Local woman discusses pre-planning for Alzheimer's

Walk to End Alzheimer's slated for Sept. 16

By Faith Bemiss
fbemiss@sedaliademocrat.com

An often overlooked thought after a diagnosis of dementia or Alzheimer's is the pre-planning for family members and caretakers. One Sedalia woman knows this firsthand.

Monica Thacker, a committee member of the Alzheimer's Association of Greater Missouri Chapter, found this true when her father, David Berryhill, 84, of Galena, became ill. Thacker has walked with a West Central Association of Realtors team for three years in the annual Walk to End Alzheimer's. She said on Thursday, Aug. 31, that her father has vascular dementia and Parkinson's Disease, which fall under the umbrella of Alzheimer's. When he was diagnosed, the family was unprepared for the diagnosis.

Thacker, the association executive at WCAR, said the board does many community outreach projects, and the Alzheimer's Walk is her project.

"This is important to me," she noted. "We also give to Boys and Girls Club, American Heart (Association) and others."

She added her dad's illness has been very prominent for a year.

"My dad preached right up until July 4 of last year," Thacker said. "That was his last Sunday, and from there, everything just went downhill — things went downhill fast."

Thacker's mom, Betty, became her husband's caregiver as he became progressively ill.

"I'm thinking it was like Sundowner's, he wasn't sleeping, he was agitated," she explained. "And it was just really bad."

"So, we started looking into things like nursing homes, Medicaid, getting mom some help at home," she continued. "And come to find out, when they had their trust written up years before, the lawyer didn't put the house in the trust."

This omission was unsettling to the family.

"Medicaid has a five-year lookback," Thacker said. "So, if dad did end up in a nursing home, and they had to use Medicaid, and mom sold the home, Medicaid would look back ... and they could take that money."

She added the family knew nothing about how Medicaid worked or that the trust wasn't in order. What was startling for her was when her father was diagnosed, the medical team never directed them to caregiving or financial resources that could help. They felt lost.

"You go into immediate denial," she noted. "And then you're like, he's old. Is it really dementia or is he just forgetting things? And you don't act, and then when you do, it's too late."

Thacker added the Alzheimer's Association has so much to offer for both caregivers and patients. For caregivers who believe they need to do it all, Thacker noted the Association is there to help in many ways, relieving stress.

"They help you plan for your future," she said of the Association. "They help you with finding a lawyer who deals with elder care. They help you get everything where it needs to be."

"And then they also have funds; that's why we do the walk," she continued. "They have funds that my mother has been able to get some help. She can now have somebody come sit with my dad when she has to go to a doctor's appointment or go do something ... so he's not there by himself."

Thacker said her father cannot walk by himself and has to use a walker or wheelchair; he also falls a lot, making it difficult to go out of the house.

"Mom knows the EMT from three minutes down the road by his first name," Thacker said. "He listens to his radio."

She added her dad's short-term memory is gone, but his long-term memory is intact. It's difficult for him to remember a conversation walking from the kitchen and back. His memory is gone quickly, but presently, he still remembers family members.

During the last two years, Thacker's team has been one of the top fundraisers for the Sedalia Walk to End Alzheimer's. Last year, her team raised $1,275. This year, her goal is $1,000.

"It's such a hidden gem that people don't utilize, that people don't know about,"

she said of the Alzheimer's Association.

Her advice for those with a loved one diagnosed with dementia or Alzheimer's is to contact the Alzheimer's Association.

"There are local ones all over," she noted. "Don't be in denial — it's not going to get better. And there are things you just have to get into place."

"And if I was talking to the person that was diagnosed with Alzheimer's ... I would say, 'you need to think about your loved ones, your spouse who's going to be left to handle everything,'" she added.

The Sedalia Walk to End Alzheimer's is at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 16 at Centennial Park. To sign up for the walk or for more information, visit www.alz.org.

Flood map updates may affect insurance rates

By Chris Howell
chrish@sedaliademocrat.com

The Federal Emergency Management Agency is updating floodplain maps, and City of Sedalia Chief Building Official Devin Lake has gone to assist with the effort.

"I'm at a floodplain conference in Margaritaville in regard to stormwater and floodplain management," Lake said by phone Wednesday. "FEMA is the one who publishes the floodplain maps. They have not been updated since 1996, so ours will go into effect, the new maps will go into effect Nov. 30 of this year."

Flood maps indicate the likelihood for any area to flood. FEMA says any area with a 1% chance or higher of experiencing a flood each year is considered high risk. Those areas have at least a 1 in 4 chance of flooding over the life of a 30-year mortgage.

Updating these maps regularly makes certain those most needing flood insurance are paying the proper rates for insurance and getting the proper coverage.

"It's just analyzing the differences between the previous maps and this map," Lake said. "From what I can tell, it will affect less properties than it did in the past, but there are some areas where additional properties have been added to the floodplain, but they're very limited."

Lake said there are 410 properties that will be affected by the changes to the floodplain on the new maps, maps she stresses will not go into effect until Nov. 30.

The detailed floodplain maps are readily accessible on FEMA's website.

"People can look at them, they can also look at the current maps," Lake pointed out, "but they're on FEMA's website. Anybody can get to those."

While the change will affect relatively few property owners in the area, it is something to be aware of, though the City of Sedalia is looking out for residents.

"The City of Sedalia is a member of the National Flood Insurance program, which provides flood insurance coverage to anybody within the city limits," Lake explained. "However, if your home is located on the floodplain and you have a mortgage on that home, you are required to have flood insurance."

New bowling alley, Alley Cats, is officially open

By Meliyah Venerable
meliyahv@warrensburgstarjournal.com

WARRENSBURG — After eight months of renovations, Alley Cats is open.

Alley Cats is a new bowling alley that was opened by the Wahn family. Brian and Sherry, their son Sterling and his wife, Miranda, have wanted to open a bowling alley in Warrensburg for years.

After purchasing the building at 822 S. Maguire St. last year, the Wahns began renovating the building.

"This building came open and we thought, 'wow, we could actually do this.' So it was a lot of talking and discussion. We all came to the conclusion that it was something that we really wanted and it is something that the city really needs," Sterling

Wahn previously told the Star-Journal. "We've said for years that we thought if somebody would just bite the bullet and put one in, it would be successful. The city would love and appreciate it."

Wahn said they expected to turn the building around faster but there were unexpected delays. The family had to completely gut the building for quality and safety reasons.

The alley officially opened on Friday, Aug. 18 and has seen many customers since.

League bowling will begin on Sunday, Aug. 27. Miranda Wahn said they have diverse leagues, including a ladies' league, senior league and youth bowling.

CRASH REPORTS

Motorcyclist injured in Clinton Road crash

Robert Eckstrom, of Sedalia, was injured at 9:28 a.m. Wednesday in a Sedalia accident. According to a Sedalia Police Department injury traffic report, an eastbound 2018 Nissan Altima driven by Kortney Kreisler, of Sedalia, made a left turn into the path of a westbound 2015 Harley-Davidson driven by Eckstrom, colliding with it at West 32nd Street and Clinton Road.

Eckstrom was transported to University Hospital in Columbia by Pettis County Ambulance District.

Driver injured in 16th Street rollover crash

The Sedalia Police Department reports a driver suffered serious injuries and was transported after an accident at 9:10 a.m. Wednesday near West 16th Street and Thompson Boulevard.

Emergency crews were dispatched to the 2700 block of West 16th Street in reference to a rollover crash after a westbound 2016 Nissan Versa left the right side of the roadway, traveled through business frontage, and collided with the Pittsburgh Corning building. The impact caused the Nissan to rotate and overturn, coming to rest on its top.

The driver suffered serious injuries and was transported by Pettis County Ambulance District. The driver was not wearing a seat belt at the time of the crash.

South Limit traffic pile-up sees two treated on scene

Corey Bolling, of Sedalia, and Shelby Bumgarner, of Lincoln, both sustained minor injuries at 8:09 a.m. Wednesday and were treated on scene after a pile-up on South Limit Avenue. According to a Sedalia Police Department injury traffic report, a 2013

Volkswagen Jetta driven by Taras Timoshuk, of Cole Camp, was northbound on South Limit Avenue when it struck the rear of a 2015 Chevrolet Spark driven by Bolling. This caused Bolling’s vehicle to hit the rear of a 2022 Ford Explorer driven by Bumgarner. Warsaw man hurt in Benton accident

Larry L. Darnell, 66, of Warsaw, sustained minor injuries at 1:45 p.m. Wednesday in a Benton County accident.

According to a Missouri State Highway Patrol report, Darnell was driving a 2003 Ford F150 north on U.S. Highway 65, north of the Dam Access Road, when he traveled off the right side of the roadway and struck a MoDOT sign, traveled to the opposite lanes of U.S. 65 and off the west side of the roadway, and struck a tree.

Darnell was wearing a seat belt and was transported by Life Flight to University Hospital in Columbia.

Sedalia motorcyclist in serious condition after accident

Alex B. Schwinke, 27, of Sedalia, sustained serious injuries at 8:42 p.m. Wednesday in a Pettis County accident.

According to a Missouri State Highway Patrol report, a 2010 Toyota Prius driven by Sabin N. Czajak, 18, of Sedalia, south on U.S. Highway 65 entered into the turn lane, failed to yield and struck a 2004 Yamaha V Star motorcycle driven north by Schwinke, who was ejected.

Schwinke was wearing a helmet and was transported to University Hospital in Columbia.

Information is taken from preliminary Missouri State Highway Patrol reports, which do not necessarily contain statements from all parties involved.

POLICE REPORTS

This list is a sampling of crime in Sedalia and the surrounding area. Information is taken from official police reports, which do not necessarily contain statements from all parties involved in each case. Sedalia Police Department Arrests Aug. 31 2:36 a.m.: Charles William Monteer, 39, of the 2800 block of Highway TT, was arrested after officers responded to the 1900 block of South Lamine Avenue in reference to gunshots. The victim said a subject had set off an explosion inside his vehicle. That subject was identified, arrested and placed on a 24-hour old pending state charges of knowingly burning or exploding, first-degree property damage, and fourth-degree aggravated domestic assault. Incidents Aug. 30 8:16 a.m.: Officers were dispatched to the 1900 block of South Montgomery Avenue in reference to a domestic assault. The suspect had departed, but the victim said she and the suspect had gotten into an argument and the suspect began yelling. As the victim yelled out the window for help, the suspect threw water at her. The victim was again splashed with water, and she broke his “vase.” The suspect grabbed her and choked the victim to keep her from yelling out the window again. There were no marks on the victim. A report was made and the victim requested charges be sent to the prosecutor. Compiled by Chris Howell.

Bothwell to start new grief support group Bothwell Regional Health Center is starting a new grief support group offered to the public and employees. The group will meet from 6:30 to 8 p.m. on Thursdays starting Sept. 7 through Oct. 26 in the Bothwell Education Center at 600 E. 14th St. in Sedalia.

Hospital Chaplain Rob Ayers recently became a Certified Grief Recovery Specialist and will lead the group. Ayers has served as Bothwell’s chaplain for nearly eight years and is pastor at Camp Branch Baptist Church. He has 30 years of experience in ministry and counseling and also teaches philosophy, ethics and religion part-time at State Fair Community College.

Ayers will use the Grief Recovery Method Outreach Program, based on the Grief Recovery Handbook, and guide those who wish to resolve their loss issues and move beyond their grief to a richer quality of life. In the eight-week program, Ayers will help participants discover what their grief is, assist in developing coping mechanisms and debunk myths associated with grief.

The class may be joined during the first two weeks, and it then becomes a closed group. There is no fee to join the group; however, participants are encouraged to purchase the program book for $10 at the start of the course.

For more information or to register, contact Ayers at cayers@brhc.org or 660-287-1090.

To view other classes and support groups, visit brhc.org/classes.

Bothwell also hosts a grief recovery group in collaboration with Crossroads Hospice & Palliative Care on Mondays. The next group starts on Sept. 11.

Biden administration proposes rule requiring more firearms background checks

By Lindsay Whitehurst

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Biden administration is proposing a rule that would require thousands more firearms dealers to run background checks, in an effort to combat rising gun violence nationwide.

The proposal comes after a mandate from President Joe Biden to find ways to strengthen background checks following the passage of bipartisan legislation on guns last year.

People who sell firearms online or at gun shows would be required to be licensed and run background checks on the buyers before the sales under the rule proposed by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives.

The bureau estimates that the rule would affect anywhere from 24,500 to 328,000 sellers. It is aimed at those who are in the business of gun sales, rather than those with personal collections.

Background checks help prevent guns from being sold to people convicted of crimes, teenagers and others who are legally blocked from owning them, said the agency’s director, Steve Dettelbach. Federally licensed firearm dealers are also required to keep records and sell guns with serial numbers, both of which help law enforcement trace weapons used in crimes.

“Unlicensed dealers sell guns without running background checks, without keeping records, without observing the other crucial public safety requirements by which the (federally licensed firearm dealer) community abides,” he said.

Attorney General Merrick Garland said Congress passed the gun legislation to reduce gun violence, including by expanding background checks, and said the new rule implements that mandate.

Overall, stricter gun laws are desired by a majority of Americans and in particular background checks, regardless of what the current gun laws are in their state, according to a recent AP-NORC poll on guns. That desire could be tied to some Americans’ perceived impact of what fewer guns could mean for the country — namely, fewer mass shootings. As of Monday, there have been at least 33 mass killings in the U.S. so far in 2023, leaving at least 163 people dead, not including shooters who died, according to a database maintained by the AP and USA Today in partnership with Northeastern University.

Over the weekend, three Black people were shot to death by a white man wearing a mask and firing a weapon emblazoned with a swastika in Jacksonville, Florida. The shooter, who had purchased the weapons legally despite previously being involuntarily committed for a mental health exam, killed himself.

The legislation last year Congress passed was the most comprehensive gun control in 30 years and it followed a deadly mass shooting in a Uvalde, Texas, elementary school.

The 2022 law toughened background checks for the youngest gun buyers, sought to keep firearms from domestic violence offenders and aimed to help states put in place red flag laws that make it easier to take weapons away from people judged to be dangerous.

Biden has said the law doesn’t go far enough. White House Press Secretary Karine Jean-Pierre said Thursday the administration would continue to push for more gun control.

“This administration will do everything it can to combat the epidemic of gun violence that is tearing up our families, our communities and also our country apart,” she said.

The Giffords Center to Prevent Gun Violence applauded the proposed rule change, saying it closes a “gaping loophole.” Executive Director Peter Ambler said the Biden administration had taken a “giant step forward towards our goal of universal background checks.”

Kris Brown, president of the gun control group Brady, said more than 1 in 5 gun sales in the U.S. are conducted without a background check.

Gun rights groups, on the other hand, have argued it would do little to stop the gun violence problem. Those advocates have previously quickly sued over other ATF rule changes that they argue infringe on gun rights.

The proposed rule will be open for public comment for 90 days. It was not immediately clear when it might become final.

U.S. envoy visits Fukushima to eat fish, criticize China's seafood ban

By Mari Yamaguchi
Associated Press

TOKYO — The U.S. ambassador to Japan visited a city in Fukushima on Thursday and had a seafood lunch with the mayor, talked to fishermen and stocked up on local produce to show they are safe after the release of treated radioactive wastewater from the wrecked Fukushima nuclear plant into the sea, backing Japan while criticizing China's ban on Japanese seafood as political.

Ambassador Rahm Emanuel ate flounder and sea bass sashimi with Soma Mayor Hidekiyo Tachiya, talked with local fishermen, and visited a grocery store where he sampled fruits and bought peaches, figs, grapes, flounder, sea bass and other produce from Fukushima prefecture.

All of his purchases will be served when his children visit him this weekend, Emanuel said in a telephone interview from his train back to Tokyo. "We are going to all eat it. As a father, if I thought if there is a problem, I won't serve it."

The release of the treated wastewater began last week and is expected to continue for decades. Japanese fishing groups and neighboring countries oppose it, and China immediately banned all imports of Japanese seafood in response.

Emanuel praised Japan's water release plan as scientifically based and fully transparent, which he said "stands in total contrast" to how China handled the coronavirus pandemic.

"The Chinese ban is political," he said. An end to the ban "depends on whether China wants to be a good neighbor," Emanuel said.

Radioactive wastewater has accumulated at the Fukushima plant since a massive earthquake and tsunami in 2011 destroyed cooling systems and caused meltdowns in three reactors. The 1.34 million tons of water is stored in about 1,000 tanks and continues to grow because of leaks and the use of cooling water.

The government and the plant operator say discharging the water into the sea is unavoidable because the storage tanks will reach their capacity early next year and space at the plant will be needed for its decommissioning, which is expected to take decad.

Earlier Thursday, Japanese Prime Minister Fumio Kishida sampled seafood and talked to workers at Tokyo's Toyosu fish market to assess the impact of China's ban on Japanese seafood.

One of the seafood business operators told Kishida that sales of his scallops, which are largely exported to China, have dropped 90% since the start of the wastewater discharge.

Kishida told reporters that he instructed officials to compile a package of support measures for seafood exporters hit by China's import ban, including an expansion of domestic consumption and new destinations for Japanese seafood to replace China.

"We will patiently and resolutely call on China to take actions based on scientific evidence," Kishida said.

The government has allocated 80 billion yen ($550 million) to support fisheries and seafood processing and combat potential damage to the reputation of Japanese products. The government will do everything to protect the fisheries industry by utilizing the fund and other measures, Kishida said, indicating possible additional financial measures.

China stepped up testing of Japanese fisheries products, causing long delays at customs, even before the start of the wastewater release and the Chinese import ban. Japanese Fisheries Agency officials said the measure has affected prices and sales of seafood from places as far away from Fukushima as Hokkaido.

All seawater and fish sampling data since the release have been way below set safety limits for radioactivity, officials and the plant operator, Tokyo Electric Power Company Holdings, say.

In Seoul on Thursday, South Korean President Yoon Suk Yeol visited a fish market and had seafood for his lunch as part of efforts to ease public concerns about the safety of local fishery products after Japan's wastewater release, as his country strengthens a trilateral strategic partnership with Japan and the United States in the face of a growing Chinese regional threat.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Hirokazu Matsuno hinted on Wednesday of the possibility of taking the case to the World Trade Organization, but Foreign Minister Yoshimasa Hayashi stressed the importance of dialogue.

The impact of China's ban on Japanese seafood has spilled over to tourism. Transport and Tourism Minister Tetsuo Saito says cancellations of Chinese group tours and inquiries about food safety in Japan have been on the rise.

Meanwhile, Kishida ordered Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Minister Tetsuro Nomura to apologize after calling the treated radioactive water "contaminated," the term China uses.

Nomura used the term when speaking to reporters after meeting with Kishida and other ministers to discuss fisheries support measures. He apologized and retracted the remark, which Kishida called "extremely regrettable."

The 16 bowling lanes glow red at Alley Cats. The bowling alley offers cosmic bowling each night.

One special addition to the building is windows to view the machines that set up the pins. Sterling said when he was bowling as a child, he saw something similar in Indianapolis. This inspired him to add it to Alley Cats.

"You could look into the pit and see the machines," Wahn said. "Me and my brother thought that was so cool. So we took it a step further and put windows in so you can actually see the machines run. You can see how they work... We always thought it was really cool and you just don't see it very often."

The alley has a full kitchen, bar, 16 bowling lanes and a pro shop. Like traditional bowling alleys, the new business hosts leagues, tournaments and cosmic bowling. Birthday party packages are going to be offered as well. Since opening, Alley Cats has booked company parties, Christmas parties and other events.

The pro shop offers bowling balls, shoes and other equipment.

The Wahns said they are looking forward to working with high school bowlers and the Jennies Bowling team at the University of Central Missouri.

They have six lanes equipped with ball-tracking software that will be beneficial for competitive bowlers.

"We are trying to work with a couple other groups and get some things set up," Wahn said. "We are very flexible and we can make a lot of stuff work. We just would like people to keep us in mind if there's a group, get-together, family reunion, whatever. We've got pretty good food and pretty cold beer."

4. CANTONS not canyons. "Europe" has many "mountains" and canyons that could intrigue all kinds of travelers, including an "American official." But Switzerland specifically has CANTONS, which has a direct link to an "American official" who might well be interested in "Switzerland's" governing structures.

5. WORN not torn. The "jeans" would be torn or they wouldn't be; they wouldn't just look that way. However, clothing can definitely look WORN.

6. STOP not step. The "teen" "picking up" his "girlfriend" indicates he was on his way somewhere and that having to STOP "inside," he'd be forced to delay his plan. Furthermore, stepping "inside" the house would be part of the process of STOPPING "for a chat."

7. SLEET not sleep. The fact that it's "quite natural" matches up well with SLEET. There are multiple examples of "heavy" sleep being unnatural because they've been induced by drugs or alcohol.

11. RACKET not rocket. RACKET is best since a RACKET'S problem could be quite obvious because it's a simple object, especially compared to a complex machine such as a rocket, where a "malfunction" could initially go unnoticed.

12. WAVES not wages. "A firm conclusion" would likely whereas there are many factors contributing to wages. WAVES is the best choice.

16. CLEARING not cleaving. Because cleaving is defined as "halving" or dividing something, the clue word "halving" makes cleaving redundant. CLEARING is a better choice.

18. GIGGLING not giggling. It would be far easier to suspect the "people" were GIGGLING "at her" since the "bus passenger" could hear the GIGGLES. It is unclear, however, why the "passenger" would become suspicious of any giggling since she wouldn't be facing in the proper direction to adequately see any giggling.

DOWN

1. PACT not tact. Tact is superfluous since successful "labor" negotiations involve attempts at reaching an "agreement" through tactful mediation. PACT is a better choice.

2. SNUB not snob. "An obvious" SNUB could indeed be hurtful. But a snob can hide their concealed attitude, with it only becoming "obvious" if the snob so chooses.

3. ROPE not robe. The clue word "used" fits best with a ROPE. Grammatically speaking, a robe is worn, not "used."

6. SPAN not spar. The SPAN or the "bridge" might well have been "hit" by the "boat," but it wasn't the spar (i.e., a strong pole such as a mast or boom) that was "hit" by the "bridge"; rather, it was the "boat" and its spar that "hit" the "bridge."

8. LOCK not luck. The robber's entry into the home was possible because of a faulty LOCK. Luck has too many interpretations since it could be argued that, from the robber's perspective, it was good luck rather than "bad" luck that the LOCK was faulty.

9. MOVE not rove. MOVE is best. "Meticulously" doesn't fit with rove because rove means to wander or drift, which doesn't involve any precision.

10. CRAZED not grazed. The "hunter" would have to have seen that his "shot" grazed the animal in order to make the assumption that he "shot" it. But "disturbing sounds" might well mean it is CRAZED.

13. BUG not bog. BUG is best. "Rural area" needs further explanation since there are many "rural" locations that don't have bogs at all, but generally, insects are part of the "rural" environment.

15. RUNG not ring. Saving "you from" the "misfortune" of standing on a faulty RUNG makes a strong answer. There may not be any "misfortune" at all if the ring is simply cheap costume jewelry, since it could be easily discarded.

As summer comes to a close and we move into the fall season, many of us are looking forward to cooler weather, spending more time outside, and yes, the beginning of football. Labor Day marks the ending of summer and the beginning of fall. However, the weather does not always cooperate and thus, sometimes it is hard to tell if the summer is really over.

Nevertheless, with the return of football, everyone knows the fall is here. It is time to break out the crazy hats, our favorite player jersey, and a foam finger or two and invite some friends over for food to watch the big game. Now, I realize that not everyone is into football, but for most, this is what signals fall is here; however, I would like for you to think about a couple of other events to help remind you about the fall time. The first event to help remind you about the fall is the harvest. Now is the time of year in Missouri when the farmers work hard to bring in all the crops that God has allowed them to grow. While they hope for abundance, God knows exactly what each needs to maintain their lives for the winter months and help America move forward in the coming year. Likewise, God has called every believer to be harvesters of the crop that has been sown, to get out into the fields and harvest. Christ said, “The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few” (Matt 9:37). If one would but look around, they would see the fields are ripe for the harvest; “For one sows and another reaps,” (John 4:37), and the harvest has grown. Therefore, Christ is sending you and me into the harvest to reap where we have not sown, thereby laboring alongside others who have labored before us, we are entering into labor (John 4:38). For many of us, this might seem tiresome and difficult, as we do not see the results we desire. We are always looking for the conversion, the baptism, the powerful outward change in a person’s life. However, we are called to just be faithful, to continue to move forward, to be obedient for Christ. Paul reminds us, “not to grow weary of doing good, for in due season we will reap, if we do not give up” (Gal 6:9). So, do not give up, never lose hope, and always keep your focus on Christ. The second event to help remind you about the fall is our children go back to school. While school this year was delayed a couple of days because of the heat, the children are now in school, and all of the activities that go with being in school, such as band, choir, football, basketball, soccer, golf, theater, and many other wonderful and amazing activities. What most parents might say is, “Wow, now our lives have gotten busy. We have all of these activities to attend, sports to go to, and we will meet ourselves coming and going.” For many, school can be a stressful time, trying to help your children with their homework, getting them to bed on time, and then up on time and back to school, as well as to whatever activity they are in. So, let me give you just a couple of thoughts. When times are tough and all might seem to be at their worst, take a moment and pray; yes, you read that right, spend time in prayer. The Psalmist writes, “Blessed be God, because He has not rejected my prayer or removed His steadfast love from me” (Ps 68:30). How wonderful to know that God cares enough for you that when you pray, He hears and answers. He also desires for you to lay your burdens on Him. Again, you read that correctly – God wants you to place all your burdens on Him. He says, “Cast all your anxieties (worries, concerns, burdens) on Him, because He cares for you” (1 Peter 5:7). Why would God let you do this? Because He loves you and desires for you to live a life that reflects Him to others. Thus, as you submit yourself to Him, He will carry your load, your burden, your cares for you, making all seem lighter and easier. So, this Labor Day, as fall and football come, remember all God has done for you, the harvest He has given and the family He has provided. Sow, reap and labor knowing God is on your side.

annual chicken barbecue will be hosted from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 9 at Providence Fellowship	Center, northeast of Versailles at 13043 Highway E. The meal consists of grilled chicken with	baked beans, cheesy potatoes, coleslaw, fresh-baked bread, cake, and ice cream. This annual event	has been hosted since the 1950s. McConnell can continue with work schedule, congressional physician says

By Mary Clare Jalonick and Stephen Groves

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The attending physician to Congress said Thursday that he had cleared Senate Republican leader Mitch McConnell to continue with his planned schedule after evaluating an incident in which McConnell appeared to freeze up at an event in Kentucky. But the health episode — his second in public this summer — has fueled quiet concern among Republican senators and intense speculation about his ability to remain as leader. The famously guarded McConnell called several of his deputies in leadership after the Wednesday health episode. But the longest-serving Senate party leader is still revealing little about his health condition, even to his closest colleagues. McConnell, 81, appeared to freeze up and remained silent for about 30 seconds during a news conference Wednesday, almost a month after a similar incident in Washington. In March, McConnell suffered a concussion and broke a rib after falling and hitting his head after a dinner event at a hotel. The Kentucky Republican’s office released a statement from Dr. Brian Monahan saying that he had consulted with McConnell and his neurology team and cleared the senator to continue with his schedule. He did not say if he had examined McConnell personally, and he did not provide any additional details or a diagnosis. “After evaluating yesterday’s incident, I have informed Leader McConnell that he is medically clear to continue with his schedule as planned,” the short statement read. “Occasional lightheadedness is not uncommon in concussion recovery and can also be expected as a result of dehydration.” McConnell’s office has only said that he was feeling “momentarily lightheaded” when he froze up on Wednesday. An aide eventually came to his assistance and repeated questions for him, and he gave brief answers before leaving the room.

The episode was strikingly similar to the incident in July, when he froze mid-sentence for around 20 seconds before fellow Republicans and an aide came to his assistance and led him back to his office. He then returned to the news conference and answered additional questions. President Joe Biden said he spoke to McConnell on Thursday and the senator “was his old self on the telephone.” “It’s not at all unusual to have a response that sometimes happens to Mitch when you’ve had a severe concussion,” the president said during a visit to the Federal Emergency Management Agency. “It’s part of the recovery, and so I’m confident he’s going to be back to his old self.” The Senate is scheduled to convene next week after the month-long August break, and there are certain to be questions from McConnell’s colleagues about his health, which has visibly declined since the concussion in March. His speaking has been more halting, and he has walked more slowly and carefully. The lack of information from McConnell and his doctors has prompted more questions on Capitol Hill about whether he will run for reelection in 2026 and who may succeed him as GOP leader. But the discussion has remained behind closed doors, for now, with most fellow Republican senators publicly supportive. “I talked to Sen. McConnell yesterday and he seemed to be doing fine,” said Texas Sen. John Cornyn on Thursday after an event in his home state. “I don’t know what the underlying issue is, but we all wish him well. We know he’s had a fall, and a concussion, and I think this may be part of the recovery process from that. But I served with him for a long time now, he’s been my mentor, and basically everything I’ve learned about the United States Senate I’ve learned from him.” Cornyn added that he expects McConnell “will continue as long as he can and wants to.” As McConnell’s former top deputy, Cornyn is one of several senators who could be in the running to replace him. Speculation has also centered around South Dakota Sen. John Thune, who is currently McConnell’s No. 2, and Wyoming Sen. John Barrasso, who is the No. 3 Republican and the chairman of the Senate Republican Conference. McConnell called all three men on Wednesday after the episode, along with West Virginia Sen. Shelley Moore Capito and Montana Sen. Steve Daines, who also serve on McConnell’s leadership team. In the calls, McConnell gave the senators reassurances about his health. A spokeswoman for Cornyn, Natalie Yezbick, said McConnell “shared that he was doing well.” A spokesman for Thune, Ryan Wrasse, said McConnell “sounded like his usual self and was in good spirits.” Similarly, longtime McConnell friend and adviser Scott Jennings says he spent much of August with McConnell in Kentucky and that the GOP leader has kept a robust schedule, speaking frequently to the public and press. McConnell had just given a 20-minute speech with no issues when he froze up on Wednesday in response to a reporter’s question about whether he would run for re-election in 2026. Jennings said McConnell is “relatively private person when it comes to personal matters like that” and always has been. He pushed back on critics who say McConnell is too old to serve in his position. “Two things are being conflated, his age and his recovery from this concussion,” Jennings said. McConnell was elected to the Senate in 1984 and as GOP leader in 2007. He became the longest-serving party leader in the Senate at the beginning of the year. He had polio in his early childhood and he has long acknowledged some difficulty as an adult in climbing stairs. In addition to his fall in March, McConnell also tripped and fell four years ago at his home in Kentucky, causing a shoulder fracture that required surgery.

Trump pleads not guilty in Georgia election case

By Kate Brumback

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Former President Donald Trump pleaded not guilty on Thursday and sought to sever his case from some other defendants who are accused along with him of illegally trying to overturn the results of the 2020 election in Georgia. Fulton County Superior Court Judge Scott McAfee had set arraignment hearings on Sept. 6 for Trump and the 18 others charged in the case. Trump’s court filing entering a not guilty plea also waived arraignment, meaning he won’t have to show up for that. The decision to skip an in-person appearance averts the dramatic arraignments that have accompanied the three other criminal cases Trump faces, in which the Republican former president has been forced amid tight security into a courtroom and entered “not guilty” pleas before crowds of spectators. Georgia courts have fairly permissive rules on news cameras in the courtroom, and this means Trump won’t have to enter a plea on television. Trump and 18 others were charged earlier this month in a 41-count indictment that outlines an alleged scheme to subvert the will of Georgia voters who had chosen Democrat Joe Biden over the Republican incumbent in the presidential election. An attorney for Trump also asked McAfee on Thursday to separate his case from those of defendants who have asked for an expedited trial. The judge has already set an Oct. 23 trial date for one of those defendants. Giving the former president less than two months to prepare a defense against a 98-page indictment would “violate President Trump’s federal and state constitutional rights to a fair trial and due process of law,” attorney Steve Sadow said in a court filing. Fulton County District Attorney Fani Willis has said she wants all of the defendants tried together. After one defendant filed a demand for a speedy trial, she asked the judge to set an Oct. 23 trial date for everyone. Thursday’s developments add to the pre-trial legal jousting that has dominated the two weeks since the indictment was brought, underscoring the complexities inherent in attempting to bring 19 defendants to trial at once — including an ex-president — and foreshadowing the delays ahead as judges sift through competing arguments from the defendants. Jenna Ellis, an attorney who prosecutors say was involved in efforts to persuade state lawmakers to unlawfully appoint presidential electors, also pleaded not guilty and waived arraignment Thursday. Three other people charged in the indictment had already waived arraignment in filings with the court, saving them a repeat trip to Atlanta after they all turned themselves in at the Fulton County Jail last week. Trump surrendered at the jail on Aug. 24, where he became the first former president to have a mug shot taken. The case, filed under Georgia’s Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, or RICO, is sprawling, and the logistics of bringing it to trial are likely to be complicated. At least two defendants have filed demands for a speedy trial and have asked to be tried separately from others in the case. The judge set an Oct. 23 trial date for one of them, Kenneth Chesebro, a lawyer who worked on the coordination and execution of a plan to have 16 Georgia Republicans sign a certificate falsely stating that Trump won the state and declaring themselves the state’s “duly elected and qualified” electors. Some of the others charged are trying to move their cases to federal court. A judge on Monday heard arguments on such a request by former White House chief of staff Mark Meadows, but the judge did not immediately rule. Trump, the front-runner in the 2024 Republican presidential primary, has criticized the cases against him as part of a politically motivated attempt to keep him from winning back the White House. — Associated Press writers Sudhin Thanawala in Atlanta and Eric Tucker in Washington contributed to this report.

The National Flood Insurance is offered to anyone, and you don't have to live in the floodplain to purchase it, but that decision is up to individual homeowners. What is required is the mortgage holder is insuring the structure.

Once the new floodplain maps are adopted, Sedalia will pass an ordinance adopting them.

"You have that to protect your structure from any damage that may be incurred during a flooding event," Lake said. "In this ordinance that we're getting ready to pass regulates the kinds of construction that could occur in the floodplain so that we can eliminate or attempt to eliminate as much damage as possible in the future. We are going to pass an ordinance where we are officially adopting the maps that will become effective on Nov. 30, but within that ordinance, it details that if you are to do any construction within the floodplain, there are a lot of checklist items that you have to take care of."

The chief building official says future construction in floodplains will face a rigorous permitting and inspection process.

"Which is all identified on the map, so anybody who does any development within the floodplain will have to hire a civil engineer to do all that paperwork for them," Lake said.

All records of construction will be kept by Lake in case FEMA audits her office. Lake is the floodplain manager and has time to answer any questions that arise.

"If anybody has any questions, they can feel free to give me a call," Lake said. "I'll be more than happy to let them know if their property is in the floodplain or if it is not. If it was before and it's not now or it wasn't before and it is now, I'll be happy to answer any questions."

Lake can be reached at dlake@sedalia.com or 660-827-3000 ext. 1167.

Health agency recommendation hailed as first step to easing weed restrictions

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has delivered a recommendation to the Drug Enforcement Administration on marijuana policy, and Senate leaders hailed it Wednesday as a first step toward easing federal restrictions on the drug.

HHS Secretary Xavier Becerra said Wednesday on X, the platform formerly known as Twitter, that the agency has responded to President Joe Biden's request "to provide a scheduling recommendation for marijuana to the DEA."

"We've worked to ensure that a scientific evaluation be completed and shared expeditiously," he added.

Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer said in a statement that HHS had recommended that marijuana be moved from a Schedule I to a Schedule III controlled substance.

"HHS has done the right thing," Schumer, D-N.Y., said. "DEA should now follow through on this important step to greatly reduce the harm caused by draconian marijuana laws."

Rescheduling the drug would reduce or potentially eliminate criminal penalties for possession. Marijuana is currently classified as a Schedule I drug, alongside heroin and LSD.

According to the DEA, Schedule I drugs "have no currently accepted medical use in the United States, a lack of accepted safety for use under medical supervision, and a high potential for abuse."

Schedule III drugs "have a potential for abuse less than substances in Schedules I or II and abuse may lead to moderate or low physical dependence or high psychological dependence." They currently include ketamine and some anabolic steroids.

Biden requested the review in October 2022 as he pardoned thousands of Americans convicted of "simple possession" of marijuana under federal law.

Senate Finance Committee Chairman Ron Wyden, D-Ore., issued a statement calling for marijuana to be completely descheduled. "However, the recommendation of HHS to reschedule cannabis as a Schedule III drug is not inconsequential," he added. "If HHS's recommendation is ultimately implemented, it will be a historic step for a nation whose cannabis policies have been out of touch with reality."

Happy Harvick: NASCAR driver ready for final playoff run

By Pete Iacobelli
Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Kevin Harvick's got little time for nostalgia, even as his stellar career winds down with his final NASCAR playoffs.

"I mean, I don't really go through it like that," the 2014 Cup Series champion said Thursday. "I think for me, it's all a last, right?"

Harvick, 47, has 10 events left before retiring to the TV broadcast booth where he'll be an analyst for Fox.

Harvick didn't get weepy about his final drive around Daytona last week or any of the venues he has seen for a final time as a driver.

Harvick was a young racer with a bit of an edge when he first raced the Cup Series as the late Dale Earnhardt's replacement at Richard Childress Racing in 2001. Harvick won in Atlanta just three weeks after Earnhardt's fatal accident.

Back then, Harvick didn't much care whether anyone on or off the track liked or admired him. He only wanted to win. "I wanted them to think about me all the time when I was in front of them, when I was behind them, when I walked into a room," Harvick said with a grin.

Things are different these days. He's grateful for another championship chance — Harvick's tied for NASCAR's lead with Denny Hamlin with 17 trips to the playoffs — and that he's regarded as statesman of the sport who's left a positive impact with younger competitors.

"I'm in heaven," Harvick said. "And I think that's what's great about being where I'm at. I think that having those relationships with a lot of the other drivers and having the respect of your competitors in the garage is something that is hard to come by."

This has not been the season Harvick anticipated when he mapped out his final drive around NASCAR last fall. He and his Stewart-Haas No. 14 team are winless and enter 15th among the 16 racers who'll chase a title the next few months.

That doesn't mean Harvick can't be a threat to make some noise before he's done.

Hamlin said on his podcast this week that while Harvick's team hasn't had the necessary speed to find Victory Lane this year, he and his crew chief Rodney Childers are both capable of surprises.

"That number four team, they'll just find a way," Hamlin said with awe.

Harvick hopes so. He's had 10 top 10s this season, the best a second place at the Goodyear 400 at Darlington Raceway, where the NASCAR playoffs start Sunday night.

Harvick has three career victories at Darlington, the last coming at the Southern 500 in September 2020.

One of Harvick's most unique and memorable wins came at the track "Too Tough To Tame" earlier that same year when NASCAR became the first professional sport to return to action after shutting down due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

S-C HEADS TO ROCK BRIDGE IN WEEK 2

By Democrat staff

Smith-Cotton will want to have some positives to build off this Friday before Warrensburg comes to town seven days later.

Moberly was able to contain junior quarterback Beau Gray, particularly in regards to the air attack, in last week's 28-7 road defeat to open the year. He was held to just 8 of 27 on pass attempts for 116 yards, while his team-high 16 carries went for 58 yards.

Mylan Hawkins toted the rock a dozen times for 75 yards, but a majority of that production came from a 54-yard touchdown run in the second half that represented S-C's only venture into the end zone.

Hawkins added three receptions for 47 yards, while Gavin Jackson had a 40-yard catch to his name. Samuel Wright led the team with 15 tackles, followed by Jackson with 10.

The Bruins, meanwhile, lost 13-10 in Week 1 to Park Hill South. They were limited to just 81 yards on 30 carries, but still managed to pass for nearly 300 yards, so the Tigers will likely have to slow both phases of the offense to stay in the game. Rock Bridge's defense has held S-C scoreless in all but one of the last five meetings.

Hall of Fame executive Gil Brandt dies at 91

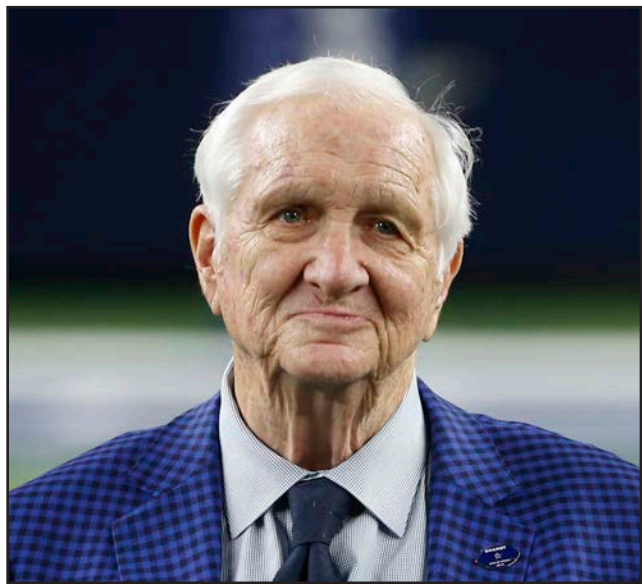

By Schuyler Dixon
AP Pro Football Writer

DALLAS — Gil Brandt, overshadowed by coach Tom Landry and general manager Tex Schramm as part of the trio that built the Dallas Cowboys into "America's Team" in the 1970s, has died. He was 91.

The Pro Football Hall of Fame said Brandt died Thursday morning. No cause of death was given, but Brandt had been in declining health in recent years.

Brandt was the player personnel director alongside the stoic, fedora-wearing Landry and media-savvy Schramm, but had to wait almost 30 years longer to get into the Hall of Fame.

By the time Brandt was enshrined as a contributor, it was as much for his ability to remain involved in the NFL by adapting to the social media age as for Gil Brandt is honored during his induction into the Dallas Cowboys Ring of Honor during half-time of an NFL football game between the Dallas Cowboys and the New Orleans Saints, in Arlington, Texas, Nov. 29, 2018. the innovation the Cowboys brought to the draft process with computers in the early 1960s.

"You can't tell the story about the success of the Dallas Cowboys and their two-decade run of winning seasons from the mid-1960s to mid-1980s without mentioning Gil Brandt," Hall of Fame president Jim Porter said.

"To me," said former Dallas running back Calvin Hill, a first-round pick in 1969, "Gil should have been the first one in terms of certainly from a personnel standpoint."

In 2019, Brandt finally joined Landry (1990) and Schramm (1991) in Canton, Ohio, and always said he never felt overshadowed.

"I think we all got credit," Brandt told The Associated Press before his induction. "And I think Tex rightfully so got more credit than Tom and myself. Because he was really a very media-savvy person. When somebody from Sports Illustrated called, they didn't talk to Tom, they didn't talk to me. They talked to Tex."

Guardians claim former Angels pitchers off waivers for playoff push

By Tom Withers
AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND — The Guardians are hoping some Angels throwaways can get them to the postseason.

Trying to chase down Minnesota in the AL Central race, Cleveland claimed starter Lucas Giolito and relievers Matt Moore and Reynaldo López off waivers from Los Angeles on Thursday, acquisitions that didn't cost the Guardians any prospects.

After going 4-2 on a recent road trip, the Guardians are currently five games behind the first-place Twins with 28 games left. Cleveland will host Minnesota for a three-game series next week.

By getting Giolito, Moore and López, the Guardians hope to catch the Twins, defend their division title and make the postseason. It could be a memorable final surge as manager Terry Francona has hinted he'll retire in October. "Whether or not we can close the gap that's in front of us, we don't know," said Chris Antonetti, the team's president of baseball operations. "But we want to try."

It's something of a reversal for the Guardians, who appeared to be conceding the division at the trading deadline, when they dealt slugger

But the Central remains winnable, and Cleveland figures it has as good a chance as anyone to take it.

"We had a unique opportunity to acquire three players to hopefully impact us moving forward as we continue to try to compete with the Twins for the AL Central," Antonetti said. "There were a number of players on waivers, not just these three, but in the end we felt these three were the three that made the most sense for us."

USWNT's Ertz retires from soccer after 10-year career, World Cup titles

Two-time U.S. Soccer Player of the Year Julie Ertz has retired from soccer after a 10-year career that included back-to-back Women's World Cup titles.

Ertz, 31, had already hinted at her retirement at this summer's World Cup after the United States fell to Sweden on penalties in the Round of 16, tearfully telling reporters it was likely her final match wearing the team crest. She made it official Thursday.

"I gave everything I had to the sport that I love," she said in a statement announcing her retirement. "With that I can walk away with no regrets because while I gave soccer every ounce of myself, soccer gave me even more, and for that I'll always be thankful."

Ertz also retired from her club team, Angel City in the National Women's Soccer League.

It was uncertain whether Ertz would return to soccer before she was named to this summer's World Cup team. She nursed a knee injury before playing in the 2021 Tokyo Olympics, helping the U.S. win a bronze medal, then took time off for the birth of her son last year.

But she appeared in a pair of exhibition matches against Ireland in April and signed with Angel City, working her way back into shape.

Known for her versatility, Ertz played a defensive midfield position for the 2019 World Cup championship team. She was a center back in the 2015 tournament, which the United States also won.

Ertz played at center back in this year's tournament, filling in for injured veteran Becky Sauerbrunn.

"The future is in absolutely great hands," Ertz told reporters at the World Cup after the earliest exit ever for the United States. "You know, sometimes you learn the most from your failures, which sucks. But it's part of my career as well."

Ertz finishes her national team career with 20 goals in 122 appearances. She played in 17 World Cup matches, starting all of them.

She scored six goals in 95 games with the NWSL's Chicago Red Stars from 2014-2021. She played in three games for Angel City this season with one goal.

She was named U.S. Soccer's Player of the Year in 2017 and 2019.

Moon Alert: Avoid shopping or important decisions from 6:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. EDT today (3:30 a.m. to 6:30 a.m. PDT). After that, the Moon moves from Pisces into Aries.

Happy Birthday for Friday, Sept. 1, 2023:

You are practical, down-to-earth and focused. You like to feel that you're doing the best job possible. This year you will reap the benefits of all your hard work. Seize opportunities in business dealings and act on them! People notice your professional strengths. Expect to be in the spotlight!

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★ Tread carefully today. The Moon is in your sign, which makes you more emotional about whatever issue you encounter, including the people you talk to. Furthermore, today the Moon in your sign is opposing your ruler Mars. Oy! This will create conflict with others. Be cool. Tonight: You win!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★ You might be doing a slow boil today about something related to your job or your health, or perhaps it has something to do with a pet. Whatever the case, you might be unhappy about something but you're not speaking up. Not yet. Tonight: Solitude.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★ Today you might be annoyed with a lover, friend or your kids. Today is a testy day! (The Moon opposite Mars makes it easy to be angry at someone.) Obviously, this will make you miserable. Anger serves no purpose other than to make everyone miserable. Chill out. Tonight: Friends.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★ Mind your manners today, because it's easy to be at odds with a parent, boss, police person or anyone who has authority over you. You might feel rankled by what they say or do, or they might not be pleased with you. This could be due to tension and chaos at home. Never underestimate the power of courtesy. Tonight: You're noticed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★ Avoid controversial topics today, because people are testy! Even if you do steer clear of politics and religion, you might find yourself quarreling about the day of the week. The Moon is opposite Mars today, which always creates feelings of annoyance. Keep smiling. Tonight: Explore!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ Money disputes or arguments about shared property or shared responsibilities are likely today. However, if you table these discussions for another day, not only will you avoid some nastiness, you will probably get more done. Timing is everything. Be smart. Tonight: Check your finances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★ Today Mars is in your sign, while the Moon is opposite from you, which means you might end up at odds with partners, close friends, spouses and perhaps even members of the general public. Remember: Patience is the antidote to anger. Today patience is your ally. Tonight: Cooperate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★ Squabbles at work or related to a pet might ruin your day today. Don't let this happen. It takes two to make a fight, and a fight will only make you unhappy. Meanwhile, your objective is to be happy! Ignore a few slings and arrows and take the high road. Tonight: Work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★ Parents must be patient with their kids today to avoid arguments. Likewise, romantic partners must be patient with each other. In fact, it's easy to be annoyed with a friend today or a member of a group. But why bother? Let it go. Life is short — and fat. Tonight: Socialize.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★ Think before you speak today. Arguments at home, with parents or bosses might take place today. It will be hard to avoid feeling annoyed with someone. But hey, little annoyances are daily happenings. If you're alive, it goes with the territory. Stay chill. Tonight: Cocoon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★ Avoid arguments with siblings, neighbors and relatives today. You might be tempted to speak your mind and create a problem. This same mental aggression could translate into your driving behavior today, as well. Do yourself a favor and be patient. Tonight: Conversations.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★ Financial disputes or arguments about possessions might arise today, especially because you will feel possessive about something. "My precious!" If possible, postpone this "debate" for another day when feelings are not so sensitive. Stay friendly. Tonight: Maintain your possessions.

Nebraska volleyball stadium event draws 92,003 to set women's world attendance record

By Eric Olson

Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb. — Nebraska's fight song begins, "There is no place like Nebraska." When it comes to volleyball, those words never rang more true than Wednesday night.

The Cornhuskers laid claim to the world record for largest attendance at a women's sporting event with 92,003 filling Memorial Stadium for their volleyball match against Omaha.

The university took aim at the record last spring when it announced it would hold a daylong celebration of a sport that enjoys immense popularity in this state of fewer than 2 million.

"We took a chance by playing in Memorial Stadium, and to go for the record and break it. ... I don't think anybody could have envisioned that when this whole thing started," Nebraska coach John Cook said. "It feels like a great accomplishment for this sport called volleyball played by women. It's a state treasure. We proved it."

The event began with an exhibition between in-state Division II powers Nebraska-Kearney and Wayne State and was followed by the Huskers' three-set sweep of Omaha in a regular-season match. Country artist Scotty McCreery performed afterward.

The previous attendance record was 91,648, set during a Champions League soccer match when Barcelona defeated Real Madrid 5-2 at the Camp Nou Stadium in 2022.

Memorial Stadium's official capacity is just over 85,000 for football, but that number was higher for this event because there were seats and standing room on the field.

Fans in red and white started their tailgate parties outside the stadium hours before first serve of an exhibition Wayne State won in three sets. The stadium was one-quarter full at the start of that match and gradually filled to capacity as players for Omaha and Nebraska were warming up.

There was a flyover during the national anthem and, minutes before first serve, Cook led his Huskers into the stadium to the Tunnel Walk, the longtime tradition of the football team. Synchronized chants of "Go Big Red!" were heard all around.

Conditions were 83 degrees, clear skies and a south wind listed at 4-mph at court level with gusts that sometimes moved the ball in unpredictable ways.

Though 91,648 was widely acknowledged as the women's sports attendance record, at least one match at the unofficial 1971 Women's World Cup in Mexico City reportedly drew 110,000 people.

The American record attendance for a women's sporting event had been 90,185 for the 1999 World Cup soccer final between the United States and China at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, California — the game where Brandi Chastain ripped off her shirt after scoring the decisive penalty shot for the U.S. win.

The NCAA does not track attendance across all sports, but associate director of media coordination and statistics Jeff Williams said a crowd of 90,000-plus was easily among the largest for a non-football game. A 2010 outdoor hockey game between Michigan and Michigan State at Michigan Stadium in Ann Arbor drew more than 113,000 fans.

A message seeking comment from officials of Guinness World Records was not immediately returned.

Nebraska has sold out 306 consecutive regular-season matches. (Wednesday's event won't count toward the streak because it is not being held on the team's Devaney Center court.) The Huskers have led the nation in attendance every season since 2013, and eight of the top nine crowds in NCAA volleyball history are matches that have involved Nebraska.

Nebraska has won five national championships in volleyball, and its program is one of the few in Division I women's sports that turns a profit — $1 million last year, according to athletic department CFO Doug Ewald.

"This is a statement on Title IX, and having two daughters of my own, what Title IX has done for women's sports is huge," fan Troy Pfannenstiel of Omaha said before the matches.

Chancellor Rodney Bennett canceled classes for the day. NCAA President Charlie Baker, Big Ten Commissioner Tony Petitti were on hand, as was Gov. Jim Pillen. So were Husker volleyball players who were part of iconic coach Terry Pettit's teams over four decades. High school teams from across a state stretching 430 miles border to border were excused from classes to attend.

There are 75 women from the state of Nebraska who are on Division I volleyball rosters this season. At 44 players per million in population, the state trails only Hawaii (67 per million) in Division I players produced per capita, according to volleyball statistician and historian Rich Kern of RichKern.com.

"You don't think you're going to be part of a world record event, and seeing how much everyone supports volleyball and wanted to be part of that record is awesome to see," Omaha's Shayla McCormick said.

Volleyball has surpassed basketball as the No. 1 girls high school team sport in the United States. It's long been No. 1 in Nebraska.

About 7,000 girls play high school volleyball in the state. Volleyball has been played in varying forms in Nebraska since the early 1900s. For many years, girls volleyball matches were warmup acts for boys basketball games. Volleyball became a sanctioned sport in 1972 and took off in the late 1970s when Pettit invited many of the state's high school coaches to work at his camps in Lincoln.

Pettit also conducted so-called "satellite" clinics in small towns across the state. In a place where boys grow up dreaming of becoming Cornhusker football players, many girls are equally passionate about some day playing volleyball for a Nebraska team that annually ranks among the nation's elite.

Ella Beck, 10, came with a group from tiny Pierce to see her first college volleyball match and root for her favorite player, setter Lexi Rodriguez.

Neveah Kehr, 10, came with her mom, Nicki, from Bismarck, North Dakota, to be part of the event. Nicki graduated from Nebraska, and she brought up her daughter watching the Huskers on television.

Neveah wore the No. 5 jersey of middle blocker Bekka Allick at a pep rally before the matches and, with more than 1,000 fans cheering, was invited to walk to where the players stood and was introduced to the woman she called her idol.

Neveah teared up, and Bekka gave her a hug.

Harvick won't ever forget how amped up he was after crossing the final line, stepping out of his car and hearing silence as fans were not permitted in the stands for health reasons.

"Still one of the most empty and awkward feelings that I've ever had at a racetrack," he said.

Weirder still was a quick celebration in the winner's circle at the track where they took "three pictures and (me) carrying the trophy back to my motor-home myself," he said.

Harvick believes his team has come close to success this season and he's still chasing victory despite his short-timer status on track.

It's "not the first time we've had performance struggles," he said. "It's all in how you overcome those things. And here we are again, right?"

Harvick said his planning on the front end of his final season has meant a more enjoyable experience. He's appreciated the fans' support and signs celebrating his achievements at many tracks this season.

"You know, I'm in a fortunate position to be able to say, 'Hey, this is it,' he said. "I get to go out on my own terms."

Brandt

Schramm, Landry and Brandt were together for the franchise's first 29 seasons, and Brandt was the last of the three to go after Jerry Jones bought the team in 1989 and immediately fired Landry. Schramm resigned shortly thereafter (Jones has been the GM for all 34 years he has owned the team).

“How could you not be overshadowed by Tex and Tom?” asked a chuckling Cliff Harris, who credits his Hall of Fame career as a safety to Brandt finding him as an undrafted player out of tiny Ouachita Baptist in Arkansas. “Everybody was.”

Brandt said late Raiders owner Al Davis tried to hire him before the 1989 draft by telling him he had heard Jones was going to fire him after the draft. Brandt didn't believe it, and though Davis turned out to be right, Brandt said he probably wouldn't have done it anyway because Dallas had become home for the Wisconsin native.

Animosity toward Jones didn't last long for Brandt, who maintained a presence around the club even as his health forced him into a wheelchair for game days in the press box.

Brandt even asked Jones to be his presenter in Canton, and Jones put him in the club's ring of honor a few weeks before Brandt was voted into the Hall of Fame.

In a statement, Jones called Brandt “a true icon and pioneer of our sport.”

“Gil was at the very core of the early success of the Dallas Cowboys and continued to serve as a great ambassador for the organization for decades beyond that,” Jones said. “He was my friend and a mentor not only to me, but to countless executives, coaches, players and broadcasters across the National Football League.”

At Schramm's urging, Brandt worked with IBM to create a system in which numerical values were assigned to intangibles such as character, competitiveness and “mental alertness,” along with tangible measures such as quickness and strength. The numbers were stored on punch cards and loaded into massive computers, allowing the club to rank players.

Brandt enjoyed telling the story of Vince Lombardi chiding the Cowboys by asking if their computer had broken down while Dallas held up the 1964 draft waiting for medical information on Mel Renfro. The Cowboys drafted the future Hall of Fame defensive back in the second round.

“I think Gil, in terms of quantifying so many things about scouting, was really ahead of his time,” Hill said. “They could look at all the individual things that go into making a player and a teammate and tried to quantify it.”

While the Cowboys developed a Hall of Famer out of a track star in receiver Bob Hayes of Florida A&M, they also found a four-time All-Pro on the basketball court at Utah State in cornerback Cornell Green.

There were plenty of future stars among high draft picks from bigger schools, such as TCU's Bob Lilly, the first draft choice for the Cowboys in 1961, and Alabama linebacker Lee Roy Jordan, their top selection two years later.

But the list of lower-round picks or undrafted players, particularly from smaller schools, under Brandt stood out as much as anything else. Brandt often mentioned Jethro Pugh, an unsung defensive lineman taken in the 11th round in 1965 out of tiny Elizabeth City State in North Carolina.

Pugh played for the first five Dallas teams to reach the Super Bowl, as did Roger Staubach. The Hall of Fame quarterback was a 10th-round choice a year before Pugh, with the Cowboys taking him while knowing Staubach's arrival would be delayed five years by a Navy commitment.

“Gil Brandt was a pioneer in the truest sense of the word,” NFL commissioner Roger Goodell said. “As the personnel architect of the Cowboys for nearly three decades, he transformed the way teams scouted talent by building a player evaluation system using computers. He was the first to scout players from outside the U.S. and from different sports. The NFL today would not be the same without Gil Brandt.”

Brandt's longevity also turned him into one of the few unofficial historians for the NFL — a role that served him well when the league celebrated its 100th anniversary the same year he went into the Hall of Fame. He had more than 150,000 followers on Twitter.

“I feel like I have reinvented myself,” Brandt said in 2019. “From somebody that did pretty good with the Cowboys to somebody that's doing pretty good right now with social media.”

Brandt had a weekly show on satellite radio, but mostly disappeared after making insensitive comments following the death of quarterback Dwayne Haskins, who was struck by a dump truck on a Florida interstate in April 2022.

Brandt said Haskins had been advised to stay in school rather than turn pro, and equated Haskins' decision to go the NFL with the circumstances of his death.

“I hate anytime anybody is killed or anybody dies, but he was a guy that was living to be dead, so to speak,” Brandt said on the radio show. “It's a tragic thing any time somebody dies, especially when you're 24 years old and have your whole life ahead of you. But maybe if he stayed in school a year, he wouldn't do silly things. Jogging on a highway on a road like that leaves it open.”

Brandt apologized for the comments on social media.

PSG, Mbappe drawn into Champions League ‘Group of Death’

By Graham Dunbar

Associated Press

MONACO — Paris Saint-Germain and its star forward Kylian Mbappé landed in the toughest group in the Champions League draw Thursday with former champions AC Milan and Borussia Dortmund, plus Newcastle.

Bayern Munich's new signing Harry Kane will return to England to face Manchester United in a rematch of the memorable 1999 final, in a group that also includes Copenhagen and Galatasaray.

Record 14-time champion Real Madrid plays Napoli, the runaway winner of Serie A last season, Braga and competition debutant Union Berlin, which will use the city's Olympic Stadium for home games.

PSG's group already looked like a difficult task for the French champion — which is still looking for an elusive first Champions League title — even before Newcastle was added as the final team. Backed by its majority owner, Saudi Arabia's sovereign Public Investment Fund (PIF), Newcastle returned to the Champions League after a 20-year gap and shaped as the toughest option in the fourth pot of lowest-ranked teams.

Newcastle will take on Qatar-owned PSG which has retained Mbappé in a turbulent offseason that saw Lionel Messi leave for Inter Miami and Neymar sold to Saudi club Al Hilal, which is also majority owned by PIF.

“It's a new era, it's a new style and quality of game, very offensive and this is what we like,” PSG president Nasser al-Khelaifi said, embracing the tough test. “Everybody wants to play (in the Champions League), so don't complain.”

Manchester City, the defending champion, got a favorable draw and will play Leipzig for the third straight season, plus Red Star Belgrade and Young Boys.

City has beaten Leipzig 7-0 and 6-3 at home in the past two seasons, and will visit Swiss champion Young Boys on its artificial turf field in Bern.

Last season's finalist Inter Milan will play Benfica — which it beat in the quarterfinals — plus Salzburg and Real Sociedad.

Barcelona was drawn with Porto, Shakhtar Donetsk and Royal Antwerp, another Champions League debutant which last played in the competition in the old European Cup in 1957.

Arsenal's return after six years away will be against Sevilla, PSV Eindhoven and Lens.

Feyenoord, the 1970 European Cup winner, was grouped with the team it beat in that final, Celtic, plus Atlético Madrid and Lazio.

Teams from 15 different nations were in the draw, including 14 former European champions who have combined to win 48 titles in the competition's 68-year history.

Games start Sept. 19 and group-stage play ends Dec. 13.

The knockout stage starts in February and reaches the final at Wembley Stadium in London on June 1.

The 32 teams will get a share of billion euros ($2.2 billion) in prize money, with each guaranteed at least 15.64 million euros ($17.1 million). Clubs get more depending on their results in the group stage and knockout rounds.

UEFA also pays clubs shares from a 600 million euro ($656 million) fund distributed according to their historic record in European competitions, plus a share of their broadcast rights deal in their home country.

The eventual champion likely will get about 125 million euros ($135 million) from UEFA.

Roundup

Elsewhere in Week 2 football action, Windsor makes a trip to Cole Camp in one of two matchups pitting Kaysinger schools against one another. Windsor fell 35-8 on the road in its opener against Adrian (No. 7 in Class 2) despite two big receptions and a TD catch by Rowan Cox (143 yards), but the Greyhounds likely have nowhere to go but up in the rushing game after gaining just 13 yards on 23 attempts.

Cole Camp's Grant Rodriguez (18 carries, 114 yards) had what ended up as the game-winning touchdown and two-point conversion after the Bluebirds denied the opposition's own two-point try. The team as a whole gained nearly 300 yards on the ground, including a few on the other touchdown for Cole Camp that was manufactured by the legs of quarterback Gentry Dieckman.

Lincoln will also travel to Tipton in Week 2. The Cardinals had two interceptions and picked up five fumbles while utilizing some long gains through the air to essentially wrap up last week's 58-7 victory over Lone Jack with Kingsville before the second half even started. Tipton limited Crest Ridge to just 85 yards of offense in a 52-7 blowout win to open the year on the road, and now the Cardinals return home for the first of four games on their own soil.

Northwest with Otterville will attempt to get its offense going with a trip to Osceola in 8-man action.

Sacred Heart wins home VB opener

The Lady Gremlins won their volleyball home opener Monday in four sets (25-18, 25-13, 23-25, 26-24) over Marshall as Sammy Altena led the way with 18 kills and Sophia Carney added 11.

It moved Sacred Heart to 3-1-2 on the season, with all the other results coming from last weekend's Father Tolton Tournament where the Gremlins tied the host and picked up a pair of victories over Tipton to take third place overall. They played again at home Thursday night at Crest Ridge.

Northwest got off to a 2-0 start with wins over Crest Ridge and Chilhowee this week, while Cole Camp won in four sets Monday over St. Paul Lutheran and Green Ridge defeated Sweet Springs in four on Tuesday in what were the season openers for both schools.

Smith Cotton was swept on Monday and Tuesday in contests against Jefferson City and Osage at home, respectively. The Lady Tigers played in Sedalia again Thursday, facing Odessa.

Smith-Cotton stays undefeated on pitch

S-C boys soccer got a big performance out of goalkeeper Alex Davilia on Tuesday. He recorded the clean sheet in net and also scored the match-winner from the penalty spot to beat Helias 1-0.

At the team's S-C Shootout last weekend, the Tigers defeated Osage 1-0 on a goal by Jeydan Salazar assisted by Francisco Gonzalez. Salazar and Cirilo Romero scored twice, while Yaroslav Chervonetskyi and Juan Matacuabaldo each added a goal as well in Saturday's 6-0 victory over Clinton.

Sacred Heart, meanwhile, moved to 3-0 on the season Wednesday with an 8-1 win over Lutheran (KC) at the Barstow Tournament as Jackson Manning racked up four goals and Zander Jackson stopped a penalty kick in net. The Gremlins, who won 4-0 over Clinton and 4-1 over Osage at the S-C Shootout, faced the Barstow hosts Thursday night.

Pitchers

In addition to adding some proven talent, the Guardians also prevented other contending teams from picking up Giolito, once considered one of the AL's top young pitchers, along with two quality relievers.

The players were awarded to the team with the worst record, so the Guardians jumped in front of some teams they could meet in the playoffs to get the trio.

“If our record was better, our chances of getting them would've been worse,” Antonetti said. “So we had a pretty good understanding of where we were in the standings, and we weren't sure if we'd get one, two or three of them.

“But we're happy we were able to get all three.”

Cleveland will assume what's left of their contracts — all three can become free agents after this season — and all would be eligible for the postseason roster if the Guardians qualify.

In making the moves, the Guardians added nearly $2.1 million in payroll. They'll assume $1,241,667 for the final 31 days of Giolito's $7.45 million salary, $416,667 of Moore's $2.5 million salary and $437,500 of Lopez's $2.625 million salary.

Antonetti credited the club's principal owners Paul Dolan and David Blitzer for their willingness to assume a greater financial burden. That hasn't always been the case in Cleveland, where the Guardians have had to watch their spending carefully.

“Every opportunity that we've had to improve the team, the limitation hasn't been finances,” Antonetti said. “Whether that's this year or years past, we've been really fortunate to have finances available to try to do that when we haven't made moves.

“It's mostly been because the player value we would have to give up exceeded what we thought made sense. In this case, there was no player value. So it was really financial considerations and then how we could fit them on the roster. And both of those things made sense.”

To make roster space, the Guardians designated right-hander Peyton Battenfield and catcher Eric Haase for assignment.

Cleveland has remained in contention despite a rash of injuries to its starting rotation. The Guardians have had to rely on rookies Tanner Bibee, Gavin Williams and Logan Allen to keep them within striking distance of the Twins.

Those young pitchers have performed well but are reaching innings thresholds, forcing the team to find some arms to protect them.

Williams was pulled from a start on Tuesday in Minnesota after hurting his right knee. Antonetti said the hard-throwing right-hander underwent treatment and “seems to be progressing pretty well. As of right now, it looks like we've avoided the worst case.”

The Guardians are expected to get starter Cal Quantrill back from a shoulder injury Friday.

Giolito, López and Moore were waived earlier this week along with three other players by the Angels, who have had another disappointing season and are already looking toward 2024 and beyond.

Los Angeles is 64-70 and 12 1/2 games behind Seattle in the AL West with just 28 games left.

An All-Star in 2019, Giolito, 29, was traded by the Chicago White Sox along with López in July. The right-hander went just 1-5 with a 6.89 ERA for the Angels, who fell out of contention this month and began dumping salaries.

“He's been a really effective and durable major league starter for most of his career, and we're excited to have him join our rotation to help stabilize that and provide us some competitive innings moving forward,” Antonetti said.

Moore and López will be added to a Cleveland bullpen that's been leaned on heavily of late.

WHAT'S NEW ON DISNEY+

"I Am Groot" - Season 2

The galaxy's most mischievous toddler is back to stealing hearts in Season 2 of "I Am Groot," premiering Wednesday, Sept. 6, on Disney+. A photorealistic animated series of shorts, Season 2 follows the beloved Guardians of the Galaxy franchise character, Groot (voiced by Vin Diesel, "F9: The Fast Saga," 2021), as "this time, Baby Groot finds himself exploring the universe and beyond aboard the Guardians' space-ships, coming face-to-face — or nose-to-nose — with new and colorful creatures and environments" (Per Disney+). Through-out five new original shorts, Baby Groot "[explores] his glory days growing up — and getting into trouble — among the stars" (Disney+). Expanding on the original Marvel character created by Stan Lee and Jack Kirby, the series is directed and written by Kirsten Lepore ("Hi Stranger," 2016), who executive produces the series alongside Kevin Feige ("Black Panther," 2018), Louis D'Esposito ("Iron Man," 2008), Victoria Alonso ("Avengers: End Game," 2019) and Brad Winderbaum ("Thor: Love and Thunder," 2022).

"The Little Mermaid" (2023)

Enjoy life under the sea with

Disney's live-action remake of its 1989 hit animated film, "The Little Mermaid," available to stream on Disney+, Wednesday, Sept. 6. Loosely based on the 1837 fairy tale of the same name by Hans Christian Andersen, "The Little Mermaid" tells the story of Ariel (Halle Bailey, "grown-ish"), a spirited young mermaid who dreams of grand adventures. However, as the youngest and most defiant of King Triton's (Javier Bardem, "No Country for Old Men," 2007) daughters, Ariel finds herself caught under her father's strict rule. When a trip to the surface leads her to fall for the handsome Prince Eric (Jonah Hauer-King, "World on Fire"), Ariel makes a deal with an evil sea witch named Ursula (Melissa McCarthy, "God's Favorite Idiot") in order to experience life on land. When things don't exactly go to plan, Ariel finds her life and her father's kingdom in jeopardy. Directed by Rob Marshall ("Chicago," 2002) and featuring a screenplay by David Magee ("Life of Pi," 2012), the film also stars Daveed Diggs ("Hamilton," 2020) as the voice of Sebastian; Awkwafina ("Shang-Chi and the Legend of the Ten Rings," 2021) as the voice of Scuttle; Jacob Tremblay ("Room," 2015) as the voice of Flounder; Noma Dumezweni ("Mary Poppins Returns," 2018) as The Queen; and Art Malik ("Homeland") as Sir Grimsby. Additionally, Disney+ subscribers have access to special bonus content, including a special performance of "Impossible Child" by Javier Bardem, with music by Alan Menken ("Beauty and the Beast," 1991) and lyrics by Lin-Manuel Miranda ("Hamilton," 2020).

WHAT'S NEW ON NETFLIX

"Virgin River" - Season 5, Part 1

The town is rocked by a shocking series of events when "Virgin River" returns to Netflix with Season 5, debuting its first 10-episode installment Thursday, Sept. 7. Season 5, Part 2 is set to release Thursday, Nov. 30, with two special holiday episodes. Now firmly settled in Virgin River, nurse practitioner Mel (Alexandra Breckenridge, "This Is Us"), who moved to the small Northern California town in Season 1, is pushed to make a big decision about her future at the clinic while her pregnancy unexpectedly sparks an emotional connection to her past this season. Meanwhile, Jack (Martin Henderson, "Grey's Anatomy") faces his own demons and, of course, Charmaine (Lauren Hammersley, "Sullivan's Crossing"), in an attempt to prove himself to Mel, as Doc (Tim Matheson, "Hart of Dixie") and Hope (Annette O'Toole, "Halt and Catch Fire") must find solace and those around them when their identities are thrown into question. Season 5 also features "surprising new relationships, a shocking breakup, a difficult court trial, a heartbreaking goodbye, and a wildfire that threatens the town, bringing some people of Virgin River together while tearing others apart" (per Netflix). Based on the book series of the same name by Robyn Carr, "Virgin River" was created for television by Sue Tenney ("Good Witch"). The series also stars Benjamin Hollingsworth ("Code Black"), Colin Lawrence ("Riverdale"), Sarah Dugdale ("In the Shadow of the Moon," 2019), Zibby Allen ("Grey's Anatomy"), Marco Grazzini ("Kim's Convenience"), Mark Ghanimé ("Helix"), Kai Bradbury ("Motherland: Fort Salem") and Teryl Rothery ("Arrow").

"Top Boy" - Season 3

Who will reign as the Top Boy of Summerhouse? Find out when the critically acclaimed British crime drama "Top Boy" premieres its third and final in a changing world, or if there can only be one top boy after all. Spanning six episodes, the new season also stars Jasmine Jobson ("Surge," 2020), Saffron Hocking ("Riches"), Adwoa Aboah ("Ghost in the Shell," 2017), Araloyin Oshunremi ("Heartstopper"), Little Simz ("Venom: Let There Be Carnage," 2021), Barry Keoghan ("The Banshees of Inisherin," 2022) and Hélder Fernandes ("Carthago"). "Top Boy" comes from series creator Ronan Bennett ("Gunpowder").

WHAT'S NEW ON PRIME VIDEO

"Sitting in Bars with Cake" (2023)

Inspired by true events and based on the cookbook of the same name by Audrey Shulman

("Love, Inheritance and Lunch," 2019), the new rom-com "Sitting in Bars with Cake" premieres on Prime Video, Friday, Sept. 8. Young and doing their best to navigate life in Los Angeles, Corinne (Odessa A'zion, "Hellraiser," 2022), the ultimate extrovert, convinces her best friend, Jane (Yara Shahidi, "grown-ish"), an introverted and extremely talented home baker, to commit to a year of baking cakes and bringing them to bars — called "cakebarring" — in order to meet new people and work on building up confidence. As the friends work their way through L.A.'s vibrant nightlife scene, "Corinne receives a life-altering diagnosis, and the pair face a challenge unlike anything they've experienced before," in a madcap adventure that is "a moving celebration of female friendship, forging identity and finding joy in the most unexpected places" (per Prime Video). With a screenplay written by Shulman, "Sitting in Bars with Cake" is directed by Trish Sie ("Pitch Perfect 3," 2017) and executive produced by Shahidi, Janet G. Knutsen ("Rizzoli & Isles") and Teri Simpson ("Carrie Pilby," 2016). The film also stars Bette Midler ("Beaches," 1988), Ron Livingston ("Band of Brothers"), Martha Kelly ("Baskets"), Maia Mitchell ("The Fosters"), Charlie Morgan Patton ("80 For Brady," 2023), Simone Recasner ("The Big Leap"), Rish Shah ("Ms. Marvel"), Aaron Dominguez ("Only Murders in the Building"), Will Ropp ("The Fallout," 2021), Adina Porter ("The 100") and Navid Negahban ("Homeland").

WHAT'S NEW ON PARAMOUNT+

"Star Trek: Lower Decks" - Season 4

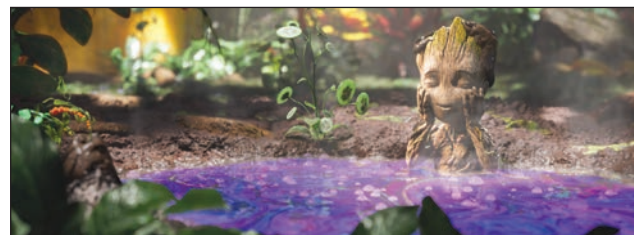

Head on down below the bridge to explore the day-to-day lives of those who keep Starfleet running when Season 4 of the animated adventure comedy "Star Trek: Lower Decks" premieres on Paramount+, Thursday, Sept. 7. This time around, an unknown force is destroying starships and threatening galactic peace. But, luckily for the crew of the USS Cerritos, they aren't important enough for missions like that. Instead, the "Lower Decks" crew — including ensigns Mariner (Tawny Newsome, "Space Force"), Boimler (Jack Quaid, "The Boys"), Tendi (Noel Wells, "Craig of the Creek") and Rutherford (Eugene Cordero, "Loki") — are tending to their normal Starfleet duties, doing their best to avoid malevolent computers, encountering aliens both new and old and getting stuck in a couple of caves along the way. Rounding out the series voice cast are Dawnn Lewis ("A Different World") as Capt. Carol Freeman; Jerry O'Connell ("Sliders") as Cmdr. Jack Ransom; Fred Tatasciore ("Praise Petey") as Lt. Shaxs; and Gillian Vigman ("Step Brothers," 2008) as Dr. T'Pol. The series comes from creator Mike McMahan ("Solar Opposites").
