Summer Food Program keeps feeding hungry kids

610 meals served just Wednesday

By Chris Howell
chrish@sedaliademocrat.com

The 2023 Summer Food Service Program is serving free lunches to kids needing a meal while school is out.

Summer Food Coordinator Sue Foster runs the program from the Smith-Cotton Junior High School kitchen, kindly provided by Sedalia School District 200.

The program is sponsored by Heart of America ReDistribution Solutions and Support and was started by Foster 13 years ago.

"I saw an article in the paper, a little three-line blip on the front page about wanting sponsors to do a food program for kids in the summertime when school's not session and kids weren't being fed." Foster said. "I looked into it, got all the paperwork signed, turned it in and was accepted as a sponsor."

On Wednesday, June 21, volunteers and staff efficiently prepared, packaged and delivered stack after stack of meals.

"This program is funded by the USDA, and it's administered by the Department of Health and Senior Services," Foster stressed. "Today, we're sending out 610 meals. A meal has to meet certain components as required by the state to have two ounces of protein, four ounces of fruit, four ounces of vegetables, milk, and some type of a whole-grain bread."

Summer Food Service Program Daily Schedule
11 to 11:30 a.m.: Vermont Park
11:30 a.m. to noon: Centennial Park
11:30 a.m. to noon: Liberty Park
11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.: New Life Ministries
11:45 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.: Lone Pine mobile home park
Noon to 12:30 p.m.: Housel Park
Noon to 12:30 p.m.: Sunset Village mobile home park
12:15 to 12:45 p.m.: Katy Park
12:30 to 1 p.m.: Homestead mobile home park

Brody Von Moss volunteers a few days a week, and as he learns tasks with job coach Abigale Ingalls, he helps gather the meals as they exit the packaging machine.

"Brody, are you ready to catch trays?" Ingalls asked.

Brody nods and gets ready to help.

"I like it," Brody told the Democrat. "I count 20 sporks."

Ingalls gently guides Brody to the next task and the group assembles the meals for hungry local kids.

"He's an incredible individual," Ingalls said of Brody. "He is a hard worker, he's very consistent, and he picks up things quicker and quicker the more he does them. I feel grateful just to work with Brody."

"It takes a big volunteer effort, we have sites where we go," Foster said. "We're in city parks, we're in the mobile home parks, we have some reading programs we're doing. We have volunteers from churches and just the community at large that comes, and we also have nine paid staff. This is very rewarding to whoever works with it because they keep coming back year after year. I have volunteers and staff that have been here 13 years, since we started this."

Tyson Foods donates chicken as well as Con Agra from Marshall. Donations keep costs down and healthy choices available for hungry kids.

Sedalia Relay for Life exceeds goals

By Faith Bemiss
fbemiss@sedaliademocrat.com

The Pettis County Relay for Life event hosted June 3 at Liberty Park and sponsored by the American Cancer Society exceeded expectations.

Andrea Curtis, a Relay for Life co-lead with Kara Sheeley, said the goal was to have 200 people registered for the 2023 Sedalia event, but they had more than 300, with more than 600 people attending. The event is a community-based annual fundraiser for the American Cancer Society. During the event, teams take turns walking or running around a track or path from 4 to 11 p.m. According to the ACS, the relay takes place in more than 20 countries.

"It's our biggest event that we've had since 2019, since COVID," Curtis explained. "So, we've been building up, and we've been working on getting (it) back up.

"Pre-COVID, we were making close to $70,000," she continued. "And then our first year back from COVID, we made right around $30,000. So, we set a goal to be at $55,000 this year, and at the end of the event, we were at $59,500."

Placing first in the relay were the Skyline Pink Warriors team – Captain Ariel Spellmeyer, Tina Emery and Tammy Thomas – who raised $14,500. Coming in second place was Bothwell Regional Health Center with $7,200. Taking third place was Alpha Delta Kappa with $5,300.

Math & reading scores for 13-year-olds plunge to lowest levels in decades

By Collin Binkley
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Math and reading scores among America's 13-year-olds fell to their lowest levels in decades, with math scores plunging by the largest margin ever recorded, according to the results of a federal test known as the nation's report card.

The results, released Wednesday, are the latest measure of the deep learning setbacks incurred during the pandemic. While earlier testing revealed the magnitude of America's learning loss, the latest test casts light on the persistence of those setbacks, dimming hopes of swift academic recovery.

More than two years after most students returned to in-person class, there are still "worrisome signs about student achievement," said Peggy G. Carr, commissioner of the National Center for Education Statistics, a branch of the federal Education Department.

"The 'green shoots' of academic recovery that we had hoped to see have not materialized," Carr said in a statement.

In the national sample of 13-year-old students, average math scores fell by 9 points between 2020 and 2023. Reading scores fell by 4 points. The test, formally called the National Assessment of Educational Progress, was administered from October to December last year to 8,700 students in each subject.

Similar setbacks were reported last year when NAEP released broader results showing the pandemic's impact on America's fourth- and eighth-grade students.

Math and reading scores had been sliding before the pandemic, but the latest results show a precipitous drop that erases earlier gains in the years leading up to 2012. Scores on the math exam, which has been given since 1973, are now at their lowest levels since 1990. Reading scores are their lowest since 2004.

Especially alarming to officials were outsize decreases among the lowest-performing students. Students at all achievement levels saw decreases, but while stronger students saw slides of 6 to 8 points, lower performing students saw decreases of 12 to 14 points, the results show.

There were also differences by race. Students from almost every race and ethnicity saw math scores slide, but the steepest drops were among American Indian students, at 20 points, and Black students, at 13 points. The decline for white students, by comparison, was 6 points, while Asian students held even.

The scores reflect the disproportionate impact of the pandemic's disruptions on Black and Latino students and those from low-income families, said Denise Forte, president and CEO of the Education Trust, a nonprofit advocacy group.

OBITUARIES

Leila Elzena Anderson

Leila Elzena Anderson, age 89, of Houstonia, Missouri, passed away Thursday, June 15, 2023, at her home in Houstonia.

Leila was born April 20, 1934, north of La Monte, Missouri, the daughter of Thomas H. and Elzena (McMullen) Faulconer. She married Gary Dean Anderson on June 1, 1957. They honeymooned in Chimney Rock, North Carolina, on the way to Camp Lejeune, where Gary finished up his Marine Corps service.

Leila loved gardening, sewing, and reading. She had a large garden and would harvest wheelbarrows full of cantaloupe, zucchini, and tomatoes. Once she stopped gardening due to health issues, she had much more time for sewing and reading. She taught 4-H sewing for years, along with crocheting. She was a brilliant seamstress and sewed clothes for the family, reupholstered numerous chairs and sofas, made costumes for 4-H floats and high school plays, and even a tiger costume for one of her great-grandchildren. Leila was always intrigued by color and pattern and used both in many aspects of her life.

She was preceded in death by her parents, her husband, Gary, her brother, Thomas Eugene Faulconer, and her sister, Mary Ellen Miller.

She is survived by a daughter, Debbie Perkowski and husband Mike; a son, David Anderson and wife Susan Eddleman; three grandchildren, Theron Perkowski and wife Rachel, Max Anderson and wife Hannah, and Aurel Tate and husband Adam; and four great-grandchildren, Trevor Perkowski, and Margot, Elias and Ebba Anderson.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, June 26, 2023, at Campbell-Lewis Chapel in Sweet Springs, Missouri. Visitation will be held from 10 to 11 a.m. Monday at the funeral home. Interment will be in La Monte Cemetery.

Memorial contributions are suggested to the American Cancer Society and may be left in care of Campbell-Lewis Funeral Home, 226 S. Odell, Marshall, MO 65340. Friends may sign the online register book at www.campbell-lewis.com.

For a picnic or summer table, Tortellini Salad adds color & flavor

By Katie Workman
Associated Press

Even though you can serve tortellini salad all year round, it feels like the perfect dish for summer. It speaks of picnics and potlucks, it's easy to make in a big batch, and people go nuts for it.

There are so many types of filled tortellini available, even in just a well-stocked grocery store. In a supermarket in Connecticut, I found these types of tortellini: Three Cheese; Spinach and Ricotta; Chicken and Roasted Garlic, Sweet Italian Sausage; Herb Chicken; Chicken and Prosciutto; and Spinach and Cheese. That's a lot of choices, right there!

Any of them will work just fine.

I like to use a vegetarian cheese-filled tortellini for this salad. I always look to keep side dishes vegetarian if possible, so everyone can enjoy them, and I also think they hold better at room temperature.

This is a colorful salad, and you can make it even moreso by using multi-colored tortellini. Switch up the vegetables as you like, depending on what you have on hand, and what looks good at the market. I like a combo of grape or cherry tomatoes, spinach and onions. Artichoke hearts and olives add nice briny flavor.

THE CHEESE AND PESTO

As for the mozzarella, see if you can find the perlini-sized mozzarella balls, named because they are "pearl-size," and then you can use them as is. BelGioioso and Galbani are two brands to look for.

Or, if you find slightly larger little balls, like bocconcini, just halve or quarter them into bite-size pieces. Large balls of mozzarella can be cubed and added. Or try smoked mozzarella for a change of pace; just dice it up.

For the pesto dressing, you can use either homemade or store-bought pesto. The small amount here gives the salad a wonderful, basil-garlicky-Parmesan flavor. Feel free to add more if you want a more pronounced pesto flavor. If you have nut allergy concerns, make sure your pesto is nut-free.

LOTS OF ROOM TO ADD AND SUBSTITUTE

This pasta salad is terrific as written, but you can also add more ingredients. For instance:

For a salad that meat lovers will enjoy, consider adding salami, either sliced or cut into matchsticks. (If you like the tortellini salad from Costco, you know that lots of salami is part of its appeal. It makes it more of an antipasti tortellini salad.) Crumbled cooked bacon or pancetta is another option.

Besides the vegetables in the recipe below, you might add bite-size pieces of other vegetables — perhaps grilled, steamed or roasted broccoli, cauliflower or asparagus. Consider adding pepperoncini or drained jarred antipasti salad. Sub in baby kale for the spinach, and try scallions instead of red onions.

Tortellini salad will keep for up to four days in the fridge. You can serve it cold, or I prefer bringing it to room temperature for about 15 minutes before serving to take the chill off, and allow the flavors to come forward more.

TORTELLINI SALAD

Serves 8

Ingredients:

1 (16- to 20-ounce) package refrigerated tortellini

2 tablespoons olive oil

1 pint cherry or grape tomatoes, halved

8 ounces mini mozzarella balls, halved, quartered, or cubed if large

1 cup roughly chopped baby spinach

1 (15-ounce can) artichoke hearts, roughly sliced or chopped

½ cup olives, any color, any type, drained and halved

½ cup diced red onion

Dressing:

3 tablespoons basil pesto, store-bought or homemade

3 tablespoons olive oil

2 tablespoons white wine vinegar

Kosher salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

2 tablespoons finely grated Parmesan cheese (optional)

¼ cup torn or chiffonaded basil leaves

Directions:

Cook the tortellini according to package instructions. Drain, rinse quickly with cool water, and immediately toss with 2 tablespoons olive oil and spread out on a rimmed baking sheet to cool to room temperature.

Meanwhile, combine the tomatoes, mozzarella, spinach, artichoke hearts, olives and onion in a large serving bowl.

Make the dressing: In a small container or bowl, combine the pesto, 3 tablespoons olive oil, vinegar, salt and pepper, and the Parmesan if using.

Add the cooled tortellini to the bowl, drizzle over the dressing and toss to combine. Sprinkle the basil over it and serve.

GROWING LOCAL AGRICULTURE

Responding to drought management issues

By Gene Schmitz
University of Missouri Extension

Drought is the major topic of discussion for area livestock producers for good reason.

The U.S. Drought Monitor has many counties in west central and central Missouri listed in the D2 (severe) or D3 (extreme) categories. Data from the Green Ridge automated weather station indicate only one rainfall event over 1 inch so far during 2023. This occurred on June 11. As of June 14, the station has recorded 8.67 inches of rainfall compared to the long-term average precipitation in Sedalia of 21.94 inches for the same time period.

We also know periods of dry weather or droughts occur nearly every year somewhere in Missouri. So with these facts in mind, it seems reasonable to break out drought response into three categories: 1) immediate needs, 2) mid-term options, and 3) long-term options.

Immediate needs focus on reducing forage demand and/or increasing forage utilization. This includes options such as culling, sub-dividing pastures and minimizing hay storage and feeding waste.

Mid-term options would include items such as planning ahead for potential silage storage and feeding, fertilizing pastures for fall stockpiling, learning to utilize and manage strip-grazing, and adjusting calf weaning times.

Looking for some information about agriculture and its impact on the region? The Democrat publishes a monthly column from the MU Extension Office. For more information, contact MU Extension at 660-827-0591.

Long-term options include expanding the forage base to include native warm season grasses, getting access to summer and winter annual forages for hay/grazing, and developing water sources to facilitate managed grazing systems or to provide small acreage, low pressure irrigation systems.

Management and economic implications of these options need to be carefully planned and thought out for individual operations. However, expecting to come through the type of drought situation we are currently experiencing without making management adjustments is unrealistic.

With these things in mind, Travis Harper, MU Extension Agronomy Specialist, and I have scheduled two drought management update meetings. We will provide additional details on these and other management options for producers to consider for their operations.

Our first meeting will be from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday, July 10 at the Pettis County Extension Office meeting room, 1012A Thompson Blvd. in Sedalia. Following the meeting, we will have a short tour of the native warm season grass plots at State Fair Community College.

The second meeting will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, July 11 at the Warsaw-Lincoln Ambulance District meeting room in Warsaw. These events will be free of charge and open to the public.

If you are unable to attend either of these events but have questions on drought management concerns, please contact me via email at schmitze@missouri.edu or by calling the Pettis County Extension Center at 660-827-0591.

Gene Schmitz is a Field Specialist in Livestock with the University of Missouri Extension-Pettis County.

Biden calling China's leader a 'dictator' opens new rift just after Blinken's trip

By Ellen Knickmeyer, Josh Boak and Aamer Madhani
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Joe Biden's remarks calling Chinese leader Xi Jinping a "dictator" and China a country with "real economic difficulties" drew fast condemnation from China on Wednesday, cracking open a new rift just after the two countries agreed to tentative steps to stabilize the relationship.

In Beijing, Foreign Ministry spokesperson Mao Ning condemned Biden's unusually pointed comments as "extremely absurd and irresponsible."

The clash of words comes after Secretary of State Antony Blinken concluded a visit to Beijing on Monday that sought to break the ice in a relationship that has hit a historical low. While both sides saw those talks as productive, they did not result in any significant breakthroughs beyond an agreement to return to a broad agenda for cooperation and competition.

China's quick response to Biden, a president known for seemingly off-script remarks that venture beyond his administration's policies, raises questions whether his remarks would undo the limited progress that had been made in Blinken's carefully engineered trip or whether the two sides would move on.

Biden's characterization of China comes as the campaign for next year's presidential election is already taking off, with Republicans accusing him of being weak on China.

Biden also was preparing to welcome Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi to Washington on Wednesday evening for a lavish state visit where a central theme will be a shared wariness of China.

Biden, at a fundraiser in California on Tuesday night, referred back to January and February's two-week overflight of what the U.S. says was a Chinese spy balloon. The balloon's surprise appearance over U.S. skies roiled relations and transfixed the American public.

Speaking to wealthy donors at the event for his 2024 reelection campaign, Biden depicted Xi as out-of-touch and embarrassed by the incident, which ended with the Air Force shooting down the balloon just off the East Coast.

"The reason why Xi Jinping got very upset in terms of when I shot that balloon down with two box cars full of spy equipment is he didn't know it was there," Biden told the crowd.

"No, I'm serious," he added. "That was the great embarrassment for dictators, when they didn't know what happened."

Biden also played down trade competition from China, which is the world's second-biggest economy after the United States but struggling to emerge from COVID-era financial troubles.

"By the way, I promise you, don't worry about China. Worry about China but don't worry about China," Biden said. "I really mean it. China has real economic difficulties."

Biden's remarks came hours after his secretary of state, in an interview with MSNBC, had called for the two countries to put the balloon incident behind them, saying it was a chapter that "should be closed."

In Beijing on Wednesday, Mao told reporters that Biden's remarks "go totally against facts and seriously violate diplomatic protocol, and severely infringe on China's political dignity."

"It is a blatant political provocation," Mao said.

Mao also reiterated China's version of the balloon episode, saying the balloon was for meteorological research and had been accidentally blown off course.

Administration officials signaled Wednesday that Biden had no intention of walking back his comments.

Biden and Blinken have made clear "we will continue to responsibly manage this relationship, maintain open lines of communication with the PRC," Vedant Patel, a State Department spokesman, told reporters, using an abbreviation for the People's Republic of China.

"But that, of course, does not mean we will not be blunt and forthright about our differences," including differences on the global competition between democracies and autocracies, Patel said.

U.S.-China tensions have mounted for years as rivalry builds over trade and global influence. Repeated flare-ups have helped escalate the tensions, including over the balloon, U.S. tariffs, sanctions on China, and self-ruled Taiwan.

The U.S. is pressing China to embrace direct communications between Biden, Xi and other senior U.S. and Chinese military and civilian leaders, as a channel to defuse tensions and keep incidents from escalating into open hostilities.

Despite the administration's diplomatic efforts to soothe relations, analysts point to the Republican political pressure, and note Biden regularly seems to go off-script to criticize Xi.

Bonnie Glaser, Asia director of the George Marshall Fund of the United States, pointed Wednesday to Biden's state of the union address in February, soon after the balloon flight, as Republican lawmakers in the audience heckled him over China and other issues. Waving a finger in the air, Biden cried out, "Name me a world leader who'd change places with Xi Jinping! Name me one! Name me one!"

For Biden, "he's under a lot of criticism from the right. He doesn't want to be seen as soft on China. He views Xi Jinping as a dictator," Glaser said.

"And he's not very good ... at differentiating what should be said in public and what should be said in private," Glaser said. "And the relationship pays a price for it. There's no doubt about it."

Xi was likely upset by the claim that he hadn't been fully informed about the balloon incident, said Steve Tsang, director of the China Institute at the London University School of Oriental and African Studies and a longtime observer of Chinese politics.

"My sense is that Xi may not want to overreact and put the relationship back on ice again," Tsang said in an email.

The initial Republican response to Biden's remarks was approving. "It's an appropriate description of their system of government," Sen. Marco Rubio, the top Republican on the Senate Intelligence Committee, said.

While Xi heads a country formally named the People's Republic of China, he faces no limits on his terms as head of state, commander of the military and leader of the ruling Communist Party, which brooks no challenges to its authority.

In California, Biden had told donors that Xi "wants to have a relationship again."

Blinken "went over there ... did a good job, and it's going to take time," he said.

"Students want to succeed, attend college, start a rewarding career and reach their full academic potential," Forte said. "But they can't if they continue to lose precious ground."

Pandemic setbacks appear to be lingering even as schools across the U.S. spend billions of dollars to help students catch up. The federal government sent historic sums of money to schools in 2021, allowing many to expand tutoring, summer classes and other recovery efforts.

But the nation's 13-year-olds, who were 10 when the pandemic started, are still struggling, Carr said.

"The strongest advice I have is that we need to keep at it," she said. "It is a long road ahead of us."

Education Secretary Miguel Cardona said the results confirm what the Biden administration knew all along: "that the pandemic would have a devastating impact on students' learning across the country and that it would take years of effort and investment to reverse the damage as well as address the 11-year decline that preceded it."

Still, Cardona said he's encouraged by signs of improvement elsewhere, with some states returning to pre-pandemic levels on their own math and reading assessments.

The exam is designed to measure basic skills in math and reading. Students were asked to read passages and identify the main idea or locate certain information. In math, they were asked to perform simple multiplication and tackle basic geometry, calculating, for example, the area of a square. Most questions were multiple choice.

Asked about their reading habits, fewer students than ever say they're reading for fun every day. Just 14% reported daily reading for pleasure — which has been tied to better social and academic outcomes — down from 27% in 2012. Almost a third of students said they never or hardly ever read for fun, up from 22% in 2012.

The test also revealed a troubling increase in student absenteeism. The share of students missing five or more days of schools in a month doubled since 2020, reaching 10% this year. Students with fewer missed days had higher average scores in both reading and math, according to the results.

Meat grown from animal cells? Here's what it is and how it's made

By Laura Ungar and Jonel Aleccia
Associated Press

The U.S. government is allowing the sale of chicken made from animal cells.

California companies Upside Foods and Good Meat were granted permission on Wednesday to sell their products by the Agriculture Department.

Livestock doesn't need to be raised and killed to produce this new type of meat, which proponents say is better for the animals and for the environment because land does not need to be cleared for grazing or growing feed.

Currently, the U.S. uses over 1 billion acres of land for agriculture, or just over half of total land — the majority of which is used for grazing cattle.

WHAT IS IT?

It's meat grown from the cells of animals in steel tanks. Though it's known in the industry as cultivated meat, it's sometimes called cultured meat, lab-grown meat or cell-based meat. There are more than 150 companies around the world trying to develop these food products. They're working on a variety of meats: chicken, beef, pork and lamb.

WHERE CAN YOU GET IT?

At this point, you can't buy these new meats at the grocery store — they will be initially rolled out at restaurants. Consumers can expect cultivated meat to be sold at a growing number of restaurants and small retailers within the next two to five years and on supermarket shelves within seven to 10 years, said Sebastian Bohn, a project manager specializing in cell-based food for CRB, a Missouri firm that designs and builds facilities for pharmaceutical, biotech and food companies.

HOW IS IT MADE?

It starts with cells, which can come from a fertilized egg, a special bank of stored cells or tissue initially taken from a living animal. The cells are mixed with a broth of nutrients that the cells need to grow and divide. Cells are triggered to turn into skeletal muscle, fat and connective tissues. After days or weeks, the cells are removed from the tanks and shaped into products such as nuggets.

The easiest products to make this way are those usually made with ground meat, such as hamburgers and chicken nuggets. Some companies are working on products with more structure, such as chicken breasts and steaks. Those need a scaffold, or structure for the cells to grow on, which can be vegetable-based or made of animal products like collagen.

IS IT REALLY MEAT?

Experts say it's real meat created in a different way. It's not the same as plant-based products such as Impossible burgers, which do not contain animal cells. Some versions of cultivated meat — including Good Meat chicken products — do contain a small amount of vegetable proteins. Upside Foods officials say their meat does not.

WILL PEOPLE BUY IT?

Until this meat costs and tastes the same as traditional meat, "it's going to stay niche," said Bruce Friedrich, president of the Good Food Institute. Also, some people find the idea of meat from cells strange. A recent poll conducted by The Associated Press and the NORC Center for Public Affairs Research found half of U.S. adults said that they are unlikely to try it. When those unlikely to try it were asked why, about half said they didn't think it would be safe. A World Health Organization report on the food safety aspects of cell-based food noted several potential issues, such as microbial contamination at various points in the process, biological residues and by-products and scaffolding that some people might be allergic to. But experts noted that conventional meat also carries risks, such as bacterial contamination before and during the slaughtering and packaging process.

"We have a lot of donations that come in to help offset our costs," Foster said, "and when I can offset a cost, that means I could do a different kind of an entree that may cost a little more."

Ileana Clemons is the lead daycare teacher at Sacred Heart School and relies on the summer feeding program, both at work and at home.

"It's truly a blessing," Clemons said. "Lunches are really hard. I'm a mom, I have three daughters who attend here at Sacred Heart, and it's hard to get them out of the door every morning and pack them a lunch that's going to sustain them all day long."

And the summer food program is looking for more groups of kids to feed.

"We can serve our meals to any kids program with 18 and younger," Foster said. "So we can do vacation Bible schools, we do reading programs, any kind of event that has individuals 18 and younger."

"We get 50 meals, we get a lot of meals here. Last year we got, I think, 75," Clemons said. "It's amazing, no matter how many kids we have, they will get us lunch. Even if more kids show up one day and we don't have enough delivered, they will actually bring us more lunches. It's just an amazing program."

Meals are served Monday through Friday from June 5 to July 31. All sites will be closed July 4. Meals are free for children 18 and younger. Meals must be eaten at the site and cannot be taken to go.

Goals

Curtis added they still have a few more funds to collect in August, but she's pleased they have surpassed their goal.

"We had a goal to have 15 active teams," Curtis said. "And we ended up with 21 teams — so that was great. Our goal was to have one person from every team walking on the track at all times."

Curtis said the funds would go to the American Cancer Society, with most of the funds going to cancer research.

"Cancer will not go away unless we find a cure," she noted. "And so, over $4.6 billion since 1985 from the American Cancer Society has been put toward research. That is a huge chunk of where the funds go."

The rest of the funds will help cancer patients in Pettis County.

"They have a 24/7 call line that any cancer patient can call and get help," Curtis said. "That's for resources and places to go. They provide free screenings, so people can prevent cancer or find it earlier.

"If you have to travel or stay in places where you don't have lodging, they have partnered with many hotels to provide lodging and transportation," she continued. "There are two Hope Lodges in Missouri. There's one in Kansas City and one in St. Louis."

The funds also help with beautification items such as wigs, and some money goes toward legislation.

"ACS has representatives in our Capital Building advocating for laws that go for things that will prevent cancer," she noted. "There's a very high percentage in Missouri, where the restaurants and businesses are smoke-free now."

Advocates are also working on getting tanning laws changed for young people.

Curtis is already planning for next year and noted anybody could make a team.

"We have businesses, we have schools," she said. "We just have friends who have come together that want to fight back against cancer.

"We will look for information this fall," she continued. "If anybody wants to be part of next year, we'll start posting things and getting stuff ready for next year this fall."

DeGondea, Miller hurl Bombers past Mustangs

By Bryan Everson
bryane@sedaliademocrat.com

Things continue to go well for the Sedalia Bombers when Carter DeGondea takes the hill, particularly when they line up against the St. Joseph Mustangs.

DeGondea (3-0) delivered six innings Tuesday night, allowing six hits and four walks while allowing one earned run with three strikeouts in an 8-5 victory over St. Joseph at Liberty Park Stadium.

After conceding just one run over five innings against the Mustangs in a 10-2 victory on June 10, Bombers manager Logan Bexten planned to run it back with DeGondea again Tuesday.

"He's someone that wants the ball, always wants to compete," Bexten said of the RayPec product. "He'll attack with his best stuff and let them make contact, get themselves out and pitch to his strengths."

After allowing multiple baserunners in three of the first four frames –– both runs scored by the Mustangs in the top of the fourth came in unearned after several infield errors –– DeGondea settled down and took care of business swiftly in his final two innings on the bump. In relief, Dalton Miller didn't allow a hit in the seventh and eighth innings.

"Our defense played well the first game [we faced them], but with a lot of lefties, being lefty-on-lefty is good for me," DeGondea said. "Going back to those slider-fastball combos, it worked well today, worked well the other day. [I used] the changeup on righties, but yeah, I think that's the biggest thing.

Javier Báez gets 1,000th hit to lead Tigers over Royals

By Dave Hogg
Associated Press

DETROIT — Zack Short homered and drove in three runs, Javier Báez got his 1,000th career hit and the Detroit Tigers beat the slumping Kansas City Royals 9-4 on Wednesday.

The Royals have lost 15 of 18 games.

Matthew Boyd (5-5) allowed two runs and six hits in six innings for Detroit. He struck out seven without a walk.

"He had a really good changeup and a pretty good slider today," Tigers manager A.J. Hinch said. "He can fall in love with them a little. You want him to maintain his fastball command at the top of the zone. But he did a very nice job for us."

Brady Singer (4-7) lost his third straight decision, giving up five runs, seven hits and a walk in seven innings. He entered the game with a 6-0 record in 11 starts against Detroit but allowed five runs in 3 2/3 innings in a no-decision on May 22.

"I thought he threw the ball well, but he couldn't get them to miss his slider," Royals manager Matt Quatraro said. "He had good movement, but they kept making good contact."

The Royals took a 2-0 lead in the second. Maikel Garcia and Samad Taylor singled before Freddy Fermin hit a line drive to left-center field. Left fielder Andy Ibañez and center fielder Matt Vierling both went for the ball, which evaded Ibañez's reach then bounced off the wall and past Vierling for a two-run double.

Eric Haase tied it with a two-run double in the bottom of the inning, and Short made it 3-2 with an RBI single.

"We got shut out last night, and then they come out and get the two quick runs on us today," Hinch said. "To be able to answer back was really nice and then we kept tacking on and built some separation as the game went on."

Báez put the Tigers ahead 4-2 in the third, driving in Kerry Carpenter with his 1,000th hit.

"I congratulated and reminded him he's still 2,118 behind (teammate Miguel Cabrera), so he better keep it up," Hinch said.

Short led off the fifth with his fourth homer, giving the Tigers a three-run lead.

Kansas City second baseman Taylor and right fielder Matt Beaty collided going after Spencer Torkelson's shallow fly ball to lead off the eighth. Both players stayed down for several minutes, but Taylor stayed in the game and Beaty walked off under his own power.

"That was scary, because Matt went down really hard and Samad also went down hard," Quatraro said. "Luckily, it isn't a serious injury. He's got a non-concussive whiplash injury, which is a lot better than it could have been."

Torkelson ended up on third and scored on Báez's single over a drawn-in infield. The Tigers added three more runs in the inning for a 9-3 lead.

NBA mock draft: Wembanyama easy No. 1

By Brian Mahoney
AP Basketball Writer

Victor Wembanyama's NBA draft experience will be quite unlike last year's No. 1 pick.

Paolo Banchero could never be certain he would be taken first. There was too much speculation that Orlando was also considering Jabari Smith Jr. and Chet Holmgren, with some mock drafts listing Banchero below both. The eventual Rookie of the Year said he didn't find out he was the Magic's choice until less than a minute before Commissioner Adam Silver went on stage in Brooklyn.

Wembanyama has no need to wait.

The 19-year-old from France has owned permanent residence atop mock draft boards, including all four versions of the AP's, and could begin walking to the stage Thursday night before Silver finishes announcing the San Antonio Spurs' selection.

Shortly after, two twin brothers could make the same walk. Amen and Ausar Thompson of Overtime Elite are both expected to land inside the top 10.

1. SAN ANTONIO SPURS: VICTOR WEMBANYAMA, FORWARD, FRANCE

His combination of a center's size and a guard's shooting and dribbling make the 19-year-old a prospect perhaps unlike any other the NBA has seen, and should end the 13-year streak of the No. 1 pick being a college freshman. The Spurs won five NBA titles after taking Tim Duncan in 1997, the last time they had the No. 1 pick and dream of a similar impact from Wembanyama, who is listed at 7-foot-4.

2. CHARLOTTE HORNETS: BRANDON MILLER, FORWARD, ALABAMA

At 6-9, the SEC player of the year and tournament MVP as a freshman has the size, versatility and 3-point stroke to make him an ideal player for the modern NBA game. But the Hornets, who played without Miles Bridges last season after an arrest for a domestic violence incident against the mother of his children, may have to weigh a negative reaction if they add Miller, who delivered the gun used in a fatal shooting.

3. PORTLAND TRAIL BLAZERS: SCOOT HENDERSON, GUARD, G LEAGUE IGNITE

Worked out for the Trail Blazers and showed the athleticism and ability to do it all from the guard spot that may have made Henderson the No. 1 pick in many years. This time, he could be part of a trade if the Blazers decide they'd prefer to acquire more veteran help around Damian Lillard — or perhaps Lillard's replacement if they instead decide to build around youth.

4. HOUSTON ROCKETS: AMEN THOMPSON, GUARD, OVERTIME ELITE

At 6-7, Thompson has great size for a guard and the 20-year old showed the ability to step up when it matters most, averaging 17.2 points, 9.2 assists and 7.2 rebounds in the playoffs to lead the City Reapers to the championship last season. The Rockets, after adding Jalen Green and Jabari Smith Jr. in the last two drafts, are positioned to get another good one.

Saudi Arabia's lavish recruitment drive rolls on despite Messi miss

MANCHESTER, England — Missing out on Lionel Messi hasn't slowed Saudi Arabia's ambitious recruitment drive as the oil-rich kingdom tries to establish itself as a viable destination for the world's top players.

Having already lured two of the sport's biggest stars in Cristiano Ronaldo and Karim Benzema, the Saudis, amid allegations of sportswashing, are targeting a host of other high-profile players from Europe's best leagues.

World Cup and Champions League winner N'Golo Kante became the latest stellar player to head to the lucrative Pro League, signing a three-year contract Wednesday to team up with Benzema at Al-Ittihad.

"It is part of the club's efforts to establish itself as a top choice for world-class players in the Saudi Professional League," Al-Ittihad said in a statement.

Messi opted for Inter Miami, rather than the Middle East, but the Saudis are pressing on. Premier League stars like Hakim Ziyech, Kalidou Koulibaly and Ruben Neves are expected to follow Kante this summer.

Chelsea had offered Kante a new contract to stay at Stamford Bridge. But just as Real Madrid discovered in the case of world player of the year Benzema, money talks. France midfielder Kante is reportedly set to earn more than $100 million across the length of his contract.

Benzema will reportedly earn $107 million per year over his three-year contract.

Ronaldo joined Al-Nassr in December in a deal reportedly worth up to $200 million a year.

At the time of that stunning move, it was not clear what Saudi's plan was beyond using Ronaldo's fame to raise the profile of its league. It has since become evident that the former Madrid and Manchester United forward was just the start of a recruitment drive that the country hopes will turn its league into a major player in the sport.

Currently, the Saudi league is considered well below the standard of the top divisions in Europe and South America.

Ronaldo dismissed criticism of his decision, claiming in January the league is "very competitive."

"People don't know that, but I know because I saw many games," he said. "In Europe my work is done. I won everything and played for the most important clubs in Europe. This is a new challenge."

It is impossible to ignore the riches on offer as a major motivation to players.

The reported salaries and commercial deals for Ronaldo, Benzema and Kante could earn them a combined figure of nearly $1 billion.

Other countries have embarked on similar projects in the past.

Major League Soccer in America has consistently signed big names like David Beckham, Thierry Henry, Wayne Rooney, Zlatan Ibrahimovic and now Messi. Before that, the North American Soccer League — most notably the New York Cosmos — enticed superstars like Pele, Franz Beckenbauer, Bobby Moore and George Best.

China went on a similar spree from 2015, signing internationals like Carlos Tevez, Pato and Hulk, but that initiative has fizzled out.

It looks like this is just the start of Saudi's plans to grow the profile and quality of its league, while expanding its influence in global sport.

The kingdom's sovereign wealth Public Investment Fund has taken a majority ownership stake in four of the country's top clubs, including Al-Ittihad and Al-Nassr, as part of a nationalization project encouraging public sector organizations to invest in sports. Soccer teams are seen as a priority under the initiative backed by Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman.

PIF is described as a "catalyst of Vision 2030," which is a wide-ranging plan to overhaul the kingdom's economy.

The fund is worth around $700 billion and has already backed the takeover of Premier League club Newcastle and the launch of the contentious LIV Golf tour, which is merging with the PGA tour.

Saudi Arabia has also staged two heavyweight title fights involving Anthony Joshua, hosts Formula One racing and the Italian and Spanish Super Cups. There is also speculation that the country wants to host the 2030 men's soccer World Cup.

The focus on sport has led to accusations of sportswashing — an effort to rebrand its public image in the face of its human rights record.

Soccer is already hugely popular in the country, with a television audience of more than 215 million watching its league in 2021-22, according to official statistics. More than 1.25 million attended matches during that campaign.

The demand for international broadcast rights could grow as a result of more top players joining the league.

While Saudi soccer should benefit from an influx of talent, Premier League clubs, in particular, look set to cash in.

England's top-flight teams have found it increasingly difficult to offload unwanted players due to the high salaries they pay. Only a limited number of European clubs can match or better the contracts on offer in England, meaning a number of players have had to be sent out on loan, rather than sold.

Chelsea, which spent around $630 million last season, needs to reduce its squad this summer and it is notable that three of its players — Ziyech, Koulibaly and Edouard Mendy — have all been linked with moves to Saudi in addition to Kante.

HOROSCOPES

By Georgia Nicols

Moon Alert: Avoid shopping or important decisions after 12:45 p.m. EDT today (9:45 a.m. PDT) and for the rest of the day. The Moon is in Leo.

Happy Birthday for Thursday, June 22, 2023:
You are romantic, affectionate and sensitive. You have a great appreciation for beauty along with high ideals. You also have high expectations in your relationships. This year you will get recognition for your past efforts. Expect a promotion, an award, kudos — some kind of acknowledgement. Bravo!

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Parents must be vigilant today, because this is an accident-prone day for their kids. Meanwhile, social plans might suddenly change. They might be canceled or delayed. Perhaps a different meeting place. Or you might receive an unexpected invitation. Avoid sports accidents. Tonight: Socialize.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★ Your home routine will change today. A small appliance might break down or a little breakage could occur. Surprise company might knock at your door. Perhaps a family member has surprising news. It could be anything. Have a second cup of coffee. Tonight: Keep the peace.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Pay attention to everything you say and do, because this is an accident-prone day for your sign. On the upside, you might have brilliant ideas out of the blue. Meanwhile, new contacts, strange faces and unusual conversations might occur. Tonight: You're convincing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Keep an eye on your money and your assets today. Something unexpected might impact them. For example, you might find money; you might lose money. Be smart and protect what you own against loss, theft or damage. Possibly, you'll have a clever, moneymaking idea. Tonight: Money disputes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★ Today the Moon is in your sign at odds with unpredictable Uranus, which can make you feel hasty and eager to jump to conclusions. You will feel independent, even rebellious today. Be careful that your impatience, especially with restraints, duties and obligations, does not land you in hot water! Tonight: High energy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ This is a restless day for you. You might feel vaguely confused or lacking in focus. You might begin things and then get distracted and start something else, and then get distracted again. You also might feel powerless to make changes. Don't worry; this is a fleeting influence. Tonight: Secret help.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ A friend might surprise you today by saying or doing something you did not expect. Or possibly you will meet someone new who is unusual or avant-garde. Someone in a group might suggest something daring and unusual, especially something that rebels against the status quo. Tonight: Competition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★ Relations with parents, bosses, teachers and the police are dicey today. You will not want to be told what to do. You will chafe at anyone giving orders or directions. Today you value your independence and might feel a streak of rebellion! Don't do anything you will regret later. Tonight: You're ambitious.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Travel plans might suddenly change today. Or perhaps you have to travel when you didn't expect to do so. You might meet a real character who has something unusual to say, especially regarding politics or religion. News in the media might surprise you as well. Tonight: Explore!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ Double-check details that affect your banking, assets and anything to do with inheritances or shared property. Something out of the blue might impact these areas. Assume nothing. Check everything out so you're on top of your game. Being casual about this might cost you money. Tonight: Check your finances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★ A conversation with a partner, close friend or spouse might go off the rails today. This person might be demanding, or you might want more freedom. They will certainly challenge you if you try to tell them what to do. It's best to step back and give this situation a wide berth. Tonight: Patience.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★ Your work routine will be interrupted today. Power outages, staff shortages, late deliveries, unexpected news and equipment breakdowns are some reasons your day might go south in a New York minute! This could be an accident-prone day for your pet as well. Tonight: Work.

Lundqvist headlines Hockey Hall of Fame's goalie-heavy class of 2023

By Stephen Whyno
AP Hockey Writer

Henrik Lundqvist is the headliner of the Hockey Hall of Fame's goaltender-heavy class of 2023, which also includes Stanley Cup champions Tom Barrasso and Mike Vernon.

Selection committee chairman Mike Gartner announced the seven-person class Wednesday. Former NHL forward Pierre Turgeon and Canadian women's hockey star Caroline Oullette were the other players, while Cup-winning coach Ken Hitchcock and late executive Pierre Lacroix were picked to be inducted in the builder category.

Lundqvist, elected in his first year of eligibility, backstopped Sweden to an Olympic gold medal in 2006 and led the New York Rangers to the playoffs in 11 of 12 years. That included a trip to the Stanley Cup Final in 2014 and two Eastern Conference Final appearances.

A seventh-round pick in the 2020 draft, Lundqvist ranks fifth on the NHL career victories list with 459. He won 61 more in the playoffs before halting his hockey career in 2020 because of a heart condition.

"Grateful and extremely honored to be selected to the Hockey Hall Of Fame," Lundqvist tweeted. "Thinking of all the great players in the HHOF that inspired me as a kid. Feels amazing to be included in this special group."

Barrasso won the Cup with Pittsburgh back to back in 1991 and '92. Vernon won it with Calgary in 1989 and with Detroit in 1997. Each got in after lengthy waits: Barrasso since 2006 and Vernon since '05.

The wait continues for point-a-game Russian winger Alexander Mogilny and goaltender Curtis Joseph, who is just five victories behind Lundqvist on the NHL career list.

Oullette got in on her second chance after helping Canada win a gold medal in all four of her Olympic appearances. She had 30 points in 20 games during those tournaments and also was part of six teams that won the IIHF women's world championship.

Turgeon was selected after being eligible for more than a decade. The 1993 winner of the Lady Byng Trophy as the most gentlemanly player in the league, Turgeon had 1,327 points in 1,294 regular-season NHL games, with nearly of those coming with Buffalo and St. Louis.

Hitchcock finally got in 24 years since coaching the Dallas Stars to their first championship in franchise history.
He also ranks fourth in regular-season wins among coaches. Lacroix, the architect of the first two Colorado Avalanche Cup-winning teams in 1996 and 2021, was elected posthumously. He died in December 2020 at the age of 72.

The induction ceremony is Nov. 13 in Toronto.

Williams outduels Mikolas in rain as Nats cool off Cardinals

By Ben Nuckols
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With the drizzle at first pitch developing into steady rain by the middle innings, Trevor Williams simply tried to throw a bunch of strikes and stay mentally tough.

Williams outpitched Miles Mikolas in soggy conditions, CJ Abrams went 3 for 3 with a homer and the Washington Nationals beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0 on Wednesday to end a five-game skid.

"When it's raining and you see rain in the forecast, it's easier to kind of shut your mind off thinking that we're going to get rained out," Williams said. "For everyone to come and play and be locked in from the first pitch was huge for us."

With the rain getting heavier in the fifth inning, Abrams sent a 1-0 fastball from Mikolas (4-5) into the visitors' bullpen in left-center.

"He was throwing those sinkers running away from me, so I was just trying to go the other way with it," Abrams said. "I didn't think it was going to go out, but it left."

Williams (4-4) allowed five hits and threw 75 pitches while working into the seventh inning for the first time this year as he cooled off the Cardinals, who had won four straight and scored eight or more runs in their last three. St. Louis was shut out for the seventh time this season.

"The game plan going in was just to attack the zone and hopefully they make weak contact early," Williams said. "With the wet field, you never know what could happen."

Williams departed after Lars Nootbaar's leadoff single in the seventh. Reliever Mason Thompson walked Nolan Arenado, then got two outs before Kyle Finnegan came on and induced an inning-ending grounder. Finnegan completed the eighth and Hunter Harvey pitched the ninth for his fourth save.

Jeimer Candelario drove in runs for Washington with a double in the sixth and a grounder in the eighth.

The game began under cloudy conditions and light drizzle, with radar indicating rain would continue throughout the afternoon and evening. But both teams had incentives to try and play.

This was the final game of the Cardinals' only visit to Washington this season, and they were scheduled to depart for London on Wednesday night for a weekend series against the rival Chicago Cubs. The Nationals will play Arizona on Thursday to make up a game postponed June 8 because of poor air quality.

Mikolas and Williams both appeared determined to spend as little time on the mound as possible in the iffy weather. They combined to walk one batter, and Mikolas frequently started his delivery with nearly 10 seconds left on the pitch clock.

Perhaps sensing the Cardinals needed an offensive spark, Dylan Carlson hit a soft liner just over the head of second baseman Luis García in the fifth and tried to stretch it into an unlikely double. Right fielder Lane Thomas threw Carlson out at second.

Mikolas took a comebacker from Abrams off his lower right leg with two outs in the seventh but finished the inning. He allowed two runs on eight hits but lost his fourth consecutive start.

"It was kind of fun but a little challenging, throwing in the rain, kind of like being a kid in the backyard, throwing in the summer," Mikolas said. "I'm from South Florida, so every summer ball tournament I've been in, it's been raining at some point. ... I probably should have got a new rosin bag at some point because it was just like a wet rag back there."

Draft

5. DETROIT PISTONS: CAM WHITMORE, FORWARD, VILLANOVA

The Pistons fell to the lowest spot possible in the lottery after finishing with the NBA's worst record and sharing the best odds of landing the No. 1 pick. But getting Whitmore, a versatile wing with a strong build, to add to young pieces such as Cade Cunningham and Jaden Ivey under new coach Monty Williams would help ease the sting.

6. ORLANDO MAGIC: AUSAR THOMPSON, FORWARD, OVERTIME ELITE

Amen Thompson's twin brother has been the Overtime Elite regular season and finals MVP the last two seasons and the 6-7 swingman plays big on defense, twice blocking seven shots in a game. The Magic were a team on the rise in the second half of last season and Thompson could help ensure that continues.

7. INDIANA PACERS: JARACE WALKER, FORWARD, HOUSTON

Coming from Houston's rugged program means Walker already plays NBA-ready defense, and the offensive end could come along quickly under Rick Carlisle. At 6-8, 240 pounds, he already has the size and strength to deal with anyone he could face in the frontcourt.

8. WASHINGTON WIZARDS: ANTHONY BLACK, GUARD, ARKANSAS

With Bradley Beal going and no certainty that Chris Paul will stay, there's an opportunity for an immediate impact in the Washington backcourt. The 6-7 guard seems to have endless energy, playing nearly 35 minutes a game to lead the Southeastern Conference and all 20 minutes in a half 19 times. That included 37 minutes on an injured left ankle in the Razorbacks' NCAA Tournament upset of top-seeded Kansas, when he helped hold expected lottery pick Gradey Dick to seven points.

9. UTAH JAZZ: TAYLOR HENDRICKS, CENTRAL FLORIDA

The 6-9 freshman makes an impact inside and outside on both ends of the floor. He led the American Athletic Conference in blocked shots and shot 39% from 3-point range, becoming the only Division I player last season with at least 60 3-pointers, 55 blocked shots and 35 dunks.

10. DALLAS MAVERICKS: GRADEY DICK, GUARD, KANSAS

Dick made 83 3-pointers, most in Kansas history by a freshman, and the 6-8 forward could get plenty of open looks when Mavericks opponents focus their attention on Luka Doncic and Kyrie Irving — if Irving remains in Dallas. The Mavs went to great lengths to protect their chances of keeping this pick, tanking their final couple games to boost their lottery odds while still in play-in contention.

11. ORLANDO MAGIC (from Chicago Bulls): BILAL COULIBALY, FORWARD, FRANCE

Wembanyama's teammate with Metropolitans 92 is a 6-6 swingman whose stock rose as their team reached their French League finals. He hasn't reached his potential yet as a scorer, but his 7-3 wingspan allows him to impact the game on both ends even without doing so and could make him a good fit with 2022 No. 1 pick and Rookie of the Year Paolo Banchero.

12. OKLAHOMA CITY THUNDER: DERECK LIVELY II, CENTER, DUKE

Is still limited offensively, but the 7-1 Lively shows promise as a rebounder and shot blocker, highlighted by 14 boards and eight blocks in a game against rival North Carolina.

13. TORONTO RAPTORS: JALEN HOOD-SCHIFINO, GUARD, INDIANA

The Big Ten freshman of the year has great size in the backcourt at 6-6 and could help the Raptors guard against a potential loss of Fred VanVleet in free agency, but needs to become a better shooter after hitting only 40% from the field in his lone season.

14. NEW ORLEANS PELICANS: CASON WALLACE, KENTUCKY

A point guard who takes care of the ball and takes it away from opponents, he was fourth in the SEC in both steals per game and assist-to-turnover ratio. At 6-4, has the size and strength to defend some of the marquee guards in the Western Conference.

15. ATLANTA HAWKS: KOBE BUFKIN, GUARD, MICHIGAN

Massive leap from first to second year of college, averaging 14 points as a sophomore after not starting a game while averaging 3.0 points as a freshman. Next leap is to the NBA, where the 6-4 lefty could quickly be a change-of-pace guard off the bench.

16. UTAH JAZZ (from Minnesota): KEYONTE GEORGE, GUARD, BAYLOR

The highest-ranked recruit in program history lived up to the billing in his lone college season, scoring 20 or more points 12 times and averaging 15.3 en route to Big 12 freshman of the year honors. The 6-4 guard could provide scoring punch on a team that stayed in the postseason hunt longer than expected.

17. LOS ANGELES LAKERS: NICK SMITH JR., GUARD, ARKANSAS

After mixed results with Russell Westbrook and D'Angelo Russell last season, the Lakers' search for guard help could lead to Arkansas, where the 6-5 Smith played in just 17 games in his lone college season after recovering from a right knee injury but showed the ability to play either guard spot.

18. MIAMI HEAT: JORDAN HAWKINS, GUARD, UCONN

Ballhandling still needs improvement, but Hawkins' catch-and-shoot ability was one of the biggest reasons the Huskies stormed through the NCAA Tournament to their fifth national title, and something the Heat were missing in their NBA Finals loss.

19. GOLDEN STATE WARRIORS: NOAH CLOWNEY, FORWARD, ALABAMA

Clowney put up nearly eight rebounds and a block per game in his lone college season. With just 210 pounds on his 6-10 frame, he will need to add strength for the battles inside against NBA big men.

20. HOUSTON ROCKETS (from LA Clippers): KRIS MURRAY, FORWARD, IOWA

After averaging 20.2 points — with a 30-point, 20-rebound game in one outing — Murray will try to make a similar first-year NBA impact as twin brother Keegan, who after leaving the Hawkeyes became an immediate starter for Sacramento last season and was an All-Rookie first-team selection.

21. BROOKLYN NETS (from Phoenix): JETT HOWARD, GUARD, MICHIGAN

His willingness to fire from behind the arc makes the freshman a perfect fit for the 3-point happy NBA. The 6-8 freshman made multiple 3-pointers in 24 of his 29 games for Juwan Howard, his father, and hit three or more in almost half of them. Howard made 36.8% of them while averaging 14.2 points

22. BROOKLYN NETS: LEONARD MILLER, FORWARD, G LEAGUE IGNITE

The Nets have needed more scoring punch since trading Kevin Durant and Kyrie Irving, and Miller looks capable of providing it after averaging 18 points last season. The 6-10 Canadian also averaged nearly 11 rebounds, another area Nets leadership has identified as a priority.

23. PORTLAND TRAIL BLAZERS (from New York): BRICE SENSABAUGH, FORWARD, OHIO STATE

Averaged 16.3 points and shot better than 40% from 3-point range in his strong one season for the Buckeyes, where he was the first freshman to lead the team in scoring since D'Angelo Russell in 2015.

24. SACRAMENTO KINGS: MAXWELL LEWIS, FORWARD, PEPPERDINE

The 6-7 Lewis made nearly 80% of his free throws and 36% of his 3-point attempts in his two seasons with the Waves, and improved his ability to score off the dribble while averaging 17.1 points last season.

25. MEMPHIS GRIZZLIES: G.G. JACKSON, FORWARD, SOUTH CAROLINA

Would have been heading to college now — perhaps as the No. 1 prospect — before reclassifying last summer to enter a year earlier. Instead, the 6-9 Jackson is on his way to the NBA after scoring in double figures in 25 of his 32 games, averaging 15.4 points.

26. INDIANA PACERS (from Cleveland): JAIME JAQUEZ JR., GUARD, UCLA

The do-everything swingman led the Bruins with 17.8 points and 8.2 rebounds, becoming their first Pac-12 player of the year since Kevin Love in 2008. At 6-7, Jaquez does everything well — he's No. 8 in UCLA history in both points and steals — but maybe not any of them at the top NBA level.

27. CHARLOTTE HORNETS (from Denver via New York and Oklahoma City): AMARI BAILEY, GUARD, UCLA

Bailey had a strong finish to his lone college season, averaging 16.7 points on 56% shooting in the Bruins' run to the Sweet 16. The Hornets struggle when LaMelo Ball is out, so the 6-5 guard could be appealing to a team that was fourth-worst in the NBA in scoring.

28. UTAH JAZZ (from Philadelphia via Brooklyn): COLBY JONES, GUARD, XAVIER

With three picks in the first round, the Jazz are positioned to bolster a team that hung around the playoff race much longer than expected. The 6-6 Jones, who made 18 of 21 shots in one torrid stretch last season and shot 9 of 10 on 3-pointers in another, could be a nice late addition.

29. INDIANA PACERS (from Boston): BRANDIN PODZIEMSKI, GUARD, SANTA CLARA

Made 43.8% of his 3-pointers in his lone season after transferring from Illinois, accuracy from behind the arc that NBA teams covet. The 6-5 guard shared WCC player of the year honors after averaging 19.9 points and 8.8 rebounds, finishing in the top three in the conference in both categories.

30. LOS ANGELES CLIPPERS (from Milwaukee via Houston): DARIQ WHITEHEAD, FORWARD, DUKE

Arrived at Duke as the high school player of the year, but a foot injury led to a delayed start to his college career followed by shooting struggles after it finally began. But the 6-7 forward showed enough defensive and 3-point abilities in his limited time to make himself worthy of a first-round spot.

AP Basketball Writers Aaron Beard, John Marshall and Tim Reynolds, and AP Sports Writer Steve Reed in Charlotte, North Carolina contributed to this report.

NBA G League Ignite's Scoot Henderson dunks against Boulogne-Levallois Metropolitans 92 during the first half of an exhibition basketball game Oct. 4, 2022, in Henderson, Nev. Henderson is among the top prospects in next month's NBA draft.

Lead

BRIGHT AND EARLY

The 1:10 pm start was Detroit's 38th day game of the season, the most in the majors. The Tigers are 14-24 in afternoon games as opposed to 18-17 at night.

ROUGH FINISH

Moments after Taylor was shaken up by the collision with Beaty, he was taken out on a hard slide by Jake Marisnick while trying to turn a double play. In the ninth, he was hit on the left hand by a 94.4 mph fastball but stayed in the game after another visit with the trainer. Adding insult to injury, after a review, it was ruled a foul ball.

UP NEXT

The Tigers have Thursday off before opening a weekend home series with the Minnesota Twins. LHP Joey Wentz (1-7, 6.82) is scheduled to start the opener.

Kansas City will travel to Florida for a four-game series against the Tampa Bay Rays. The Royals will use RHP Jose Cuas (3-0, 4.15) as an opener on Thursday while Tampa Bay has not announced a pitcher.

Bombers

"When I [throw relief], I go for the strikeout method, but today I just tried to play for contact. It works, and it also didn't work, but I got out of the jams."

DeGondea made six appearances for the Bombers last summer, throwing 18 1/3 IP with a 3.44 ERA. He's back and throwing well again, mostly as a starter.

"I think Jud [Kindle's] just the biggest thing," DeGondea said. "I finished my freshman year at Missouri State and didn't play, so coming back here was kind of a confidence booster. That was the main thing, coming back here, getting reps, getting confidence."

A hit batter and a walk accounted for two of the Bombers' runs in the third inning, the other coming from an RBI double by catcher Jacob Hoernschemeyer that scored Jack Perwett. It was Perwett who, after St. Joes squared the game at 3-3, helped put the Bombers ahead in the seventh inning again with a single to right that plated Brock Kobel and Caleb Roofe, both of whom had multi-hit games for Sedalia.

"I still think we need to work on getting runners in with less than two outs and runners in scoring position, but you can't ask for everything," Bexten said. "The biggest thing was we won the ball game.

"Something our team is really good about is taking walks. There's instances where we have guys doing too much, trying to chase pitches if they're struggling, but tonight, their starter had eight walks. In games like that, you have to win, because they're just giving you free baserunners. What we needed was what we got tonight."

The Mustangs dropped to 12-6 on the year with the defeat, while the Bombers improved to 7-11. As far as the big picture, Jefferson City led the South with a 12-10 record as of the conclusion of Tuesday night's games.

The Bombers began a four-game road trip Wednesday with a trip to Nevada, and they resume play Friday following a day off at Chillicothe.
