4-H/FFA Angus show kicks off fair at Coliseum

By Chris Howell
chrish@sedaliademocrat.com

Thursday morning, Aug. 10, the Missouri State Fair went immediately to showcasing locally raised beef with the 4-H/FFA Angus Show in the Coliseum.

Gov. Mike Parson was on hand to support the kids' interest in agriculture.

"Missouri State Fair is one of the best in the nation," Parson told the Democrat, "and when you see all the families come together, what the State Fair means is bringing people together to showcase what we do in this state – agriculture being our number one industry in the state."

The governor met the Edwards family from Warren County and asked young Delandon the name of her heifer. The girl informed Parson they didn't name their food. Parson comes from a background in agriculture and seemed to understand.

Delandon was asked what she likes about working with Angus.

"I get to show it and I make money off it," Delandon replied.

Asked if she planned a career in ag, she said her plans were on a different type of field.

"A Major League player for the MLB," Delandon said.

"That'll work," her father, Donnel Edwards, said.

The governor and his entourage had other places to go but stayed with the young farmers as long as time would allow.

2023 MISSOURI STATE FAIR

Farm Toy Show features collectibles for all ages

By Faith Bemiss
fbemiss@sedaliademocrat.com

As show many people may not know about at the Missouri State Fair is an exhibition filled with toys for all ages.

The 19th annual Farm Toy Show has everything a child, young person or adult could want. On Thursday, Aug. 10 inside the Lowell Mohler Assembly Hall, families were perusing all types of toys related to the farm – small tractors, large tractors, pedal tractors, miniature semi-trucks, dirt movers, and even plastic farm animals. Ladies were also selling blankets, wreaths, and wooden wall décor.

Wayne Crook, of Marshall, who has been the Farm Toy Show superintendent since its inception, said once people are on the fairgrounds, the show is free to attend.

"And we've got the best air conditioning on the fairgrounds," he added with a smile. "That's because the National Guard pays for it instead of the fair."

Crook said there are around 15 vendors at the show this year and thousands of toys. Most vendors are from Missouri, but others are from Nebraska. He noted that visitors to the show would find about any farm toy they could imagine. Many of the toys are collectibles.

Crook has a stand where he sells toys, but he also builds toys. Unfortunately for the MSF, he was sold out of his labor-intensive creations. He makes 28-by-18-inch-by-16-inch tall harvesting equipment and cotton pickers. The cotton pickers take around 140 hours each to complete.

"I have 20 of them sold for $3,500 a piece," he said. "But I charge for time and materials."

Crook said Fair visitors should visit the show "because they need to see what this many toys in one place looks like."

"I bet people walk in the door and say, 'I didn't realize there were this many toys in the whole world,'" he added. "There's more than a thousand, probably a hundred thousand."

Missouri State Fair opens with focus on agriculture

By Nicole Cooke
ncooke@sedaliademocrat.com

The 121st Missouri State Fair is now underway, celebrating agriculture with the theme "Where Traditions Grow."

The Missouri State Fair opened on Thursday, Aug. 10 on the Missouri State Fairgrounds in Sedalia and continues through Sunday, Aug. 20. Many local and state officials attended the annual Opening Day Ceremony hosted Thursday morning in front of the Agriculture Building.

"When we ask our fairgoers why do they come to the fair each year, they give us lots of reasons – the carnival, the food, showing livestock, shopping, seeing concerts. But the number one reason year after year is 'because it's a family tradition,'" MSF Director Mark Wolfe said during his remarks. "So we took that information to heart and developed this year's theme, 'Where Traditions Grow.'"

Wolfe said the state fair has been a tradition for his family since they moved to the area in 1980, especially during his 19 years as an employee. He has spent 15 years as director, and earlier this summer, Wolfe announced the 2023 fair will be his last. Wolfe will retire at the end of the year.

"Everybody's story is different, and I truly understood once I came to work here the impact the state fair has on hundreds of thousands of Missourians who visit each year," Wolfe said.

He offered a few of his favorite traditions, including interacting with the youth in agriculture on the fairgrounds.

"One of my favorite things to do, and it's a little difficult to do when you work here, but I love to sit in the arenas and watch a show," he said. "... They (youth exhibitors) are so proud to come out here and do that, and that is what this fair is all about. We are so proud of those folks. It's one of my favorite things to do – that and, of course, getting my first footlong corn dog."

Missouri State Fair Commission Chairman Kevin Roberts listed the traditions of his fellow commissioners and their families, noting that many of those traditions have continued for generations. Roberts said he also enjoys walking through the livestock barns and always notes the countless small towns across Missouri that are represented on the fairgrounds.

"You get to see these kids out here working all summer long, and all winter long, to bring the best of the best out here," Parson said. "So everybody's in a great mood, I think everybody's been looking forward to this fair. Weather has been perfect, so just a good day to be out here and have a little fun."

Cealy Bedwell, 12, of Holt, came to the fair with her father, mother, and little brother, Chisholm. Cealy is pleased with her showing at the fair.

"I won reserve champion female in the 4-H show, and then in Simmentals, I won grand champion 4-H female," Cealy said.

The Angus heifer was gloss black with the stature that caught the judge's eye.

"Her name is Duchess and she's very sweet, likes to set up and she's an awesome heifer altogether," Cealy said.

"Out here, you're looking for structural correctness quality up in their front-end, big body, big ribs, cattle that can move and got some muscle."

Angus show judge Brett Barber said. "Angus is the number one registration breed in the United States, known for their marbling and their eating quality."

Delandon Edwards, of Warren County, and father Donnel show their Angus heifer to Gov. Mike Parson at the State Fair Coliseum on Thursday.

The judge also noted the quality of the contestants at the year's show.

"The quality of kids here was second to none," Barber said. "They did an outstanding job and had an outstanding 4-H heifer show."

But great results at the 4-H/FFA Angus show come at a price.

"There's a lot of work," Cealy admitted. "We rinse her or wash her every day, and then put some sheen in her and then blow her out and then let her stand for a little while and then kick her out when it's cooler at night."

Cealy's father is very proud of the kids he raised and the cattle they've raised.

"It's pretty special," Cealy's father Shane said.

"We've been in the cattle business all our lives and so to see another generation grab ahold of it and have fun with it and enjoy it as much as I did is pretty neat to see."

Cealy's younger brother, Chisholm, showed his red Angus heifer as well. The Bedwell family's love of agriculture and her involvement with the Plattsburg Hustlers 4-H club has given Cealy a great foundation for a career in farming.

"It's got me to where I'm at now and taught me a lot of things that I would need to know to have a career in ag," Cealy said, "and that's what I would like to do with my future."

Roberts thanked Gov. Mike Parson, Lt. Gov. Mike Kehoe and the Missouri General Assembly for supporting agriculture and the state fair. Over the last several years, capital improvement appropriations have allowed for renovating historic buildings on the fairgrounds, adding new facilities, and purchasing 200 acres west of the fairgrounds that will eventually house additional campsites.

"Both of them have played key roles in this fair's success in the last few years and it is exciting to see the growth that both of you have helped make possible," Roberts said to Parson and Kehoe. "This will allow Missourians clear across the state to share their state fair tradition with future generations."

Missouri Director of Agriculture Chris Chinn said Thursday marked the kickoff to Missouri agriculture's largest family reunion.

"Agriculture is the number one economic driver in the state of Missouri and we celebrate it every single day with our farm families, our agribusiness owners, the employees who work every day in the agriculture industry, making sure they do their best so that agriculture can succeed," Chinn said.

During her remarks, Chinn announced that Pettis County recently became an Agri-Ready County.

"With an Agri-Ready designation, Pettis County is stating loudly that they support and encourage agribusinesses and agriculture in the county," Chinn said, adding that Pettis County is the 69th county in Missouri to receive the designation.

"I encourage each of you while you're here at the fair to look for a new family tradition," Chinn concluded. "We all get stuck in our rut and we go to the same places year after year. But there are so many hidden treasures at the fairgrounds. Maybe it's taking in one of the shows in the entertainment tents that are free or maybe it's trying a new place to eat."

In addition to the upcoming campground spots and structure renovations, Parson also mentioned the construction of a new arena during his remarks. The $55 million project will break ground in the fall and take around two years to complete.

"Because it's more than a tradition. It's about who we are," he said of the improvements.

Parson offered some of his childhood memories at the fair, and said the agriculture showcase at the state fair is "the heart and soul of who Missouri is."

"For people like you and me who grew up with gravel roads, rural Missouri and understand a way of life where you have to be a good neighbor, you got to try to help one another out," Parson said. "We need a little more of that in the world today with all the division we're seeing in this day. But that foundation of growing up on that farm and understanding how important the state fair is, is one of the most important things I remember in my life."

FAIR WATCH

After the Opening Day Ceremony, I was chatting with Sedalia City Council members Rhiannon Foster and Chris Marshall and City Administrator Kelvin Shaw. They invited me to tag along for corn-dogs, and I happily accepted. Along the way, we ran into Pettis County Western Commissioner Jim Marcum, Presiding Commissioner Bill Taylor and Commission Assistant Noah Shepard, so all of us ended up in line at Dick's Corndogs. You never know who you'll run into on the fairgrounds! And as a side note, Rhiannon also orders her corndogs the correct way as I do - with ketchup. - Editor Nicole Cooke

I ducked into the Mathewson Exhibition Center in the afternoon to get some shade and air conditioning, and it just happened to be a few minutes before the evening gown portion of the Missouri State Fair Queen pageant. I took a seat so I could watch the first couple of contestants before heading to my next stop. I ended up chatting with the family behind me and as it turns out, they were the parents and younger sister of 2015 Missouri State Fair Queen Destiny Reed, of Palmyra. Her mom, Tamara, said the younger sister plans to compete next year, and they love coming back to Sedalia and continuing to be part of the state fair. - Editor Nicole Cooke

Wayne Crook has been the Missouri State Fair Farm Toy Show superintendent since it began 19 years ago. Crook sells boxed farm toys and makes replicas of cotton pickers and heavy equipment. It often takes him 140 hours to create one piece.

Debbie Littleton and her husband, Jeff, of Keytesville, camp each year at the MSF and help out their friends at the Toy Show.

"We have been coming ever since the Toy Show started," she explained. "And we know the people who set up here. A lot of them ... so we come and help them set up."

"And we know Wayne (Crook), and we come over and help set up early in the morning," she continued. "My nephews show pigs, and we camp out here the whole time. I work for DFS (for Chariton County), so I work a booth in the Expo Center."

Littleton added the show is fun for all ages.

"It's really a nice program," she said.

Littleton and her husband have become good friends with vendor Danny Angotti, of Wardell, who noted the vendors are all like family.

"We sell primarily the 164 scale (toys). That's all we deal with," Angotti said. "Now we are getting into the parts that can be used to build a miniature farm."

"It's all 3-D printed," he continued. "And I've got five different guys that print, and I guess I've got close to 200 different parts."

Angotti also makes farm toys such as farm implements, trucks, service trucks, and semis.

"The thing about this hobby, it's a family," he noted. "I have a toy show in Sikeston in December, and I've got a group of good dealers, and it's like a big family."

"And that's how we met these people," he said of the Littletons. "And they are just crazy enough to be here to help us out, help us load, and help us to pack up so we can get home."

The Missouri State Fair's 19th annual Farm Toy Show will continue from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, Aug. 11 and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 12 in the Lowell Mohler Assembly Hall.

Commanders' Bieniemy brings vocal, winning approach as OC

By Stephen Whyno

Associated Press

ASHBURN, Va. — Eric Bieniemy's voice is one of the clearer ones on the practice field. On his first day of training camp since joining the Washington Commanders, it wasn't hard to understand his message.

"Let's go!" Bieniemy shouted. "It's work time."

Bieniemy is now at work in his new job as Washington's offensive coordinator, bringing a vocal approach and two Super Bowl rings to an organization that hasn't won a playoff game in nearly two decades. It's his chance to get out from under the shadows cast by Patrick Mahomes and Andy Reid and prove he should be a head coach in the NFL, working under Ron Rivera and with unproven quarterback Sam Howell.

"He's going to do a heck of a job there and really show his personality within the offense," Reid said. "I'm so happy for E.B. to have his chance to put his name on an offense. This is his now. He's working for Ron Rivera, who is a dear friend — more of a defensive head coach than offensive head coach. This allows E.B. to do his thing."

Bieniemy's thing has been winning thanks to one of the best offenses in the league. The Chiefs ranked first on that side of the ball three times in his five years running the unit and were never worse than sixth — with Super Bowl titles following the 2019 and 2022 seasons.

Despite all that, the former running back interviewed with more than a dozen teams but never was hired as a head coach, in part because Reid called the plays for Kansas City and is considered an offensive guru.

Bieniemy is following a path similar to Rivera, a retired linebacker who had to work for an offensive coach before getting a head job.

If he can turn Howell, a 2022 fifth-round pick with one game of pro experience, into a reliable NFL starter, that may be enough to land one.

But, first, Bieniemy has to get players to buy in to his brand of coaching that has apparently flustered some of them in camp.

UCM Athletics fine-tunes structure, looks to future under AD Howdeshell

By Joe Andrews

joea@warrensburgstarjournal.com

WARRENSBURG — Connecting with student-athletes at a large-scale level has officially begun for new Central Missouri Vice President for Intercollegiate Athletics Matt Howdeshell.

UCM's fall programs started trickling onto campus a little more than a week ago with Mules football reporting Aug. 2 and Jennies soccer and volleyball showing up Aug. 8.

By the time classes begin Aug. 14, Howdeshell will have been in the same room as most Mules and Jennies student-athletes. The athletic department plans to kick off the school year with an engagement event for its body Aug. 13. He will also be present during year opening meetings for all programs.

"I've heard so many great things from our donors, alumni, sponsors and our coaches about our student-athletes," said Howdeshell, who began his position in June. "Now that I'm actually able to meet them in person and get to know them on a personal level is great ... The biggest message I want to communicate to them is they are my top priority, they are our top priority."

Central Missouri recently took a leap in enhancing the student-athlete experience, announcing initiatives to strengthen its department's structure Aug. 3.

The changes included elevating three administrators to associate athletic directors. Jeff Mason was named Associate Athletic Director for External Relations, Crystal Westphal was named Associate Athletic Director for Business Operations and Senior Woman Administrator and Scott Thomason was named Associate Athletic Director for Facilities.

The trio will serve as members of an executive team that also includes a position to be determined Associate Vice President for Intercollegiate Athletics, a position that became open July 28 after Syed Moinuddin resigned for personal reasons.

"It helps us streamline our operations," Howdeshell said. "It gives our coaches and our student-athletes another administrative touchpoint as well. Overall, I expect it to be an enhanced level of service to our student-athletes and our coaches and really put us in a position to be successful."

Mason's responsibilities include development, athletic communications, creative content, marketing, sponsorship, promotions, ticketing, licensing and trademark areas. He'll also serve as the sport administrator for Mules golf, Jennies golf and Jennies volleyball.

Westphal's focus surrounds financial services and human resources while also serving as the administrator for Jennies soccer, Jennies basketball and Jennies bowling. She'll also oversee UCM Cheer and the Mulekickers.

Thomason oversees all UCM Athletic facilities and its operations while serving as the administrator for Mules baseball, Mules wrestling and Jennies softball.

The to-be-determined Associate Vice President for Intercollegiate Athletics' centers around compliance to UCM, MIAA and NCAA regulations.

The department has determined a short-list of candidates for the vacancy and plans to begin the interview process next week. Preliminarily, the goal is to have a hire in place by Oct. 1.

Mickelson has wagered more than $1 billion according to new book

By Doug Ferguson

AP Golf Writer

Phil Mickelson has wagered more than $1 billion over the last three decades and wanted to place a $400,000 bet on the 2012 Ryder Cup while playing for Team USA, according to a much-anticipated book by renowned gambler Billy Walters.

The stunning betting estimates Walters provides — from his own detailed record from what he describes as two reliable sources — are detailed in an excerpt of Walters' book, "Gambler: Secrets from a Life of Risk."

It is schedule to be available Aug. 22. The FirePit Collective obtained an excerpt of the book. Mickelson's management group did not immediately respond to an email from The Associated Press seeking comment.

Walters is widely regarded as America's most famous gambler who claims to have a winning streak of more than 30 straight years.

He said he ended his betting partnership with Mickelson in 2014. Two years later, Mickelson was a relief defendant in Walters' insider trading case. Mickelson was never charged and had to repay about $1 million he made off a stock deal. Walters was convicted and sentenced to five years in prison. He said he could have avoided prison if Mickelson had told a "simple truth."

Walters said he never told Mickelson he had inside information on Dean Foods stock.

"All Phil had to do was publicly say it. He refused," Walters wrote. "The outcome cost me my freedom, tens of millions of dollars and a heartbreak I still struggle with daily. While I was in prison, my daughter committed suicide — I still believe I could have saved her if I'd been on the outside."

Dixon set to become IndyCar's Ironman

By Jenna Fryer

AP Auto Racing Writer

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — It's dreary and raining in "the CBD" of Auckland, 11 a.m. on Tuesday in the thick of New Zealand winter. A video conference connects with Scott Dixon, who has called from his home in Indiana, in the stickiness of a Midwest summer, where it is 6 p.m. on Monday.

Dixon grew up in Auckland until his racing dreams took him to Australia at age 16. And then two years later, accidentally, all the way to America. It is in the United States where Dixon has a two-plus decade run as the greatest IndyCar driver of his generation.

The first thing he asked The Associated Press was about the Auckland winter weather, laughing at the gloominess as he noted his last return there during its winter season was at least 20 years ago. Come to think of it, Dixon said, none of his friends even call him during New Zealand winter.

"Everyone hibernates,"

Dixon shrugged.

Dixon's visa status when he first moved to the United States required him to make frequent trips back to New Zealand, a commute of 20-plus hours. He later became a summer-only visitor, but those trips eventually were curtailed by COVID restrictions, which kept him out for nearly three years.

When he finally returned last December with his own bi-continental family, he at last was able to introduce his only son, Kit, who was born in January 2020.

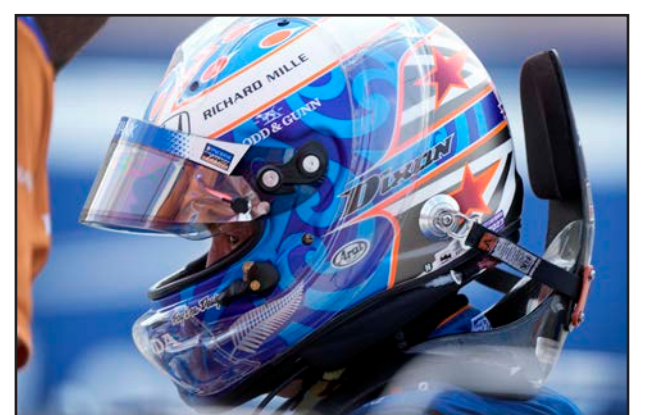

So from this quirky island country located in the southwestern Pacific Ocean and roughly the same size as Colorado, the AP asked Dixon how did he even dream of one day making it to the rest of the world.

"It's weird when you are there, you don't realize how far away from the world you are and how small you are," Dixon replied. "When I go back now, I totally see it. It feels like you are going back to the '80s."

New Zealand is now a hotbed for motorsports talent. Marcus Armstrong, his teammate at Chip Ganassi Racing, is from New Zealand, as is Team Penske star Scott McLaughlin.

Rivera earlier this week let it slip that some players expressed concern over Bieniemy's intense style — remarks the fourth-year Washington coach spoke to his offensive coordinator about and attempted to clarify a day later.

"Eric has an approach, and it's the way he does things and he's not going to change because he believes in it," Rivera said, contrasting that with himself and defensive coordinator Jack Del Rio. "Having been a head coach, I think Jack has a tendency to try and figure guys out a little bit more as opposed to, 'Hey, this is it, this is the way it's going to be' — that type of stuff. Where Eric hasn't had that experience yet."

Bieniemy, 53, doesn't shy away from his intensity, and his yelling at practice almost always is encouraging and constructive. He's trying to fix mistakes and form good habits before the football counts for real.

"We all got to get uncomfortable to get comfortable," Bieniemy said. "There's some new demands and expectations that I expect. I expect us to be the team that we're supposed to be. It's not going to be easy, and everybody isn't going to like the process. But when it's all said and done with, my job is to make sure that we're doing it the right way."

Even if some players wondered about how Bieniemy was going about that process, many have embraced it.

"E.B. does a great job of just coaching the details," second-year running back Brian Robinson Jr. said. "He also does a great job of just making sure guys don't go without knowing their assignments. That's been great for us to just help us learn."

There's a lot of learning to do. Bieniemy brought an entirely different system to Washington, one with new verbiage and more of the run-pass options that have become a feature of modern offenses.

From Howell and veteran backup Jacoby Brissett to top receiver Terry McLaurin and a remade offensive line, it's a lot to pick up and memorize on the fly.

Bieniemy gets fired up talking about young players figuring it out along the way, and he's doing his best to help them.

"I'm only asking them each and every day just work on three things: Find three things to work on," Bieniemy said. "I know practice is not going to be perfect, but if there's three things that you can address, define what those three things are, then if you are making that necessary adjustment and working on those things, we got a chance."

Players need to look no further than the Chiefs for evidence of Bieniemy's work. Or just listen to Mahomes, whose career as a starter in the pros has coincided with Bieniemy running the offense.

"I'm excited for Washington because I know how inspiring that he can be and how smart he was for us," Mahomes said on the AP Pro Football Podcast. "I have so much respect for E.B. He's such a great coach, a great person."

When Rivera's comments about Bieniemy and players' reactions caused an uproar around the league, former Chiefs receiver Tyreek Hill was among those who came to his former coach's defense. Hill posted on social media that no one has a player's back more than Bieniemy and advised the Commanders that the tough coaching will make them better.

If it works, the conversation will turn to Bieniemy getting the promotion many in the game have thought he should have had for years now.

"I loved playing for E.B — the fire, the passion he brings for the game, the consistency he brings," Chiefs guard Trey Smith said during his appearance on the AP Pro Football Podcast. "He definitely has deserved and earned the right to be a head coach in this league."

AP Pro Football Writer Rob Maaddi and AP Sports Writer David Skretta contributed.

Walters said Mickelson told him he had two offshore accounts, and that Mickelson had limits of $400,000 on college games and $400,000 on the NFL.

He said based on his detailed record and additional records provided by sources, Mickelson's gambling between 2010 and 2014 included:

— Betting $110,000 to win $100,000 on 1,115 occasions, and betting $220,000 to win $200,000 on 858 occasions. That alone comes out to just over $311 million.

— Mickelson in 2011 made 3,154 bets for the year and on one day (June 22) he placed 43 bets on Major League Baseball games that resulted in $143,500 in losses.

— He placed 7,065 bets on football, basketball and baseball.

"Based on our relationship and what I've since learned from others, Phil's gambling losses approached not $40 million as has been previously reported, but much closer to $100 million. In all, he wagered a total of more than $1 billion during the past three decades," Walters wrote.

"The only other person I know who surpassed that kind of volume is me."

Walters said they met for the first time at the 2006 AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am, and formed a betting partnership two years later.

Most stunning to Walters, he writes in the excerpt, was a phone call from the Ryder Cup in 2012 at Medinah. He said Mickelson was so confident he asked Walters to bet $400,000 for him on the U.S. winning.

"I could not believe what I was hearing," Walters wrote. "Have you lost your (expletive) mind? I told him, 'Don't you remember what happened to Pete Rose?' The former Cincinnati Reds manager was banned from baseball for betting on his own team. 'You're seen as a modern-day Arnold Palmer,' I added. 'You'd risk all that for this?' I want no part of it."

He said Mickelson replied, "Alright, alright."

"I have no idea whether Phil placed the bet elsewhere. Hopefully, he came to his senses," Walters wrote.

Europe rallied from a 10-6 deficit on Sunday, staging the greatest comeback by a visiting team. Mickelson and Keegan Bradley won three straight matches before Mickelson urged U.S. captain Davis Love III to rest them Saturday afternoon. Mickelson lost his singles match to Justin Rose, a pivotal moment in Europe's comeback.

The PGA Tour suspended Mickelson in early 2022 for helping Saudi-backed LIV Golf recruit PGA Tour players. He signed with LIV for a bonus reported to be upward of $150 million.

In an interview with Sports Illustrated last year, Mickelson was asked about speculation he was having financial troubles.

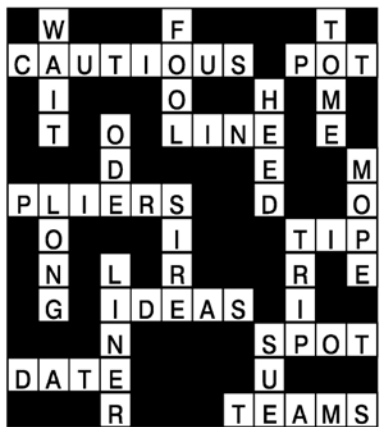

"My gambling got to a point of being reckless and embarrassing. I had to address it," Mickelson said in the interview.

"Gambling has been part of my life ever since I can remember. But about a decade ago is when I would say it became reckless," he said. "It's embarrassing. I don't like that people know. The fact is I've been dealing with it for some time. (Wife) Amy has been very supportive of it and with me and the process. We're at place after many years where I feel comfortable with where that is. It isn't a threat to me or my financial security. It was just a number of poor decisions."

Walters was so successful with his gambling operation that bookmakers often limited the amount of his wagers. He would partner with others who had larger limits. He wrote his partnership with Mickelson was a 50-50 split.

"In all the decades I've worked with partners and beards, Phil had accounts as large as anyone I'd seen," Walters wrote. "You don't get those types of accounts without betting millions of dollars."

$ PRIZEWEEK ANSWERS $

ACROSS

- CAUTIOUS not captious. The clue word "needlessly" is superfluous with captious, which is defined as being unnecessarily critical. CAUTIOUS is better.
- POT not hot. Part of the cooking process for most meat is to heat it, making hot redundant. POT is apt.
- LINE not life. The LINE of work generally means the type of "employment," including tasks (i.e., "problem-solving and teamwork") that fit the clue's context well. "Employment" life points to a type of lifestyle, including flexible work hours or lengthy vacations, for example. Therefore, LINE is a better fit than life.
- PLIERS not fliers. Something that is "out of action" implies that it's normally in an active state, one that involves some sort of motion. Tools, such as PLIERS, fit this description well. Fliers are merely paper.
- IDEAS not ideal. IDEAS is a better choice than ideal since the use of the word "superlative" in the clue is unnecessary with ideal.

- DATE not fate. Since fate is "destiny," there's no need to mention "destiny" in the clue. DATE is better.
- TEAMS not terms. A sudden "change" in the newly arranged TEAM might be mystifying. However, a "change" in financial terms might be completely understandable, due to a stock market rise or a loan rate that has "suddenly" become available.

DOWN

- WAIT not want. The prediction that the man "won't" WAIT "for opportunities to arise" but will seek them out makes a good answer. Just because he is an "achiever" and "highly competitive" doesn't mean that the work environment in which he's involved lends itself to the kind of opportunities that he wants and will subsequently be offered.
- FOOL not foil. FOOL is apt. Foil is unnecessary due to the reference to the "unacceptable prospect of losing," since to foil means to prevent something undesirable from succeeding.
- TOME not Rome. TOME is apt. The reference to "historical" Rome should include the word empire rather than "nation."
- HEED not need. We all need "good advice" at some points in our lives, even if it's as basic as what direction to go when seeking a location. But the clue's reference to "he'll likely encounter" implies that not everyone does this, which matches up well with HEED.

- ODE not one. One is too vague because there's no explanation as to what the word is referring to, regarding types of poems. An ODE makes a straightforward answer.
- MOPE not hope. Feeling "desperate" means feeling hopeless, which makes hope not fit the context of the clue. MOPE is best.
- LONG not lone. You can "reflect on life" whether you're alone or chatting with a walking partner, but you can't get sufficient "exercise" if the "walk" is too short. Therefore, LONG better suits the clue than lone.
- SIRE not site. "To adequately assess a" horse's (i.e., SIRE'S) qualities might need a well-qualified person, but assessing a site could be as simple as picking out a spot to camp on, which doesn't require "qualifications."
- TRIP not trap. "Suddenly" being TRIPPED could cause instant humiliation or even injury, but trapping can be well-intentioned, especially if it is a surprise event that's been arranged to celebrate a person, such as a surprise birthday party.
- LINER not linen. LINER is a comprehensive answer since one of the items onboard the LINER that might be impressively clean could be the linen.

Moon Alert: Caution: Avoid spending money or big decisions from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. EDT today (10 a.m. to 4 p.m. PDT). After that, the Moon moves from Gemini into Cancer.

Happy Birthday for Friday, Aug. 11, 2023:

You're keenly observant and often seek the truth of something. People listen to you because you speak your mind. This is a wonderful year for you. You're getting acknowledgement for your past efforts, perhaps through a raise, a promotion, an award or kudos. Well done. Bravo!

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★ In conversation with others, make sure you get your facts straight. Selective hearing might lead to confusion later. Ditto for wishful thinking. Others might choose to deceive you or hide the real truth from you. It's a tricky day. Tonight: Cocoon.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ This is a poor day for major financial transactions and business deals, not only because of the warning in the Moon Alert, but also because in general, there's confusion and even deceit happening today. This means it's hard for you to trust the facts. It's best to wait. Tonight: Conversations!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★ Someone might accuse you of lying or not being straightforward and forthright with them. If so, you might find this off-putting. What's happening is that there's an element of confusion, hanging like a cloud, in our conversations with others today. This makes it hard for the truth to get back and forth. Be patient. Tonight: Check your money.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★ This is the classic day to kid yourself without realizing that you're doing it. (Well, obviously that's what has to happen if you are successful at kidding yourself, right?) This confusion could relate to racial issues, politics, religion or travel plans. Tonight: You win!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★ You are someone who likes to think the best of their friends, and this is what makes it a tricky day for you. Very likely, a friend or a member of a group is not being straight with you. They might withhold information from you or they might deceive you. But you won't know. Tonight: Enjoy solitude.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ Don't volunteer for anything today. Be careful when talking to authority figures — bosses, parents, VIPs and the police. This is because an element of confusion could go against you. This is the kind of day where people think they know what's happening, but they don't. Tonight: Be friendly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★ Avoid important decisions about politics, religion, higher education, publishing, the media as well as medicine and the law today. Yes, that covers a lot. The reason for this is that things are ambiguous and not clear. You might not have all the facts, and you don't realize it. Sit this one out. Tonight: You're noticed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ This is a poor day for important discussions about inheritances, shared property or something that is jointly held, including banking matters. You might not have all the facts. Possibly, the facts that you have are incorrect. Someone might hide something from you. Tonight: Explore!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★ Conversations with partners, spouses and close friends will be like two ships passing in the night. The way to handle this is to understand that an element of confusion, even mistrust, is present today. Therefore, make no important decisions. Take nobody's word for anything. Tonight: Check your finances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★ You might feel sympathetic to a co-worker today. Someone might need a shoulder to cry on. Kindness is important, no question. But do be aware that someone also might be crying crocodile tears because they're being fast and loose with the truth today. Tonight: Cooperate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★ Be patient when socializing with others today. You might feel misunderstood or even deceived for some reason. However, others might feel deceived by you. All communications are confusing today. Parents must be patient with their kids. Tonight: Work.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ Table any important family discussions for another day, because today will have a mixture of sympathy and distrust. You might want to help a family member, and yet, you hesitate. Or maybe you don't hesitate but you are being deceived. Tonight: Socialize!

Over in NASCAR, the guy who became the McLaughlin of V8 Supercars in Australia after McLaughlin left for Indy has already won his NASCAR debut. Shane van Gisbergen tries to make it 2-in-a-row this Sunday at Indianapolis.

But back before Dixon? No way.

His road to IndyCar was not planned, yet he's now a six-time champion. Dixon will add to his records Saturday when he makes his 319th consecutive start racing on the road course at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

He got here almost by chance.

Dixon had $30,000 from the 14 members of the "The Scott Dixon Investment Group," money meant to be spent on an F3 test in England. Somebody was talking to somebody and former Formula One driver Stefan Johansson mentioned he had an open seat for one day at the two-day IndyCar preseason test.

PacWest then said it also had an open day, and Dixon quickly detoured to Sebring International Raceway, in the middle of nowhere Florida.

"We were the quickest at the test and Stefan offered us a ride. So we didn't even make it to England," Dixon said. "We had just enough money to pay for the test in England, but we had nothing for anything after that."

Johansson had moved into team ownership and brought Dixon to Indianapolis for the 1999 season in the Indy Lights feeder series. To this day, he is Dixon's agent and very much inside the driver's smallest inner circle.

Dixon next got what he believes to be the only paying ride in the history of Indy Lights when Tony Renana negotiated deals for the two of them at PacWest for the 2000 Indy Lights season. Team owner Bruce McCaw later promoted Dixon to the CART Series, where at 20 years old and pretty much couchsurfing his way through the Indianapolis area, he became the youngest driver in the series.

He got the break of his life in 2002 when Chip Ganassi, already a winner of four consecutive championships, grabbed Dixon four races into the season. PacWest was cash-strapped and Dixon aborted one race before the team shuttered.

With Ganassi, Dixon has won six championships, only one shy of A.J. Foyt's record seven. His 53 series victories make him IndyCar's winningest active driver, and he ranks second on the all-time list, again behind Foyt, who won 67 races.

That success helped him buy his way out of the Dixon investment group, which held 60% of his earnings until he was clear of his commitment around 2006. He chuckles that two of the investors didn't want to be bought out, "they wanted 60% of me for the rest of my career."

Because he's winless this year with only four races remaining, Dixon's record of 18 consecutive seasons with a victory is in jeopardy. But he'll hit one esteemed mark for Saturday when Dixon passes good friend Tony Kanaan for the IndyCar record for most consecutive starts.

Dixon, who turned 43 last month, has been with Ganassi a staggering 22 years. That's more than any driver in Ganassi tenure — by more than half. Dixon admits he sometimes pushed too hard early in his Ganassi career, and this streak of consecutive starts would actually be longer but Ganassi sent Dixon home from Milwaukee in 2004 for wrecking two cars.

"I crashed a car in practice 2, then went straight out to qualify and crashed another car. Destroyed two cars in four laps, and we were out of cars. Chip sent me home," Dixon said. "That was a wild year, man. I think I had like six or seven teammates in one year."

And yet Dixon made it. He says he and Ganassi work well together because of their radically different personalities.

"I think Chip and I get along, I guess, we don't have conflicting personalities. I am pretty chill and laid back, and you know, he's a bit of an aggressor," Dixon said. "That's fine, and I appreciate it — maybe not all the time — but in the times that it's called for."

Dixon is nicknamed "The Iceman" because of his cool demeanor and he very much is just a laid-back racer from a tiny country. Ganassi, from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, can erupt over the most banal occurrence. Asked years ago how Dixon had succeeded so long with Ganassi, the boss seemed to suggest it was the driver's low-maintenance. He noted that Dixon never calls him, at least not for any problems.

Dixon said he's just lucky that he's never been in a contract year at any time that Ganassi could have fired him. When drivers were being cycled through in 2004, Dixon was in the middle of a contract.

But that Dixon got to this ironman mark, and got there with just one team owner, is not a coincidence.

Ganassi uses the "#ILikeWinners" hashtag on social media posts celebrating team wins, and Dixon has done his part in winning. Dixon is no different than Ganassi in that winning, and is his family, is all that matters to him.

He picks 2008 as the best year of his life. That's by no coincidence the year he married wife, Emma, won the Indianapolis 500 and the IndyCar championship, and learned he was expecting the first of his three children. His allegiance was made clear last year when he turned on teammate Alex Palou when Palou publicly denounced Ganassi and said he was moving to McLaren.

Palou still drives for Ganassi — he's the IndyCar points leader, while Dixon is third in the standings — and Dixon is now cordial with his teammate. But his firm public position was such a rare burst from Dixon that it felt personal.

And it was: Ganassi is Dixon's home, and his home had been disrespected.

"For me, it's all about winning," Dixon said. "From the first day I walked through the door, the Ganassi shop, you can feel it. Nobody cared about anything else. They just wanted to be there to win. I'd heard of teams like that, but never worked with one."

"It's a relentless group of people that just want to win, and it's a pretty fun environment to be in, and Chip's the very same. I've been with other organizations where it was more about the activations and the promotions. I know all that stuff is important. But with Chip? The first is to win. And that's first. So long as you're doing that, everyone is happy."

Executive team members coordinate with assistant athletic directors, other full-time employees, graduate assistants and student workers that make up the department's operations.

"A big thing for me is staff empowerment and empowering our staff," Howdeshell said. "Giving them not only the responsibility but autonomy to do their job on a daily basis. I am not a micromanager. I believe in delegation, but delegation with oversight. In my almost two months here, these people proved to me that they can do their job. I'm excited to have them a part of our leadership team to guide our coaches and student-athletes."

Howdeshell said the executive team will meet on a weekly basis. In addition, there will be an administrative staff meeting every other week and collaboration between coaches and administrators alike once a month.

Analysis of other internal structures continues, including the creation of a line-item budget.

The upcoming months will also include a strategic planning process and a master facility process.

Planning will focus on developing a vision for the department, while the master facility process will feature an analysis of current facilities through already complete coaching input and future architectural input.

"We want to build a shared vision for the future," Howdeshell said. "I'm not the type of leader who's going to force things on people. I'm much more collaborative."

Central Missouri's 2023-24 competition schedule officially begins Aug. 31 as Mules football travels to Missouri Western.

The slate continues Sept. 1 as Jennies volleyball competes in the Tampa Invitational, Jennies soccer travels to Augustana and UCM cross country travels to Southeast Baptist.

"Our student-athletes are the reason why we have a job," Howdeshell said. "In every decision we make and action we take, we're going to prioritize their overall health and wellbeing. We're also going to make sure we invest experience wise in it too. I just try to reiterate that when I talk to them — we are here for them."

Japan establishing itself as a favorite as Women's World Cup quarterfinals begin

By Jenna Fryer

AP National Writer

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — Japan has hardly been tested in this Women's World Cup and rolled with a perfect 4-0 record into the quarterfinals, where a win over Sweden would show the Nadeshiko are very much a true contender.

But Friday's opening day of the quarterfinals also gives Netherlands an opportunity to take control of a wide-open World Cup. The Dutch were runners-up to the United States four years ago, and the Americans beat them in the quarterfinals of the Tokyo Olympics.

With the U.S. already eliminated, Netherlands has a major obstacle out of its way. But first up comes a match against Spain, which had never before advanced into the quarterfinals of the World Cup until this year.

A look at Friday's game: JAPAN-SWEDEN

Sweden is rated third in the world by FIFA and the highest-ranked team still in the World Cup. After three third-place finishes in the tournament, the Swedes are ready to play in a championship game.

Sweden ended America's run toward an unprecedented third consecutive World Cup title, has been to the semifinals three different times, including in 2019, but has not made it to the final since 2003. Sweden was runner-up to Germany in its only championship game.

The Swedes were sparked by goalkeeper Zecira Musovic, who was unflappable during Sweden's 5-4 penalty shootout win over the Americans.

The one thing Sweden coach Peter Gerhardsson has figured out about Japan is that they are nothing like any other team the Swedes have seen so far in this tournament.

"None of the four opponents we've played so far are reminiscent of Japan," Gerhardsson said. "But when we're looking at the matches played by Japan, we don't think that there are any similarities between those countries and Sweden either."

But Japan has breezed through the tournament and is a perfect 4-0 headed into this match against Sweden at Eden Park, where Japan can avenge its loss to the Swedes in the quarterfinals of the Tokyo Olympics.

Hinata Miyazawa has scored five times in four games and leads the Golden Boot race headed into the match against Sweden. The 23-year-old has already matched the team's World Cup record set by Japanese legend Homare Sawa, who had five goals when Japan won the event in 2011.

Japan has scored a team-record 14 goals while going 4-0 and conceded only one goal this tournament, in a 3-1 victory over Norway in the knockout stage.

"Since this team has been built, everything that we have done is now taking form and we're able to see it on the field," midfielder Fuka Nagano said. "I think that is helping me and each player believe in themselves and I think that's leading to us getting to where we are now."

Japan has benefited from back-to-back games in New Zealand. After beating Norway in Wellington, the Japanese have made the short flight to Auckland. Sweden played in Melbourne, has an additional travel day and a new time zone to adjust to for the quarterfinals.

The game could be a defensive battle despite Japan's scoring abilities because the teams have combined for six clean sheets, and each has conceded only one goal apiece in four games. But Sweden ranks seventh among the eight quarterfinalists for average expected goals, and had just three shots on goal against the United States.

Elvis performs again

Elvis Presley, as seen in "Reinventing Elvis: The '68 Comeback"

Paramount+ presents the new offering "Reinventing Elvis: The '68 Comeback," which starts streaming Tuesday, Aug. 15 — the night before the 46th anniversary of Presley's death, and following the project's limited showings in movie theaters globally. While incorporating many segments from the original show, "Reinventing Elvis" examines Presley's relationship not only with director Steve Binder (who narrates the bulk of the film) but also with his manager, Col. Tom Parker.

WHAT'S NEW ON PRIME VIDEO

"Harlan Coben's Shelter" - Season 1

Based on the novel of the same name by Harlan Coben, the new mystery drama series "Harlan Coben's Shelter" premieres on Prime Video, Friday, Aug. 18. After the sudden death of his father, Mickey Bolitar (Jaden Michael, "Colin in Black & White") starts a new life in Kasselton, New Jersey, and quickly finds himself tangled in the mysterious disappearance of a new student at his school, Ashley Kent (Samantha Bugliaro, "5th Borough," 2020), which leads to uncovering unimaginable secrets within their quiet suburban community. With the help of his friends — the inventive Arthur "Spoon" Spindell (Adrian Green-smith, "Metal Lords," 2022), and secretive Ema Winslow (Abby Corrigan, "Castle Rock") — Mickey pulls back the sleepy facade of Kasselton to reveal a dark underground that may hold the answers to decades of disappearances, deaths, and legends. Co-written for the screen by Harlan Coben, Charlotte Coben ("Stay Close") and Alfredo Barrios Jr. ("Burn Notice"), the series also stars Constance Zimmer ("Good Trouble"), Sage Linder ("The Next Step") and Didi Conn ("Benson").

Abigail Corrigan, Adrian Greensmith, Jaden Michael and Sage Linder star in "Harlan Coben's Shelter"

WHAT'S NEW ON NETFLIX

"The Upshaws" - Season 4

Season 4 of the comedic family saga "The Upshaws" makes its premiere on Netflix, Thursday, Aug. 17. Set in Indianapolis, the series follows The Upshaws, a working-class blended family, through their daily lives as family patriarch Bennie (Mike Epps, "Dolemite Is My Name," 2019) tries to find peace while raising his four kids — Bernard Jr. (Jermelle Simon, "Sojourn," 2018), Kelvin (Diamond Lyons, "Colin in Black & White"), Aaliyah (Khali Spraggins, "Empire") and Maya (Journey Christine, "Let it Snow," 2019) — and balancing his relationships with his wife, Regina (Kim Fields, "The Facts of Life"), and ex-Tasha (Gabrielle Dennis, "A Black Lady Sketch Show"). Meanwhile, Bennie's perpetually unimpressed sister-in-law, Lucretia (Wanda Sykes, "Monster-in-Law," 2005), keeps an eye on them all. In this new season, according to Netflix, "the Upshaws continue to ride life's ups and downs, including new jobs, bigger dreams, health struggles and some major life surprises but still hanging on with the love that comes with family." Created by Regina Y. Hicks ("Girlfriends") and series star Wanda Sykes, "The Upshaws" also stars Page Kennedy ("S.W.A.T.," 2003), Michel Estime ("Last Holiday," 2006), Daria Johns ("Animator," 2018) and Leonard Ear Howze ("Kevin Can Wait").

WHAT'S NEW ON HULU

"Solar Opposites" - Season 4

To save the Earth or to Terraform... that is the question. The planet's most conspicuous new residents continue their study of humanity and all they have to offer when "Solar Opposites" Season 4 premieres on Hulu, Monday, Aug. 14. Created and written by "Rick and Morty's" Justin Roiland and Mike McMahan, this oddball animated comedy follows a team of aliens from the planet Shlorp as they make the most of their new lives after crash landing in middle America. Armed with a pupa (first-time voice actor Sagan McMahan) that should eventually terraform Earth into the new planet Shlorp, aliens Korvo (Dan Stevens, "Downton Abbey"), Terry (Thomas Middleditch, "B Positive"), Yumyulack (Sean Giambrone, "The Goldbergs") and Jesse (Mary Mack, "Twin Cities," 2017) are split on whether Earth is awful or amazing. While they enjoy junk food, TV and other fun activities, they are repulsed by humanity's pollution, consumerism and frailty as a race. Heading into the new season, viewers can expect some more "classic Solar chaos, mayhem in the Wall, and some all-new Silvercops adventures" (per Hulu). "Solar Opposites" is written by M. McMahan, alongside Jen McCartney ("The Big Show Show"), Vidhya Iyer ("Mira, Royal Detective"), Joe Saunders ("Comedy Bang! Bang!"), Josh Bycel ("Happy Endings"), Dominic Dierkes ("Workaholics"), Danielle Uhlarik ("Champaign ILL"), May Darmon ("Star Trek: Lower Decks") and Grace Parra ("Broke").

WHAT'S NEW ON PEACOCK

"Killing It" - Season 2

The hunt for the ultimate American dream never stops in down-on-his-luck bank security guard and father Craig Foster (Craig Robinson, "The Office") struggling to make ends meet for his family. When a chance encounter with his now good friend Jillian (Claudia O'Doherty, "Love") introduces him to the high-stakes world of state-sponsored python hunting, Craig goes all in to make his dreams come true. As reported by NBC, Season 2 of the series "will see the mild success [Craig] found in Season 1 lead him down a new road of trials and tribulations, each wackier than the last," as he experiences just how hard his new stage of entrepreneurship really is. Rell Battle ("Superior Donuts"), Scott MacArthur ("The Mick"), Tim Heidecker ("Us," 2019), Stephanie Noguera ("Switched at Birth"), Jet Miller ("Young Dylan") and Wyatt Walter ("Sons of Thunder) rejoin the cast this season, alongside guest stars Dot-Marie Jones ("Glee"), Katie Kershaw ("Mrs. Fletcher"), Joe Massingill ("Halt and Catch Fire"), Melanie Field ("Heathers"), Tim Simons ("Veep"), Fatimah Taliah ("Triads"), Beck Bennett ("Saturday Night Live") and Kyle Mooney (Arrested Development").
