Open Door introduces two new faces

By Faith Bemiss
fbemiss@sedaliademocrat.com

Over the last several months, clients and volunteers at Open Door have seen two new faces at the food pantry offices.

Michelle O'Donnell, the new director of development, took the position in November 2021, once filled by the late Jennifer Taylor. In addition, Jamie Bohlen filled a brand-new volunteer coordinator position in October 2021. Both women have goals and plans for the future of Open Door.

O'Donnell has lived in Sedalia for most of her life and noted she hopes to increase and build relationships within the community and Open Door.

Taking the position of director of development came about by accident.

She added she was taking an online community health worker class at State Fair Community College and needed to job shadow someone. So, she asked Open Door Director Amanda Davis if she could shadow her in August last year.

"Amanda and I have known each other from the service industry in Sedalia," O'Donnell said. "And she called me back and said, 'I am so sorry, I'd love to do this for you, but my director of development is leaving.'"

During the conversation, Davis asked O'Donnell if she would be interested in the position, which takes in writing grants for Open Door.

"I was ready for a change," she added. "So, I applied. My background is in computer programming and marketing."

Students, new principal begin school year

By Skye Melcher
skiem@sedaliademocrat.com

On Thursday, around 375 Sacred Heart School students and new principal Nancy Manning started their first day of classes for the 2022-23 school year.

Manning served as the secretary and taught a family and consumer science class for Sacred Heart in the 2021-22 school year after her kids started attending the school in 2014.

"Our son, a junior here, started in third grade," Manning said. "So I have been a parent at Sacred Heart."

While in her first year working at Sacred Heart, Manning started a Family, Career and Community Leaders of America organization on campus.

"So that started my journey and then last year we had an opening for a principal position, so I just felt this calling that I needed to apply," Manning said.

As Manning was telling the Democrat about her journey to becoming the principal, she stopped by multiple classes before the all-school mass to say hello to the students and introduce herself as the new principal. She said she is trying to implement having the students tell her and SHS President Dr. Mark Register good morning or hello every time they see them.

At 8 a.m., Manning said everything had been going great for the first day.

"People are showing up, they're excited," Manning said. "I feel the energy, the smiles, everybody is taking their traditional pictures outside."

The elementary-level students needed to make sure they had all their school supplies and check on any uniform changes.

"Junior high, for sixth graders, is brand new, so we had an orientation for junior high students the night of open house," Manning said.

This allowed those students to explore the building, meet their teachers and find their lockers.

"One thing we did new this year, on Monday, was a mixer for the new families to the school," Manning said. "That was a great idea. It gave them a chance to meet the other new families. They found out ways they could get involved in the school..."

WMMC awarded five-star rating from CMS

By Meliyah Venerable
meliyahv@warrensburgstarjournal.com

WARRENSBURG — Western Missouri Medical Center (WMMC) received a five-star rating for overall hospital quality from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) on July 27. This rating is the highest rating that a hospital can achieve.

WMMC Director of Quality and Risk Amanda Lankford said this is the first time the hospital has received an overall five-star rating, and it is a testament to the hard work and commitment they devote to their patients.

WMMC President/CEO Darinda Dick said the rating can assist patients in choosing the right hospital to visit, and WMMC receiving the highest achievable score will guide patients to the best care.

"If you're trying to plan a trip, you're probably going to review the various accommodations in the area you are visiting. As you do so, you're going to encounter a hotel star rating system that allows you to make a decision on where you stay," Lankford said. "This day in age, hospitals are part of the consumer market as well, patients have choices of where they wish to receive care just as the accommodations on a trip. The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) uses a five-star quality rating system to measure the experiences Medicare beneficiaries have with their health plan and health care system — the Star Rating Program.

"Health plans are rated on a scale of 1 to 5 stars, with five being the highest. This rating allows patients to make a conscious decision when choosing where they receive care. The star rating is important for the hospital because it facilitates the organization's reputation for quality of care and the experience."

According to a news release, the rating system began in July 2016 and is now updated annually. Only 13% of the hospitals in the country have a five-star rating from CMS.

The ratings are measured from different categories. These categories are mortality, safety of care, readmission, patient experience, effectiveness of care, timeliness of care, and efficient use of medical imaging. Taking all of them into consideration, the hospital is then rated on a five-star scale.

The ratings are available on the CMS website. Patients can contribute by filling out surveys and rating the level of care they receive from various hospitals all over the country.

Dick wants the hospital to continue to provide the quality care it has been, and strive to uphold the standard that has now been set.

"We will continue to strive to provide timely, efficient, quality care by focusing on these measures, you have a greater chance of improving your star rating," Lankford said.

ProEnergy buys state-of-the-art 3D hybrid printing machine

By Democrat Staff

ProEnergy has announced a $28.8 million investment in an advanced manufacturing initiative featuring the recent purchase of a 3D hybrid printing machine. The investment will allow ProEnergy the ability to create critical parts for LM6000 gas turbines, reducing manufacturing and repair times.

ProEnergy CEO Jeff Canon, in an Aug. 2 press release, said the acquisition is part of the company's vertically integrated aeroderivative power services.

"Independently fortifying our parts supply enables us to maintain our 120-day turnarounds for major overhauls, maintain world-class responsiveness, and progress the greater goal of global energy security," Canon said. "More importantly, these are critical steps in supporting renewable power generation and moving the energy transition forward."

a handful in the world, with technology enabling the manufacturing of industrial-scale parts of any complexity in a small amount of time. With additive and subtractive capabilities, the machine can build and machine new parts without pause, the release stated.

"The primary value of the machine is vastly accelerated parts development and prototyping capabilities," Rob Andrews, ProEnergy Senior Vice President of Operations, said. "Creating a variable bypass-valve door, for example, would take at least 12 months for a casting process; the ProEnergy advanced manufacturing process took less than 90 days."

Inflation's harsh realities on display as Fed officials meet

By Christopher Rugaber

AP Economics Writer

JACKSON HOLE, Wyoming (AP) — A half-hour drive or so from the resort where the high priests of international finance — leading economists and central bank officials — have convened in Jackson Hole, Wyoming, to discuss the world's economic challenges, Ash Hermanowski oversees the distribution of about 1,200 free meals a day.

At a food bank called Jackson Cupboard, Hermanowski hands out meals from a commercial garage after being forced from a previous site by a malfunctioning sprinkler. The food bank couldn't afford any other place in town.

Just across the street, The Glenwood, a collection of townhomes that will sell for millions, is nearing completion. "Unparalleled luxury," its website says, in a "truly relaxing oasis."

It's the "ultimate irony,"

Hermanowski said. "The staff and I, we talk about it all the time. We all struggle to live here, and they're building high-end residences. That dichotomy exists all over town, but people refuse to see it."

As the Federal Reserve's annual economic symposium gets underway Thursday at a lodge in Grand Teton National Park, some of the very problems Fed officials are grappling with — high inflation, soaring rental costs and home prices and wide economic inequalities — are starkly evident near the idyllic mountain setting.

On Friday, Fed Chair Jerome Powell will deliver a speech that could signal how high or how fast the central bank may raise interest rates in the coming months. Powell's remarks will be scrutinized by Wall Street traders and economists and could potentially cause sharp swings in financial markets.

In its drive to tame the worst inflation bout the nation has endured in four decades, the Powell Fed has embarked on its fastest series of rate hikes since the early 1980s. The Fed is trying to slow the economy just enough to cool inflation without causing a recession — a notoriously delicate task.

Inflation is particularly high in the town of Jackson and the surrounding Teton County, which, even before the pandemic erupted two years ago, was the wealthiest and most unequal place in the nation. (Jackson Hole is the name of the broader valley.) The state of Wyoming has calculated that the cost of living in the county at the end of 2021 was 68% higher than in the rest of the state — with housing costs 130% higher.

At the food bank, Hermanowski says, demand has escalated from a year ago as surging food and gas prices have sapped the budgets of their clients. Roughly 85% of the food bank's recipients have a job, often more than one, said Sharel Lund, executive director of one22, a nonprofit that includes Jackson Cupboard.

Like many resort towns, Jackson has always been expensive. But the pandemic turbocharged the disparities that have widened the gap between the wealthy and everyone else. Real estate prices soared as many affluent families, seeking to escape crowded cities, moved into the Jackson area or spent more time at vacation homes they already owned.

With many office professionals able to work remotely, the area's natural beauty became an alluring draw. Wyoming's low-tax status has also proved appealing to high-income earners.

Jackson, a town of about 25,000 people year-round, still retains its aura as an old Western town, with its archways made from elk antlers around the town square. The square is lined with a "Cowboy Bar" and an old-timey "Five and Dime" shop.

Insulin cap for Medicare patients signals hope for others

By Farnoush Amiri
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Years before he came to the Senate, Raphael Warnock spent time bedside with Georgia residents suffering from the long-term effects of diabetes, a condition made worse by limited access to life-saving drugs like insulin.

"I've seen the human face of this up close as a pastor. I've been there and witnessed what happens when diabetes goes on untreated," Warnock said in an interview with The Associated Press. "I've been there with families when they received the news that a loved one will have to receive an amputation."

That work as a pastor helped the freshman senator push Congress to take its first step in limiting the high cost of insulin for millions of Americans.

The passage of the expansive climate change and health care bill this month delivered key Democratic priorities to voters months before the mid-term elections, including provisions to lower health care costs.

As a result, by 2026, Medicare will gain the power to start negotiating costs for pharmaceuticals and its beneficiaries' out-of-pocket prescription costs will be limited to $2,000 starting in 2025.

But the most immediate relief will take effect in January when the cost of insulin for patients on Medicare will be capped at $35 a month.

The provision, a longstanding priority for Democrats, will bring relief to an estimated nearly 2 million people across the country who currently pay an average of $572 annually out-of-pocket for insulin, according to a recent analysis by the Kaiser Family Foundation.

In Warnock's state, the annual average is higher, coming in at $591 for more than 50,000 Georgia residents whose lives are dependent on the drug.

Around 7 million Americans require insulin daily and 14% of them are spending nearly half of their income after food and housing costs on the medicine, according to a Yale University study.

"It's devastating for a family to have to make those choices," Lisa Murdock, chief advocacy officer for the American Diabetes Association, told the AP. "This is a life-saving medication. You can't live without it, and we shouldn't have people in this country who are having to choose to do that."

The issue of insulin pricing is more pronounced in the U.S. than in other nations, and it has gotten worse over the past two decades. According to a 2016 study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, between 2002 and 2013, the price of insulin tripled. And between 2012 and 2016, prices continued to climb, nearly doubling, a congressional report released in March found.

The issue has been a perennial one in Congress, with a broad bipartisan consensus recognizing the problem, but little agreement on a solution. That is why organizations like the American Diabetes Association have sought to fight the battle for affordable insulin in the states, starting in 2019 when Colorado became the first state to institute a cap on copays for insulin.

"From there, we just ran with it," Murdock said. "We currently have 22 states and the District of Columbia with a monthly copay cap in place and we will continue to work on that as long as we need to raise the conversation."

While several states passed legislation that capped the price for Medicare and private insurance, the new federal law doesn't go as far. The legislation introduced by Warnock had initially included the monthly cap both for Medicare recipients and those privately insured.

But during an hours-long voting series, Republicans stripped out the portion that would have included private insurance, which is used by the majority of those in need of insulin. Some of the GOP senators who voted for it to be removed represent states with some of the highest mortality rates for diabetes, according to data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

At the time, Republicans who voted against the provision said it violated Senate budget rules, but Democrats intentionally did not drop it, daring their colleagues across the aisle to vote on the Senate floor to strip it out.

"In reality, the Dems wanted to break Senate rules to pass insulin pricing cap instead of going through regular order," Sen. Ron Johnson, a Wisconsin Republican, tweeted after the vote. Johnson added that he had previously "voted for an amendment, that Dems blocked, to provide insulin at cost to low-income Americans."

But Warnock said the quarrel over procedural rules meant failing on substance.

"The blocking of a provision that would have provided the same cap for folks on private insurance is yet another example of why people hate politics and, and what's wrong with Washington," he said.

The provision did however get seven Republicans on board. And while it wasn't enough to pass the broader cap, it was more support than for any previous effort to cap insulin prices in Congress. Majority Leader Chuck Schumer indicated that expanding affordable access to insulin will be a priority for the chamber in September.

Advocates say a potential legislative response to address the gaps in coverage could come in the form of the Insulin Act, a bipartisan proposal introduced last month by Sen. Jeanne Shaheen, a Democrat from New Hampshire, and Sen. Susan Collins, a Republican from Maine, that would include a cap on the private marketplace. The legislation also has mechanisms in place that would lower the list price for insulin, providing relief for diabetes patients without insurance.

"We are grateful for the step forward in the Inflation Reduction Act, but now we're focused and really urging Congress to bring up the Insulin Act as soon as possible," said Campbell Hutton, vice president of regulatory and health policy at JDRF, a New York-based nonprofit that funds type 1 diabetes research.

Yet wedged in among such outlets are symbols of the increasingly luxe Jackson: High-end jewelry shops and a Swarovski crystal store that is selling a bald eagle figurine for $9,600.

"We definitely see both sides of it here," said Hannah Cooley, executive director of Hole Food Rescue, a nonprofit that redistributes leftover food from restaurants and bakeries. "You have the ultra-wealthy with their massive houses. And then you have three immigrant families crammed into a one-bedroom apartment."

Already-high home prices and rents in Jackson have jumped further since the pandemic, just as they have nationally, a particular hardship for people who work as housekeepers, chefs and waiters at resorts. The median price for a home: $3 million, twice what it was five years ago. The average apartment rent in Teton County jumped 12.4% last year, to $2,780, according to state government data.

Jonathan Schechter, a member of Jackson's Town Council, says that according to the most recent IRS data, the average income in Teton County in 2019 was $312,442, highest in the nation and nearly 50% above the second-highest, Manhattan.

April Norton, director of the Jackson/Teton County Affordable Housing Department, points to a major obstacle to home construction: 97% of the county's land is federally owned and can't be developed. Compounding the squeeze, retiring workers who bought homes at affordable prices decades ago are now selling them for eye-popping prices that many current workers, even higher-income professionals, can't afford.

Norton's in-laws recently retired from jobs as an engineer and accountant in Jackson. Having built their own home in the 1970s, they will eventually be able to sell it for a price far above what current engineers or accountants could afford. A neighbor just sold a home for $8 million.

The county is trying multiple approaches to address the shortage of affordable housing. They include building homes available only to people who work locally and with caps on price appreciation. Such "deed-restricted" homes have still sold for more than $700,000, evidence of the intense demand and limited supply.

Still, a county report shows there is a waitlist of roughly 1,500 families seeking affordable housing, up from 1,100 last year.

The housing crunch has exacerbated worker shortages that are plaguing the county, a problem being felt by employers across the nation. Norton said the school system lost 60 teachers last year, in part because of a lack of housing. Many workers, including nurses and services workers, are stuck commuting from places like Victor, Idaho, a roughly 45-minute drive over the 8,500-foot Teton pass, which is treacherous for much of the winter.

Fewer Americans claim jobless benefits last week

By Mae Anderson

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Fewer Americans filed for unemployment benefits last week as the labor market continues to stand out as one of the strongest segments of the U.S. economy.

Applications for jobless aid for the week ending Aug. 20 fell by 2,000 to 243,000, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

The four-week average for claims, which evens out some of the week-to-week volatility, rose by 1,500 to 247,000.

The number of Americans collecting traditional unemployment benefits fell by 19,000 the week that ended Aug. 13, to 1.42 million.

First-time applications generally reflect layoffs and are often seen as an early indicator of where the job market is headed.

Hiring in the United States in 2022 has been remarkably strong even as the country faces rising interest rates and weak economic growth.

U.S. employers added 528,000 jobs in July, according to the Labor Department, more than double what forecasters had expected.

The unemployment rate dipped to 3.5%, tying a 50-year low reached just before coronavirus pandemic slammed the U.S. economy in early 2020.

But there are other challenges.

Consumer prices have been surging, rising 8.5% in July from a year earlier — down slightly from June's 40-year high 9.1%. To combat inflation, the Federal Reserve has raised its benchmark short-term interest rate four times this year.

On Friday, Fed Chair Jerome Powell will deliver a speech that could shed more light on how high or how fast the central bank may raise interest rates in the coming months.

Higher borrowing costs have taken a toll. The economy contracted in the first half of the year — one measure suggesting the onset of a recession. But the strength of the job market has been inconsistent with an economic downturn.

ACROSS

- HALTED not halved. The "stream of" "traffic" is usually HALTED or slowed to a crawl before being halved into separate "lanes." The clue word "twin" makes halved unnecessary.
- FROWN not crown. FROWN is apt. "Renowned for wearing a" crown is superfluous in regards to a king.
- WIT not hit. WIT is best. "Soaring popularity" is redundant with hit.
- BOAT not goat. A BOAT "needs water" "to function," but a goat "needs" it not just "to function," but to stay alive.
- ILL not all. The clue word "rambunctious" matches up well with the context of the clue, implying that these kinds of "kids" don't all go to "bed" easily because of their energy. However, "rambunctious children," just like any other "kids," can unexpectedly become ILL.
- BAGS not rags. The clue word "cloth" makes BAGS a clear-cut answer. With rags, it is superfluous.
- NICE not rice. The word "shouldn't" suggests the possibility of some disagreement, favoring NICE, which often depends on a person's tastes or values. However, "there shouldn't be any arguing" as to what is rice, which is pretty obvious.

- LENT not left. Since the brother is currently in a state of neediness, logically, being LENT "money" would make the most sense since it could be years before the "uncle" dies
- MOP not map. A MOP might be "frequently heard," but in the navy, a map is usually referred to as a navigational chart.
- INFERIOR not interior. The house itself could be considered to be INFERIOR if the interior was in bad shape. INFERIOR, therefore, is an all-inclusive answer.

DOWN

- TRAIN not brain. The "villain" might make a TRAIN his target, but grammatically speaking, it would be a person's head that the "villain" would aim at, which, of course, contains the brain.
- HAD not hid. One of the ways of "contravening travel rules" is to have hidden the "pet," making hid redundant. HAD is a better choice.
- LACE not lice. While placing the "veil," "mother of the bride" may notice the fine detailing of the LACE instead of the netting that many veils use. Grammatically

4. DEFEATS not defects. DEFEATS links up directly to a "longtime athlete" who would have experienced many competitions in which he won or was DEFEATED. He could have defects in terms of his personality or lifestyle that have nothing to do with sports.

7. BAIL not jail. Grammatically speaking, the "architect" would be "asked to" create or design a jail. However, in the case of a crime, he might be able to "make" bail.

10. ROCK not rick. "Climbing down" links up well with a "big" ROCK. Getting off of a hay or straw pile (i.e., rick) usually means jumping down since there's nothing to step onto in order to climb "down."

11. PALM not balm. The "viewers" could "watch" a "unique" massage involving PALMS, but the soothing "action" of a balm would be felt, not watched.

Dangerous heat predicted to hit 3 times more often in future

By Seth Borenstein
AP Science Writer

What's considered officially "dangerous heat" in coming decades will likely hit much of the world at least three times more often as climate change worsens, according to a new study.

In much of Earth's wealthy mid-latitudes, spiking temperatures and humidity that feel like 103 degrees (39.4 degrees Celsius) or higher -- now an occasional summer shock -- statistically should happen 20 to 50 times a year by mid-century, said a study Monday in the journal Communications Earth & Environment.

By 2100, that brutal heat index may linger for most of the summer for places like the U.S. Southeast, the study's author said.

And it's far worse for the sticky tropics. The study said a heat index considered "extremely dangerous" where the feels-like heat index exceeds 124 degrees (51 degrees Celsius) -- now something that rarely happens -- will likely strike a tropical belt that includes India one to four weeks a year by century's end. "So that's kind of the scary thing about this," said study author Lucas Zeppetello, a Harvard climate scientist. "That's something where potentially billions of people are going to be exposed to extremely dangerous levels of heat very regularly. So something that's gone from virtually never happening before will go to something that is happening every year."

Zeppetello and colleagues used more than 1,000 computer simulations to look at the probabilities of two different levels of high heat -- heat indexes of 103 degrees (39.4 Celsius) and above 124 degrees (51 Celsius), which are dangerous and extremely dangerous thresholds according to the U.S. National Weather Service. They calculated for the years 2050 and 2100 and compared that to how often that heat happened each year across the world from 1979 to 1998.

The study found a three- to ten-fold increase in 103-degree heat in the mid-latitudes even in the unlikely best-case scenario of global warming limited to only 3.6 degrees

(2 degrees Celsius) since pre-industrial times -- the less stringent of two international goals.

There's only a 5% chance for warming to be that low and that infrequent, the study found. What's more likely, according to the study, is that the 103-degree heat will steam the tropics "during most days of each typical year" by 2100.

Chicago hit that 103-degree heat index level only four times from 1979 to 1998. But the study's most likely scenario shows Chicago hitting that hot-and-sticky threshold 11 times a year by the end of the century.

Heat waves are one of the new four horsemen of apocalyptic climate change, along with sea level rise, water scarcity and changes in the overall ecosystem, said Zeppetello, who did much of the research at University of Washington state during the warming-charged 2021 heat wave that shattered records and killed thousands.

"Sadly, the horrific predictions shown in this study are credible," climate scientist Jennifer Francis of the Woodwell Climate Research Center, who was not part of the study team, said in an email. "The past two summers have provided a window into our steamy future, with lethal heat waves in Europe, China, northwestern North America, India, the south-central U.S., the U.K., central Siberia, and even New England. Already hot places will become uninhabitable as heat indices exceed dangerous thresholds, affecting humans and ecosystems alike. Areas where extreme heat is now rare will also suffer increasingly, as infrastructure and living things are ill-adapted to the crushing heat."

The study focuses on the heat index and that's smart because it's not just heat but the combination with humidity that hurts health, said Harvard School of Public Health professor Dr. Renee Salas, who is an emergency room physician.

"As the heat index rises, it becomes harder and harder to cool our bodies," Salas, who wasn't part of the research team, said in an email. "Heat stroke is a potentially deadly form of heat illness that occurs when body temperatures rise to dangerous levels."

The study is based on mathematical probabilities instead of other climate research that looks at what happens at various carbon pollution levels. Because of that, University of Pennsylvania climate scientist Michael Mann is more skeptical of this research. It also doesn't take into account landmark U.S. climate legislation that President Joe Biden signed earlier this month or new efforts by Australia, he said.

"The obstacles at this point are political and no statistical methods, regardless of how powerful or sophisticated can predict whether we will garner the political will to overcome them," Mann said in an email. "But there is reason for cautious optimism."

CHURCH NEWS

Green Ridge Presbyterian to host ice cream social

Green Ridge Presbyterian Church will host an ice cream social from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 28. The church will serve homemade ice cream, hot dogs/chili dogs, dessert and a drink for a freewill offering. At 5:30 p.m., there will be a baked goods auction.

La Monte UMC to host ice cream social

The La Monte United Methodist Church, 400 N. Main in La Monte, will host an ice cream social from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 28. The church will serve homemade ice cream and desserts for a freewill donation. Proceeds will go to UMCOR. Checks may be made payable to LUMC with UMCOR in the memo.

Abundant Life to host Down East Boys

Abundant Life Christian Center, 15423 Centerline Ave. in Cole Camp, will be hosting the Down East Boys, a southern gospel music quartet from North Carolina, at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 1.

Tickets are $15 and can be purchased by calling the church office at 660-547-2455 or visiting the church Facebook page. Tickets will also be available at the door the night of the concert. Doors will open at 6 p.m.

Since their inception in 1985, the Down East Boys have been making great music. Though their tenure as a leading quartet spans several decades, their music remains relevant and their name is consistently at the top of the radio singles chart.

The quartet includes lead vocalist Ricky Carden, baritone Daryl Paschal, tenor Doug Pittman, and bass Alex Utech.

Musically, this group has given gospel music many treasured and popular songs. Early in their career, their single "Beautiful Valley" stayed on the Top 40 of the Singing News Radio Chart for 10 months. More recently, the group has topped the charts several times with songs such as "Beat Up Bible," "Testimony Time," "I'd Like to Tell It Again," "Amazing Amounts of Amazing Grace," and "What Love."

The Down East Boys have recorded over 20 albums and amassed five number one songs. They've received multiple nominations for Group of The Year, Album of The Year and Song of The Year.

Liberty Life Center to host Joel Richardson

New York best-selling author Joel Richardson will be at Liberty Life Center Church on Sunday, Aug. 28 for three services.

Richardson is a filmmaker, international speaker, teacher, and advocate for the underground church in the Middle East. His work has been featured on numerous radio, television, and news outlets.

Richardson will bring three special messages: "For the Joy Set Before Us" at 9:30 a.m., "Recovering the Maranatha Plumbline" at 10:30 a.m. and "The Prophetic State of the Union" at 6 p.m.

At all services, childcare will be provided and a book table available. A love offering for his ministry will be received at the 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. service.

For more information about Richardson, visit Joel'sTrumpet.com. Liberty Life Center is at 1501 Driftwood Dr. in Sedalia. For more information, call Pastor Gary Smith at 660-281-7404.

ProEnergy said the machine is just the beginning of a new initiative, including a complete refit of one of its large campus buildings and 16 more advanced manufacturing devices.

"These steps will not only position ProEnergy as the top advanced manufacturing provider for any industry within Missouri, but likely in the Midwest," Andrews said.

“Writing grants is kind of like policy writing in a way,” she continued. “Technical writing appeals to me.”

Her position also includes fundraising, and this year she is busy planning Open Door’s 50th-anniversary celebration slated for September.

“So, we’ve kind of spent time this year getting that ready,” she noted. “So, next year is going to be a big push for fundraisers and get-togethers with the community.”

Bohlen oversees around 60 volunteers at all three Open Door sites — the pantry, the thrift shop, and the kitchen.

“I’m the very first person to hold this position,” Bohlen noted. “My job goal is to have one person scheduling and keeping track of all the volunteer information.”

She added she is getting the word out to potential Open Door volunteers to come to her if they wish to help at any of the sites.

“I will take your information, and I will talk to you and find out where you feel you’d like to volunteer,” she explained. “And then get you on that schedule for that location.”

Open Door now has a new volunteer database in which Bohlen enters all the volunteers; this enables her to keep track of volunteer hours and information.

“There is so much we can do with this new database,” she said. “It makes it so much easier now to keep track of everybody.”

She added volunteers come to her if there’s a problem, and if she can’t address it, she takes them to Davis.

“I’m their first point of contact usually for Open Door,” Bohlen said of the volunteers.

O’Donnell and Bohlen added they both represent Open Door at community events and do speaking engagements for the nonprofit.

O’Donnell is also involved with the Open Door G.E.M. program, which is an online recurring donation program.

“Since I’ve been here, I’ve improved the website to allow for the G.E.M. club to start,” she explained. “Our goal is to increase the number of donors that are in that club.”

Those who wish may sign up to give each month. O’Donnell said those in the club would receive sneak-peek Open Door information about upcoming events and programs. The program will also offer numbers of those served and helped and “engage” them in the “Open Door family.”

Bohlen noted her goal is to build up Open Door’s volunteer program.

“I’ve implemented some things for the volunteers they’ve never had before,” she said. “Now we have paperwork that they fill out ... I’ve started a volunteer orientation training every month (and) I’ve created a volunteer handbook.

“Each volunteer will get it (the handbook) when they go through the orientation,” she continued. “It just has the basic information about Open Door and our mission, and then it also has what is expected of our volunteers.”

The handbook also includes behavior not tolerated, plus it has contact numbers to call if volunteers cannot come in for their shifts.

“Yes, they’re volunteers, but I want them to get in the mindset that it is still a job,” she explained. “And people still do depend on you. So, if you don’t show up for your assigned shift, somebody else has to pick up that slack.”

Bohlen also ensures volunteers feel like they are part of the Open Door family.

“That’s my main goal,” she added. “Is to make them feel when they come in our doors, that they are part of our family, and that they are welcome, and that they are needed, and that they are wanted.”

O’Donnell noted she is thankful for the community’s support for Open Door.

“I thank the local foundations, churches, (and) individuals that support us and our mission by giving,” she said.

Bohlen added Sedalia is “very generous.”

“The community really does have a heart for Open Door,” she said. “They really do.”

The mixer also allowed the new families to see the church and the school to learn more about Catholic education.

Manning said some of the goals for her and Dean of Students Amanda Burdick are expected to see a positive environment.

“We can already feel the enthusiasm in the building,” Manning said. “So basically, the positive energy, the excitement, give the student every educational opportunity and most importantly, here at Sacred Heart, incorporate our Catholic faith in every way possible.”

After the all-school mass, students made their way back to their classrooms and went through the daily bell schedule so that all the teachers and students could meet each other.

Cardinals' Goldschmidt has 2 HR, 5 RBIs in 8-3 win over Cubs

By Mark Gonzales
Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Goldschmidt slugged his 32nd and 33rd homers to highlight a five-RBI performance, Corey Dickerson set a franchise record for consecutive hits and the St. Louis Cardinals rolled to an 8-3 win Thursday over the Chicago Cubs.

Goldschmidt, Dickerson and Tommy Edman collected three hits apiece as the NL Central-leading Cardinals (72-53) won for the 10th time in their last 12 games and concluded a 6-2 trip.

The Cubs (54-71) lost for the fourth time in six games.

The Cardinals collected 16 hits even without slugger Nolan Arenado, who returned to St. Louis to attend the birth of his first child. But that was plenty of support for Dakota Hudson (7-6), who pitched a season-high seven innings of five-hit ball.

Neither Albert Pujols nor Yadier Molina were in the lineup in their final visit to Wrigley Field.

Pujols, 42, an 11-time All-Star who ranks fifth with 693 career home runs, and Molina, 40, who has nine Gold Glove Awards for his catching excellence, were presented with Wrigley scoreboard panels with their numbers in a pregame ceremony.

Goldschmidt hit a two-run single in the fourth off Marcus Stroman (3-6) before smacking a solo shot that landed near the top of the left-field bleachers off Sean Newcomb in the sixth and hitting a two-run shot in the eighth off Kervin Castro.

Barcelona gets tough Champs League group with Bayern, Inter

By Graham Dunbar
AP Sports Writer

Even when it still had Lionel Messi, Barcelona took an epic 8-2 beating from Bayern Munich in the Champions League quarterfinals two years ago.

And Bayern won 3-0 home and away against Barcelona in the group stage last season as the Spanish giant without Messi had its worst European season since before the Argentina great's 17-year run in the team.

On Thursday, Barcelona landed with Bayern yet again in a tough Champions League draw as coach Xavi Hernández's team tries to avoid a second straight group-stage exit since losing Messi to Paris Saint-Germain.

Still, Barcelona has since recruited former Bayern forward Robert Lewandowski — the two-time FIFA player of the year who will now face his recent teammates — despite financial turmoil that has affected its ability to register and retain players.

"What a terrific story that we're going to meet Barcelona with Robert Lewandowski," said Bayern forward Thomas Müller, who played alongside the Poland international for eight years.

Inter Milan is another former champion in a group that boasts a combined 14 European Cup or Champions League titles. Viktoria Plzeň of the Czech Republic is the fourth team in Group C where only the top two advance to the round of 16.

Multiple Greyhounds defenders work to bring down Adrian's quarterback in last season's postseason victory in Henry County. Windsor and Adrian meet again in this year's Week 1 season opener Friday night.

Windsor begins with familiar foe under new coach

By Bryan Everson
bryane@sedaliademocrat.com

Just as familiar to Windsor football fans Friday night as its own returners will be the team that lines up opposite of the Greyhounds.

The last time the Greyhounds took the field at home, it was Adrian they beat, 36-12, in last year's Class 1 state tournament. However, things will look relatively different when the programs take the field for Friday night's season opener.

All three of Windsor's first-team Class 1 All-State players have graduated. That includes running back Dalton Witherspoon, who not only rushed 204 times for 1,931 yards and 28 touchdowns as a senior, but also caught 28 passes for 734 and 10 scores. Another was his brother, Dylan, who threw for 1,404 and 20 TDs, and also ran it for 686 yards and 10 TDs. On defense, the brothers combined for over 100 tackles and a handful of sacks and interceptions, too.

Gabriel Hesse, a two-way player in the trenches, is the third from that bunch, and that doesn't include third-team all-state defensive end Corbin Terry, who tied for the team lead in sacks (five) and led in QB hurries (17). Now, coming off the graduation of those players who helped Windsor to a three-year run that included a Class 1 State Championship and 37 wins, Jake Vencill departed to take the offensive coordinator position at Washington High School, paving the way for a new era of Greyhounds football under Chuck Speer.

Like Vencill's new program, Speer has been a coach — primarily a head coach — all the way up at the Class 5 level. He was in Arkansas for over 15 years, and came to Henry County after his most recent stint as an offensive coordinator at El Dorado Springs. It's a smaller setting like his newest post that Speer says suits him best.

"I've really had the most fun coaching kids in a small community that loves football," Speer said. "Windsor checked all those boxes for me. I'd heard lots of great things [beforehand] and kind of jumped at the opportunity."

Being a coordinator at El Dorado Springs had its benefits.

"One of the big differences is I'm not coaching my son anymore," the coach said, referring to his son, Logan, a 6-foot-5 tight end who is now a freshman at Missouri Southern State. "The last two years I didn't have to be a head coach and it turned out for the best. I took the assistant role and it probably saved our relationship, turned out for the best."

Back in the driver's seat with Windsor, some of the characteristics of the program will remain through the regime change according to Speer. "What stays the same is hard-working, well-educated football minds on the field," he said. "It's easy to coach them when they know the process. Coach Vencill did a good job of educating them on the whole aspect of football, not just one play at a time."

What will change along with some of the personnel is the system offensively.

"We'll be a run-heavy team," Speer said. "In the past, [Windsor] did a lot of spread stuff with the two Witherspoon boys. We'll be more of a run-right-at-you kind of team. "I don't want to give away too much, but we want to be multifaceted."

Thunder No. 2 pick Holmgren to miss season with foot injury

By Cliff Brunt
AP Sports Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma City forward Chet Holmgren, the No. 2 pick in this year's NBA draft, will miss the 2022-23 season with a right foot injury.

The 7-footer was hurt while playing in a pro-am game last weekend in Seattle, near where he starred last season for Gonzaga, and the Thunder announced Thursday that he sustained a Lisfranc injury. Video appeared to show Holmgren was hurt on a play while defending a LeBron James drive to the basket on a fast break.

Presti said Holmgren will have surgery to repair the ruptured tendon on a date that hasn't been determined and he expects Holmgren to be ready for the 2023-24 season.

"Long-term prognosis is obviously very positive for this," Presti said. "We've consulted with three of the Oklahoma City Thunder forward Chet Holmgren (7) runs the court against the Memphis Grizzlies during an NBA summer league basketball game Wednesday, July 6, 2022, in Salt Lake City. Holmgren, the No. 2 pick in the NBA draft, will miss the 2022-23 season because of a right foot injury, the Oklahoma City Thunder announced Thursday, Aug. 25, 2022.

top foot specialists in the country. Everybody is in agreement that this is kind of like a wrong place, wrong time situation and he's going to make a full recovery."

His injury is a significant blow for a franchise that has not won a playoff series since Kevin Durant left for Golden State in 2016 and has had two straight losing seasons.

Holmgren averaged 14.1 points and 9.9 rebounds last season for Gonzaga and was fourth in the nation with 3.7 blocked shots per game.

Serena Williams prepares to retire as US Open ends Slam year

By Howard Fendrich
AP Tennis Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Thanks to Serena Williams, this U.S. Open will be like none other.

Whether or not it actually does turn out to be the final event of her lengthy, storied and influential playing career — and in professional tennis, perhaps more than in any other sport, goodbyes sometimes end up being see-you-again — the two-week hard-court tournament that begins Monday at Flushing Meadows and wraps up the 2022 Grand Slam calendar will be, first and foremost, about Williams.

As long as she remains in the field, at least.

That's fitting, because so much of the past two decades and then some of tennis, in general, and at the U.S. Open, in particular, have been about Williams, who turns 41 next month. There is that unmistakable skill with a racket in hand and undiminishable drive to be the best that led to 23 major singles championships, the No. 1 ranking and Olympic gold medals, and that transcendent, attention-demanding quality that made her a celebrity as much as a superstar athlete.

"In my view, she revolutionized tennis," said Chris Evert, who won 18 majors in the 1970s and 1980s. "She revolutionized the power in the game. And I feel like she really inspired women of color, because we've seen a lot more women of color playing the game. And I think that she's changed the way women compete, as far as it's OK to be ferocious and passionate and vocal out there, emotional out there on the court, and still be a woman."

The ways in which Williams — and, to be sure, her older sister, 42-year-old Venus, the owner of seven Slam singles titles herself and Serena's partner for 14 major doubles trophies — changed the game are varied and numerous, and extend beyond the way their speedy serves and booming groundstrokes prompted, or even forced, other players to try to either match that style or figure out how to try to counter it.

"There was something inside both of them," said Rick Macci, a tennis coach who worked with both Williams siblings in the early 1990s, starting before they were teenagers. "When we competed or did competitive drills, I just saw something I never saw. They tried so hard to get to a ball, they almost fell over. Now you can try hard; that doesn't mean you're going to be world champion. But it was just another level."

Williams has said she doesn't know how to define her legacy, but it is all around, whether embodied by players who credit her with being an inspiration, such as French Open runner-up Coco Gauff, or in rules changes that clearly, or at least likely, are a product of episodes involving her.

One example: A line can be drawn to the decision this year by the U.S. Tennis Association to allow in-match coaching for women and men at a Grand Slam tournament for the first time from the chaotic 2018 U.S. Open final in which Williams ended up being docked a game after being warned about receiving instructions from her then-coach, Patrick Mouratoglou, during a loss to Naomi Osaka.

Another example: The proliferation of electronic line-calling, to the point that there are no line judges at U.S. Open matches anymore, can be traced back to a 2004 quarterfinal match at Flushing Meadows in which multiple erroneous rulings went against Williams during a loss to Jennifer Capriati.

At the U.S. Open alone, there were other run-ins with officials (Who can forget the foot-fault brouhaha in her 2009 semifinal against Kim Clijsters), groundbreaking fashion choices (A catsuit in 2002; knee-high boots two years later) and plenty of triumphs, dating all the way back to 1999, when a 17-year-old Williams beat Martina Hingis for her initial Grand Slam trophy.

So Arthur Ashe Stadium would provide a fitting backdrop for a farewell, although Williams did not quite explicitly say that she would never compete again after the U.S. Open while telling the world via an essay in Vogue magazine that she was prepared to begin "evolving away from tennis" to focus on having a second child and pursuing her business interests.

Every time she steps on court in New York will be treated as if it might be the last time. That will begin with a first-round match against Danka Kovinic, a 27-year-old from Montenegro who is ranked 80th and has never been past the third round at a major tournament.

It will be only the fifth singles match for Williams over the past 12 months, because the American was off the tour from a first-round injury at Wimbledon last year until a first-round loss there this year. Since returning from that hiatus, Williams is 1-3, including straight-set defeats against Tokyo Olympics gold medalist Belinda Bencic and 2021 U.S. Open champion Emma Raducanu in her two most recent outings.

Serena Williams holds up the championship trophy after defeating Victoria Azarenka, of Belarus, during the women's singles final of the 2013 U.S. Open tennis tournament, Sunday, Sept. 8, 2013, in New York. The U.S. Open, the year's last Grand Slam tennis tournament, starts Monday. Williams has indicated this will be the last event of her playing career.

There was a time — not all that long ago, in the scheme of things — that Williams was considered the favorite in every match and at every tournament, especially at the four events that matter the most in the sport.

"I say: Don't underestimate her," said Evert, an ESPN analyst. "But the problem is the field. The problem is everybody else is getting better, too. ... There's a lot of good players out there now who, No. 1, aren't intimidated by her; and No. 2, know that she's not at her best at the moment; and No. 3, want to beat her."

Two days before her loss to Bencic in Toronto, and a day before revealing her thoughts about retirement (a word she said she dislikes), Williams said at a news conference: "I can't do this forever."

That's true, of course. No one, though, expects this to be the last the world hears of her, even if there really aren't any matches left to play.

"At the end of the day, her biggest stage was tennis," said Macci, the Williams' coach from years ago, "but I think her greatest act is yet to come."

HOROSCOPES

By Georgia Nicols

Moon Alert: Caution! Avoid shopping or major decisions from 2:45 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. EDT today (all day until 5:30 p.m. PDT). After that, the Moon moves from Leo into Virgo.

Happy Birthday for Friday, Aug. 26, 2022:

You are calm, levelheaded, practical and intelligent. Fair and optimistic, you have high standards in everything you do. Simplicity is the key to your world this year. Work to create solid foundations, either physically in a tangible way or internal structures in your mind. Solidify your security for the future.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ Note to parents: This is an accident-prone day for your kids, so please be vigilant. Know where your kids are at all times. Meanwhile, social plans might suddenly change today. An event might be delayed or canceled. Guard against sports accidents. Romantic partners might stir the pot just to see the fur fly. Tonight: Stay flexible.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ Do what you can to keep peace and harmony at home, because something unexpected will take place. It might impact your finances. It might suddenly change the appearance of your home. Stock the fridge, because surprise company might drop by. Don't shop for anything except for food and gas until the Moon Alert is over. Tonight: Stay calm.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ This is an interesting day! An impulsive short trip might be one reason you see new places and meet new faces. You also will hear interesting news, because today is full of detours, changes and stimulating surprises. Pay attention to everything you do to avoid accidents. Tonight: Something unexpected.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Be aware of the restrictions of the Moon Alert if doing financial transactions today. Do not shop or agree to anything important until the Moon Alert is over. Meanwhile, guard your possessions against loss, theft or damage. Tonight: Be on guard.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Today you seek excitement and stimulation, especially through romance. Unfortunately, you might be tempted to provoke a fight to gratify your need for some thrills and chills. It's a flirtatious day full of impulsive energy that could take you anywhere. Tonight: Stay calm.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ This is a restless day. You have that feeling you're waiting for the other shoe to drop. Something going on behind the scenes might surprise you. Or perhaps you are waiting for something to take place. There is a subtle, electrical undercurrent to this day. Tonight: A surprise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★ Friendships are subject to sudden changes today. A friend might surprise you by doing or saying something you least expect. Or perhaps you will meet someone who is a real character -- fascinating but unusual. Maybe your involvement with a club will change. Tonight: Pay attention.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ Relations with parents, bosses and the police are unpredictable today. Be careful if you have something to hide, because you might get busted. If something goes awry, never underestimate the power of courtesy. Don't volunteer for anything. Tonight: Be aware.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Travel plans might be changed or canceled today. Likewise, issues related to legal matters, medical situations or anything to do with the media or higher education are subject to explosive energy and changes. You're not standing around getting dusty. Tonight: Delays.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★ Check banking details today, because something might interrupt your ability to access your money. Meanwhile, unexpected changes might occur that affect arrangements in place regarding inheritances and insurance matters. Agree to nothing important today because of the Moon Alert. Some of you might receive a windfall, or not. Tonight: Check your finances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★ A partner, spouse or friend might do something that surprises you today. They might want to change the terms of the relationship. They might introduce you to someone who is different or unusual. Agree to nothing important until after the Moon Alert is over. Tonight: Patience.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ Issues related to your health are unpredictable today. Something might surprise you. Likewise, something related to your pets might catch you off guard. (This could be an accident-prone day for your pet.) Meanwhile, disruptions to your job are likely, especially with co-workers. Tonight: Stay chill.

He had a strong summer league performance, giving Thunder fans hope that the team's potential superstar of the future soon would be making a difference.

"He was just having a monster summer," Presti said. "He's been playing with tons of NBA players over the course of the summer and getting better and better and better. In this case, we are just going to have to wait a little bit longer for his presence to actually take the floor for us."

Presti has no issue with Holmgren having participated in the Pro Am event and said such games and venues are approved by the league. The game, which also featured Celtics All-Star Jayson Tatum, had to be stopped because of the floor conditions, though that didn't appear to cause Holmgren's injury.

"Guys are playing all over the place all the time, everywhere," Presti said. "If you have players that love to play, they are going to play basketball. Every time you step on a basketball court, something like this could happen. It could happen in a game. It could happen in a practice. It could happen in a scrimmage. ... It's just part of it."

Presti said the injury won't prompt the Thunder to give up and tank for a better position in the 2023 draft, as some fans have suggested.

"We just have to focus on what we can control, and I think that we have a group of guys that will continually get better for quite a long time," he said. "But we're still scaling the mountain in the Western Conference, and we have to see where that goes. We come into every season the same way since 2008, which is we have to wait to see how the season unfolds."

Skeptics pointed to Holmgren's slender build as a liability and a reason he perhaps should not have been drafted so early. The year offers him time to add to his 195-pound frame, among other things.

"He's going to get better just by getting stronger, just by seeing things differently, just by learning the NBA," Presti said. "All that's going to be happening. He's going to be able to shoot. He's going to be able to do a lot of things with the ball."

A high draft pick having to sit out his first NBA season isn't unprecedented, and in some cases it hasn't stopped players from reaching All-Star or even MVP-caliber levels.

Ben Simmons went No. 1 overall in 2016 and missed the following season with a foot injury. Blake Griffin was the top pick in 2009 but had to sit while recovering from a knee injury, as was the case with No. 1 selection Greg Oden in 2007.

It even happened previously to the Thunder franchise: Nick Collison was the No. 12 pick in the 2003 draft by Seattle, unable to play that following season with shoulder issues. Collison went on to spend his entire career with the Thunder, getting his No. 4 jersey retired — the first such honor bestowed by the team in the Oklahoma City era — and remains part of the team's front office.

There have been other instances of lottery picks missing what could have been their rookie years, including Jonas Valanciunas — the No. 5 selection in 2011 — not being able to join the Toronto Raptors until a year later because of his contract status with his European team at the time. Dario Saric and Ricky Rubio were lottery picks who played with their overseas clubs for two more years before coming to the NBA.

Presti isn't worried about Holmgren long term and believes his drive will allow him to handle the recovery process well.

"I think he's well-positioned to do a good job with it," Presti said. "There's going to be some tough times now, don't get me wrong, but he's got what it takes and he'll be ready when he's ready to come back. I think he'll be a force."

Real Madrid has 14 titles of its own and will defend the trophy in a group with Leipzig, Shakhtar Donetsk and Celtic.

Shakhtar hosted Madrid in Kyiv last October — and lost 5-0 — but now cannot play in Ukraine during the Russian military invasion. Shakhtar will play "home" games in Warsaw in neighboring Poland. UEFA has banned all Russian teams from its competitions.

Messi will try for a second year to bring a first European title to Paris Saint-Germain, which landed in a group with a pair of two-time champions — Juventus and Benfica — plus Maccabi Haifa.

Another reunion after a blockbuster offseason move will see Manchester City's star signing Erling Haaland going back to his old club Borussia Dortmund. That group also includes Sevilla and Copenhagen.

Coach Pep Guardiola's team shapes as the early favorite for a first Champions League title in his seventh season and beat Dortmund — when it still had Haaland — 2-1 in both legs in the quarterfinals of the 2020-21 edition.

Liverpool and Rangers will have a rare England-Scotland clash in the Champions League. Their Group A that also includes Ajax and Napoli and promises a pulsating atmosphere in each stadium.

"This is a proper challenge," Liverpool coach Jürgen Klopp said. "All of the clubs have quality, they all have pedigree and I would say they all have a chance."

UEFA will announce a fixture schedule by Saturday. The Champions League starts early this season on Sept. 6 and ends five weeks sooner than usual on Nov. 2. That is because of the World Cup in Qatar, which starts Nov. 20.

After six rounds of games spanning just eight full weeks, a three-month pause is taken before the round of 16 starts in February.

Fixture congestion caused by the first World Cup played in the European winter means the Champions League final is on June 10 at the Atatürk Olympic Stadium in Istanbul, the city that hosted the draw ceremony Thursday.

It's the latest scheduled final since the inaugural European Cup title match in 1956.

The 32 teams will share about 2 billion euros ($1.99 billion) in UEFA prize money.

Each team gets a basic fee of 15.6 million euros ($15.5 million), plus 2.8 million euros ($2.78 million) per win and 930,000 euros ($924,000) for each draw in the group stage. Payments increase for advancing through each knockout round.

It all adds up to the eventual champion getting around 125 million euros ($124 million) in UEFA prize money.

Goldschmidt increased his season RBI total to 105, and this marked the third time this season he had a multi-homer game and the 23rd time in his career. Goldschmidt leads the NL in batting average (.339) and RBIs and is second to Kyle Schwarber of the Phillies (35) in home runs.

Dickerson set a franchise record with 10 hits in 10 consecutive plate appearances in the post-1961 expansion era dating to his first of two consecutive four-hit games in the second game of Tuesday's doubleheader.

Dickerson sparked a three-run first inning with an RBI single — for his ninth consecutive hit, breaking the previous mark of eight held by Curt Flood (1964, 1968), Felix Jose (1991) and Fernando Tatis (1998). Dickerson also had a single to start the third but was left stranded.

Nevertheless, the Cardinals collected 11 hits off starter Marcus Stroman (3-6), one more than Stroman surrendered against them on June 3.

Nolan Gorman followed Dickerson's first hit with an RBI single, and Tyler O'Neill capped the rally with a sacrifice fly.

Cubs left fielder Ian Happ leaped into the ivy-covered wall to rob extra bases hits from Gorman in the third and O'Neill in the seventh. Happ provided the bulk of the Cubs' offense. Happ hit a double and scored on a throwing error by Edman in the second, and he followed with an RBI single in the third.

Happ hit a double that eluded Cardinals right fielder Lars Nootbaar to score Nico Hoerner in the eighth off Packy Naughton.

NO TRIPPING TO

TORONTO

The Cubs expect that three to four players won't travel to Toronto for a three-game series starting Monday, Cubs' President of Business Operations Jed Hoyer said.

Canada's government states that all visitors must be vaccinated in order to enter the country.

"You want to play at full strength all the time, but we have to make certain decisions in order to make sure we're able to fill out a roster and be competitive up there," Hoyer said. "It's not something we look forward to. It's not ideal. But it's also baseball in 2022 when you go to Toronto."

Hoyer said the names of the players will be disclosed Sunday in Milwaukee.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Cubs: C Willson Contreras (sore left ankle) missed his third consecutive start but is expected to return as soon as Friday. ... RHP Adbert Alzolay (right shoulder strain) was scheduled to throw a bullpen session Thursday at Triple-A Iowa. ... RHP Manny Rodriguez (right elbow strain) is scheduled to pitch this weekend for Iowa. Rodriguez has struck out five in his last two outings for Iowa.

TRANSACTIONS

Cardinals: RHP Ryan Helsley will rejoin the team Friday, manager Oliver Marmol said. Helsley was placed on the restricted list following the birth of his wife Alex's first child.

UP NEXT

Cardinals: Will start LHP Jose Quintana (4-5, 3.45 ERA) Friday night at Atlanta. Quintana allowed four runs (two earned) in a season-low 2 2/3 innings in a 6-4 win Sunday over the Diamondbacks.

Cubs: Will start LHP Justin Steele (4-7, 3.25) Friday night at Milwaukee. Steele pitched six shutout innings Sunday in a 5-2 loss to the Brewers.

The main style will be where we'll run a wing-t style offense, but move back far enough where we can move back into spread easily with some of those concepts."

Now a senior, another Witherspoon, Payton, slots in at QB after running for 332 yards in 2021. He's also got back juniors Seth Roberts and Parker Craig, a duo that combined for 562 yards and eight TDs on the ground last fall.

Some of the defensive starters return, including

Kaleb Eaton (five sacks in 2021), Witherspoon and Roberts, as does last year's leading tackler, Dusty Johnson, though he'll be absent from the Adrian contest (one-game suspension). That side of the ball looked stout at the team's jamboree according to Speer, preventing any touch-downs and allowing less than 50 yards.

After Adrian, who Windsor also got the better of in the playoffs in 2019, the Greyhounds get another challenging home opponent in Cole Camp. It's an imposing schedule for a program that's set a high bar in recent years, but Speer said he isn't feeling any heat, at least not as of Wednesday night.

"It might be different at 6:30 p.m. on Friday night, but I'm not really feeling the pressure," Speer said. "If everything doesn't go great off the bat, I'm sure I'll feel a little more, but I'm confident with the staff we have. My pressure is in every day trying to do what I think is right to get our kids and us ready. If I'm doing that, Friday's should take care of themselves."

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Hit (and run) TV

Ian Pirie, Mark Bonnar and Emun Elliott in "Guilt"

There is no denying TV fans love a good bit of crime. Whether it comes in the form of a true crime documentary, a laugh-out-loud heist comedy or, as is the case with the Scottish series "Guilt," a darkly comedic thriller, nothing gets the blood flowing like murder on the small screen. Returning to PBS Sunday, Aug. 28, for its second season, "Guilt" ups the ante following the first season's hit-and-run accident.

WHAT'S NEW ON HULU

"The Patient"

Prepare yourself to deal with the past when the new FX thriller "The Patient" premieres Tuesday, Aug. 30, on Hulu. Starring Steve Carell ("The Office") as therapist Alan Strauss, this 10-episode miniseries follows the widowed doctor as he is held captive by his patient, Sam Fortner (played by Domhnall Gleeson, "Star Wars: Episode VII - The Force Awakens," 2015). Sam, who reveals himself to be a serial killer, comes to Alan with the most unusual demand of his career: help him curb his homicidal urges. As Alan attempts to unwind Sam's disturbed mind and stop him from killing again, he grapples with Sam's refusal to address some critical topics while dealing with his own repressed troubles. Throughout the course of the series, Alan learns not only how deeply disturbed his patient is, but how much work he needs to do in his own life. From FX Productions, the series is executive produced by Carell, Caroline Moore ("Cedar Cove"), Victor Hsu ("Transparent") and Joseph Weisberg, Chris Long and Joel Fields of "The Americans." Written by Fields and Weisberg, "The Patient" also stars David Alan Grier ("Joe Pickett"), Linda Emond ("Lodge 49"), Laura Niemi ("This Is Us"), Alex Rich ("Genius"), Amy Handelman ("Friend Zone: The Series") and Andrew Leeds ("Zoey's Extraordinary Playlist").

WHAT'S NEW ON NETFLIX

"I Came By"

The new British crime thriller "I Came By" premieres on Netflix Wednesday, Aug. 31. Young, determined and with a point to prove, rebellious graffiti artists Toby (George MacKay, "Munich: The Edge of War," 2021) and Jay (Perelle Scott, "The Innocents") target the homes of London's wealthy elite, breaking into the properties before marking them with the tag "I Came By." But, one fateful night, Toby gets in over his head when he breaks into the home of former

WHAT'S NEW ON DISNEY+

"America's National Parks" - Season 1

Celebrate the natural wonder and power of your own backyard with the National Geographic series "America's National Parks," premiering on Disney+ Wednesday, Aug. 31. Showcasing North America's wildlife and incredible wilderness as they've never been seen before, each of this docuseries' eight episodes travels to a different American park, starting with Washington's Olympic National Park, one the continent's most diverse. Next, the series travels through Yosemite (California), the Everglades (Florida), the Gates of the Arctic (Alaska), Yellowstone (Wyoming, Montana, Idaho), Saguaro (Arizona), the Grand Canyon (Arizona) and, finally, the Great Smoky Mountains (North Carolina, Tennessee). By exploring the diverse flora and fauna of each park, "America's National Parks" looks at all the incredible things that make the United States unique. Narrated by country music star Garth Brooks ("Friends in Low Places"), the series is produced by Wildstar Films for National Geographic.
