Society Horse Show continues through Saturday

By Faith Bemiss
fbemiss@sedaliademocrat.com

Equine beauty, grace, and poise are showcased this week as the Missouri State Fair Society Horse Show UPHA Chapter 5 takes a canter around the Mathewson Exhibition Center on the Missouri State Fairgrounds.

The annual event takes place each year the week before the Missouri State Fair. The show opened on Wednesday and will conclude Saturday night. Show Manager and Announcer Ashlyn Fisher noted the public is always welcome to come and watch the horses compete. She added that the show is a “fun” competition and features competitors aged 6 to 80.

“It’s really going well,” she said on Thursday. “We have a lot of entries, and this is a fun show. So, we always try to make sure that we have a lot of fun.”

“And tonight, we’re having a street party,” she continued. “We’re having games and a water-dunk tank. We just try and make this a really enjoyable show for everyone. It’s not during the fair, but we still want to give it that fair feeling.”

She added the Society Show is the primary competition before the competitors go to the Kentucky State Fair. “That’s the world championships for the Saddlebreds,” she explained.

This year the show sold over 200 stalls in the MSF horse barns. The competition covers both Fine Harness, Free Gated and Five Gated American Saddlebred classes.

“We also have classes for Morgans, Hackneys, and Arabians,” she added. “This is a very historic show.”

The show brings in competitors not only from Missouri but several other states as well.

“This is one of the larger shows in Missouri,” Fisher said. “There’s classes for everyone. We have lots of classes for adults and children, and it’s a very exciting event and there’s a lot of history involved.”

She added the Missouri Saddlebred horse helped to shape part of Missouri’s history.

“If you’ve never attended a Society Horse Show, this would be a great one to watch,” Fisher said. “They win trophies, and it’s the whole nine yards for the Society Horse Show. There’s a passion you just can’t shake from our exhibitors.”

The Missouri State Fair Society Horse Show will continue through Saturday evening in the Mathewson Exhibition Center.

The changing world of beauty

The growth of lash and brow technicians

By Skye Melcher
skym@sedaliademocrat.com

The beauty world is forever changing, from thin to thick eyebrows, tattooed eyebrows to henna eyebrows and false eyelashes to lash extensions.

In this ever-changing world, the popularity of finding professions in this field has also grown tremendously outside the standard title of an esthetician to spread to lash and brow technicians.

Teresa Costilla, the owner of Bella by Tere, has always loved the beauty world and the trends that have changed since she was in middle school.

The Sedalia native explained what she does as a lash and brow technician.

Washington paraprofessional moves to the classroom

By Abram Tabor
news@sedaliademocrat.com

At Washington Elementary School in Sedalia, one paraprofessional is moving into the classroom.

Londyn Wright previously worked as a para with the Sedalia School District 200 while also working on her degree in early childhood education and elementary education at Central Methodist University. Now with her degree, Wright will begin teaching in the fourth grade this upcoming school year.

“Working as a para, now having my own classroom is going to be different,” Wright said. “As a para position, I have worked with more individual students on a need basis and much smaller groups.”

Wright said the larger classroom size will make connecting with students a bit different. However, she is still excited about the school year, especially about teaching math.

“I’m most excited to teach them my favorite, I’ll be teaching math,” Wright said. “Then, I’m also teaching writing, grammar and cursive, but then I’ll have two hours where I am teaching only math.”

Londyn Wright

Will abortion be on more state ballots after Kansas vote?

By John Hanna and Heather Hollingsworth

Associated Press

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Abortion opponents were shocked and abortion rights advocates energized by a decisive statewide vote in heavily Republican Kansas this week in favor of protecting abortion access, yet it's not likely to translate into new abortion votes across the U.S. in the November election.

Four other states — California, Kentucky, Michigan and Vermont — could have votes in November on abortion access, and a fifth, Montana, is voting on a measure that would require abortion providers to give lifesaving treatment to a fetus that is born alive after a botched abortion. Opponents argue federal law already offers those protections. No other abortion initiatives are likely to make a state's November ballot.

The Kansas vote was the first test of public feeling about abortion rights since the U.S. Supreme Court overturned Roe v. Wade in late June, and it upended political assumptions.

Voters rejected a proposed amendment to the Kansas Constitution declaring that it grants no right to abortion. That would have opened the door for the GOP-controlled Legislature to further restrict or ban abortion and nullify a 2019 decision by the Kansas Supreme Court that access is a "fundamental" right under the state's Bill of Rights.

HOW WAS THE OUTCOME OF THE KANSAS VOTE A SURPRISE?

Abortion rights supporters prevailed by nearly 18 percentage points in the Republican state with deep ties to the anti-abortion movement. They took the outcome as confirmation that preserving access to abortion is popular.

Officials with several national abortion rights groups argued that the vote shows it's a mistake for Democrats in red states like Kansas to avoid talking about abortion and that support for abortion rights can drive voters to the polls. In Kentucky, donations to the abortion rights cause poured in immediately, said Tamarra Wieder, state director for Planned Parenthood Alliance Advocates.

The election in Kansas coincided with the state's primary. Over the previous 10 years, turnout for a mid-term primary has averaged less than 26%, with Republicans casting twice as many ballots as Democrats.

But turnout for this election topped 45% — almost 915,000 voters — approaching levels normally seen during a fall election for governor. More than half of registered Democrats and Republicans cast ballots. At least 28% of registered unaffiliated voters, who couldn't vote on anything else on ballots on Tuesday, voted on the proposed amendment.

The outcome also suggested that a sizeable number of Republicans voted against the proposed amendment.

"Three things in Kansas are really important to note: One, the depth of the victory; two, the amount of increased voter turnout, and three, that it happened in an off-year midterm election," said Kristen Rowe-Finkbeiner, CEO of MomsRising, an advocacy group that supports abortion rights.

Abortion opponents argued that the vote was a temporary setback and vowed to keep electing anti-abortion candidates.

CAN EITHER SIDE RUSH TO PUT A QUESTION TO VOTERS IN MY STATE IN NOVEMBER?

Likely not. For one thing, deadlines to do it have passed in the half of U.S. states that allow voters to put questions on the ballot without going through the Legislature.

In Ohio, the Democratic nominee for governor,

Nan Whaley, has called for putting an abortion rights measure on the ballot as early as next year, and efforts have started in Colorado and South Dakota for 2024. In Iowa, GOP lawmakers have taken the first step toward putting an anti-abortion measure on the ballot in 2024.

In Kansas, anti-abortion lawmakers anticipated voters approving their measure.

BUT THERE ARE VOTES IN SOME STATES IN NOVEMBER?

Yes, but those efforts were all underway before the Kansas vote.

Legislators in California and Vermont put measures to protect abortion rights on the ballot, and Kentucky lawmakers have a measure on the ballot similar to the one that failed in Kansas.

In Michigan, abortion rights advocates believe they have turned in enough signatures to put an abortion rights amendment to the state constitution on the November ballot, but the signatures must still be counted.

The Montana referendum also was initiated by legislators.

IN STATES ALLOWING IT, WHAT DOES IT TAKE FOR VOTERS TO GET A QUESTION ON THE BALLOT?

They have to circulate petitions and collect tens of thousands of signatures from registered voters; the number is often a percentage of the vote in a previous election. Some states set requirements to get signatures from across the state, not just in one or two metropolitan areas.

In Nebraska, abortion opponents are focused on gaining one more seat in its one-house Legislature for the two-thirds majority necessary to overcome filibusters and pass an abortion ban. A voter initiative there must gather nearly 88,000 signatures from at least 5% of the registered voters in 38 of its 93 counties, something known as the "two-fifths rule."

In Missouri, initiatives can take a year to get to the ballot, and in Oklahoma, the average length has been more than a year — 64 weeks — over the past 10 years, according to the secretary of state's office.

"From start to finish, if you could get it done in nine months, you'd really be moving fast," said Amber England, a political strategist in Oklahoma who has worked to get questions on the ballot in recent years.

The Ballot Initiative Strategy Center, which advises progressive groups on campaigning for ballot questions, advises that the work should take three years, including building community relationships before even circulating signatures.

SO IT'S A MATTER OF GETTING ENOUGH VALID SIGNATURES IN THE RIGHT PLACES?

Not necessarily. There can be other hurdles, particularly if public officials who are players in the process oppose an initiative.

In Missouri in 2019, opponents of a law banning most abortions after eight weeks of pregnancy sought to get a proposed repeal on the ballot, but Secretary of State Jay Ashcroft, a Republican who opposes abortion, took enough time in vetting the language that supporters had only two weeks to gather signatures. While the initiative's backers sued — and won — the final ruling from the state Supreme Court didn't come until early this year.

"It was a significant victory," said Mallory Schwarz, executive director of Pro-Choice Missouri. "But we didn't get a do-over."

Hollingsworth reported from Mission, Kansas. Also contributing were Sean Murphy in Oklahoma City, Scott McPetridge in Des Moines, Iowa, and Julie Carr Smyth in Columbus, Ohio.

Missouri man charged with bringing gun to Jan. 6 riot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities have charged a central Missouri man accused of taking a weapon with him to the Jan. 6 riot at the U.S. Capitol. Jerod Thomas Bargar, 36, of Centralia, was arrested Wednesday in Osage Beach, Missouri, the U.S. Justice Department said. He was charged with entering a restricted building or grounds with a weapon and unlawful possession of a firearm on Capitol grounds or buildings, along with related misdemeanors. Bargar is the 23rd Missourian charged in connection to the Jan. 6 insurrection, The Kansas City Star reported. He is not accused of entering the Capitol building. Federal documents allege Bargar took a 9 mm semi-automatic pistol with him to a rally and then to the Capitol. Bargar did not have a license to carry a weapon in the District of Columbia. A police officer found the weapon on the ground a few minutes after protesters broke through police lines on the west side of the Capitol, according to court documents. Authorities traced the pistol to Bargar, who said he lost it after protesters were sprayed with tear gas and he tried to help a woman who had fallen. It was not immediately clear if Bargar has an attorney.

"Faith Is Fearless"

PASTOR’S PULPIT

By Pastor Steve Graff

Antioch Fellowship

There are some strange stories in the Bible, and some are detailed accounts sandwiched in the middle of stories of general history. Genesis 30:31-40 is one of those. In this story, Jacob has been working for Laban for years and he is preparing to leave Laban’s employ.

“What wages do you want?” Laban asked again. Jacob replied, “Don’t give me anything. Just do this one thing, and I’ll continue to tend and watch over your flocks. Let me inspect your flocks today and remove all the sheep and goats that are speckled or spotted, along with all the black sheep. Give these to me as my wages. In the future, when you check on the animals you have given me as my wages, you’ll see that I have been honest. If you find in my flock any goats without speckles or spots, or any sheep that are not black, you will know that I have stolen them from you.” “All right,” Laban replied. “It will be as you say.”

But that very day, Laban went out and removed the male goats that were streaked and spotted, all the female goats that were speckled and spotted or had white patches, and all the black sheep. He placed them in the care of his own sons, who took them a three-day journey from where Jacob was.

Meanwhile, Jacob

stayed and cared for the rest of Laban’s flock. Then Jacob took some fresh branches from poplar, almond, and plane trees and peeled off strips of bark, making white streaks on them. Then he placed these peeled branches in the watering troughs where the flocks came to drink, for that was where they mated. And when they mated in front of the white-streaked branches, they gave birth to young that were streaked, speckled, and spotted. Jacob separated those lambs from Laban’s flock. And at mating time, he turned the flock to face Laban’s animals that were streaked or black. This is how he built his own flock instead of increasing Laban’s.

There are a number of ways to interpret the what and the why of this story, but I want to focus on Jacob’s way of dealing with his scheming employer’s tactics, and what we should learn from his actions. The short version is that we reproduce what we focus on, so we should make sure we are looking in a direction that we have chosen intentionally. That is a good lesson, and in our culture’s current social climate, which encourages us to hate any and every-one we even slightly disagree with, it is a fine lesson to learn and assimilate into our lives. But if we look at the details of the story, there may be more to learn. Jacob must have been the first genetic engineer.

He altered genetic traits in the sheep to his advantage. He changed the environment for his future. The outcome was that he became wealthy and influential. He realized that if he just waited to see what life handed out that he would be cheated of a future for himself and his family. He realized that there was a force, represented by Laban, which planned to defeat him. He also realized that he had help.

His plan with the branches, partially stripped of bark, set in front of the sheep was not just his plan. This comes from the Bible, the book that is about God and man’s interaction. How could Jacob know that placing those sticks in front of the water trough would result in the establishment of his herd? He could not know, and it would not work anyway, without Divine intervention. Proverbs 16:9 tells us, “A man’s mind plans his way, but the Lord directs his steps and makes them sure.”

As we plan our lives, if we do not seek God’s direction and His favor, our plans are subject to failure. God loves us, and when we seek Him out, He responds with blessing. Psalms 127:1 says, “Unless the Lord builds the house, they labor in vain who build it.” Trust God with the plans of your life and see what happens.

“I do lash extensions, lash lifts, which is like a perm for your eyelashes, brow lamination, which is the same concept except for your brows, and brow henna, which is semi-permanent make-up that lasts two weeks,” Costilla said.

In Missouri, lash technicians don’t have to be licensed to do these things, but you can take certification classes, which Costilla did.

A technician differs from an esthetician because they don’t have a state license, so they can’t do certain services like massages, facials and waxing. Costilla has completed esthetician school and is planning to get boards soon.

Costilla started her own business like many other technicians are doing today.

She explained the reason why more and more technicians are starting their own businesses.

“Personally, for me, I’ve always been interested in the beauty field, but I was working retail jobs and retail jobs do not pay much,” Costilla said. “For this, it’s good income and if you like it, it doesn’t feel like work.”

She added that people can find a passion and work toward it. Being a lash technician is something Costilla likes to do and she is doing what she wants.

Costilla said lashes and other services have grown in the last few years because people want to look put together but don’t want to wake up every morning and do it themselves.

“They don’t want to apply mascara, they don’t want to do strip lashes that you apply with glue every morning,” Costilla said. “So if you can have it done for weeks at a time, I think that’s why people do it. For convenience.”

Costilla continued by saying it’s important to have a more convenient option for beauty services because it’s a confidence boost for some people.

“I feel like people feel better about themselves waking up every morning and being ready to go, looking in the mirror and saying I look good,” Costilla said. “It’s just how the beauty world is today, you just want to look good.”

The cost of lash and brow services can vary from each technician. Lash extension services can cost between $130 to $200, brows are about $60 and lash perms are about $65 to $130.

Costilla takes around three to four appointments a day, but some other technicians can take five to seven appointments a day.

“I think it’s important to take time to yourself and not overwork yourself; this is why I limit myself to that,” Costilla said.

Costilla added that she loves the beauty industry and that’s why she became a technician. She said some people look at the profession more as a hobby rather than a respected career.

Now that she has grown up a little bit since her love first began, she wants to help others feel good about themselves.

“I feel like it’s very discouraged in high school and that college is very pushed on you in high school and I wasted four years in college and I don’t have a degree,” Costilla said. “I feel like if I would have done this from the get-go, I would have been happy. It’s looked down upon, it’s not considered a real job, it’s not looked at as a profession.”

So all of those things add up to make haircuts really difficult”

According to its website, The Pediatric Place “is a multidisciplinary pediatric company that provides occupational, physical, speech/language, and counseling services.” It also has a location in Clinton.

Due to the fact that The Pediatric Place works with clients who have these specific needs, the business is a perfect fit to fill the need and host an event such as Haircuts for All. While there are other ways to try and help certain children with the haircutting process, the Haircuts for All event is a much more cost-effective and comfortable way for kids to have their hair cut.

“I had several clients who were actually taking their kids to a salon as much as like every week and paying, just to have the experience of practicing a haircut,” said Van Alstine. “I felt like it was something that we could offer here. I really felt like it was an easy way just to model some inclusivity for the community. Here we are very big on trying to make a world that can change to help fit the needs of other people.”

Although The Pediatric Place does not have its own stylists on site, the business does partner with Coed Creations for the Haircuts for All event. These stylists have patience and experience with taking however long the individuals need for their hair to be cut. This time around, The Pediatric Place will also be providing nail care to the list of services available for attendees.

Haircuts for All is typically hosted every other month at The Pediatric Place in Knob Noster.

To learn more about this event or The Pediatric Place, visit thepediatricplacellc.com or call 660-687-0187.

Additionally, Wright will cover science and social studies with the fourth graders. Even with all the different subjects she will be teaching, Wright is clear that what matters most will stay the same.

“The most important thing about teaching the kids for me, one thing I will not forget, is that I may only have them for a short time, but I will touch their lives forever,” Wright said.

Wright said every day is special and unique when working with the students, something that reminds her of its importance.

“Each and every day working with children is different,” Wright said. “So, that’s one thing that is so great about working with kids, because every day is different, nothing is ever the same.”

Wright said she has considered going back to school in the future to pursue further education in mathematics. Still, for now, she plans to just focus on teaching the fourth grade.

US declares public health emergency over monkeypox outbreak

By Zeke Miller, Mike Stobbe and Michael Balsamo

Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government declared a public health emergency Thursday to bolster the response to the monkeypox outbreak that has infected more than 6,600 Americans.

The announcement will free up money and other resources to fight the virus, which may cause fever, body aches, chills, fatigue and pimple-like bumps on many parts of the body.

"We are prepared to take our response to the next level in addressing this virus, and we urge every American to take monkeypox seriously," said Xavier Becerra, head of the Department of Health and Human Services.

The declaration by HHS comes as the Biden administration has faced criticism over monkeypox vaccine availability. Clinics in major cities such as New York and San Francisco say they haven't received enough of the two-shot vaccine to meet demand, and some have had to stop offering the second dose to ensure supply of first doses.

The White House said it has made more than 1.1 million doses available and has helped to boost domestic diagnostic capacity to 80,000 tests per week.

The monkeypox virus spreads through prolonged skin-to-skin contact, including hugging, cuddling and kissing, as well as sharing bedding, towels and clothing.

No one in the United States has died. A few deaths have been reported in other countries.

Earlier this week, the Biden administration named top officials from the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to serve as the White House coordinators to combat monkeypox.

Thursday's declaration is an important — and overdue — step, said Lawrence Gostin, a public health law expert at Georgetown University.

"It signals the U.S. government's seriousness and purpose, and sounds a global alarm," he said.

Under the declaration, HHS can draw from emergency funds, hire or reassign staff to deal with the outbreak and take other steps to control the virus.

For example, the announcement should help the federal government to seek more information from state and local health officials about who is becoming infected and who is being vaccinated. That information can be used to better understand how the outbreak is unfolding and how well the vaccine works.

Gostin said the U.S. government has been too cautious and should have declared a nationwide emergency earlier. Public health measures to control outbreaks have increasingly faced legal challenges in recent years, but Gostin didn't expect that to happen with monkeypox.

"It is a textbook case of a public health emergency," Gostin said. "It's not a red or a blue state issue. There is no political opposition to fighting monkeypox."

A public health emergency can be extended, similar to what happened during the COVID-19 pandemic, he noted.

The urgency in the current response stems from the rapid spread of the virus coupled with the limited availability of the two-dose vaccine called Jynneos, which is considered the main medical weapon against the disease.

The doses, given 28 days apart, are currently being given to people soon after they think they were exposed, as a measure to prevent symptoms.

Becerra announced the emergency declaration during a call with reporters. During the call, Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Robert Califf said regulators are reviewing an approach that would stretch supplies by allowing health professionals to vaccinate up to five people — instead of one — with each vial of Jynneos.

Under this so-called "dose-sparing" approach, physicians and others would use a shallower injection under the skin, instead of the subcutaneous injection currently recommended in the vaccine's labeling.

Califf said a decision authorizing that approach could come "within days."

That would require another declaration, to allow the government to alter its guidelines on how to administer the vaccine, officials said.

Health officials pointed to a study published in 2015 that found that Jynneos vaccine administered that way was as effective at stimulating the immune system as when the needle plunger deeper into other tissue.

But experts also have acknowledged they are still gathering information on how well the conventional administration of one or two full doses works against the outbreak.

Others health organizations have made declarations similar to the one issued by HHS.

Last week, the World Health Organization called monkeypox a public health emergency, with cases in more than 70 countries. A global emergency is WHO's highest level of alert, but the designation does not necessarily mean a disease is particularly transmissible or lethal.

California, Illinois and New York have all made declarations in the last week, as have New York City, San Francisco and San Diego County.

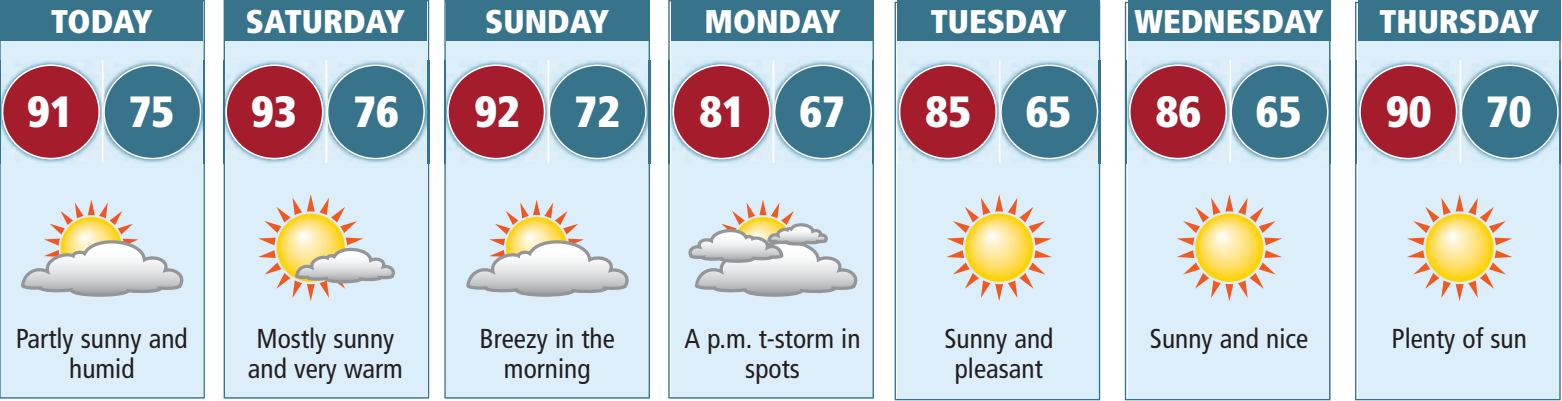

The declaration of a national public health emergency and the naming of a monkeypox czar are "symbolic actions," said Gregg Gonslaves, a Yale University infectious diseases expert.

Stobbe reported from New York City. Associated Press Health Writer Matthew Perrone contributed to this report.

UCM's Lamberson credits career to Tjeerdsma

By Joe Andrews
joea@warrensburgstarjournal.com

Taking questions from reporters at MIAA Football Media Day, Mules football head coach Josh Lamberson was pressed on the differences between him and previous head coach Jim Svoboda.

Quick to respond, Lamberson built his answer surrounding a mentor to him and many others: Mel Tjeerdsma.

"We are similar because I think we all learned from the same guy," Lamberson said. "I would be remiss not to point this out, but he is in the room today. A guy I owe much to in my coaching career and so many of us that have been up on the podium today owe in their coaching career."

An inductee to the College Football Hall of Fame, Tjeerdsma served as Lamberson's head coach as quarterback at Northwest Missouri State University. Lamberson ended up developing into an All-American starter, helping the Bearcats to an appearance in the 2005 NCAA Division II national championship game.

His '05 season included 324 completions and 33 touchdown passes. The play-off run featured 1,365 passing yards, ending with a record 33 pass completions against No. 1 Grand Valley State in the championship game.

"He is the mentor for me in my life," Lamberson told the Star-Journal. "Coach T, he took the chance on a kid from Wilber, Nebraska, and brought him into a two-time defending national champion football team and let me play quarterback there, gave me an opportunity there and hired me as a graduate assistant."

Lamberson stuck around in Maryville as a graduate assistant between 2006-08. The tenure opened up an opportunity at Southeastern Oklahoma, serving as quarterbacks coach and recruiting coordinator from 2008-10.

2-time Pro Bowl DE Carlos Dunlap makes debut with Chiefs

By Dave Skretta
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Carlos Dunlap went through his first training camp practice with the Chiefs on Thursday, then the two-time Pro Bowl defensive end made it perfectly clear both why he signed with Kansas City and his goals for this season.

The why: The Chiefs are giving the 33-year-old veteran an opportunity to play every down, rather than as a third-down pass-rushing specialist, which is the role Dunlap had been increasingly relegated to the past couple of years.

The goals: Dunlap is aiming for at least eight sacks, which would push him well over 100 for his career, along with making a run to the Super Bowl after having lost his first six playoff games with Cincinnati and Seattle.

"Great opportunity with a great organization," said Dunlap, who signed an incentive-laden contract last week that could be worth up to $8 million this season. "What they've done the last few years, playing against them on the other side of the ball — I wanted to add my specialty to it. We felt like we had mutual interest."

WNBA's Griner convicted at drug trial, sentenced to 9 years

By Jim Heintz
Associated Press

KHIMKI, Russia (AP) — U.S. basketball star Brittney Griner was convicted Thursday in Russia of drug possession and smuggling and was sentenced to nine years behind bars in a politically charged case that could lead to a high-stakes prisoner exchange between Washington and Moscow.

The 31-year-old Griner, a two-time U.S.

Olympic champion and a eight-time all-star with the WNBA's Phoenix Mercury, listened with a blank expression as an interpreter translated the verdict by Judge Anna Sotnikova, but her lawyers said later she was "very upset." Griner also was fined 1 million rubles (about $16,700).

U.S. President Joe Biden denounced as "unacceptable" the verdict and sentence, which came amid soaring tensions between the U.S. and Russia over Ukraine.

Ford, Keselowski, looking for success in Detroit backyard

By Jenna Fryer
AP Auto Racing Writer

It all seemed so promising at the start of the NASCAR season for Ford and its teams, particularly Jack Roush's rebranded organization with new driver/owner Brad Keselowski.

Joey Logano of Team Penske won the exhibition Busch Clash at Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum in January ahead of NASCAR's shift to Daytona International Speedway and the start of the season.

It was there that Keselowski, who left Penske for an ownership stake with Roush, took the longtime NASCAR team owner back to victory lane for the first time since 2017. Keselowski drove the rebranded Ford for RFK Racing to a victory in a Daytona 500 qualifying race. About 90 minutes later, Chris Buescher took Roush back to victory lane with an RFK sweep of the two qualifying races.

Three days later, Penske rookie Austin Cindric won the Daytona 500 to give Ford wins in the first four Cup events of the year.

And now? With just a month remaining before NASCAR's playoffs begin, Ford is bringing up the rear in the manufacturer battle. Three drivers have combined for four Ford victories through 22 points races, and Logano has two of the wins. His victory in June in St. Louis was the last Ford win, and at fourth in the Cup standings, Logano is the highest-ranked Ford driver.

Cindric and Chase Briscoe for Stewart-Haas Racing have the only other two wins for the blue oval bunch as NASCAR shifts into their backyard at Michigan International Speedway.

"Four wins is not enough. It's not acceptable," said Mark Rushbrook, global director of Ford Performance Motorsports. "We need to get more wins. We need to have drivers further up the standings and hopefully at least four if not more drivers into the playoffs."

"It's certainly going to be hard with where we are with only four regular-season races left. It's been a struggle with the new car, the new package with getting our head around it, and how to set it up properly going to the track and optimizing it."

Chevrolet has been the dominant brand this season with 13 wins — Chase Elliott has a series-high four victories — and Toyota has five victories.

RFK OPTIMISM

Keselowski returns to his home track feeling confident about RFK's recent progress. The native of Rochester Hills believes the team is on "a little bit of an upswing" and thought he and teammate Buescher were fast on the road course at Indianapolis last week.

"We seem to be getting better every week, and the team's starting to click and we're starting to figure out some of the missing pieces," Keselowski said. "We're going to give it all we got.

I'm in this for the long haul. I want to keep pushing as hard as I can to get this company to where RFK — both cars — can win races and contend for championships."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ It's important to make wise, financial decisions today, especially decisions that affect your own property and physical assets. Don't be unduly influenced by your kids or social demands. Do what's best for yourself, because you count. (Then you can take care of others.) Tonight: Rest.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★ This is a difficult day to deal with authority figures, the police, bosses or anyone in charge, because they might make a naked power play. Meanwhile, you want to join forces with partners, spouses and close friends to reach a better understanding of what to do. Tonight: Be friendly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ Listen to your heart so you will know how to handle things today. Do not be influenced by the words of others. For example, if you think something fishy is going on, it is! He joined Svoboda, previously an offensive coordinator under Tjeerdsma, between 2010-14 before taking a head coach position at Nebraska-Kearney between 2015-16.

"(Tjeerdsma) really helped me get every job I've ever gotten after I left him," Lamberson said. "Not from an athletic standpoint, he's been a mentor to me as a man and a human."

Lamberson saw a single win during two years in Kearney, which was a different situation from what he walked into at Central Missouri in February.

In comparison, Tjeerdsma went 0-11 during his first season at Northwest Missouri before building a 182-43 career with the Bearcats, 242-82-4 overall as a head coach anywhere, while also winning three national titles and appearing in seven championship games.

"Coach T, yeah he was my college football coach and he was demanding and we were fortunate to win a lot of games and do a lot of great things when I played for him and coached underneath him, but to be real honest with you, I don't remember hardly any of those.

"What I remember is our conversations that we have and the life lessons that he still teaches to this day. The way that I call him when I need advice or I need help, or to celebrate the good times or go through the bad times with."

Lamberson's time at Nebraska-Kearney reached an end after receiving the opportunity to follow former Northwest Missouri and current Central Oklahoma coach Adam Dorrel, also a former athlete and player for Tjeerdsma, at FCS Division I Abilene Christian.

Their stint in Abilene ended following the conclusion of the 2021 season, though they helped the Wildcats to their most wins in a three-year span since becoming an NCAA Division I FCS program.

"When I went to ACU, Adam was on a 30-game win streak and he had just won back-to-back national championships," Lamberson said. "He was the winningest college football coach in any division. The opportunity to go learn from him and be a part of his life for the last five years, and for him to be a part of my life, it was something that was absolutely fantastic."

With the return of Lamberson and Dorrel to the MIAA this year, there are now three head coaches in the MIAA as part of the Tjeerdsma tree, joined by Northwest Missouri's Rich Wright.

Links to Tjeerdsma within the current UCM staff also include offensive line coach Joe Holtzclaw, a former lineman and graduate assistant at Northwest Missouri; and special teams coordinator/defensive backs coach Kyle Westphal, a former Northwest Missouri graduate assistant.

Debut

There were a few other teams in the running, Dunlap said, "but I liked what I heard from the Chiefs."

The Chiefs like what he brings to the locker room.

Dunlap has been a paragon of consistency since entering the league as the Bengals' second-round pick in 2010.

He's had at least six sacks every season but one, including 8 1/2 last season with the Seahawks, and appeared in at least 14 regular-season games each of the past 10 seasons. And while sack totals have only been official since 1982, his 96 sacks rank just outside of the top 50, which is the threshold he would pass with his goal of eight this season.

It's not just what Dunlap brings in terms of productivity that made him so attractive, though. He's been around the league long enough to build a vast bank of knowledge that he can impart on some of the Chiefs' younger players.

Tops on the list is George Karlaftis, one of their two first-round picks in this year's draft.

"He's going to add a lot of value just from a teaching standpoint, just for us young guys," Karlaftis said. "Aside from all the wonderful things he'll do on the field, just teaching us and spreading the wealth of knowledge he has will be big"

The Chiefs had just 31 sacks last season, better than just three other NFL teams, and their inability to pressure Cincinnati quarterback Joe Burrow was a big reason for their second-half collapse in the AFC championship game.

Karlaftis is expected to help solve those pass-rush woes, but it's a lot to expect of a rookie to do it alone. And while the Chiefs hope for more from Frank Clark, whose 4 1/2 sacks last season were a bitter disappointment, there still existed plenty of room for a proven disruptive force such as Dunlap coming off the edge.

"We established communication with Carlos back in March, I guess, when he got released," Chiefs general manager Brett Veach said, "and we were happy to get that done, and we think he's going to be a valuable asset to our rotation."

The Chiefs have had some success bringing in older pass rushers.

Terrell Suggs played well down the stretch during the 2019 season, appearing in three playoff games and helping the Chiefs win their first Super Bowl title in 50 years. Then last year, Melvin Ingram arrived in a midseason trade and had two sacks in three playoff games while helping Kansas City reach its fourth consecutive AFC title game.

Unlike those two players, the Chiefs expect Dunlap to help them beginning with their Week 1 game in Arizona.

"He's done it for a long time," Chiefs defensive coordinator Steve Spagnuolo said, "and the system he was in Cincinnati for all those years was conducive to him. ... He knows how to get to the quarterback, and sometimes that's innate. I always say 70 percent of pass rushing is want-to and he has that."

Notes: OT Prince Tega Wanogho was a full participant in Thursday's practice after beginning camp on the PUP list. CB Rashad Fenton (shoulder) and OT Lucas Niang (knee) remain on the list. ... WR Daurice Fountain missed the workout with a groin injury. ... WR Gary Jennings is in the concussion protocol after slamming into one of the garage doors of the indoor practice facility while trying to make a catch in Wednesday's workout. ... The Chiefs are off Friday before resuming camp this weekend.

1. FEAT not fiat. It wouldn't be the command (i.e., fiat) itself that would be "complex," rather it would be the FEAT of regulating the "new law."

4. RESCUER not rescues. Grammatically speaking, one would refer to the gallantry of the RESCUER involved in the action of making multiple rescues. RESCUER, therefore, makes a comprehensive answer.

6. ROBE not role. "A heavy" ROBE could impede a performance, but it would be the actress's lack of training or skill to perform the role that could hamper her.

7. STORY not storm. STORY is all-encompassing, since it could include a storm as part of the storyline.

10. LEA not sea. LEA (e.g., an open area of grassy land) can often be found in "British" "poems" of the past, whereas sea can be found in all forms of writing.

11. AIMS not arms. The AIMS of the "neighboring" country would most likely involve multiple intentions, one of which could involve arms, as indicated by the "troop movement" mentioned in the clue.

17. LAX not tax. Doing his taxes would be one of the tasks the "uncle" would neglect because he's LAX, making LAX a comprehensive answer.

19. REPLY not repay. No REPLY at all is a comprehensive answer that would involve no confirmation of a repayment.

DOWN

1. FRONT not frost. The clue doesn't specify what time of year it is and, in order for frost to be a relevant answer, there would have to be some reference to the season or temperature. FRONT makes a straightforward answer.

2. TELLS not sells. The fact that the "suspect" TELLS "information" "to a foreign agent" means he probably is, to some degree, "involved in espionage," whether or not he sells it. TELLS, therefore, is a comprehensive answer.

3. PEST not nest. Having encountered "a big" PEST such as a raccoon or a rat might well make the "girlfriend" "jittery." But the nest might be empty, giving the "girlfriend" little cause to be afraid.

5. CORN not coin. The fact that the CORN "was a surprise" suggests that it wasn't necessarily a negative experience. "Finding" a coin that could possibly cause her to choke might well get a more severe reaction, such as shock or dismay.

7. SHOT not shop. SHOT is best. The clue word "boutique" makes shop superfluous.

8. MATERIAL not maternal. The clue suggests that the parent has given a "sizeable loan" to the "irresponsible son" and the parent now has a MATERIAL "interest in what" happens to it. But there's no indication whether it was the mother (e.g., maternal) or the father who gave it to him.

9. BANGS not pangs. A "home" "renovation" is often noisy (i.e., BANGS), but the clue word "sudden" is unnecessary for pangs (defined as a "sudden" sharp pain of emotion).

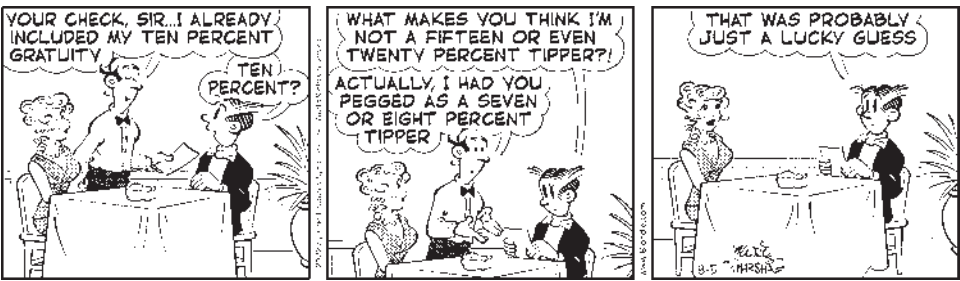

12. SHARES not scares. SHARES is a straightforward answer since many SHARES can be bought cheaply. Scares is too vague regarding the kind of scare and its impact, which, instead of being opportune for the investor, could be disastrous.

13. HAVE not hate. If you HAVE a "cold," in order to recuperate from it as quickly as possible, "it's wise" "to dress warmly," whether or not you hate the "cold."

DALLAS (AP) — Former NBA player Iman Shumpert was arrested at the Dallas Fort Worth International Airport last weekend for allegedly trying to bring six ounces of cannabis through security.
The police report from the DFW Airport Department of Public Safety shows police were called to a TSA checkpoint at about 3:40 p.m. on Saturday, July 30 and told there was a "sizable amount of marijuana" found.
The police report says Shumpert told officers that the bag contained marijuana and "asked if there was any way he could make his flight" to Los Angeles, where he was supposed to pick up his daughter. He has two daughters with entertainer Teyana Taylor.
Shumpert was told no, arrested for felony possession of marijuana and taken to the airport jail. The Tarrant County Criminal Courts system didn't have information about a court case.

Alan Tudyk in "Resident Alien"

When the Syfy series "Resident Alien" first landed on the network in early 2021, it, like its main character, was unlike anything viewers had ever seen before. Now partway into its second season, the out-of-this-world dramedy continues Wednesday, Aug. 10, following a five-month hiatus. Alan Tudyk ("Firefly") stars as an alien on a mission while inhabiting the body of a small-town Colorado doctor.

"I Am Groot" - Season 1

After stealing the hearts of Marvel fans all over the world in the Guardians of the Galaxy franchise, Baby Groot is back and ready for his close-up. The new, photorealistic animated series "I Am Groot" premieres on Disney+ Wednesday, Aug. 10. Following Groot (voiced once again by Vin Diesel, "F9: The Fast Saga," 2021), who is now a mischievous toddler, the series explores his glory days growing up and getting into trouble in the galaxy Andromeda. Across five original shorts, Baby Groot goes on adventures and meets all sorts of new and unusual characters. Written and directed by Kristen Lepore ("Hi Stranger," 2016), the series is produced by Marvel Studios and executive producers Kevin Feige ("Black Panther," 2018), James Gunn ("Guardians of the Galaxy," 2014), Louis D'Esposito ("Iron Man," 2008), Victoria Alonso ("Avengers: End Game," 2019) and Brad Winderbaum ("Thor: Love and Thunder," 2022).

"Indian Matchmaking" - Season 2

A matchmaker's work is never done, and that goes double for Mumbai's premier matchmaker, Sima Taparia. The Netflix reality series "Indian Matchmaking" makes its way back to the platform for a second season, premiering eight new, hour-long episodes as of Wednesday, Aug. 10. Offering an inside look into the sometimes controversial topic of arranged marriage, Sima shows viewers what that custom can look like in the modern world. Taking her clients' partner wish lists into account and sorting through requests that range from a shared love of Taco Bell to someone with an "ovo-lacto-semi-vegetarian" diet, Sima manages expectations while helping single millennials all over the world find their perfect match. Drawing from traditional methods, her insightful intuition and decades of experience, Sima guides her clients as they look for a match to last a lifetime. Created

And while it may have seemed like the love triangle between Devi, Paxton (Darren Barnet, "Love Hard," 2021) and Ben (Jaren Lewison, "Tag," 2018) was finally resolved at the end of Season 2, the trio's drama seems far from over. Devi and Paxton may be in a relationship, but Ben can't be counted out of the equation just yet. Not to men-
