Necessity, it is said, is the mother of invention.

So when Bob Schneder and his brother began breaking colts back in the day in Wilmington, Ohio, they were only temporarily stymied at being unable to find bridles small enough to fit their mostly Quarter Horse trainees.

There was just one thing to do. Make bridles that fit.

He was no stranger then to doing whatever was needed to see a job through.

Still isn't.

The first job the Schneder brothers ever had was breaking ponies for a pony ride.

"We would go to carnivals with this guy," he recalled. "My brother and I rode the ponies in the ring for a while." When he was 11, he began me to do something else," Bob said. He still shoes a few horses, mostly for his son, Rusty, lives near Norman.

Like so many things to do with horses, Bob knows his way around a lariat – and his limitations.

"I rope at it," he explained. "I don't have the time to do it (team roping) any more."

Bob and his wife, Mary made the decision to leave Ohio in their rearview mirror once she retired from her career in banking.

Nowadays she can be found helping in the shop.

"We've been together since she was 12 and I was 13," Bob said, "and we still like each other."

Instead of stopping, however, Morgan reportedly ignored the trooper's lights and sirens and continued southbound at speeds up to 90 mph, running a roadblock.

To stop her before she reached a construction zone at mile marker 79, the trooper performed a tactical intervention, forcing Morgan's car off the interstate at mile marker 83.

Once in custody, Morgan reportedly told the trooper the pickup belonged to her boyfriend who stole it in Florida.

In addition, marijuana was found in Morgan's possession.

Hospital vote goes beyond PMH

Here's a little note to citizens of Purcell.

Tuesday's vote is not a vote whether or not to vote for Purcell Municipal Hospital. It's not only a vote to save the PMH but the entire city of Purcell.

That's right, you are not voting Tuesday to merely save PMH. You are voting to save the life of the city of Purcell.

For without the hospital, you will not recognize your community in the coming months and years.

A yes vote Tuesday will not only save PMH but will save Purcell, Oklahoma as we know it. If you don't have Purcell Municipal Hospital your town will become like so many other Oklahoma towns that don't have doctors, that don't have laboratories, that don't have for the city that you all love and

You must vote for Purcell. You must vote to keep a town that has been a progressive and magnetic community for the last 125 years.

We are counting on you, the good citizens of Purcell, to vote not to put a huge dagger in The Heart of Oklahoma.

Vote yes or vote no for Purcell. That's your decision.

We think yes is the best.

And lawsuit over where funds go

Senate Democratic Leader John Sparks, D-Norman, issued the following comments on a lawsuit filed Tuesday asking the Supreme Court to order the governor to return $140.8 million in "extra money" that was "found" by the governor's fiscal staff back to the state agencies from where it was cut:

"I've said it before and I'll say it again—we don't have to pass a new law to determine how and where these funds should be spent. We passed a budget in May of 2015 which directed how these funds were to be spent.

The governor and her staff are over-stepping their authority by continuing to withhold these funds. The governor's finance team needs to simply distribute these funds to the agencies for which they were originally appropriated. This is not a difficult problem to solve—just follow the law, and distribute the funds to the agencies who suffered unlawful and unauthorized cuts.

"This is another example of the Republicans at the state Capitol not following even their own laws. Instead, the burden is on hard working Oklahomans to hold the governor, her fiscal staff, and the Republican leadership at the Capitol accountable.

"Thousands of Oklahomans across our state are suffering under the weight of the massive budget cuts forced on our state agencies, from foster families and guardians who need the most basic health and safety services which no longer have funding; to teachers who received pink slips; to corrections staff working in unsafe, understaffed conditions.

"It is long past time for the governor, her fiscal staff, and the Republicans in the Legislature to stop trying to play politics with these funds and simply give it back to the agencies that desperately need this funding and received what we now know were unnecessary, damaging budget cuts."

Senate Democratic Leader John Sparks, D-Norman

Every day, our nation faces new threats from enemies at home and abroad, and we rely on our government to identify and deter these threats before they come to fruition. How strongly we respond to these threats is up to our nation's leaders - particularly our Commander in Chief.

The past 15 years have seen some of the most unbelievable acts of terror, and some of the biggest changes to our country's national defense and foreign policy in modern history. And in these dangerous times we cannot lead from behind, we cannot turn a blind eye to the realities of the world and we cannot ignore our unique role in securing the peace. In order to protect our home-our shores. Today, we need to protect every border we have - from our physical borders to our technological borders. And in order to do so, we must be prepared.

Our country and its leaders need to take significant steps to ensure that every tool and resource we have at our disposal is efficient, effective and strong. And one of the first steps we should take is to reassure our allies that our relations and mutual interests are solid.

America has historically been the chief defender of democratic values and free enterprise. We should never concede this position because we have leaders who are afraid to confront our enemies or defend our friends.

Too often our current Presilanditis necessary that we fight dent has taken a different the enemy before they reach approach. From casting aside long-standing allies like Israel in favor of state sponsors of terrorism like Iran to allowing Russian expansion across Eastern Europe to go unchecked, and allowing ISIS, to commit unspeakable atrocities across the world, President Obama has caused many to question the United States' historical commitment to global peace and stability.

> The threat of terrorism looms over our world in many different forms. One of the latest battle fronts is technology. Through the internet, our enemies have the ability to infiltrate online systems and radicalize young and impressionable minds.

Welcome to Lennox Valley, my hometown! Kevin Slimp's The Good Folks of Lennox Valley

Pre-election parties highlight disparities Juliet Stoughten, known until recently as

With seven days remaining until the mayoral "Race of the Century," groups gathered throughout Lennox Valley to cheer on their candidates Silver Tongue" Dick Bland held his campaign gala in the First Baptist Church Fellowship Hall, where 200 supporters gathered to celebrate his upcoming victory. Red, white and blue streamers hung throughout the room, alongside photos of Bland glued to letter-size sheets of red, white and blue construction paper. All who gathered knew Silver Tongue had at least two advantages in the race. First, he hadn't angered many good folks over the past four years, which was quite the accomplishment for an incumbent in the Valley. If it hadn't been for the furor over egg prices and the Federal Reserve System, folks would have been hard-pressed to name any issue that divided the community over the previous four years.

Bland's second advantage was self-evident. Everyone in the room was quite certain that God was on Dick's side. After all, he was a loyal church-goer, with 17 years of Sunday School perfect attendance pins to show for it. With God on his side, the mayor was a shoo-in.

The gala began with a somber yet powerful prayer by the church's pastor, Brother Billy Joe Prather. That was followed by a rousing rendition of "Onward Christian Soldiers," sung by the attendees and accompanied by Loraine Sutherland, First Baptist Church pianist.

Two miles away, on Highway 11, there was another celebration taking place. The VFW was the perfect spot for Raymond Cooper's "Campaign Bash," as he had referred to it during his radio talk show for the past five days. There were no prayers at Raymond's celebration. There were no choirs or hymns. There were, however, tipsy veterans mixing alongside Raymond's most fervent supporters. And, instead of hymns, the two cracked speakers in the jukebox blared "All My Exes Live in Texas." To be fair, there were a few inebriated celebrants singing along.

"Claire" to the few folks she had met in the Valley, held a less animated event than her opponents. Supported by her friend and pastor, Sarah Hyden-Smith, along with Iris Long, editor of The Hometown News, Juliet listened as the two of them discussed campaign strategy, all the while knowing her chances of winning were someplace between slim and none

Fortunately, Iris and Sarah were able to convince Juliet not to make the annual First Baptist Church Men's Breakfast and Turkey Shoot an issue in the campaign. Long shared that she planned to endorse a candidate in the upcoming edition of The Hometown News, and pancakes and turkeys didn't make for a suitable campaign

Other than a story announcing Juliet's campaign in the previous edition of the paper, there had been little notice of her candidacy. Cooper, obviously aware her chances of winning were miniscule, ignored Juliet's campaign after initially reacting to the news when she entered the race. "Silver Tongue" seemed content to focus on his main adversary, Raymond Cooper.

With Cooper running on the slogan, "In your heart, you know he's right," borrowed from Barry Goldwater's 1964 presidential campaign, and Bland sticking with the rallying cry from his first race, "Stand with Bland," Juliet needed a catchy and memorable slogan, something to cause voters to recognize she was a viable candi-

That's when it came to her - "Vote for the eggcellent, egg-citing candidate, Juliet Stoughton!' "That's funny," quipped Sarah.

"I love it," Iris chimed in. "It's funny, and it reminds voters of Raymond's involvement in the egg scandal." Four hours later, reading over their notes one last time, Iris declared, "It just might work." Meanwhile, Cooper acted as though he hadn't a care in the world as Juliet's troops discussed campaign strategy.

All the while, Raymond laughed and danced with his adoring fans as George Strait sang, "And that's why I hang my hat in Tennessee."

The never-ending battle over selection of state's most powerful judges

Anti-abortion laws. A Ten Commandments monument at the State Capitol. An overhaul of the workers' compensation all or parts of these legislative actions by the Oklahoma Supreme Court – coupled with a push by national and state conservative groups - have led to a steady march of bills over the past decade that would alter the process for choosing state Supreme Court and Appeals courts justices.

The 2016 legislative session was no exception. The Oklahoma House and Senate approved measures to change the way the state's most powerful judges are selected, although none of the proposals became law or made it to the November ballot.

because of several factors, including concern about overbetween House and Senate Republicans; opposition by the Oklahoma Bar Association.

But if previous sessions going back to at least 2008 are any indication, similar bills will surface again in the 2017 session. And a more dramatic move is in the works for 2018: A coalition of national and Controversial rejections of state organizations is drafting a state question that would enact decisions.

"We're not supposed to have unelected people dictate to us what the law is," said Rep. Kevin Calvey, R-Oklahoma City, who authored a bill last session to seek a statewide vote on whether to abolish the Judicial Nominating Commission and have voters elect all appellate court judges for fouryear terms. The bill stalled. 'Unfortunately, there has been a trend in our courts nationally to act like a super legislature."

Supporters of the current system defend its integrity, stressing that it involves a committee of various people nominating candidates based on their merits. The supporters warn that electing judges or giving politicians too much sway in the process could corrupt the independence of the judiciary.

As an example, Oklahoma City attorney and author Bob Burke cited a contract dispute between business partners.

"We both as Oklahomans and Americans have the absolute, foundational right to have that (contract) issue decided by an independent arbiter, not by someone who is totally beholden to one of the lawyers, or is totally beholden to a political party that happened to assure his or her appointment the last time," Burke said.

The current selection system will land in the spotlight again soon with the recent announcement by Supreme Court Justice Steven Taylor that he will retire on December 31.

Choosing Judges

Over the past decade, state lawmakers have grown more critical of the process for selecting judges, said Bill Raftery, senior analyst at the National Center for State Courts, a nonprofit judicial research center.

"Most of these (merit-selection) efforts were done in the ment, has outraged many 1960s and '70s," Raftery said. "Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Florida — there were huge lows the law and the results didates applied for a vacancy criminal scandals involving aren't popular," Williams said. judicial appointments and judicial selection, and that generation is gone.

"Now you have governors who are maybe two generations removed from this saying, 'Why am I so restricted?'"

The scandal that spurred reform in Oklahoma involved allegations of bribery against several Supreme Court justices. It culminated in a nationally televised hearing on the state Senate floor in March 1965 in which prosecutors presented evidence that a justice had accepted cash in exchange for votes. He was later impeached for bribery.

In 1967 voters approved creation of the Judicial Nominating Commission, intended to limit politics and increase experience and qualifications as the basis for selecting judges.

Raftery said recent efforts to more directly involve elected officials or voters in choosing judges isn't limited to conservatives, but Republicans have controlled the majority of chambers where legislators have introduced such bills.

Two states, Kansas and Tennessee, have changed their appointment system, and about a dozen more have taken up such proposals.

In 2013, Kansas abolished the use of a screening committee to appoint Court of Appeals judges, replacing it with a federal-style system in which the governor selects justices and the state Senate confirms. This year, Gov. Sam Brownback led an unsuccessful effort to implement a similar change for the Kansas Supreme Court.

In 2014, Tennessee dismantled its judicial nominating commission, opting for one in which the governor appoints appellate court judges and the Legislature confirms.

John Morris Williams, executive director of the Oklahoma Bar Association, said he believes several factors are involved in the push for changes in Oklahoma.

One is that eight of the nine current Supreme Court justices were appointed by Democratic governors - Brad Henry, who appointed six, and David Walters and George Nigh, who appointed one each.

Another factor is that some large national groups are pushing for a new selection process in order to reshape the state courts' makeup, Williams said.

In addition, a series of Oklahoma appellate court rulings, particularly the removal of the Ten Commandments monulegislators and voters.

"Sometimes the court fol-"Of course, we know the courts aren't there to be popular. They are there to follow the law."

A.J. Ferate, general counsel for the state Republican Party, said in a videotaped interview in February that it is a personal passion of his to revamp the way appellate judges are chosen because he believes more balance is needed.

In a recent interview with Oklahoma Watch, Ferate said a coalition of groups, including the Judicial Crisis Network, a conservative advocacy group based in Washington, D.C., is drafting a state question for the November 2018 ballot calling for election of all Oklahoma appellate justices.

"We had it prepared, ready to go, beginning in May, but at the end of the day we just wanted a full deck of time in order to accomplish it," Ferate said.

Current System

In Oklahoma, the Judicial Nominating Commission screens all applicants for vacant positions on the Supreme Court, the five-member Court of Criminal Appeals, and the 12-member Court of Civil Appeals. District court judges are still elected, although the nominating commission recommends names to fill sudden vacancies.

The 15-member commission consists of six lawyers elected by the bar association and nine political appointees who must be non-lawyers and may not live with or be closely related to a lawyer. The governor appoints six of those, and no more than three can be from the same political party. The commission interviews candidates and reviews their applications and backgrounds.

John Tucker, a commission member and attorney, said the panel discusses candidates at length before choosing three to send to the governor. Appointees run on an uncontested ballot every six years; no Oklahoma judge has ever lost a retention vote. Justices face no limit on years or terms served.

"Not one person in the five years I've been on the commission has raised any political issue ever. Not within the commission, not with an applicant, never," Tucker said.

Applicants fill out a lengthy form but are not allowed to reveal their party affiliation, he said. Commission members do not ask candidates about their views on controversial topics such as abortion and gun control, he said.

Rep. Calvey takes issue with claims that commission members are nonpartisan.

Last September, four canat the district court level in Shawnee – two Republicans and two Democrats. Only the two Democrats were referred to the governor. All commission meetings are closed, so records of their discussions are not public, but Calvey said the results speak for themselves. Gov. Mary Fallin didn't choose either candidate and instead called for a new round of applicants for the job.

Larry Ottaway, a lawyer who was on the commission at the time, said the commission didn't know the candidates' party affiliations, but rather simply referred to the governor the two most qualified applicants.

"Who's going to listen and be patient? Who has the right reasons for wanting the job?" Ottaway said, referring to how applicants are evaluated.

Carrie Severino, chief counsel at the Judicial Crisis Network, said changes to the Oklahoma judicial system are needed because the state is deeply conservative and should have judges that reflect a conservative judicial approach.

"As for Oklahoma's scandal some 50 years ago, it was one of straight-up bribery and payment for a desired outcome in a case, and was utterly unrelated to how the judges were selected," Severino said.

Recent Proposals

By the end of the 2016 session, the state House and Senate were unable to reconcile two versions of a bill asking voters to change the nominating

Court of Criminal Appeals

The Oklahoma Court of Criminal Appeals, the court of last resort for criminal cases, includes (from left) Justices Robert Hudson, David Lewis, Gary Lumpkin, Clancy Smith and Arlene Johnson.

Under the House version, the Judicial Nominating Commission would have rated applicants on a score of 1 to 10 and sent all applicants' names, instead of three, to the governor.

process for justices.

The biggest change called for creating a final selection committee consisting of five members from the House and five from the Senate, with at least one minority-party member from each chamber. The governor would then appoint the justice.

The Senate version modified that approach so that the commission would rate each applicant as "qualified" or "not qualified." The governor would nominate a justice and the Senate would confirm.

House Speaker Jeff Hickman, who sponsored the House bill, said, "I think it (the House version) makes some appropriate, needed reforms, but it doesn't throw out the entire system.

"The truth is, all this does is put (the new system) on the ballot for the people of Oklahoma to decide," he added. Williams, of the bar association, said he thought the bill didn't pass because "some very thoughtful and intelligent and wise folks starting look at the unintended consequences."

Expected of teachers: Spend hundreds of $ on classroom supplies

JenniferPalmer VictorHenderson Oklahoma Watch

Elementary music teacher Tony Flores' entire classroom budget for the year will be expended on music for three performances. Last year, he bought new instruments, to the tune of $1,000 out of his own bank account.

In Danielle Childers' pre-kindergarten classroom, students will have snacks for snack time, mats for naptime and stickers for a job well done, but the cost of those items falls on her.

Tulsa high school history teacher Vince Facione starts the year by giving each of his 190 students a three-ring binder. He also stocks his classroom at Will Rogers High School with highlighters and paper and expects to spend at least $300 before the first day of school.

"I enjoy what I do, so I see it as an investment," Facione said.

Even in good budget years, Oklahoma teachers have swallowed the fact that despite relatively low salaries, they will have to spend hundreds of dollars out of their own pockets to furnish supplies for their classrooms.

According to a national 2015 survey of more than 500 teachers by Agile Education Marketing, each spent an average of $490 of their own money on their classrooms. Each received an average $300 from their school.

At many private companies and state agencies, supplies like paper, pens, scissors, and notepads are purchased for staff members by the employer. State agencies like the ing Department of Education and the Legislature, for example, have supply closets stocked with the basics.

Of course, not all items that teachers purchase are technically indispensable. They could, perhaps, live without things like maps and posters strung along the walls, beanbag chairs for a reading corner and pool noodles for rhythm games.

But teachers say the obvious essentials are not enough to foster learning – they must go above and beyond to creatively engage students, using extras such as iPad apps, art materials and wall decorations. "Unfortunately, we're in a situation that the teachers are expected to - on a low salary already — pay for everything themselves," said Flores, who teaches music to kindergarten through fifth graders at Wiley source. When state and local education spending is relatively low, or overhead or salary costs increase, the amount left for supplies — a lower priority — shrinks. The state doesn't earmark funds for supplies. Districts get funding based mainly on enrollment and then allocate the money, allowing weigh the priorities.

Teachers often get other help — from PTAs, donors, friends and relatives. Parents also are asked to provide many supplies. But teachers still shell out hundreds of dollars each year for the classroom. Districts can't or won't pick up the tab.

"They're going to do whatever it takes. And if it takes spending $200-300 out of their pocket, they are going to do it," John Cox, president of the Organization of Rural Elementary Schools, said of teachers. "They sacrifice their own income to help a child out."

Flores' school gave him a budget of $300, and he knows he's one of the lucky ones.

For the set of musical instruments he bought last year, he spent $950 out of pocket plus $3,000 raised online through Donorschoose.org and all of his classroom allotment.

Flores' students perform three musicals each year. Cost of the CDs and rights to perform: $300, his entire classroom budget.

Oklahoma ranks 49th in average teacher salaries among states and the District of Columbia. Educators here haven't had an across-the-board pay raise in eight years.

A federal income tax deschools some flexibility. Su- duction allows educators to perintendents and principals deduct unreimbursed classroom expenses up to $250 without having to itemize. But depending on a household's tax bracket, the amount saved can be relatively small. Many teachers say it's of little help to their pocketbooks.

Childers shopped for her Tecumseh prekindergarten classroom in late July at Copelin's teacher supply store in Norman. She earned a $100 gift card by collecting grocery receipts from her students' parents. Her total rang in at $99.68, and she said she will probably spend $200-$300 more out of pocket as the new school year gets underway.

Mr. Mitchell passed away Tuesday, August

David was born December 2, 1928 in Washington, Okla., the third of 10 children born to David and Martha Ann (Dover) Mitchell. He was raised in the Washington area and attended school in the Ladd Community. At a very young age, David learned the value of hard work, helping when he could to support his family.

On November 27, 1948, he married his best friend and true love, Naomi Jean Bennett. They first made their home in Lexington and later Oklahoma City where together they raised three children; son, Teddy, and daughters, Deborah and Sheila LuAnn.

David was a hard worker and a great provider. A proud member of the Carpenters Local Union 329, he was very crafty and worked well with his hands, and made a good living as a carpenter. In 1985, David and Naomi retired to the Eufaula area, later settling back home in Lexington.

David was a faithful Christian and served the Lord wholeheartedly. Many teachers utilize Donorschoose.org for funding.

The website is how Laura Childress, a kindergarten teacher at Oakridge Elementary in Oklahoma City, has received supplies like play dough for her classroom.

Childress spends about $500 per year on her classroom. She has paid to laminate papers, at 50 cents a foot, because the laminator at the school is often broken or out of paper.

Her mom buys a lot of classroom supplies and decorations for her.

"I buy my own dry erase markers. I tell my parents what I need instead of relying on the school- or district-provided list of supplies," Childress said.

Last fall, Oklahoma City first-grade teacher Chantel Jones had already shelled out $400 on supplies by November. She bought spiral notebooks, pencils, crayons and construction paper.

She buys apps for students to use on her iPad, the most expensive one ringing in at $9. And she bought colored ink, so the decorations she creates on the computer can be in color instead of black and white.

She thinks to herself, "Ouch. That's a lot of money.' But I knew it would help my students. While teachers are spending out of pocket, we don't really think about it. We see a child in need and they can't do what they need to do without the necessary supplies."

plies and the schools just don't have the money, said Nancy Bolzle, executive director of The Pencil Box in Tulsa, a nonprofit that operates a free store of donated school supplies for teachers in high-poverty schools.

Bolzle recalled a teacher who came into the store looking for dry-erase boards. The teacher said her school mandated a new curriculum that requires each student to have their own dry-erase board, but there was no funding for them.

She also remembered a geography teacher who came in and discovered that The Pencil Box carried air-dry clay, which students can use to create relief

The items most in demand, though, are pencils, paper and notebooks.

Cox, who is also superintendent of Peggs Public School in eastern Oklahoma, said the district has always bought school supplies for each student out of the school's general fund. It's a service to parents, he said, as well as a way to minimize needs that teachers may try to fulfill on their own.

'Why should they sacrifice like that, when they're providing the foundation for everything a child needs for adult life?" Cox said.

seventh-grade student at Washington Middle School, is one of 14 students from across the state who recently returned from Oklahoma Science Adventure, a summer field science ExplorOlogy® experience hosted by the Sam Noble Oklahoma Museum of Natural History.

ExplorOlogy® makes science exciting and relevant to Oklahoma youth by engaging them in authentic science experiences.

Students in this year's Oklahoma Science Adventure spent their week outdoors, working with scientists on field research as they explored different field sciences, including paleontology, ecology and entomology. Additionally, participants developed leadership and teamwork

The program concluded with an overnight stay at the museum, where students went behind the scenes to explore the museum's collections and further study the fossils and specimens they encountered in the field.

"ExplorOlogy® gives students the opportunity to see that science is so much more than just a textbook, homework or something on TV," said Josie Wag-Caden Crosthwait, a oner Garrard, outreach programs coordinator at Sam Noble Museum.

"It lets them see that science is something real - something that people actually do - and it's something that they can do, too. Under the expert guidance of real scientists, students become the paleontologists and field researchers they've always dreamed of being by actually going out to the field and doing it," she said.

Among the benefits participants receive from Oklahoma Science Adventure is the opportunity for ExplorOlogy® In Motion to visit their schools at no cost.

ExplorOlogy®In Motion brings the field science that participants experienced over the summer back to their schools with unique educational outreach programs.

ExplorOlogy® is sponsored in part by Oklahoma's oil and natural gas producers and royalty owners, through the Oklahoma Energy Resources Board.

The OERB provides energy-related, hands-on curricula for K-12th grade students. Applications for 2017 ExplorOlogy® programs will be available this fall.

Nitrate and prussic acid poisoning

Wes Lee

Extension Ag Educator

There is always some confusion concerning nitrate and prussic acid toxicity. Nitrate and prussic acid poisonings are both potentially lethal to cattle.

However, there are some major differences in nitrate and prussic acid. Nitrates will remain in the forage for months; therefore, the potential problems in summer forages may not be apparent until the winter-feeding begins. Prussic acid poisoning most often occurs when cattle ingest standing forage in pastures and fields.

Many of the same factors that tend to cause nitrate accumulations, such as drought, reduced sunlight, excessive soil nitrogen, or young plants will increase prussic acid potential.

A characteristic symptom of nitrate toxicity is a chocolate brown color to the blood. Prussic acid poisoning is characterized by a bright cherry red color to the blood.

Most nitrates accumulate in plant stems rather than leaves; however, prussic acid accumulation is greater in the leaves.

Many producers try to associate the white powder on the sorghum and sorghum sudan with nitrate or prussic acid; however, this natural, waxy protective material is not prussic acid or nitrate accumulation and should not be used as an indication of either.

There is a quick test we can do for free at the McClain County Extension Office to determine the presence of nitrates. Or for a small fee, a hay sample can be sent to a lab to determine the exact level of nitrate.

On the other hand, there are no good testing procedures for prussic acid. Once the plant is cut from the stem, the prussic acid starts turning into cyanide gas and is released from the plant.

By the time the sample is delivered to a lab the prussic acid reading would not be accurate.

Therefore, the only practical way to test for prussic acid is by the animal itself. Before releasing a herd of cattle onto a field that contains Johnson grass, sudan, or sorghum let one or two lower value hungry animals into the field.

If the forage contains high levels of prussic acid you will know it within an hour. It's best to lose one or two head than to lose a whole herd. If veterinarian treatment is given within 10 to 20 minutes after an animal goes down they can usually be saved.

A fact sheet is available at the Extension Office for more information on Nitrate and Prussic Acid.

If you are cutting sudan type hay under stressed conditions from a fertilized field, it could be well worth the trip to our office for a quick nitrate test. Several animals are lost needlessly each year in Oklahoma due to nitrate and/or prussic acid poisoning.

Rick McCurdy

wnether Purcell Municipal Hospital, or even the City of Purcell of my youth survives, will depend on the outcome of the voting for an increase in sales tax next week.

To think of Purcell without a hospital or emergency room or outpatient clinics is incomprehensible to me.

This is especially difficult for me knowing my grandfather, W.C. McCurdy and his brother T.C. McCurdy were responsible for the care of patients before statehood. My uncle Bill McCurdy continued his practice for over 40 years. Together, my cousin, Billy, and I have assisted in the care of countless patients for the past 40 years through the Specialty Clinic started by my brother, Tom when he was on the hospital board.

Outstanding physicians through the years include Don Walker & Ed Lee, along with many others.

Dr. Bryan Dye and Dr. Rick Schmidt have continued that legacy and currently are providing care with compassion and commitment.

In addition, PMH has had outstanding nursing care with a dedicated supportive staff and excellent hospital administrative support.

The exemplary care provided has set a high standard that other larger hospitals should emulate.

It would be a travesty for the City of Purcell to lose your hospital. Purcell is The Heart of Oklahoma with wonderful families, strong educational values, outstanding professionals, community leaders, compassionate churches, resilient character and neighborly attitudes.

I urge all voters to imagine Purcell without a hospital or accessible medical care and vote YES.

Joe & Angie Wallace

Being members of this community our entire lives, we felt compelled to write this letter in support of the upcoming vote on the hospital tax.

Despite the fact that 139 people will be unemployed if the hospital is closed - some who do not live in Purcell but spend some of their paychecks here for gasoline, groceries, medicine, etc., 19.6 miles from a Norman facility could possibly mean someone's life - it is so important to have a hospital and emergency room here in town!!

Unforeseen events happen every day-vehicle accidents, broken bones, heart attacks, strokes, plus childhood illnesses and injuries - all emergency situations to the patients and their families!

Also important are the Nursing Home residents in need of immediate medical care. Stop and think how you would react if you or your family member needed immediate medical care, but the nearest help was almost 20 miles away!

We support the hospital tax and urge everyone to vote "YES" on this important issue August 23 and help save our hospital!!

Connie Sikes

Connie's mother, Joy Sikes passed away July 18.

She had a recurring infection and was at the Purcell Municipal Hospital Emergency Room. As Connie made his way to the hospital, he received a telephone call from her doctor Dr. Bryan Dye.

"He called and said you need to hurry," Sikes recalled. "She's not going to make it this time," Dye told him.

When Connie arrived at PMH, Dr. Dye was at his mother's side. He had other patients who were waiting but he stuck by the side of Mrs. Sikes.

"He told me he didn't want my mother to be alone when she died," Sikes said.

"Youaren'tnotgoinggetthatkind of treatment at a larger hospital like Oklahoma City or Norman. This is small town medical care at it's finest," Sikes said.

Fredda Davis

Although I was not born and raised in Purcell, this is definitely home.

I have lived in Purcell for 45 years. Over that time period, I have used the Purcell Municipal Hospital many times for various illnesses. The care I received was excellent, from the care received by the doctors, the lab technicians and the nurses on all levels.

There have been times I simply needed nursing care, which I received with great compassion.

However, I also had a time I needed surgery immediately and the hospital doctors were very professional at the time of the surgery. I was up and out in three days.

There have been other times I was stabilized by the emergency room doctors and sent to Oklahoma City to one of the hospitals where my cardiologist was waiting on me. Had the hospital emergency room doctors not been in Purcell, I would probably not have made it 20 miles to Norman to be stabilized.

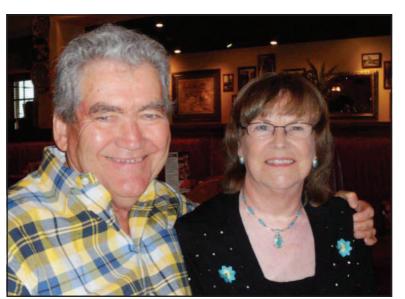

Over the years I have been in several of the larger hospitals in Oklahoma City and Norman. The care I received here at PMH has been of the same quality or better than the care of the larger facilities.

My cardiologist is one of the doctors who practices in our Specialty Clinic. If the hospital should close, not only would we lost our hospital, but we would also lose the Specialty Clinic.

Our older citizens would then be forced to go to Oklahoma City for appointments with specialists who now come to Purcell.

If you live in the Purcell City limits, I urge you to come out and vote YES August 23. Help us keep our hospital open.

Both of us fully believe that he would not be alive today if it had not been for our local Purcell Municipal attack and arrangements were Hospital and are very thankful being made to have him that we did not have to make transported by ambulance to a middle of the night trip to

High school SCRIMINAGES

Area teams in action Thursday and Friday nights

Iohn D. Montgomery The Purcell Register

This week will be the first contact for area football teams with someone other than their own teammates when scrimmages unfold Thursday and Friday nights.

Purcell is at Newcastle with the scrimmage beginning at 6:15 p.m. today (Thursday).

Coach John Higbee reports the Dragons are looking to play strong.

"I want us to be physical, be aggressive and be tough," Higbee said going into the first and only scrimmage of the season.

Wayne is at Lexington Friday along with Velma-Alma, Elmore City and Oklahoma Christian Academy with the scrimmage starting at 6 p.m.

Washington will travel to Holdenville Friday for their pre-season scrimmage.

Players in grades six and seven will scrimmage beginning at 5 p.m. Grades eight and nine will scrimmage at 6 p.m. with the varsity going at 7 p.m.

"I want to see on the offensive side how much depth we have," head coach Brad Beller said. "I want to see who can throw and catch and block. Just the fundamentals. On defense I want to see how physical of a team we can be. I want to see if we can be as physical as we were last year."

This season there will only be one preseason scrimmage since all four area teams have Week 0 games scheduled for August 26.

Football preview coming

The Purcell Register's 2016 football preview magazine is set to publish August 25.

The annual publication will again feature rosters, season previews, schedules, features and photos for the 2016 football season for Purcell, Lexington, Washington and Wayne.

Look for it in your Aug. 25 issue of The Purcell Register or stop by the office for a copy.

Purcell softball sputters

But coach Sarah Jones thinks future is bright

John D. Montgomery The Purcell Register

Despite being without starting pitcher Katelynn Carwile for the first part of the season, Purcell has won twice including a 12-0 shutout victory on the road at John Marshall Monday.

That was Purcell's first district game. They were scheduled to travel to Harrah Tuesday for another district clash and will welcome back Carwile to the lineup.

Harrah is also a district game. In fact, the Dragons have a string of district match ups in the coming days including Newcastle at home today (Thursday), at Byng Monday, at McLoud Tuesday and at Blanchard on August 25.

Purcell also has posted an 8-1 win over Marlow.

"Everyone saw the plate against Marlow," head coach Sarah Jones said. "We had 18 hits to their nine."

In the absence of Carwile and sophomore Alyssa Richards, freshman Sunny Sanders and senior Jaden Webb have stepped up and into the circle.

The Dragons, off to a 2-6 start, have dropped games to Pauls Valley (3-1), Ardmore (8-3), Chandler (11-6), Tecumseh (11-2), Tuttle (4-1) and again to Pauls Valley (5-4).

"In the Chisholm Trail Tournament we were focusing on getting everyone as many at bats and playing time as we could," Jones said. "We are still trying to figure out lineups and positions.

"Jaden Webb, who is playing fast-pitch for the first time, has done an amazing job where ever we put her. She threw strikes against Chandler and Tecumseh."

Jones said freshman Chelsea Spain is playing a great role as the leadoff hitter.

"She has been a really good leadoff hitter. Haylee Swayze is playing well along with Webb and Daytin Christian,"

Lauren Beason walked to start the big inning. A passed ball, a two-run error, another passed ball, another two-run error, another passed ball, another two-run error, a two-run double by Anna Sample and a two run triple by Emilee Jenks did the trick.

The last week was a very busy office@fbcwashington.com, one for the men and women 288-6060, Facebook: FBC who volunteer their time. There were 222 veterans and surviving spouses helped with Dale K. Our drivers, Clayton and this date on your calendar and Louie, transported 11 veterans for a total of 1,022 last week. The two worked 67 hours doing so. Our hats are off to Clayton and Louie for the volunteer service they provide.

The needs of our communities continue to grow as many Our volunteer of the week is of our veterans are in need of extra care. Last Saturday, I was able to assist a veteran in his home who was 98 years of age file his first claim for VA benefits. I'm very proud of our volunteers who take the extra time and effort to visit the men and women who are unable to make the trip to our church location for assistance. As we move forward in our mission, we will plan to become more involved in this program.

As a VA Accredited Claims Agent for our organization, I receive the rating decisions from the VA on each person we represent. This enables us to review each decision to make sure the veteran receives all of the VA benefits for which they are eligible. When the VA issues a rating decision, we send a letter detailing what other benefits may be available with instructions to return for a follow-up visit if needed. One of the things I have learned over the years is not to give up because a claim is denied. It's been my belief that almost any claim can be approved if the veteran provides the evidence the VA requests.

A good example of this are claims for hearing loss and tinnitus which are often denied the first time they are filed. The veterans who return after a denial can usually provide evidence that supports their monks of the 4th century. The as I am able, I keep the rule, and my little fast, my prayer, meditation, and silence. I try to cleanse my heart of bad thoughts. Now what more should I do?" The Abbot stood up. He stretched out his hands to heaven, and his fingers became like tongues of fire. He said: "Become like fire."

St. Gregory of Nyssa said that "Sin is the failure to grow." When a young person asks me: "What more can I do? I make good grades in school. I have good friends. I go to church. What more can I do to become a mature adult?" I tell them: "Become a leader. Volunteer to lead a group in your church or your school. Or lead an event. By doing this, you will have to listen to many voices. And you will then have to make decisions. You will be criticized. Some of the criticisms will be important and you should listen to them. Other criticisms will be made out of jealousy or hatred. These you can ignore. You will learn how to distinguish between the two. But you will grow in strength of character. You will learn your own strengths and weaknesses. Most importantly, you will learn the good things you are capable of doing."

Sin is the failure to grow. It is no accident that the Holy Spirit

This is a story from the comes to us in tongues of fire. Confirmation is the celebration young monk went to see the of faith that is growing in ma-Father Abbot. He said: "Father, turity, faith that is developing character. Fire burns, but it also cleanses. It burns away the fear and timidity that prevents us from living out our faith. It burns away sin that leads us away from God. Jesus is giving us a fair warning: When we live for the Kingdom of God, there will be criticisms from outside and criticisms from within (Luke 12:49-53).

People outside of us may criticize us for the choices we make. We choose to keep holy the Sabbath day. We choose to be active in our parish and contribute to the Body of Christ. We make these choices over other choices that other people make. And there may be divisions within as well. Look at what Jesus did – he gathered together saints and sinners, Jews and Gentiles, poor and rich, slaves and freemen – all within the Kingdom of God. We do the same thing in our church, in our own Kingdom of God There will likely be differences of opinion, differences in practice. But our eyes are set on the prize.

Consider what we read in the book of Hebrews: "Let us rid ourselves of every burden and sin that clings to us, (by the fire of the Holy Spirit), and persevere in running the race that lies before us while keeping our eyes fixed on Jesus. . at 527-3077.

. . For the sake of the joy that lay before him, he endured the cross.... Consider how he endured such opposition from sinners, in order that you may not grow weary and lose heart." (Heb. 12:1-4)

Brothers and sisters, let us not grow weary of doing what is good. Let us call upon the fire of the Holy Spirit to cleanse us, to purify us, and to lead us to the Father.

We are taking names for candidates for RCIA. RCIA -Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults—is the process whereby adults are welcomed into the Church. They may be baptized Christians, or non-Christians from any background. A ninemonth period of inquiry and instruction begins in September and culminates in the reception of the sacraments of Baptism (if needed), First Communion, and Confirmation at a beautiful Easter Vigil in the spring. If you are interested in becoming part of RCIA, or just want to learn more about the Catholic faith, please contact our office at 527-3077.

I think it is very appropriate that on this August 9 the Holy Spirit shows us great examples of great faith in the ninth chapter of Matthew.

First -- and we are blessed to be here today to witness this -- the great man of faith Matthew makes that great decision to follow Jesus. (Mama had made that same decision as a young girl, probably early in the 1940s.) Matthew does not expand long on this momentous Welcome, friends, to the event, saying simply: "And as "front porch." As we've been Jesus passed forth from thence, in the life of this great follower of Jesus. Congratulations to this great man for making such a life-changing decision!

Next we see the faith of the woman with a blood disease, a 12-year malady. Her faith is so determined that she believes down deep in her heart that if she can but touch the "hem of his garment" (v. 20) that the Lord has more than enough power to heal her. And the Lord does: "Daughter," he says compassionately, as He feels her reaching out and touching his cloak, "be of good comfort; thy faith has made thee whole."

Scenes of faith in this reading do not end with that remarkable woman. A bit earlier a Jewish ruler had come to him begging for the life of his daughter (v. 18). So Jesus begins to make his way to the man's house. He is on this journey when the woman with the blood disease fights her way through the crowd to touch the hem of His garment. But tragically, Jesus does not make it to the ruler's house in time. Mark records in his gospel that as they make their way toward the man's house, that some people run to tell the Lord that the 12-year-old girl has died (Mark 5:35).

Of course, Jesus' mission on this earth, ultimately, is to defeat death, which he does triumphantly at His resurrection; but he defeats death often along the way, as He does here. He goes to the man's house -deflecting the scorning of the crowd along the way -- and gently, lovingly takes the young girl and gives her back to her joyful parents (v. 25).

We are so blessed to see more joy on this August 9th, as more he saw a man, named Matthew, suffering men cross the paths sitting at the receipt of custom: of Jesus in the ninth chapter and he saith unto him, Follow of Matthew. Two blind men 9; and we wanted to share me. And he arose, and followed follow him as he leaves the ruler's house, saying, "Thou The account may be brief, but son of David, have mercy on August 9, as my brothers it is one of the greatest moments us" (v. 27). After asking them, "Believe ye that I am able to do this," He touches their eyes in another great act of grace, "and their eyes were opened" (vs. 28-30).

> I am glad, today that we came to these scenes in the gospel of Matthew on Mama's 85th birthday. We are glad, even though it may appear that the Lord did not give Mama the blessings He bestows in these scenes.

He does not heal her from that great thief cancer, as He had healed the woman with the horrible blood disease.

He does not restore her to life once she succumbed to her horrible disease on October 3, 2016. He does not take her by the hand and raise her up as He raises that sweet 12-year-old girl in Capernaum.

And He doesn't give her new eyesight as He had given the two blind men in today's reading. Mama's brain tumor robbed her of her sight the last few months of her life; and she would not be able to look at her children and her mama and daddy as she walked the last mile of the way.

But we all know that on the evening that Mama left us, the Lord gave her far greater blessings than all of those blessed individuals. He cured this great woman of faith of that hard, long disease she had battled; He gave her vision unlike anything she had ever known or imagined; and, I am fully convinced, He reached down from the clouds of heaven, took her gently by the hand,

The school year has begun. We were thrilled to have the children and youth back in church last Sunday. Whether in memory or actuality, it's always good to hear the school bells ring, the bands striking up the music, the yellow school buses passing down the streets and the crowds gathering to witness their favorite teams engaging in football and cheers.

There is always excitement with the beginning of a new school year. Children and youth are beautiful.

The youth and children at Johnson Road are planning activities for the next two weekends, movies and swimming.

The children, along with Gynean Gentry and Donna Brown, provided the special music for morning worship. The scripture text for last Sunday's sermon was taken from the gospels according to Mark, John and Luke. The congregation was Last Sunday, one of our reminded that givers are beautiful people. The poor widow gave all she possessed. The sinner lady gave a box of precious perfume. The young boy gave his lunch. The righteous man gave all the money from the sale of his land.

The gift of a necklace with an attached cross from one little girl to a dying girl in the next bed at the Children's Hospital in Boston brought sweet peace to a dying child and her father.

No one can ever deny the Biblical truth, "We're blessed in our giving.

An elderly lady was asked, "How have you been blessed by your children?'

Bernie said, "I'm proud of my daughter. She gave a kidney and extended the life of her husband and my son-in-law.'

There are so many ways we can give. There's a thought behind each gift; a sacrifice in each gift; and a purpose for each gift. What can you give?

The discussion Sunday evening centered on the story of the little man, Zacchaeus. The lesson every child, youth and adult needs to learn is Jesus sees us. Jesus knows us by name. Jesus wants to fellowship with us and Jesus needs us to tell about our encounter with him. It's the greatest day in our life when we meet Jesus face to face.

The Wednesday evening auditorium class resumed the study of Second John looking at the seventh verse which addresses the many deceivers which have gone out into the world.

The Sunday morning auditorium Bible class studied a number of chapters in Jeremiah, Daniel and Second Kings which recorded some of the earliest events after the fall of Jerusalem and Israelites being taken into captivity by the Babylonian Empire.

During the morning assembly Keith Shackleford presented a lesson on supernatural powers, contrasting the powers of satan with the omnipotence, omniscience and omnipresence of God, beginning with the reading of Matthew 28:18.

The Sunday evening message was on the the prophecy of Jeremiah in the first ten verses of chapter fourteen of the book which bears his name, concerning the drought which was to come on the children of Israel because they had turned away

Washington Senior Citizens By B.K. Barker

A couple went to the art gallery in Oklahoma City and came across a huge painting of a man and a woman naked with their private parts covered by green fig leaves. The wife walked on looking at the next few paintings while the man just stood there staring at the painting. Disgusted and frustrated, the wife asked, "What are you waiting for?" at which the husband replied, Speaking of Autumn, schools have begun, football practices, band practices, cross country meets and softball games are all in full swing! Autumn is just around the corner and if you're like me, you're ready. Good luck Washington Warriors! Win every game in every sport and keep these senior citizens proud and full of bragging rights!

The Washington Senior Citizens Center is looking to hire a cook. If you have experience cooking, or you love to cook and can cook for up to 20 or more people, apply now. The job is for someone to cook the noon meal for the senior citizens at the center. They have all new and modern appliances and everything needed to make the job easy and convenient. The job consists of preparing the meal, serving the meal and cleaning the dishes following the meal every week day Monday through Friday. If you need a job or know of someone who does and you or they can cook, apply now!

Of course, with any application for a job, a drug test and background check will be performed. In today's society, many folks are getting laid off because of the price of oil and also from budget cuts, so this would be a wonderful and fun job opportunity for anyone who loves to cook, loves to laugh, and loves senior adults!

Contact the Washington Senior Center at 405-288-6404 and ask for Lewie Jeffries or Rowena Scott-Johnson. This job position must be filled before October 1.

As for the schedule of happenings, games of all kinds are daily. Movie Day is every Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Come watch a movie, eat popcorn, and drink a coke! Every day quilting is available, but the main focus day for quilting is every Thursday afternoon beginning at 1. If you don't quilt or sew but would just love the fellowship and fun of catching up around the quilting rack, come on! The ladies are hilarious when they get the hen party started and time passes so quickly, you don't want it to end!

Also, every Friday morning, "JUST JAMMIN" still comes and "jams" to good, old, classic country music and some good Christian Gospel. Most Fridays you will see a variety of guitars, fiddles and maybe an old time electric guitar. They're really very entertaining and they even eat lunch and then start up again on a full belly! Every Friday, 10 a.m., "JUST JAMMIN!"

If you want a lunch delivered or you have loved ones who need meals delivered, call the center at the above number and ask for Evelyn. When the cold north wind of winter comes, getting out and going to the store may be a cold chore; so just have the center send you a hot, delicious meal, but why wait until winter? Start now! Or just come on down to the center and join Richard, Lewie, Harold, Naomi, Morene, Ora Lee, Curtis, Carolyn, Rowena and many more. The food is good, company is better. Come on down. See ya there!

The Department of Veterans Affairs has a Veterans Choice Program. It is a new, temporary benefit that allows eligible Veterans to receive health care in their communities rather than waiting for a VA appointment or traveling to a VA facility. One requirement is you must be enrolled in VA health care on or before Aug. 1,2014, or be eligible to enroll as a recently discharged combat veteran.

There are other ways to meet different criteria to be eligible for this program and could be of use to veterans who need specialized treatment for a medical condition. The Choice program can be reached at (866) 606-8198 or log on to http:// www.va.gov for information.

One of the most important things we do each Tuesday and Thursday morning is assist the Surviving Spouses of Veterans apply for VA benefits. Many of these spouses are having severe financial difficulties after the loss of their veteran. Each week Shirley and our ladies assist them with questions about possible help. Some of these need assistance with DIC, Pension or Aid and Attendance.

For those of you who would like to be a part of what we do please stop by and apply to be a volunteer. Application forms are also available on our website www.dalekgrahamveternscorner.org.

On each and every visit, veterans should bring all of their DD-214's (discharge papers), all VA rating letters, and all VA forms that have been filed. For privacy reasons, Dale K Grahams Veteran's Corner does not keep your information on file and does not have access to any of this information. A couple of things are sometimes needed to file for VA benefits are D214 discharge papers, bank account information (voided check), marriage information, social security information, and all VA rating decisions.

Purcell Senior Citizens

A few days of cool weather certainly helped the looks of all things growing and made for some cool mornings and late evenings. The Seniors can manage a lot better with some cool. It looks like fall might be on the way and football is just about to get started so gear up and get ready for the season.

The next garage sale will be this Friday, August 26, at the "Shed" beginning at 8 am and running until 3 o'clockish. Everyday brings new donations to the center. Come out and check the new donations. Hester welcomes many mornings with new donations which have been left on the doorstep. You can find more information on the Senior Facebook page.

The Senior Center is closed on Friday until October 1. However, the "Shed" will be open when scheduled for garage sales.

There have been several new seniors who have visited the center as of late. We welcome everyone to come visit the center and get acquainted with new people and join the activities.

Don't forget to go vote on Tuesday, August 23. Every vote is needed in order for the City of Purcell to be able to keep our hospital operation as well as the After Hours Clinic and Specialty Clinic. This vote is especially important for the seniors.

If you are looking for a place to have a birthday party, family reunion or any other type of gathering, the Senior Center is available to be rented. The Center rents for $70 per day. If you are interested, give us a call at 527-5070 and let us fill you in on the particulars. If there is no answer, call 405-990-1840. Dates fill up quickly during the summer. If you are planning to use the Center, you need to schedule your date before someone else gets it. There are a few Saturdays left in August and we are scheduling for September.

Bingo starts promptly at 10 on Thursday morning. Everyone is welcome and everyone wins before the games are over. Come and join us in some good fun and fellowship, then stay and enjoy lunch with the seniors. Anyone 60 or over can eat with the seniors for a $2 donation.

Reminder for those seniors who like to dance and fellowship with like minds, there is a dance at the center every Friday night beginning at 6:30 pm and ending around 9:30. The price is $6 per person. There is a live band which can be enjoyed by those who like music but do not dance.

The seniors invite all individuals who are 60 or above to come visit the center where there is always something good cooking and some planned activities for all. If you are looking for something new to do, give the center a try.

No. 562-August 18-1 Time Notice of Fourth Five-Year Review for the Hardage/Criner Superfund Site, Criner, Oklahoma

The Oklahoma Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will begin a Five-Year Review of the Hardage-Criner Superfund Site this month. The purpose of the Five-Year Review is to determine whether the site remedy remains protective of human health and the environment; with the methods, findings, and conclusions of the review documented in a report. The final report will be available to the public January 2017. This will be the fourth Five-Year Review for this site. Five-Year Reviews are required when waste is left in place; in this case, waste was consolidated and capped onsite. The Hardage-Criner Superfund

Site is located 34 mile west of Criner, in McClain County, Oklahoma on State Highway 122 (aka 180th Street). The site operated as an industrial hazardous waste disposal facility from 1972-1980. In 1979, EPA investigations and inspections indicated poor waste management practices by the owner/operator posed threats to human health and the environment. In 1980, the site was closed. The site was proposed for the National Priorities List (NPL) in October 1981 and placed on the NPL in September 1983. Litigation from 1980-1989, resulted in 35 potentially responsible parties (PRPs) being ordered to implement the remedy to address the contamination. Prior to the remedy implementation, the PRPs installed an alternate water supply in 1988 to provide water to property owners adjacent to the site to replace their ground water wells. The Hardage-Criner Superfund

Site is under the jurisdiction of the United States District Court
