Sedalia man arrested after Friday shooting

By Democrat Staff

A Sedalia man has been charged after an altercation involving a gun at a local bar left another man injured last week.

Nathaniel A. Shipman, 29, was arrested Wednesday, Aug. 23 after an arrest warrant was issued and a $150,000 bond was set. Online court records do not list any court hearing information.

Shipman has been charged with first-degree assault, armed criminal action, shooting at a motor vehicle or person and unlawful use of a weapon.

Shipman was arrested for allegedly shooting a man in the head during an early Friday morning, Aug. 18 confrontation outside a business in the 100 block of West Main Street.

According to a Sedalia Police Department report, at 12:51 a.m. Friday, a Sedalia Police officer was dispatched to the business in reference to a disturbance and gunshots. No arrests were made on scene.

According to the probable cause statement, two groups of people were leaving the bar when the altercation occurred. Someone in one group allegedly made a comment about someone in Shipman's group, which led to a physical fight in the street.

Through interviews and an investigation, Sedalia police determined Shipman pulled a gun and pointed it at several people outside the bar. He was seen on video from a nearby business, which showed all the subjects involved.

Police say a man tried to grab the gun from Shipman and was shot in the head, with the bullet exiting his scalp and hitting a parked truck. Shipman then allegedly beat the man with the pistol, causing blood to be found on the gun when it was recovered by police.

During his initial interview on scene with police, Shipman denied what happened and said he didn't know who fired the weapon. During a follow-up interview, Shipman continued to deny he shot the man, but police say his story did not line up with interviews with witnesses and other individuals.

First day of school

SACRED HEART BEGINS NEW SCHOOL YEAR THURSDAY

By Chris Howell

chrish@sedaliademocrat.com

Sacred Heart School began the 2023-24 school year Thursday, Aug. 24 as the familiar lines of cars pulled up for a 7:15 a.m. drop-off.

Jessica Hammer walked daughter Annika to her first day of preschool, and was guided across West Third Street by Mr. Williams, the school's amiable crossing guard.

"She's coming for preschool, so it's her first time in a different place since daycare since she was a baby," Hammer said.

Annika's father, Flo Hammer, was dressed for a day at work but took the time to come to the school, to get down on a knee, wish the little girl a great first day and assist her with her bulging backpack. For mom, it is a milestone moment.

"Well, I'm kind of used to leaving her daycare," Hammer said. "It's a little different leaving her in a different place, but I know she'll have fun and she's in a safe place."

As the dozens of families arrived at the school on West Third Street, Fr. Joe Corel and Fr. Cesar Anicama greeted them and held the doors open.

"It certainly is very great to have the schools starting," Corel told the Democrat.

"With the new students and the old returning students, it's just a great day to get started."

In the school's circle drive, students and families happily reunited after a long hot summer.

"It's kind of just going back to see my friends again after so long," sophomore James Russell said. "I have not seen them, just talking to them over, like online. It kind of feels good."

Russell said he is looking forward to his classes as well as his social life.

"I think it'll be pretty good," Russell said. "My schedule is not too bad. I have some nice easy classes mixed in with some harder ones that are even more of a challenge."

Missouri Veterans Home to host Run for Freedom

By Meliyah Venerable

meliyahv@warrensburgstarjournal.com

WARRENSBURG — The Missouri Veterans Home in Warrensburg will host the 21st annual Run for Freedom 5K and 10K at 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 23.

The run is sponsored by the West Central Missouri Veterans Assistance League.

Runners from all over West Central Missouri and Eastern Kansas will participate in the event to help enhance the lives of the veterans who live at the Missouri Veterans Home.

Latisha Koetting, supervisor of volunteer services at the Missouri Veterans Home, said the proceeds of the race have always gone toward programs that enhance the lives of veterans.

In the past, funds helped purchase a handicap-accessible bus to take veterans on outings and to appointments. They have also purchased an ice cream machine, a Go Anywhere Tandem Bicycle that allows staff to take a veteran on a bike ride, and programs like Touchtown, which allowed veterans to stay in touch with their families during the COVID-19 pandemic.

This year, the proceeds will be used to purchase a Tover-tafel for the special care unit. A Tovertafel is a $12,000 program games system for people with dementia and Alzheimer's. The light projector allows staff to make any table into a magic

Veterans will be able to play a variety of games and participate in different activities that will enrich their quality of life.

Melissa Terry, director of the recreation therapy department, saw a demonstration of this product at a conference. She immediately knew it could make a difference for the veterans who have dementia and Alzheimer's.

"Three veterans from the special care unit came up to sample it and they couldn't get enough of it," Koetting said. "They were engaged and fascinated by it. We know this is something that our families will enjoy doing with their veteran."

OBITUARIES

Rickey Joseph Kabler

Rickey Joseph Kabler, 66, passed away peacefully at home, surrounded by family, on August 21, 2023, after a courageous battle with cancer. He was born October 12, 1956, in Sedalia, MO, the son of Joseph Kabler and Evelyn (Kaiser) Kabler, who preceded him in death.

Rickey, more commonly known as Rick, grew up in Sedalia, graduated from Smith-Cotton High School in 1975, and enjoyed attending Vocational Tech classes at State Fair Community College. He reminisced about his time at MFA and built lifelong friendships while cruising the streets of Sedalia in his red Chevelle SS. It could be said that his insistence on never being without his cherry chapstick was a small reminder of days gone by.

Rick also dedicated many years to Hayes Wheels (Maxion) before pursuing his true passion, which could be found within a pasture. He took pride in raising a reputable herd of cattle and ensuring every detail was executed perfectly. Rick's insistence on details was evident in his herd and all aspects of his life. As consistent as the sun rises, he would fix two eggs, two pieces of bacon, and two pieces of toast, followed by coffee on the back porch. Rick would take well-deserved breaks, typically picking Gammagrass seeds or walking fence. Dusk was his cue to come inside and eat dinner with his daughters or watch RFD TV.

When not hard at work, Rick could be found in a perfectly buttoned flannel shirt, crisp Wranglers, and dress boots that had not seen the pasture. He enjoyed yearly trips to the farm show in Springfield with his cousin.

He enjoyed trips to Branson, Powell Gardens, and festivals where he would pose for several photos with the girls.

Holidays weren't his favorite, but he seemed to make it through his stocking and have his candy eaten before presents were opened. Rick's dedication to Jessica, Jackie, and Jerzie was a shining example of his loyalty and commitment to those he cared for. Despite his quiet demeanor, his girls could spark a grin louder than any words spoken. When not in the pasture, he could be found at the kitchen table with Leslie, his bonus daughter, solving the world's problems. Although their perfect solutions and fantastic ideas didn't leave Kabler Avenue, it didn't slow them down.

Proud Father of Jessica Battiato (Tony) and Jackie Kabler.

Proud Grandfather of Jerzie Hart.

Proud Cousin to Randy Stephens (Sharon), Karen Weinberg (Jim), Roxy Viebrock (Don), Wanda Pritzel, Jerry Stephens, Alicia Cole (Greg).

Proud Uncle to Alexis Smith (Matt) and Colin Kabler (Jennifer).

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by his brother, Gary Kabler.

The family will hold a private Celebration of Life in Rick's honor.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions are suggested to the Missouri Department of Conservation or Histiocytosis Association.

Inmate's death at Missouri prison is third this month, eighth this year

By The Associated Press

LICKING, Mo. — An investigation continues into the death of a Missouri prison inmate — the third inmate to die at the same lockup this month and the eighth this year.

Michael Hudson, 46, died Tuesday at a hospital after falling ill at the South Central Correctional Center in Licking, about 140 miles (225 kilometers) southwest of St. Louis. Hudson was serving a life sentence for murder and other crimes in St. Louis.

Texas County Coroner

Marie Lasater said an autopsy performed Thursday showed that Hudson had intestinal bleeding and gastritis, but it wasn't clear if that was the cause of death. Toxicology results will take about three weeks, she said.

Drugs were cited in two other inmates deaths in the past month — those of Logan Ross on July 29 and Bronson Vestal on Aug. 11 — as well as the January death of Alan Lancaster. Four other inmates died this year from what the Missouri Department of Corrections called "natural causes." Those inmates were Nathan Emery, Wayne Johnston, Roderick Stevenson, and Lanny Sunderland.

Missouri, like much of the central U.S., has been in the midst of extreme heat in late August, but corrections department spokeswoman Karen Pojmann said heat was not believed to be a factor in any of the deaths.

Most prisoner deaths listed as natural causes are typically from cancer or heart disease, Pojmann said.

Keeping drugs out of prison is a difficult task,

Pojmann said — contraband has been found in baby diapers in the visiting rooms, stuffed inside sporting equipment in the recreation yards, even hidden in toys donated to a program where offenders work with rescue dogs. The dangerous street drug fentanyl is especially difficult to detect, she said.

The corrections department is taking several steps to stop the influx of drugs. Among them: Mail is now scanned and sent to inmates electronically. Pojmann said the department also is expanding a drug treatment program.

Everyone who is interested is invited to join them as they kick off the new academic year and the 2023-24 music season with this signature event. Before attending the concert in the Utt Music Building, members of the campus and community are invited to a pre-concert reception at 5:30 p.m. at the UCM Art Center Gallery.

Run

During the event, veterans are able to participate by starting the race and giving medals.

"During the run, one of our veterans always shotguns the runners off by pushing the button on the air horn," Koetting said. "They have such a sense of pride being able to kick things off in this way. In addition, our veterans present the medals to our winning runners. Receiving a medal from me is OK, but receiving a medal from a veteran is priceless."

"Also, we purchase a T-shirt for all of our veterans and it includes the names of the individuals, businesses and service organizations who are sponsoring this event. They get to visually see how far people support them. This year's sponsors span from Kansas City to Sunrise Beach. They get excited when they see a sponsor who is from their hometown."

Events like this allow the home to take veterans on outings to some of their favorite places.

"I think some people believe that everything at the Veterans Home is covered by the Veterans Administration or the State of Missouri," Koetting said. "However, that's not the case. Our Veterans Assistance League hosts events like these to bring special things to our home."

This includes receiving prize money for bingo, enjoying free ice cream and live music, and going on outings to favorite restaurants, the Missouri State Fair, the World War I Museum, the Kansas City Zoo or a Kansas City Royals game.

"These are the things our veterans look forward to," Koetting said. "During the 2022-23 fiscal year, our Veterans Assistance League spent nearly $119,000 in programs that enhance the lives of the veterans who live at the Missouri Veterans Home in Warrensburg. One runner or one sponsor can make a difference. Every dollar counts."

The event offers a 5K and 10K run that is USATF certified and uses a professional timing company to document running times.

In 2022, runners ranged in age from 1 to 78. Medals are presented to the top three finishers in each age category for the run by the veterans who live at the home.

The cost to participate is $30. The deadline to receive a shirt is Sept. 9. Online registration is available at register.chronotrack.com/r/72316. Entry forms may also be picked up at the Missouri Veterans Home, 1300 Veterans Road.

Sponsorship, volunteer opportunities and additional information are available by calling Koetting at 660-429-4661.

Drive to Feed Kids raises 1.2 million meals for Missourians in need Missouri Farmers Care, agricultural leaders, and partners joined together at the Missouri State Fair to capstone the 2023 Drive to Feed Kids. The effort to help those facing hunger in the state raised more than 1.2 million meals.

Food insecurity affects 1 in 7 Missouri children and increases to up to 1 in 3 kids in some rural parts of the state. Missouri agriculture has banded together to take action to help change this reality through the Missouri Farmers Care Drive to Feed Kids campaign. Over the past eight years, this collaborative partnership has raised resources to provide more than 12 million meals for children and families across the state.

"Farmers and ranchers work 365 days a year to responsibly and sustainably produce abundance from our farms and ranches," said Ashley McCarty, MFC executive director. "The Drive to Feed Kids addresses the disparities where that abundance doesn't reach our neighbors' dinner tables. We are honored to again partner with Missouri agriculture, agribusiness, elected leaders and Feeding Missouri to make a positive impact in the lives of our food insecure neighbors."

These activities were the capstone of the year-long effort to meet the needs of food-insecure Missourians. Missouri's agricultural youth programs once again partnered with the Drive to raise meals in communities across the state. Missouri 4-H members raised resources to provide 711,286 meals during the 4-H Feeding Missouri campaign this spring. During Missouri FFA Day of Service on Aug. 15, hundreds of Missouri FFA Association members and agricultural leaders came together at the Missouri State Fair to pack 160,000 family meals. Missouri 4-H clubs and FFA chapters statewide expanded their local impact through matching mini-grants provided by the Drive.

Food banks consistently report that protein is the most requested item for families. Through the partnership's Hogs for Hunger initiative, swine exhibitors and producers were invited to commit pigs to feed neighbors in need. Through the generosity of exhibitors and producers, 33,371 servings of pork were donated this year. Drive to Feed Kids donations are distributed statewide through Feeding Missouri, the association of Missouri's six regional food banks.

"The number of Missourians, and specifically children, living in food-insecure households is growing due to several factors," said Heather Hargrove with Feeding Missouri. "We are grateful to have the continued commitment of the agriculture community. This partnership helps ensure children in Missouri have access to the nutritious food necessary to succeed during the school year."

Fairgoers participated in the Missouri Farmers Care $2 Tuesday at the Missouri State Fair by bringing non-perishable food items and monetary donations. Missouri FFA donated fresh produce from FFA student projects on display at the fair. Missouri's elected and agricultural leaders packed meal boxes on Governor's, Legislators' and Judges' Day. Through all of these efforts, resources for 60,900 meals were donated.

The Missouri Farmers Care Drive to Feed Kids is made possible by ADM, Brownfield Ag News, American Family Insurance, MFA

Inc., FCS Financial, NutraBlend, Missouri Corn Merchandising Council, American Family Dreams Foundation, Missouri Soybean Merchandising Council, Missouri Farm Bureau, Martin Rice, Missouri FFA Foundation, Jerry Litton Family Memorial Foundation, Missouri State Fair Foundation, Missouri Pork Association, Missouri's Electric Cooperatives, Forrest and Charlotte Lucas — founders of Protect the Harvest, Midwest Dairy, Professional Pet Association, Missouri Department of Agriculture, Missouri State Fair, Missouri FFA, Feeding Missouri, Missouri 4-H and University of Missouri Extension, benevolent individuals and the contributions of Missouri farmers, ranchers and agribusinesses.

The Drive to Feed Kids was launched in 2017 with the goal of building collaborative partnerships among nonprofit organizations, farmers and agricultural businesses committed to addressing food insecurity in Missouri. For more information, visit www.MOFarmersCare.com/drive.

ACROSS

6. REMONSTRATE not demonstrate. If the "port workers" are speaking out (i.e., REMONSTRATING) against "new regulations," there's a possibility a "strike" is looming. However, if the "workers" are demonstrating, they may already be taking "strike" action.

11. PLAY not plan. Plan is too vague, since it could apply to many aspects of the director's life, not just his theater productions. PLAY is apt.

12. HEALTH not wealth. HEALTH is a straightforward answer. Usually, an average "single" adult doesn't have wealth to squander.

13. SHOW not snow. A "theater" SHOW might well be "spoiled" after buying what's often a pricey ticket, only to realize it was a waste of money. However, snow that has been deemed to be "unpleasant" might simply be a nuisance, not a factor keeping someone from enjoying a night "dining out" and attending the "theater."

14. SPICE not space. SPICE is apt. Space can't be referred to as a thing; rather, it's an expanse or an area.

16. WINE not nine. Since the "room" could be a restaurant with an array of water, sauce and condiment "bottles" on the table, nine "bottles" isn't a strong answer because it doesn't take into account the "tipsy" condition of the "friends." WINE makes a logical answer.

18. POST not past. She could have an impressive job (i.e., POST) that, in her view, wasn't "seriously considered" by the "loan" manager. However, past is too wide-ranging in definition since much of her past wouldn't be relevant to a "loan" officer.

DOWN

1. HERO not Nero. "emperor" Nero would have been "referenced" by his name throughout his "reign," not just in the "early years" of it. At the start of his "reign," there may have been some who considered him a HERO.

2. LOCK not dock. There are many dry docks that are waterless areas built to repair ships, making dock a poor choice due to the clue's reference to "dripping wet." At a LOCK, even when the water is at its lowest, there'd be enough in it to get a person "dripping wet."

3. STIR not star. STIR is best since the "popular actress" would probably welcome the publicity. But if she's classified as "popular," she is already a star to some degree.

4. BAND not hand. The fact that the "lead singer continues to get nasty reviews" shows the situation is already "out of" hand. "Getting out of" the BAND is a better choice.

5. YELL not bell. The clue word "fortunately" implies that the "student" was lucky, which fits well with being awoken by a YELL from the schoolyard, perhaps. The bell could be a signal that the allotted time to write the "exam" is over, meaning that she was unlucky enough to have slept through the test.

7. MAYOR not major. A major is usually shown "respect" from the military he works with, though not necessarily from the "public." A MAYOR, however, must work directly with the "public" from whom he'd hope for "respect."

8. EYED not dyed. "Pink hair" is likely to get "a lot" of looks (e.g., EYED), but it could be the first time that the "teen" has ever had her "hair" dyed "pink" since there's nothing in the clue to imply this is routine behavior.

9. RULES not roles. Usually there's one "precise" interpretation of a RULE. But the role he's expected to play at the "conference" could be open to interpretation, depending on how formal or informal the "proceedings" are.

10. FORCE not forge. "To" forge "ahead" means to make good progress and, therefore, doesn't match with the clue words "can be folly." FORCING the "troops" "ahead" is a better answer.

13. STRAP not scrap. STRAP is best. Scraps are usually considered "useless," which is why they're discarded; therefore, "useless" is redundant in the clue.

Fox News reaches 12.8 million viewers for GOP primary debate

By David Bauder

AP Media Writer

NEW YORK — Even without lead contender Donald Trump, an estimated 12.8 million people watched the first Republican presidential primary debate on two Fox News television channels and its streaming service.

There seemed little evidence that Trump's attempt to counterprogram the debate, by appearing in an online interview with Tucker Carlson at about the same time on Wednesday, appreciably affected the number of people who were interested in checking out the eight alternatives.

The viewership was a little more than half the 24 million people who watched Trump appear in his first presidential debate in August 2015, the Nielsen company said. But it outpaced a January 2016 GOP candidates debate on Fox that Trump also skipped and was seen by 12.5 million people.

Television is a vastly different world than it was eight years ago, with streaming more established and thousands of cable customers cutting the cord. The most-watched program seen live last week on either broadcast or cable TV was a "60 Minutes" rerun on CBS that reached 5.3 million viewers.

While ex-Fox host Carlson boasted Wednesday that his streamed interview would get a "far larger" audience than the televised debate — and Trump claiming that the interview exceeded the Super Bowl in audience — there's no reliable way of checking that.

X, the social media company formerly known as Twitter, said late Thursday afternoon that the tweet of Carlson's interview show had 236.7 million views. But that's a count of how many times someone scrolled by Carlson's interview with Trump in their feeds — even if they didn't open up the post to see what was said.

If you happened to scroll by the post a dozen different times, that counts as a dozen views.

Public interaction numbers were smaller: There were some 55,000 comments attached to the interview, with about 200,000 people saying they liked it.

The television viewership figure is an estimate of how many people were watching the debate at any given minute. The debate was simulcast on Fox News Channel and the Fox Business Network.

Moderated by Bret Baier and Martha MacCallum, the two-hour debate barely mentioned Trump until it was halfway through. Then Baier said he wanted to take a brief moment to talk about "the elephant not in the room" — Trump and his four criminal indictments.

The reluctance to talk about the topic was evident, but the 10 minutes when it was discussed included some of the debate's more electric moments.

Deadly heat wave in central US strains infrastructure, transportation

By Acacia Coronado and Juan Lozano

Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — Deadly heat that has gripped Texas for much of the summer has spread into other parts of the central U.S. this week where it is forecast to stay for days, with triple-digit temperatures buckling roads, straining water systems and threatening the power grid of the nation's energy capitol.

With heat warnings and advisories stretching from New Orleans to Minneapolis, the unyielding weather is stressing the systems put in place to keep resources moving and people safe. Just this week, a 1-year-old left in a hot van in Nebraska died, and Louisiana reported 25 heat-related deaths this summer — more than twice the average number in recent years.

The heat is expected to become "dangerous to the average person" if they don't have air conditioning, said Alex Lamers, a warning coordination meteorologist at the National Weather Service's Weather Prediction Center.

It has felt hotter than 110 degrees (43.3 C) in cities in Texas and Louisiana more often than at any time since World War II, Lamers said. The brunt of the enduring heat has hit states from Florida to New Mexico, he said.

Texas' grid — which failed during a deadly winter storm in 2021 — has so far held up with no outages in the face of unrelenting heat.

The Electric Reliability Council of Texas, which oversees the grid, asked residents twice last week to conserve energy because of high demand and low reserves. The agency issued a weather watch that's in place through Aug. 27.

But there are risks the longer this drags on, said Alison Silverstein, a Texas-based independent energy analyst and former adviser to the state's energy regulator. She compared it to a car overheating as the system tries to keep up with weeks of record-breaking demand.

"At least your car on a long trip has a chance to rest overnight and cool off," she said. "A lot of these plants have been running nonstop, or pretty close to it, since June."

Experts have warned that infrastructure can be damaged under the extreme strain of enduring and recurring heat waves brought on by climate change.

Union Pacific has imposed more speed restrictions this summer across its network of more than 32,000 miles (51,499 kilometers) of Western track as a "precaution to reduce the impact on the rail when it gets hot," spokeswoman Kristen South said Tuesday.

Costs in the U.S. for road maintenance and replacement due to rising temperatures could reach $26.3 billion by 2040, with most of the damage expected to hit Texas, California and Illinois, according to a 2017 study by University of Arizona and Arizona State University researchers.

The heat has already caused an unusual number of Texas water line breaks and roadway issues.

Texas officials are monitoring the heat, roadways and tips from residents to address issues as quickly as possible, said transportation department spokesman Danny Perez. Houston officials learned of likely heat-related damage to a road Sunday after about 10 other similar reports in June, he said.

And though water pipes burst last winter when a deep freeze set in across much of the Deep South, cities are being reminded that heat poses similar problems.

Houston's high temperatures and a lack of rain have caused the ground to shift and damage the city's aging pipes. Residents' top service request is for water leaks, according to city data. Reports of water leaks from the past month were up 25% from the same period last year.

Demand and leaks are both increasing, and the city is using emergency purchase orders to add contractors for repairs, said

Erin Jones, Houston Public Works spokeswoman.

San Antonio Water Systems has already tallied more breaks this month than in all of July, said the agency Wednesday. Customers need to cut back on outdoor watering, the agency said.

Cooling systems are also under strain. Missouri firefighters helped remove 117 patients from a Kansas City nursing facility Tuesday after the air conditioning failed in temperatures that felt as high as 115 degrees (46.1 C). Most Parkview Healthcare nursing facility residents were taken to other facilities, but seven who had COVID-19 were taken to hospitals, authorities said.

Students across the U.S. are learning in roasting classrooms or having their days cut short, including over a dozen in Denver on Wednesday. Chicago-area schools delayed classes or ending them early. Milwaukee Public Schools, Wisconsin's largest, closed campuses through Thursday.

An estimated 36,000 schools across the U.S. need to update or install HVAC systems, according to a U.S. Government Accountability Office report in 2020.

Associated Press writers Paul Weber in Austin, Margery Beck and Josh Funk in Omaha, Nebraska, and Jack Dura in Bismarck, North Dakota, contributed to this report.

Presidential debate shows GOP candidates struggling to address climate change

By Steve Peoples

AP National Political Writer

NEW YORK — The eight Republican presidential candidates on the debate stage were asked to raise their hands if they believed human behavior is causing climate change. Not a single hand went up.

Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis shut down the question and attacked the "corporate media." Echoing the words of former President Donald Trump, Vivek Ramaswamy called climate change "a hoax" and a "wet blanket on our economy." Sen. Tim Scott, R-S.C., insisted that more serious environmental threats are coming from China, India and Africa.

Just one Republican, former U.N. Ambassador Nikki Haley, said during Wednesday night's debate in Milwaukee that climate change "is real."

A day later, frustrated leaders in the GOP's small but growing movement of environmental activists said their party must do better. In fact, some young conservatives confronted Ramaswamy at a gathering after the debate and told him his answer was particularly unhelpful.

"We're getting to a point where Republicans are losing winnable elections because they're alienating people that care about climate change," Christopher Barnard, the Republican president of the American Conservation Coalition, the largest conservative environmental group in the nation, said Thursday.

As the 2024 presidential contest begins in earnest, the Republican Party is struggling to reconcile rising concerns about climate change — especially young people — with the GOP's older base, which largely rejects climate science as a liberal conspiracy theory. Scientists overwhelmingly agree that heat-trapping gases released from the combustion of fossil fuels are pushing up global temperatures, upending weather patterns and endangering animal species.

Some Republican leaders have acknowledged they cannot ignore climate change altogether. House Speaker Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., has called for planting 1 trillion trees to help protect the environment. But the solutions and environmental advocates — government action to force emissions reductions — remains a nonstarter with the GOP's presidential candidates.

"The climate change agenda is a hoax," Ramaswamy said during the debate, repeating the line for emphasis, even as some younger people in the audience booed. "The reality is more people are dying of climate change policies than they actually are of climate change."

None of Ramaswamy's competitors, eager to attack him on other issues during the two-hour debate, challenged him directly on climate, even after the debate moderators highlighted new evidence that climate change is causing major problems.

Former Vice President Mike Pence, who was silent on climate change during the debate, suggested on Thursday that it is largely a matter of messaging for the GOP.

"Look the climate is changing, but I believe the issue is what we do about it," Pence told The Associated Press, condemning Democratic-backed policies such as the so-called Green New Deal. "It's all just about communicating a different vision."

Meanwhile, conditions across the country and the world are creating new urgency for the GOP to take climate change seriously.

Heavy rains poured on Cleveland during the debate and Detroit flooded overnight. Wildfires in Canada have led to smoky, polluted air in much of the United States, while a catastrophic wildfire in Hawaii was the deadliest in more than a century. Southern California was hit with a tropical storm for the first time in decades.

But the biggest climate effect has been the heat.

July saw global daily and monthly temperatures hotter than modern equipment had ever recorded. Some scientists said it was the hottest in about 120,000 years, based on tree rings and other proxy records. The world's oceans have set records for heat, both on the surface and deeper, every month since spring. Florida saw 100-degree water and unprecedented coral bleaching.

The presidential debate "underscored the fact that one of the two parties (the GOP) not only refuses to act on the climate crisis, but refuses to even acknowledge it exists," University of Pennsylvania climate scientist Michael Mann said in an email. "It is a disqualifying position on the defining challenge of our time."

"The party will lose a huge chunk of voters, especially women and younger voters if it adopts this stance," he said.

Most people in the United States (62%) say the federal government is doing too little to reduce climate change, according to a September 2022 poll from The Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research. Even as U.S. adults don't think the government is doing enough, there's a clear division among Republicans.

Half of Republicans under age 45 say the government isn't addressing climate change enough, compared with just 32% of older Republicans.

Younger Republicans also say they feel anxious when discussing climate change at a higher rate than older Republicans. An AP-NORC poll from April found that 17% of young Republicans said anxious describes how they feel when talking about climate change, compared with 7% of older Republicans.

Among Americans overall, those under 45 are twice as likely as those 45 and older to say they're anxious when talking about climate change (30% vs. 15%).

Barnard, of the American Conservation Coalition, said it was a win for conservative environmentalists that the climate question was even asked. But he said that his party must do better and he offered advice to the GOP's presidential class.

"You don't have to be the biggest climate champion," Barnard said. "If you just say, 'Climate change is real, and we're going to have some sort of solution,' that's enough for most voters."

The energy is palpable as students return to the small Catholic school, which is a vital part of the St. Vincent de Paul parish.

"There's been a lot of excitement trying to get the new president underway and she's excited. She comes with a lot of energy, a lot of skill sets that we're looking for," Corel said. "We're missing (former president) Dr. Register, but we know that we have somebody great in that chair with Nikki Howell, so trying to get her on board and ready to go."

Hiring all positions has gone well, though a few positions remain unfilled.

"In this climate and time and our environment, we're always looking for new teachers, always looking for new staff members," Corel said, "and they've done a great job of getting those positions filled."

Second-year Principal Dr. Nancy Manning welcomed the staff and students over the P.A. with morning announcements, the pledge of allegiance and a prayer.

"It's very exciting," Manning said. "I could feel the positive energy outside, all the smiles on the faces and taking the traditional pictures in front of the Sacred Heart School sign. The students are excited. The teachers have spent a lot of time developing their lessons for the year, getting bulletin boards ready, their doors, decorating the school – it looks great, it's clean, it's fresh, and I think everybody's excited to be back."

With 377 students enrolled, Sacred Heart has seen steady growth and is still accepting applications for enrollment. Manning said there are also a few positions available for part-time custodians and kitchen staff.

"We're just excited about how the summer has gone and help us be the best that we can be serving our students this year for the upcoming year," Corel said. "Let's just keep each other in prayer and keep each other accountable and moving forward for a great school year."

Ohtani's sparkling future, impending free agency murky after elbow injury

By Greg Beacham
Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Shohei Ohtani already knew he had a career-altering tear in his elbow ligament when he roped a double to right in the fifth inning of the Angels' doubleheader nightcap on Wednesday.

After he hustled to second base, he was greeted by Elly De La Cruz. Cincinnati's 21-year-old rookie shortstop jokingly poked at the smiling Ohtani, essentially asking the two-way superstar, "Are you real?"

That's the question all of baseball has been asking about Ohtani for the past three seasons, ever since he returned from Tommy John surgery and redefined what's possible in this sport.

But the new injury to his ulnar collateral ligament is a merciless reminder that the 29-year-old Ohtani is, in fact, real — a baseball unicorn, but also an athlete challenging the limit of human potential and physiology.

Ohtani hit that limit earlier Wednesday when he abruptly left the mound after just 26 pitches in the doubleheader opener. Tests revealed a ligament tear that could require Ohtani to undergo a second Tommy John surgery, a circumstance that almost invariably worsens and shortens pitching careers.

Ohtani won't pitch again this season, although he seems likely to keep hitting for the final 5 1/2 weeks. His long-term future, so sparkling and lucrative only a few hours earlier, is murky.

Ohtani was about 11 weeks away from free agency — a contract increasingly likely to be worth more than $600 million for two All-Star talents in one body. After spending six seasons with the perpetually disappointing Angels, he also had the chance to choose whatever team he believes will get him closer to winning a World Series.

While it's heartbreaking for the players and leaders who know him best, they also realize it's ridiculous to assume Ohtani can be stopped.

"If I was to bet on anybody bouncing back, he would be the guy," Angels general manager Perry Minasian said. "I believe he'll be back and he'll be able to do both again at a very high level."

HEAT FORCES CHANGES TO FALL SPORTS SCHEDULES

The sun goes down on S-C Stadium near the conclusion of the football program's Tiger Night event held on July 27. S-C is among area schools who have postponed start times or games altogether on Friday, the first day of fall sports contests.

Contrary to Kenny Chesney lore, everything does not get hotter when the sun goes down.

That's why local schools are pushing back the start times of sporting events Friday, which marks the first day of the fall sports season.

Smith-Cotton athletic director Kyle Middleton spoke about the decision-making process that involves using a Wet Bulb Globe Temperature, an instrument that measures heat stress in direct sunlight and takes into account everything from temperature to wind speed. That helps trainers and ADs to follow certain thresholds in regards to canceling or modifying practices and games.

Middleton used Friday night's S-C Shootout for boys soccer as an example.

Smith-Cotton and Sacred Heart were both initially set to play back-to-back at Tiger Stadium, but readings this week led to the decision of a split-site schedule where both teams will play at 7 p.m. Smith-Cotton will face Osage at Tiger Stadium while simultaneously the Gremlins will take on Clinton at Susie Ditzfeld Memorial Field. On Saturday, S-C will match up with Clinton at 9:30 a.m. and Sacred Heart-Osage will follow.

As football is concerned, essentially all schools have moved back start times for football kickoffs.

Cole Camp, traveling to Wellington-Napoleon, will kick off at 8 p.m. The same can be said for kickoff times involving other Kaysinger schools, with the exception of Lincoln, the only Kaysinger program that will host in Week 1, set to begin against Lone Jack at 8:30 p.m.

Smith-Cotton travels to Moberly for its opener and will also kickoff at 8 p.m.

"The biggest reason [for moving back] is that you're warming up at 6 p.m. and it's too hot to wear helmets and shoulder pads [at that point], so we'd essentially be warming up with no pads," Middleton said. "At 7 p.m., you can be in full pads, so we thought pushing it back [an hour]. Luckily, since we didn't have school, we've been able to go in the morning [for other sports]."

Other modifications to Smith-Cotton's schedule outside of football and soccer included moving Friday's girls tennis match at Marshall to Sept. 19, with the team's opener now set for Monday at home against Capital City. The Lady Tigers softball team also had their opener at California postponed to Sept. 27.

SFCC men's XC season set to begin

The coaching staff of the SFCC men's cross country team likes what they have seen so far in practice as the season is set to begin.

"Heading into fall, the men's team is a little more prepared, as most of them ran a good amount during the summer," said Roadrunners assistant coach Cooper Pauley. "They are ready to go. Our practices have been about finding spots for everyone. We have nine total cross country runners, and eight of them are freshmen. David Leon is our only returner, but he did not run cross country last year.

"This is the most talented group that we've had so far, as far as their times in high school. I think we are off to a good start, but we have to get everyone used to going from 5K to 8K."

AP source: World Series MVP Strasburg expected to retire

By Howard Fendrich and Stephen Whyno
AP Sports Writers

WASHINGTON — Washington Nationals pitcher Stephen Strasburg has decided to retire, ending a career that began as a No. 1 draft pick, included 2019 World Series MVP honors and was derailed by injuries, according to a person with knowledge of the situation.

The person spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity Thursday because Strasburg has not spoken publicly about his plans. The person told The AP that Strasburg is expected to hold a news conference before a game at Nationals Park next month.

The Washington Post first reported Strasburg's decision to retire, saying the announcement is expected to come Sept. 9.

"When healthy, he was one of the most dominant starting pitchers in the game," longtime teammate Ryan Zimmerman told The AP by phone Thursday.

Washington Nationals pitchers Max Scherzer, left, and Stephen Strasburg hug after the Washington Nationals defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 in a National League wild-card baseball game at Nationals Park, Tuesday, Oct. 1, 2019, in Washington. Nationals pitcher Stephen Strasburg has decided to announce his retirement, ending a career that began as a No. 1 draft pick, included 2019 World Series MVP honors and was derailed by injuries, according to a person with knowledge of the situation. "You'd be hard-pressed to find someone who worked harder than he did. He deserves to be celebrated because he was a pretty special player. You could argue that he lived up to, or even exceeded, what was expected of a No. 1 pick."

Strasburg, who turned 35 last month, had his career knocked off course and ultimately cut short by injuries after leading the Nationals to their first title in franchise history four years ago. He had surgery for thoracic outlet syndrome, a nerve and blood disorder that involved removing a rib and two neck muscles.

U.S. not worried about pressure as Basketball World Cup begins

By Tim Reynolds
AP Basketball Writer

MANILA, Philippines — The Naismith Trophy is part of the prize package for winners of the Basketball World Cup. It made a whirlwind tour over the last few weeks, including a stop in Las Vegas where U.S. guard Tyrese Haliburton got to spend a little time in its company.

He immediately understood the mission.

"It's nice to see it," Haliburton said. "It'll be nicer if we bring it home."

The chance for 32 teams to do just that finally gets underway on Friday, when the World Cup begins in the Philippines, Indonesia and Japan. Consider this a redemption-type opportunity for the U.S., which was seventh — its worst-ever finish — at the last World Cup in 2019, and even saw its 12-year reign atop the men's national-team world rankings end last November.

Yet at this World Cup, the only team with 12 NBA players on its roster finds itself back in the role as the favorite knowing that only gold will be good enough and anything less will be decried as failure.

"We're going to compete. We're going to play as hard as we can. We're going to try to win a gold medal," U.S. coach Steve Kerr said. "If we don't, we understand there will be plenty of criticism and we're OK with that. But our approach is, this is incredibly fun, we're unbelievably fortunate to be able to do this and to compete and know that we did everything we could. We're putting in the effort. We want to win. But whatever happens happens — and we'll live with that."

There are no shortage of challengers. France believes it finally is in position to win gold, after winning bronze at the most recent World Cup at China in 2019, silver behind the U.S. at the Tokyo Olympics two summers ago, and silver behind Spain at last year's EuroBasket.

Yankees GM Cashman calls this season 'a disaster'

By Ronald Blum
AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK — “How We Do” blared from the clubhouse speakers as disco lights flashed to the rap. Aaron Judge took over the wrestling championship belt that Anthony Volpe had held since the rookie’s three-run homer sparked a win at Miami on Aug. 11.

“He’s never going to get the belt back again if it’s going to lead to eight, nine losses in a row,” Judge said with a playful smile.

Despite a feel-good 9-1 victory over Washington on Wednesday night that ended the Yankees’ first nine-game losing streak in 41 years, New York (61-65) is 9 1/2 games back of a play-off berth and on track to end its streak of winning seasons at 30.

“That ain’t going to hit a 95 mph fastball worrying about the standings,” Judge said. “We’ve got to focus on what we can control here on the field and show up every single day.”

Before the first three-homer game of Judge’s major league career, general manager Brian Cashman said the team was “really obviously disappointed, frustrated, angered.”

“I don’t think anybody wants to go out in front of 40,000 people and lay an egg,” he said — an image late New York Daily News cartoonist Bill Gallo would have relished.

New York remains without a World Series appearance since winning the 2009 title. Injuries certainly impacted plans.

New York’s projected rotation of Gerrit Cole, Carlos Rodón, Nestor Cortes, Luis Severino and Domingo Germán started 79 of the first 126 games. Yankees starters are 36-40 with a 4.72 ERA that is 23rd among the 30 teams. Yankees batters rank 29th in batting average at .229 and 24th in runs with 533.

Third baseman Josh Donaldson had just 15 RBIs and played only 33 games due to hamstring injuries.

Slugger Giancarlo Stanton has 45 RBIs in 76 games, also missing substantial time with a bad hamstring. He has been sidelined by injuries in 11 of the past 14 seasons.

First baseman Anthony Rizzo was hitting .172 with one homer and nine RBIs following a collision with San Diego’s Fernando Tatis Jr. on May 28, sustaining a concussion that was not diagnosed until he was put on the injured list on Aug. 3. Rizzo has 41 RBIs in 99 games overall.

Judge, coming off an AL-record 62 homers and an MVP award, is hitting .279 with 27 homers and 54 RBIs in 72 games. He missed nearly eight weeks after spraining his right big toe against the Dodger Stadium fence on June 3 and returned before the injury fully healed.

“We are what our record says we are. We’re certainly not proud of it. It’s been a disaster of a season and we’re embarrassed by it,” Cashman said. “We’ve learned that with what hit us when that storm hit us, that we didn’t have enough to sustain or maintain and it sunk us.”

Cashman, 56, has been general manager since 1998 and agreed last December to a four-year contract. Aaron Boone took over as manager before the 2018 season and the 50-year-old has one more guaranteed season in a three-year deal that includes a team option for 2025.

“I think we’re all going to be evaluated, including myself,” Cashman said.

“I think we’ve got a pretty good track record,” he added. “We’ve had a real good run of success. ... I’ll do everything I can to try to clean it up and fix what is broken.”

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★ Despite your desire to travel and do something to expand your world, today you feel the need to withdraw and seek out privacy and solitude in beautiful surroundings. You want to relax and take it easy. Affectionate romance appeals to you! Tonight: Explore!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ For some reason, today people seem to be aware of the personal details about your private life. It's good to be aware of this in case you have to do some damage control. This increased scrutiny might be because of ex-partners, ex-spouses or old friends who are back on the scene. Tonight: Listen.

Chargers seeking more depth in running game

By Joe Reedy

Associated Press

COSTA MESA, Calif. — Austin Ekeler is entrenched as the Los Angeles Chargers starting running back.

Yet, the competition to determine who will back him up remains wide open.

Joshua Kelley and Isaiah Spiller have shown improvement during training camp and the first two preseason games, while undrafted rookie Elijah Dotson is making a bid for a roster spot.

All three running backs will get one final chance to make their case during Friday's preseason finale at San Francisco.

"I think that anyone on the active (roster) in the running back room, you're going to want to utilize all of those different guys," offensive coordinator Kellen Moore said. "We'll just see how it all plays out. That will be through the season, I think, by game plan."

The Chargers have been searching for a consistent backup for Ekeler since he became the starter in 2020. But there is some optimism that there might be a feasible plan this season.

Coach Brandon Staley has discussed emphasizing the running game more since the end of last season. He fired Joe Lombardi after two years as offensive coordinator and brought in Kellen Moore, who was Dallas' coordinator for four seasons.

The Chargers were ninth in the league last season in total offense, but 30th in average rushing yards per game (89.6) and per carry (3.77). Lombardi also called runs on 35% of the plays, the second-lowest rate in the league.

By comparison, Dallas ran it on 47.7% of its plays last season, tied for 10th.

Moore has installed a running scheme geared toward running straight ahead rather than outside. The style has proved to be popular with everyone on the offense.

"We feel like we're built for the downhill run game. When you're downhill and you're bringing it to the defense, it amps you up early and gets you going," guard Zion Johnson said.

Kelley and Spiller also think the changes fit their style of running better. Kelley is averaging 4.8 yards per carry in the preseason, and seven of his 13 carries have gone for at least 5 yards.

"I think that really fits my style. One cut, just get downhill. A lot of our outside zone perimeter runs are just one cut. Just be decisive," Kelley said. "I've seen some improvements out there. I'm just looking to build and improve continuously."

Kelley is going into his fourth season and acknowledged that the first two years were difficult because of fumbles and struggling on special teams. He averaged 4.2 yards per carry last season but missed four games because of a knee injury.

Spiller, a fourth-round pick like Kelley, did not see the field much as a rookie last season. He was limited to six games because of injuries and the learning curve on special teams.

Spiller had only 18 carries for 41 yards last season. He is averaging 5.4 yards per carry in the preseason. It would have been more if a 71-yard touchdown run against the Rams wasn't called back because of a holding penalty.

"Kellen's offense is more toward (Texas A&M coach) Jimbo Fisher. A lot of pro style Lombardi's was getting around the field. Moore's offense is more in my style. I feel like I can do it all. Run you over, juke, or run past you. That's what I've been trying to display."

Dotson might have the most to prove in Friday's final warmup game. He had 92 yards, including touchdown runs of 40 and 37 yards, in the Aug. 12 game against the Rams.

However, he had two drops on a potential game-winning drive in last Sunday's loss against New Orleans.

While Moore still wants to hone things leading into the Sept. 10 opener against Miami, he said the running game is headed in the right direction.

"You certainly have certain concepts that you feel comfortable with, that are going to be our bread-and-butter concepts," he said. "Now, as we start heading into the regular season, we start tightening it up, narrow our focus, we can grab from the different training camp concepts as the season goes."

Cart crash at world championships leaves Jamaica's Hudson with blurry vision

By Eddie Pells

AP National Writer

BUDAPEST, Hungary — A collision involving a cart carrying 200-meter runners to their semifinal race at world championships Thursday sent glass shards flying into the right eye of Jamaican sprinter Andrew Hudson, forcing him to race with blurred vision.

The 26-year-old, racing in his first world championships, said doctors had flushed some of the glass out after the accident. He said he couldn't see out of his right eye but he decided to race nonetheless.

He finished fifth, but track officials decided to advance him into Friday's final, which will include nine sprinters, not the usual eight, with American Noah Lyles favored.

"I did the best I could do," Hudson said after finishing in 20.38 seconds. "I was sitting in the middle of the room for like 20 minutes, trying to have a decision if I was going to compete or not. I worked hard to be here. And even under circumstances, everybody has hurdles in life. If I can run I'm going to try my best. So I tried."

Lyles and others were in the cart with Hudson, as it transported the sprinters from their warmups to a waiting room near the track for what was supposed to be the first of the evening's three semifinal races.

An aerial video taken outside the stadium shows the cart cruising down a sidewalk when another cart coming from a path to the left hits the athletes' cart, sending a volunteer in the first cart tumbling out. The video then shifts to inside the athlete cart where Hudson is pressing his fingers against his right eye.

World Athletics said the sprinter was examined by doctors and cleared to compete. It said the volunteer was "also fine." A spokesman from Budapest's local organizing committee said it is "investigating the incident and reviewing the transport procedures."

The race got pushed back about a half hour — run last in the series of three semifinals instead of first. Hudson was still shaken as he wound his way out of the post-race interviews and back toward the medical tent.

"It was scary," he said. "It's my eyesight. That's more important. I'm not going to run track forever, but it just happens."

Lyles won the semifinal in the night's fastest time, 19.76 seconds, giving him a chance to defend his 200-meter title and add it to the 100 he won earlier this week.

"Survived a crash and still got the fastest time going into the final," Lyles posted on Instagram. "Thank you God for watching over me."

The scare outside the track overshadowed most of the news inside it on Day 6 of the championships.

That led with a victory for 400-meter hurdler Femke Bol — a feel-good comeback after her fall at the end of the 4x400 mixed relay on opening night cost the Netherlands a medal.

The 23-year-old Bol, whose first love is the hurdles, has been running times that would have broken records and won Olympics when she was a kid. But she has been running in the era of Sydney McLaughlin-Levrone, who has left everyone in the dust while setting world records four times over the last 26 months.

McLaughlin-Levrone took this year off from hurdles, leaving Bol as the world's best, and she did not disappoint. She finished in 51.70 seconds to beat second-place finisher Shamier Little of the U.S. by 1.1.

"I love this sport, I love this race and I love to race it on the biggest stage," said Bol, who now has gold to go with last year's silver and a bronze at the Tokyo Olympics. "This is what we always strive for, to be at my best at the tournament"

In hammer throw, Canada's Camryn Rogers defeated two Americans — Janee Kassanavold and 2019 world champion DeAnna Price.

In the 100 hurdles, Jamaica's Danielle Williams beat Olympic champion Jasmine Camacho-Quinn by .01 to add another gold to one she captured back in 2015. Keni Harrison of the U.S. took bronze, while defending champion and world-record holder Tobi Amusan finished sixth.

Antonio Watson won the 400 meters in 44.22 seconds to make it two gold medals for Jamaica and five overall for the night, including silver and bronze in the men's long jump and a bronze for Rushell Clayton, who finished behind Bol and Little.

Quite an evening for the island, even if the athlete generating the most buzz did it sitting in a golf cart during what should have been the most routine part of the day.

"It was a big fright," said Tarsis Orogot, who finished third and was also in the cart. "We're not paying attention. We were all just locked in, and then out of nowhere, someone shoved into us there."

Injury

The Angels didn't have an immediate update on Ohtani's plans Thursday as they flew to New York to open a nine-game trip against the Mets on Friday.

A player can keep hitting with a torn elbow ligament and can return to the plate several months after Tommy John surgery. Bryce Harper was back in the Phillies' lineup this May about five months after the procedure, and Ohtani was the Angels' DH throughout the 2019 season and again in 2020 — although those were the least impressive offensive seasons for Ohtani, who reportedly gets annoyed and over-prepares when he can only play one way.

That means Ohtani could keep up his pursuit of the major league homers title through September, if he chooses. He began Thursday with 44 homers while batting .304 with 91 RBIs and a major league-best 1.069 OPS.

The long-term picture is less clear, since nobody knows whether Ohtani will be able to pitch again, let alone at the elite level he has reached over the past three seasons. Jacob deGrom and Walker Buehler are currently working their way back from a second Tommy John surgery, while a few pitchers have returned fairly well from two such procedures, including Mike Clevinger, Jameson Taillon and Nathan Eovaldi.

Ohtani was considered a lock to win his second AL MVP award in three years before the injury. Missing the final six weeks on the mound seem unlikely to change that, particularly if Ohtani keeps hitting.

He's still easily the AL leader in wins above replacement — 8.5 to Corey Seager's 5.0 in second place, according to FanGraphs. Several online sportsbooks and Vegas oddsmakers stopped accepting bets on the AL MVP award three weeks ago.

Another MVP trophy would be a bittersweet end to a year that began with his remarkable performance in the World Baseball Classic. Ohtani struck out Mike Trout with the final pitch to secure Japan's championship.

The last few weeks have made it clear Trout and Ohtani might never get the chance to celebrate team success together.

The Angels are essentially out of the playoff race for the ninth consecutive season after losing 16 of their 21 games since the trade deadline, and Trout is back on the injured list after his return from a seven-week absence with a broken hand lasted only one game this week.

The team's decision not to trade Ohtani — and to make several acquisitions near the deadline in an attempt to make the playoffs — made no impact on the Angels' fortunes, but the team hopes its unwavering support might be a factor in Ohtani's free-agent decision.

The Halos still will have plenty of more successful competitors for his services, although Ohtani's pitching injury will require recalculations by all parties.

The most logical contender has always been thought to be the Los Angeles Dodgers, who covet Ohtani's two-way skills and worldwide fame. But top executive Andrew Friedman is a relatively cautious bidder and calculating spender despite his star-studded team's hefty payroll.

While his overall price tag in free agency might drop, Ohtani's stated desire has always been to find the best organization for his unique needs and desires, not the biggest contract. Money isn't the biggest motivation for a player who already makes tens of millions in endorsement deals.

While Ohtani had unprecedented value for his two-way skills, he is still one of the elite hitters in baseball, with a power stroke and a tenacity that make him enormously valuable solely as a DH. He's also an international star with a fan base and sponsorship ties that make his presence particularly attractive and lucrative, as the Angels well know.

Even if they've only got 5 1/2 more weeks together, the Angels say they'll do whatever is best for their once-in-a-lifetime talent.

"I think he needs time to wrap his head around it, talk to the people close to him," Minasian said. "We're in the process of getting second opinions. Once the information is there, he'll make the right decision on what he wants to do, and we'll support him, whatever he decides."

The coaching staff has been impressed with Josh Schaffart, who led the team in the two-mile time trial, while Leon has also been impressive.

"David also brings a year of experience," said Roadrunners Head Coach Brad Hagedorn. "He understands the routine and the purpose. There wasn't a learning curve for him, the work just changed. He has a year of experience as a member of our track team from last season."

SFCC will face their usual tough schedule, opening their season at Southwest Baptist University Sept. 1. SFCC will travel to Joplin for the Southern Stampede Sept. 15, before closing out the month at the Chili Pepper Festival at the University of Arkansas Sept. 29. SFCC will travel to the Indian Hills invitational Oct. 13, before hosting the Region 16 Championships on Oct. 27. The National Championships will be contested on Nov. 11.

The goals of the men's team this season are to win the region again and they also want to finish better than they did at Nationals last season. The team finished 21st at Nationals last season.

championship ring."

Strasburg, featuring a 100-plus mph fastball, was touted as a generational talent before becoming the first pick in the 2009 draft, and he became one of the faces of Washington's franchise after making his anticipated debut on July 8, 2010. He struck out 14 batters and allowed two runs on four hits with no walks against the Pittsburgh Pirates that became known as "Strasmas."

That night still sticks out to Zimmerman, the retired infielder who was the first draft pick by the Nationals after they moved from Montreal to Washington for the 2005 season and owner of most of the club's hitting records.

"To be the type of prospect that he was — in an age where everyone

Last year's Region 16 Division II Champions, SFCC women's cross country is looking good so far according to head coach Brad Hagedorn.

"Things are going well," said Hagedorn. "Our mileage over the summer could've been a little bit better. Tanner Maggard was our top finisher at the Region Championships last season. She will be a leader for our team this season. Breanna James is back from last year's team. She will be fit and ready to go. Savanna Tracy is also back as a sophomore. Savanna did not get to run cross country last year due to an injury. We also have a nice group of younger ladies to complement the returners. I think collectively we will be better than we were a year ago.

"Our first three meets will be ultra competitive. In our last three meets, we will get to race against schools our exact size. If we can get over the mental aspect of the first three meets and understand the bigger picture, we will be very competitive in our last three meets."

The coaching staff has also been impressed with a couple of new faces of the program, including Adalyn Davis and Shelby West.

The team has two specific goals for the upcoming season: to win the Region Championship once again, and improve on their 20th place finish at the National Championships.

Retire

The right-hander has not pitched since June 9, 2022 — his only start that season, which lasted 4 2/3 innings before going back on the injured list. He has thrown only 528 pitches in the majors since signing a $245 million, seven-year contract in December 2019 and did not report to spring training earlier this year after experiencing a setback.

"It's been tough, I'm sure, for him and his family and the guys in this clubhouse miss him and we wish nothing but the best for him and what's to come," Nationals pitcher Patrick Corbin said. "He's a big reason why we're here and a big reason why we have a gets hyped up so much, you almost expect to be let down — and him being this next phenom, and then to actually do that in his first start, it was fun to be a part of that," Zimmerman said. "The electricity. The crowd. The excitement. All for a game in the middle of the season. It was like something I'd never really seen before."

Strasburg is owed just over $150 million beyond this season on the $245 million contract he signed in 2019, which set records for the most total money and annual salary given to a pitcher. It was unclear if the sides had negotiated a buyout.

After Strasburg had Tommy John surgery early in his career, the Nationals took heat for shutting him down late in the 2012 season, despite him being 15-6 with a 3.16 ERA. Without their ace, they lost to the St. Louis Cardinals in the NL Division Series.

The long-term benefit of the shutdown didn't emerge until October 2019, when Strasburg went 5-0 with a 1.98 ERA on Washington's championship run and won each of his two starts against Houston in the World Series.

Strasburg went 113-62 with a 3.24 ERA in 247 career regular-season starts in the majors, all with Washington. He was a three-time NL All-Star and led the National League in strikeouts with 242 in 2014 and in innings pitched with 209 in 2019, which turned out to be his last full season.

Cup

Slovenia has Luka Doncic, maybe the best 1-on-1 player in the tournament and an All-NBA talent for Dallas. Canada has a slew of NBA players, led by Shai Gilgeous-Alexander. Australia has savvy veterans like Patty Mills and Joe Ingles. And then there's Spain, the defending World Cup champion.

Just don't refer to Spain as such around coach Sergio Scariolo.

"Honestly, I hate the definition of defending anything," Scariolo said. "We are not defending anything. Every team is starting a new, fresh competition. Every team starts 0-0. We have been proud to exceed any expectations during the last competitions, winning championships which nobody predicted beforehand. We might win and we are starting from, once again, behind several teams in the expectations of the final result."

The tournament starts

Friday with eight games — there's eight more Saturday, including the U.S. opener against New Zealand — and will almost certainly see history on Day 1. Local officials are hoping more than 40,000 people will attend in Manila when the Philippines meets Karl-Anthony Towns and the Dominican Republic. That attendance figure would smash the previous World Cup record, set when 32,616 watched the U.S. beat Russia at Toronto in 1994.

It'll be a moment of immense Pinoy pride.

"For me, it's just relishing the opportunity," Philippines coach Chot Reyes said. "I mean, who gets this chance, right? To coach your national team in a tournament of this magnitude in your hometown? I know there are a lot of detractors, but I just always remind myself that what we have here going on is special. That's enough for me. That's enough for us."

Qualifying for this event started more than two years ago, with 80 hopefuls getting pared down to the 32 nations that are in Asia for the next couple weeks. Teams were placed into a four-team group; the top two teams in each of the eight groups makes the second round. Some nations fully understand that they would need to pull off the upset of upsets to advance.

When Venezuela's David Cubillan was asked how to guard Doncic, who awaits them in their tournament opener on Saturday: "You need to pray."

There are some interesting pairings in opening games, including Serbia facing China. Sasha Djordjevic stepped down as Serbia's coach after the last World Cup in China, then got hired by China last year — and sure enough, Serbia awaits him Saturday.

"For me, that's very, very special," Djordjevic said. "Very emotional. It's going to be a game full of emotions, definitely. But we are professionals and we have to do our best for the teams that we are working for. It's a detail that probably you guys from the media will like, but for me, it'll be a game full of pride."

Kerr is looking for a unique double: He won the World Cup, then called FIBA's world championship, as a college player in 1986 when the Americans beat the Soviet Union 87-85 at Madrid behind 23 points from Kenny Smith. Kerr missed the title game after tearing a knee ligament in the semifinals.

"This experience," Kerr said, "is something our team will never forget."

That was among the selling points Kerr, Grant Hill and Sean Ford — the brain-trust of USA Basketball's men's program right now — used to lure this roster of players who haven't been on this stage before. There's no shortage of talent, and no shortage of expectation.

"For me personally, there's no such thing as pressure," U.S. point guard Jalen Brunson said. "I have figured it out that as long as I continue really working hard on my game, putting everything I can into what I do, there's no such thing as pressure. Now there are different moments, situations where the stakes are higher than the others, but as long as I keep working hard there really is no pressure. And I think this team is going to rely on each other"

Broncos top WR Jedy carted off field with hamstring injury

By Arnie Stapleton

AP Pro Football Writer

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — What started out as the Denver Broncos' deepest position group ended up as their thinnest after wide receiver Jerry Jedy was carted off the field with a hamstring injury Thursday.

Jedy was running an end-around in an 11-on-11 red zone drill in a joint practice with the Los Angeles Rams when he pulled up, grabbing his right hamstring and crumpling to the grass near the sideline.

He had to be helped to the cart, then was taken for an MRI.

"Hopefully it's not anything long term," coach Sean Payton said.

The Broncos started training camp with Tim Patrick injuring his left Achilles almost a year to the day after tearing his right ACL. He'll miss his second straight season.

The same day Patrick got hurt, the Broncos lost KJ Hamler to a heart condition and last week they lost Jalen Virgil to a season-ending knee injury. He got hurt at the end of a 50-yard pass play against San Francisco just before halftime.

"I don't believe in being snake-bitten. I think we've had a really good offseason program," Payton said, noting the likes of Justin Simmons and Mike McGlinchey are returning from injuries in time for the start of the season.

Jedy's injury leaves Courtland Sutton, rookie Marvin Mims Jr., second-year pro Brandon Johnson and Kendall Hinton as Russell Wilson's top options heading into a preseason finale against the Rams in Denver this weekend.

A second-round pick out of Oklahoma, Mims' acclimation to the NFL as both a receiver and a kick returner has been slowed by a pair of hamstring pulls, although he appears to be fully recovered from those setbacks.

"He'll play quite a bit on Saturday," Payton said.

Jedy missed two games last season while dealing with rib and left ankle injuries and a right high ankle sprain in 2021 sidelined him for six games.

Entering his fourth season, the 2020 first-round pick had emerged as Denver's No. 1 receiver after a strong finish last season when he had 35 catches for 523 yards and three touchdowns over the final six weeks of the season.

Jedy caught Wilson's only touchdown pass this preseason, a 21-yard score on fourth down against the Arizona Cardinals.

On the Rams' side, wide receiver Cooper Kupp, who returned to practice this week after missing the previous three weeks because of a hamstring strain, said he expects to be ready to play in the team's regular-season opener Sept. 10 against the Seattle Seahawks.

"It's frustrating times right now, when you're trying to get back to playing football again, but it feels good to be back, be out there with the guys and competing," Kupp said. "I feel like I'm getting that rhythm. The ultimate goal is to be ready to go Week 1. I feel good about the path we're on."

Kupp began easing back into a practice routine earlier this week and participated in both joint practices against the Broncos.

"I thought he's looked really good," Rams coach Sean McVay said. "We wanted to be limited with him today, but he's gotten a lot of work over the last four days. That was really a ramp-up of his workload, but that was kind of what we wanted to be able to do. He's looked really good. He looked like Cooper, and that's an excellent player for us."

Sundance Now's suspenseful and compelling anthology series "The Pact" returns with its second season, when it premieres Thursday, Aug. 31, on Sundance Now and AMC+. Moving into a brand-new, six-part story with a brand-new cast this season, "The Pact" Season 2 follows social worker Christine (Rakie Ayola, "No Offence") and her adult children, Will (Lloyd Everitt, "The Sandman"), Jamie (Aaron Anthony, "Emmerdale Farm") and Megan (Mali Ann Rees, "Tourist Trap"), who are trying to move on after the tragic death of their brother. As Megan's wedding approaches and the family is looking to the future, their lives are turned upside down once more when a stranger named Connor (Jordan Wilks, "Lagging") arrives in town, claiming an extraordinary connection. From series creator and writer Pete McTighe ("Wentworth"), the new season is directed by Nicole Volavka ("The Dumping Ground") and Christiana Ebohon-Green ("Call the Midwife").

SMITH-COTTON GO TIGERS!

Smith-Cotton quarterback Lane Simmons fires a pass in last year's season opener against Moberly on Aug. 26, 2022.

FOOTBALL

Head coach: Josh Gray

2022 Record: 3-8

Highlights: The Tigers opened the Coach Gray era with a dramatic 22-21 victory over Moberly at home.

Outlook: The focal point of last year's offense, Mylan Hawkins, is back after his role drastically expanded as a junior. He'll look to eclipse 1,000 yards after rushing for 986 with 13 TDs in 2022. Two seniors, Brady Anderson and Jerian Maupins, come back as defensive anchors.

BOYS SOCCER

Head coach: Ethan Weller

2022 record: 7-17-2

Highlights: The Tigers went 3-1 in matches that went to extra time, including a 2-1 victory in penalties at rival Warrensburg on Sept. 6.

Outlook: Goalscoring has to go up for Smith-Cotton after an uncharacteristic season of averaging less than one per match. Staying healthy will also go a long way for a team that graduated eight seniors in the climb back to .500.

VOLLEYBALL

Head coach: Emily Ruckman

2022 record: 7-17-3

Highlights: The Lady Tigers picked up two wins at their home Invitational, then tied Osage, only losing to state quarter-finalist Santa Fe.

Outlook: Ruckman, who is succeeding Diane Shipley, has some nice building blocks. They include Ally Case and Lennon Adams, as well as Piper Cantrell, all of which will be around for at least two more years.
