/store. For Android mobile devices, the app is available for purchase at the Amazon App Store, www.amazon.com/appstore.

For more information, contact the Chickasaw Press at 580-436-7282 or www.chickasawpress.com.

Dear Friends,
My recent ads have been about change, because there is a new development in my real estate business. As of June 16, 2016, I will be closing the Johnson & Associates office, and will be associating with Carolyn Little Realty. A main reason for this change, is for me to spend less time at a desk in an office, and more time with you, my customers. I spent a lot of time on this decision and feel it will be quite beneficial. All of my old phone numbers and email address remain the same, and I look forward to spending more time with you, when you—or your family or friends— need professional real estate services. Thanks for your good wishes during this transition and please call me with any questions you may have.
