MoDOT study: roadway fatalities dip slightly in 2023

By Chris Howell
chrish@sedaliademocrat.com

Data on 2023 traffic deaths in Missouri shows fewer people died on roadways than the previous year.

According to a Missouri Department of Transportation report recently released, 989 fatalities occurred on Missouri roadways in 2023. This is a decrease of 6% from 2022.

Cpl. A.J. Silvey with the Sedalia Police Department said the minor dip in traffic death numbers is counter to an overall increase.

"In the last five to 10 years, we've gone

Yet motorcycle fatalities hit record number the complete wrong direction in fatalities in the state," Silvey said. "When I first started, 750 to 800 was the norm, and now crossing 1,000 is what we've seen over the last three or four years, but yes, 2023, I think we're going to end the year just under 1,000."

Rea Funeral Chapel to host open house for new location

By Faith Bemiss-McKinney
faithb@sedaliademocrat.com

Rea Funeral Chapel and Cremation Services will host an open house Saturday, Feb. 10, at its new facility located on West 16th Street.

Owned by Brad and Sarah Rea, the new facility is 9,600 square feet, almost twice the size of the former location on South Limit Avenue. Brad and Sarah said the new building has a large chapel, two additional viewing rooms, and a community room that seats 36, which is available for families to cater food. In addition, it has an arrangement room and a selection room with samples of cremation urns, caskets, and vaults.

Sarah Rea said the selection room is convenient because families come in and see the urns and caskets firsthand. Before, at the former facility, they had to select items from a catalog.

"We couldn't ask for better," she said.

Along with the expansion is an onsite cremation center. The Sedalia Cremation Center is 2,400 square feet and houses an office, lobby, viewing room, and three-car garage.

The business broke ground for the new facility in January 2023 and construction of both buildings was done by McCollester Construction and local subcontractors. The new location opened for service on Tuesday, Jan. 2, 2024.

Construction begins on Highway 50 bridge

By Warrensburg Star-Journal Staff

The Missouri Department of Transportation will close the U.S. Highway 50 westbound bridge over the railroad at Knob Noster for bridge rehabilitation. Work began this week and will last until June 30. All work is weather permitting.

According to a news release, the westbound bridge will be closed for the duration of the project. Westbound traffic will be shifted to the eastbound passing lane, resulting in eastbound and westbound traffic each having one lane over the eastbound railroad bridge. Additionally, North Vaughn Street will be closed at Highway 50.

The Warrensburg Star-Journal previously reported that the westbound bridge over Union Pacific Railroad, built in 1956, will have its decking replaced. Jill Bruss, an Area Engineer for the Kansas City District that includes Johnson County, said the construction should prolong the bridge's lifespan for another 20 years.

"Median crossovers will be constructed to direct westbound traffic on to the eastbound bridge," the MoDOT website states. "For safety, (North Vaughn Street) at Highway 50 in Knob Noster will be closed. Also, the median will be closed on the north side of Highway 50 just to the east of the bridge. Businesses at this location will be restricted to

Motorists are reminded to slow down and pay attention while driving in work zones, the release states.

UCM targeted with attempted cyber breach

By Warrensburg Star-Journal Staff

WARRENSBURG – The University of Central Missouri experienced an attempted cyber breach this week that has been discovered to be part of a "regional attack."

After a campus-wide internet outage on Tuesday, Feb. 6, UCM students, faculty and staff were made aware Wednesday morning, Feb. 7 of an attempted cyber breach. Campus technology systems were shut down for safety reasons, leaving everyone on campus without access.

"We have contained the situation and are working with partners including the state of Missouri on resolution," a Wednesday

Facebook post on the university's official page read.

The university provided updates every few hours on Wednesday in a series of Facebook posts. In those posts, the university stated that so far, no employee or student's personal information has been compromised. However, the university also encouraged everyone to keep an eye on their personal information as it works alongside the FBI, local law enforcement and state agencies to resolve the problem. As of Wednesday afternoon, UCM stated no one associated with the university has been found in connection to the attempted breach.

Biden ‘willfully’ disclosed classified materials, no criminal charges warranted

By Eric Tucker, Lindsay Whitehurst, Zeke Miller and Colleen Long

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Joe Biden “willfully” retained and disclosed highly classified materials when he was a private citizen, including documents about military and foreign policy in Afghanistan and other sensitive national security matters, according to a Justice Department report that nonetheless says no criminal charges are warranted for him or anyone else.

The report from special counsel Robert Hur, released Thursday, represents a harshly critical assessment of Biden's handling of sensitive government materials, but also details the reasons why he should not be charged with the crime.

The findings will likely blunt his ability to forcefully condemn Donald Trump, Biden's likely opponent in November's presidential election, over a criminal indictment charging the former president with illegally hoarding classified records at his Mar-a-Lago estate in Florida.

“Our investigation uncovered evidence that President Biden willfully retained and disclosed classified materials after his vice presidency when he was a private citizen,” Hur wrote.

Hur's report says evidence suggests that many of the classified documents recovered by investigators at the Penn Biden Center, in parts of Biden's Delaware home, and in his Senate papers at the University of Delaware were retained by “mistake.”

Biden said in a statement that he was “pleased” the special counsel had “reached the conclusion I believed all along they would reach — that there would be no charges brought in this case and the matter is now closed.”

He made a point of saying that he sat for five hours of in-person interviews over two days on Oct. 8 and 9, “even though Israel had just been attacked on October 7th and I was in the middle of handling an international crisis.”

“I just believed that's what I owed the American people so they could know no charges would be brought and the matter closed,” Biden said.

The report comes after a yearlong investigation into the improper retention of classified documents by Biden, from his time as a senator and as vice president, that were found at his Delaware home, as well as at a private office that he used in between his service in the Obama administration and becoming president.

The investigation into Biden is separate from special counsel Jack Smith's inquiry into the handling of classified documents by Trump after Trump left the White House. Smith's team has charged Trump with illegally retaining top secret records at his Mar-a-Lago home and then obstructing government efforts to get them back. Trump has said he did nothing wrong.

Supreme Court seems poised to reject efforts to kick Trump off ballot

By Mark Sherman

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court seems poised to reject attempts to kick former President Donald Trump off the 2024 ballot, with conservative and liberal justices in apparent agreement in a case that puts them at the heart of a presidential election.

A definitive ruling for Trump, the leading Republican candidate for president, would largely end efforts in Colorado, Maine and elsewhere to prevent his name from appearing on the ballot.

The justices could act quickly, possibly by Super Tuesday on March 5, when Colorado, Maine and 13 other states will hold primaries.

Conservative and liberal justices alike questioned during arguments Thursday whether Trump can be disqualified from being president again because of his efforts to undo his loss in the 2020 election to Democrat Joe Biden, ending with the Jan. 6, 2021, attack on the U.S. Capitol.

Their main concern was whether Congress must act before states can invoke a constitutional provision that was adopted after the Civil War to prevent former officeholders who “engaged in insurrection” from holding office again. There also were questions about whether the president is covered by the provision.

In the first ruling of its kind, Colorado's Supreme Court decided that the provision, Section 3 of the 14th amendment, could be applied to Trump, who the court found incited the Capitol attack.

But on a Supreme Court that prefers to avoid cases in which it is the final arbiter of a political dispute, the justices appeared to be searching for a consensus ruling and the issue of congressional action seemed to draw the most support.

Justice Elena Kagan was among several justices who wanted to know “why a single state should decide who gets to be president of the United States.”

Eight of the nine justices suggested that they were open to at least some of the arguments made by Jonathan Mitchell, Trump's lawyer at the Supreme Court. Trump could win his case if the court finds just one of those arguments persuasive.

Justice Sonia Sotomayor

sounded most skeptical of Mitchell's arguments, though she too might not vote to uphold the Colorado ruling that found that Trump “engaged in insurrection” and is ineligible to be president.

In another sign of trouble for the Colorado voters who sued to remove Trump from the ballot, the justices spent little time talking about whether Trump actually “engaged in insurrection” following the 2020 election.

Lawyer Jason Murray, representing the voters, pressed the point that Trump incited the Capitol attack to prevent the peaceful handover of power “for the first time in history.”

Mitchell argued that the Capitol riot was not an insurrection and, even if it was, Trump did not directly participate.

Trump, speaking to reporters after the proceedings, called the Supreme Court argument “a beautiful thing to watch in many respects,” even as he complained about the case being brought in the first place.

“I hope that democracy in this country will continue,” he told reporters at his Mar-a-Lago club in Florida.

Trump could be back before the Supreme Court in a matter of days to seek an emergency order to keep his election subversion trial on hold so he can appeal lower-court rulings that he is not immune from criminal charges.

That issue had a brief airing Thursday, when Justice Brett Kavanaugh said a more legally sound approach to disqualifying someone from office is found in a federal criminal statute against insurrection.

Someone prosecuted for insurrection “if convicted, could be or shall be disqualified” from office, Kavanaugh said.

Mitchell agreed, but with a caveat, Trump's claim of immunity. “So we would not concede that he can be prosecuted for what he did on January 6th,” Mitchell said.

The exchange was largely hypothetical because, while Trump faces criminal charges related to Jan. 6, he has not been charged under the insurrection statute.

The justices heard more than two hours of history-laden arguments in their first case considering Section 3 of the 14th amendment.

PASTOR’S PULPIT

Love is not blind

By Bob Wauchope
Lead Pastor, Maplewood Church

Valentine’s Day is next Wednesday. Men, this is your reminder. Women, you need no reminder. It is just one day, and that one day cannot make up for not loving the other 364 days of the year.

My family is full of long marriages. My grandparents, my parents, my wife’s parents, my siblings, and my marriage. I do not say that to brag, only to share some of the lessons I have learned from all of them. I have learned a few things: love, forgiveness, communication, and sacrifice. These lessons not only apply to a marriage but all relationships.

Paul writes about the importance of love to the church at Corinth in chapter 13. One section here is critical to understand and apply in relationships. Verse 4-5 argues, “Love is not arrogant or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful.” Paul talks about a love that considers others more important than our desires. That love puts them first in our hearts and minds. It desires kindness, compassion, and selflessness. It sees the other person’s faults, accepts them, and still loves them.

I don’t love my wife because she is perfect or vice versa. Our love is not blind; we see each other as we are. Make a choice daily with your spouse, friend, kid, or coworker to love in spite of faults.

Peter, the disciple, once asked Jesus a question about forgiveness. He wondered if seven times was enough to forgive another person. This extended the common number of times the religious leaders required. Jesus said 70 times seven; there should be no end to forgiveness.

In relationships, we need to practice frequently forgiving other people. If we allow them to turn into hurt feelings and we make ourselves a victim, it will destroy the relationship. If we choose to work out the issue and forgive the other person, we have done what Jesus commanded. Marriages end because forgiveness is lacking, and the list of offenses, irritations, and frustrations continues to build. Choose not to let that happen in your relationships. Make a choice to be a frequent forgiver and not hold onto grudges and offenses.

In the book of Mark, Jesus is portrayed as someone who has compassion for the people around him. That affected his communication; it was always clear and heartfelt. Jesus did not leave the hard things unspoken. It gives us an example of relationships. We should not avoid tough topics. We need to “speak the truth in love,” as Ephesians 4:15 reminds us.

We can communicate at a lot of different levels with the people in our lives. We cannot tell them about the things that are going on in our hearts and minds. We need to have people who we can communicate with. If you are married, that is your spouse first and foremost. You should not be going to another person; that is a recipe for adultery and divorce.

Choose not to be blind to communication issues in your relationships. Marriage is an opportunity to have a deep relationship like no other. That only happens if you communicate at a deep level daily. No matter where your marriage is, work on improving communication daily.

Sacrifice is something that is required to have a healthy relationship. I do not mean just one person sacrificing in the relationship; that does not work. It means both people choose to sacrifice for the other. It might be as simple as where to go to dinner or more complicated like which parents’ house to go to for a holiday. It will mean choosing what your spouse or friend wants over what you want at times.

Sacrifice is very close to being selfless. Sacrifice is in conflict with selfishness when we demand that things have to be our way. Getting angry that you did not get what you wanted and making the other person feel bad is the opposite of sacrifice. Instead, want the very best for the other person.

Jesus lived out each of these four things. His love is for us as his creation. Jesus forgave us of our sins. Jesus has communicated to us through the Bible. Jesus sacrificed for us by willingly choosing to go to the cross so that we could have salvation. His example is best lived out in our current relationships.

Love What’s Local hosting Foodie February

By Warrensburg Star-Journal Staff

The Love What’s Local committee has brought Foodie February back to Warrensburg and the surrounding areas in Johnson County.

According to a news release, this annual promotion is a new and reimagined twist on a traditional Restaurant Week. Foodie February is designed to encourage community members to love what’s local and celebrate all things culinary in the month of February. Each week of February, participating restaurants, coffee shops, bakeries and all those in between will have a different special.

In 2024, each week of Foodie February has a theme: Feb. 1-7, Drink Specials; Feb. 8-14, Sweet Treats and Desserts; Feb. 15-21, Appetizers, Shareable, and Starters; and Feb. 22-29, New Menu Item and Entree.

After a slow start to the New Year for the local business community due to inclement weather and seasonal illnesses, Love What’s Local Foodie February offers the opportunity to directly support Warrensburg’s food establishments, including many small, family-owned businesses.

“Restaurants are struggling,” Love What’s Local Committee member Jamie DeBacker said in the release. “Rising prices on food and supplies means raising menu prices. Having staff to help keep doors open but then also paying for payroll. All these elements add up and if community members are spending time in restaurants, ordering online, or supporting them, they can’t support themselves or the people they employ. It’s important to remember there are so many moving factors in a business and the owners are doing their best to help the community they love to serve.”

The Love What’s Local Committee encourages community members to support area restaurants in a variety of ways, such as dining in, ordering carry-out, purchasing a gift card, leaving a positive comment or sharing social media posts, or telling friends about a favorite business.

Throughout February, submit a photo of your receipt from any Johnson County restaurant via an online form on the Warrensburg Main Street (warrensburgmainstreet.org) or Chamber of Commerce (warrensburg.org) websites under the Love What’s Local tabs for a chance to win a dining package. Receipts will be collected until 5 p.m. Feb. 29. A winner will be announced through the Love What’s Local social media page on March 1.

Foodie February is sponsored by the Love What’s Local Committee, which is a partnership between the City of Warrensburg, Warrensburg Main Street, Warrensburg Chamber of Commerce and Warrensburg Convention and Visitor Bureau. For more information, find any of the entities on social media or visit www.warrensburgmainstreet.org or www.warrensburg.org.

Chapel

We were really proud of being able to use local contractors and subcontractors,” said Brad Rea, who has been in the funeral business for 35 years. “That was one of our main things that we wanted to concentrate on. And we picked McColester to make sure that all his contractors or subs were local people.”

Since opening, the chapel has conducted several services. The first week, its first service was for Frances Summers, 99, a well-known woman who owned and operated Sedalia’s Around the Fireside restaurant.

“That family knew we were going to open up at the first of the year and wanted to wait,” Brad noted. “So, that worked out really well. That first week we were open, we had six funerals.”

Brad added that as people come into the spacious foyer, there’s an area for families to relax next to the community room with fresh coffee and cookies.

“The community room is no charge for any family who wants to use it,” he said. “Tomorrow night, we have a family who will use it, and they will have some food catered in.”

“During the celebration of life gathering, they will have food, and people can go in there and grab a little snack,” he continued. “We don’t make an additional charge for that. We have had three services so far where the families have had food catered in and had lunch for the family afterward. It has a whole separate entrance off the parking lot.”

He noted that having the Cremation Center is one of the most significant changes at the new location. Brad added more people are turning to cremation as an option for their loved ones.

“The last several years, it’s becoming more and more popular,” he said. “For a lot of different reasons, not just cost-effective, it’s a convenience too, with so many families living out of state, and not being local.”

With a traditional casket, burial takes place within three to five days. When families live at a distance, they can schedule a cremation service a couple of weeks out.

“So, that’s one aspect of cremation is the convenience for families,” Brad added. “And then the other would be the cost.”

Brad said another big thing about the new location is guests may access the chapel from 16th Street, but it also has two other entrances, one on Stone Creek Drive next to Casey’s convenience store and the other on Watertower Road. Extra parking is in the back of the building, and he suggests people park there.

Rea Funeral Chapel is proactive in the sense of having coolers in the main building and in the Cremation Center that will house 16 deceased individuals in case of a mass casualty situation. Brad said he’d already made Pettis County Coroner Skip Smith aware of the coolers.

The main building also has a delivery room for casket companies and florists.

“I think the location is good,” Brad said of the new building. “We’ve had success in getting to the cemeteries. At the other location, right there on the highway, we couldn’t get out onto the highway really well.”

“It’s a little easier getting out here on 16th Street,” he added. “There’s a lot of different options to get to where we need to go.”

Rea Funeral Chapel and Cremation Services, 3510 W. 16th St., will host an open house from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 10. Everyone is welcome and can come and go as they please. Refreshments will be available.

The Missouri Coalition for Roadway Safety stresses how the four simple actions of Buckle Up, Phone Down, Slow Down and Drive Sober could put a dent in the fatality numbers.

“I think overall we’re trending in the wrong direction,” Silvey said. “Distracted driving is definitely one of our biggest obstacles right now, and that traverses all generations from what I’ve seen.”

Another factor leading to increased death is increased speed. According to police, higher speeds on roads feeding into the city mean increased severity at outlying intersections.

“We’re noticing a lot more speed carried into some of these crashes. Distracted driving is certainly something that is going to be an issue as we go forward,” Silvey said. “Seat belt use continues to be a problem – 66% of fatalities are unbelted, which still blows me away that we live in a time where that knowledge is so prevalent, yet people still don’t wear their seat belt.”

While traffic deaths did not increase last year, with the 2020 repeal of Missouri helmet laws, biker deaths have taken an alarming jump.

According to MoDOT, 175 motorcyclists were killed on Missouri roadways in 2023, a 14% increase over the previous year. It’s the most motorcyclist fatalities ever reported in Missouri, and almost 50% higher than the average number of motorcyclist fatalities prior to the repeal of Missouri’s all-rider helmet law in 2020.

Dave Skrzypczak is the General Manager of Yeager Cycles in Sedalia. Yeager’s sells protective gear for motorcyclists.

“We sell leather coats and pants and boots, jackets, chaps and helmets. All these things contribute to the overall safety of the rider,” Skrzypczak said. “The unplanned factors are certainly what we’re talking about.”

While Skrzypczak is all about the freedom not to be forced to wear a helmet, he also said a little safety is a good thing.

“We believe while the change of the law is a nice freedom afforded to us, we strongly encourage the use of a proper helmet,” Skrzypczak said. “There are enough risks around motorcycling that we believe having a helmet is just an additional layer of protection we can offer cyclists.”

Skrzypczak has heard the arguments for not wearing helmets but has always ridden with one and is used to it.

“A lot of people’s argument is that a helmet limits visibility, you lose a little bit of hearing dexterity, I guess you could say, and some of your sight lines can be changed,” Skrzypczak said. “We’re so used to it, we were forced into wearing them for many years, so stepping away from that is just an extra unnecessary risk.”

Helmet technology has vastly improved in recent years, but it can’t work if a rider refuses to wear it.

“The technology has advanced alongside the motorcycles over the years, so these are lighter, they fit better, they’re safer, and have a lot of things that make them more comfortable, but really, what it comes down to is people’s choice,” Skrzypczak said.

Distracted driving contributed to more than 100 deaths in 2023 and more than half of the victims were someone other than the distracted drivers. Impaired driving accounted for approximately 17% of the fatalities in 2023, while speeding and other aggressive driving behaviors remained the top concern, contributing to more than half of the total fatalities.

Sedalia traffic planners are looking at solutions such as roundabouts to keep drivers separated.

“The city is starting to get together to reimagine traffic safety in Sedalia and we’ve got some things moving in the right direction,” Silvey said. “Start reevaluating some of our high-crash locations and looking at how can we make these better, especially as more distractions arrive, how can we make traffic flow more smoothly and a little bit more intuitively.”

According to a news release, Missouri’s strategic highway safety plan, Show-Me Zero, takes a comprehensive approach to creating a safe system to reduce and eliminate traffic fatalities. Through a combination of education, public policy, infrastructure improvements, traffic enforcement, emergency services, and personal responsibility, Show-Me Zero provides opportunities for every Missourian to help make the state’s roadways safer. For more information on the Show-Me Zero plan, visit www.savemolives.com.

Safety professionals cite the lack of helmet use as a major contributing factor to the increase.

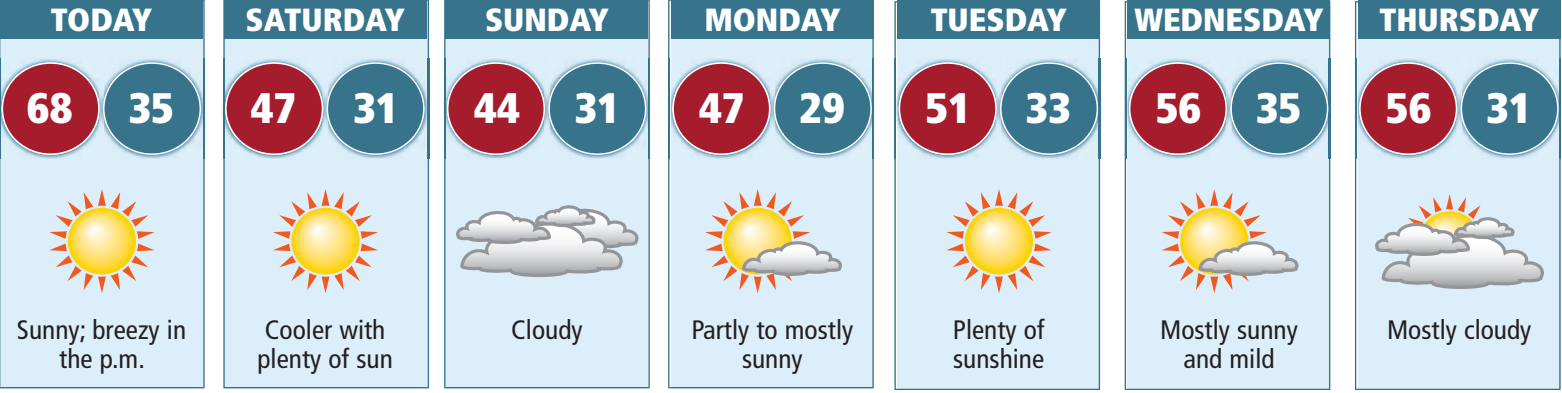

“To see not only an increase in motorcycle fatalities from the previous year, but to have it be the highest number ever reported proves that when it comes to motorcycle safety, public policy matters and we’ve taken a step backwards,” Missouri Department of Transportation Director Patrick McKenna said in the release. “The importance of choosing to wear a helmet when riding can’t be overstated. Without it, the likelihood of a crash causing a fatal injury jumps up significantly.”

“The Missouri State Highway Patrol and our traffic safety partners remain committed to reducing the number and severity of traffic crashes on Missouri roadways,” Missouri State Highway Patrol Col. Eric Olson said in the release. “Every day, our troopers see firsthand the effects of distracted driving and excessive speed. The passage of legislation, such as the Siddens Bening Hands Free Law, will help save lives in Missouri. To effectively reduce the number of fatalities in Missouri, we need the help of motorists. Every driver who chooses to obey the speed limit, wear their seatbelt, and pay attention to the full-time job of driving will help save lives in Missouri.”

Pacheco’s ‘angry’ running style could help lift Chiefs past 49ers in Super Bowl

By Mark Anderson
Associated Press

HENDERSON, Nev. — Chiefs running back Isiah Pacheco was relaxed Wednesday as reporters peppered him with questions, the opposite of his running style that has commonly been described as angry. When asked how he would describe his style, Pacheco deferred to the experts, or in this case the media. Kansas City coach Andy Reid had his own description, calling Pacheco “a violent runner.” If any player could actually run through a wall, it would be Pacheco, who punishes line-backers and defensive backs trying to bring him down. “That starts with practice at the beginning of the week when we prepare,” Pacheco said. “I go out there with a full head of steam knowing the down and distance, getting 4 yards or whatever it may be to win the down.” The Chiefs will need Pacheco’s ability to move the chains to balance Patrick Mahomes’ passing attack when they play the San Francisco 49ers in the Super Bowl on Sunday. Pacheco, though, knows how to keep an event even as enormous as the Super Bowl in perspective. He has suffered enormous loss away from the field, which likely fuels his play on it. Pacheco downplayed the effect of losing two siblings in his home state of New Jersey as a reason he runs so hard, saying he always had the fire inside him. His brother, Travoise Cannon, was fatally stabbed in 2016. He was 29. Pacheco’s sister, Celeste Cannon, died the following year after being shot in the head by a man who shared a child with her. She was 24. Pacheco was in high school at the time, forcing him to grow up fast. He had the chance to leave New Jersey and play college ball elsewhere, but opted to remain in the state and play at Rutgers. His best season was his sophomore year when Pacheco rushed for 729 yards and seven touchdowns. He failed to match those numbers his final two seasons, making Pacheco a borderline NFL prospect. Now a father of two, Mahomes has new perspective on football and life

By Dave Skretta
Associated Press

HENDERSON, Nev. — Patrick Mahomes is a much different quarterback than he was four years ago, when he helped the Kansas City Chiefs beat the San Francisco 49ers in the Super Bowl to end a championship drought stretching back five decades. He’s a different man, for that matter, a father of two these days with different priorities in life. Sometimes the two intersect, one job making him better at the other. “I think you learn a ton being a father, man. You learn how to be patient,” said Mahomes, who will lead the AFC champion Chiefs into a Super Bowl rematch against the NFC champion 49ers on Sunday. “You learn how to try to really boost people’s confidence, especially your kids. Through seasons like I’ve had this last year, it’s never losing hope, never going too negative in adverse times. Just continue to boost people’s confidence, continue to strive for hard work and really be patient.” Mahomes’ patience certainly has been put to the test this season. He watched his wide receivers drop more passes than any team in the NFL, and the rest of the Kansas City offense commit more penalties than any team but one. He had to choke back his angst — sometimes successfully, other times not so much — when a missed call by the officials may have cost the Chiefs a game. And he had to finally accept the fact that defenses simply were not going to let him chuck the ball all over the field anymore, and that his sandlot-style of play had to change. See FATHER | A12

UCM WOMEN RALLY, FALL TO GORILLAS

Central Missouri women’s basketball was presented with the opportunity to force overtime against Pittsburg State on Wednesday, Feb. 7. Its attempt to do so fell short in the final seconds, losing to the Gorillas 82-80 at John Lance Arena in Pittsburg, Kansas. “In the moral words of Steve High, who used to coach here [at Pittsburg State], I would have liked to have a better look at the end there,” Central Missouri head coach Dave Slifer told Greg Hassler post-game on the UCM Sports Radio Network. “I think we rushed a little bit, we had a little bit more time. It was interesting because they only had three team fouls, so they could foul, but we could put it up at any time. Unfortunately we didn’t get a great look there.” The Jennies (15-6, 9-6 MIAA) trailed the majority of the game, entering the fourth quarter down 62-55. They exchanged baskets with the Gorillas (17-5, 11-5 MIAA) early in the frame, before going on a 10-0 run to tie it 76-76 with 2:45 remaining. Sophomore Harper Schreiener proceeded to drop back-to-back threes to put Pitt up by six. A foul was whistled against junior Karennia Gerber with 46 seconds left, sending red-shirt junior Brooke Littrell to the line, making it a one-point game. Littrell knocked down both, cutting the deficit. Junior Grace Pyle cashed in with 1-of-2 sinks at the charity stripe off a foul from junior Allie Clevenger with 18 seconds left. Redshirt junior Lauren Frost missed a jumper, though senior Ashley Tull proceeded to send Gerber to the line. She missed both, giving the Jennies one last chance to either tie or attempt a game-winner. They elected to move the ball inside, setting up a 2-point attempt from redshirt junior Olivia Nelson. “You think about it, do you want to go for three there or just go for two,”

Slifer said. “We elected to go for the two. What complicated it was they had fouls to give. That’s a tough break.” UCM and Pittsburg State exchanged the lead nine different times, while the scoreboard stood tied on seven occasions. The Jennies led 21-19 at the end of the first quarter, but went into halftime down 47-40 at halftime. UCM hit 54.1% (33-of-61) shots in the game, 3-of-17 from deep. The Gorillas hit 27-of-61 (44.3%), 13-of-28 (46.4%) from the 3-point range. Central Missouri was paced by 26 points and 12 rebounds from Littrell. Nelson had 15 points, Frost had 14 points, Tull had 10 points and sophomore Graycen Holden had eight points. Pittsburg State was led by freshman Macie Mays’ 17 points to go along with 15 from Schreiner, 14 from redshirt junior Jenna Shipley and 13 from Pyle. UCM visits Joplin for a meeting with the

MIAA-leading No. 24 Missouri Southern at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 10. “Unfortunately we didn’t get the W tonight,” Slifer said. “But boy, we got to figure this out because time is running out. We got to get these dubs. It’s a tough break. You can play your rear end off, which we did. We played good basketball. We played hard. We had a chance. It didn’t get done. Let’s rest up, go to Southern and beat them.” S-C teams get wins ahead of HOF Night Both Smith-Cotton basketball teams added to their win total on the year ahead of Friday night’s Hall of Fame Night that also doubles as a courtwarming celebration. The Tigers’ boys team went out and defeated Clinton 72-46 on Monday for their first true road victory of the season. Jashawn Bennett went for a game-high 28 points and Malaki Reed followed up with 18 for the team’s third win on the year. See AREA | A12 “The team played hard

NFLPA president says plastic was not placed on UNLV fields where 49ers practice

By Mark Anderson
Associated Press

HENDERSON, Nev. — JC Tretter, president of the NFL Players Association, said Wednesday that plastic was supposed to be placed on top of UNLV’s practice fields but was never installed. “I don’t know how that doesn’t happen,” Tretter said. The NFL placed natural grass on top of the Rebels’ field turf, and San Francisco 49ers coach Kyle Shanahan complained it was too soft. But Shanahan said the team will practice there all week instead of trying to find another field and another time for practice. “This is the best choice we’ve got,” he said after Wednesday’s practice. “We’re here. We’re practicing on it. Everyone has their preferences. We wish things were better, but we’ll deal with it how it is.

The 49ers are practicing at UNLV this week for Sunday’s Super Bowl against the Kansas City Chiefs. Kansas City is working out at the Las Vegas Raiders’ facility. NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell said Monday that the playing surface at UNLV met the necessary standards and the union signed off on it as did 23 experts.

“It’s softer than what they practiced on, but that happens,” Goodell said. Tretter said the standards needed to be higher. “Playable is not the same thing as high quality,” Tretter said. “So, we can’t kinda talk out of both sides of our mouth on this.” See FIELD | A12

Former KU and NBA player Pollard waits in hospital for heart transplant

By Jimmy Golen

Associated Press

BOSTON — At 6-foot-11, Scot Pollard's size helped him play more than a decade in the NBA, earning him a championship ring with the 2008 Boston Celtics. Now it may be killing him. Pollard needs a heart transplant, an already dire predicament that is made more difficult by the fact so few donors can provide him with a pump big and strong enough to supply blood to his extra large body. He was admitted to intensive care at the Vanderbilt University Medical Center on Tuesday, and he will wait there until a donor surfaces who was big enough to be a match.

"I'm staying here until I get a heart," he said in a text message to The Associated Press on Wednesday night. "My heart got weaker. (Doctors) agree this is my best shot at getting a heart quicker."

At nearly 7 feet tall and with a playing weight of 260 pounds, Pollard's size rules out most potential donors for a heart to replace the one that — due to a genetic condition that was likely triggered by a virus he contracted in 2021 — has been beating an extra 10,000 times per day. Half of his siblings have the same condition — as did his father, who died at 54, when Scot was 16.

"That was an immediate wake-up call," Pollard said in a recent telephone interview. "You don't see a lot of old (7-) footers walking around. So I've known that my whole life, just because I had that seared into my brain as a 16-year-old, that — yeah, being tall is great, but I'm not going to see 80."

A 1997 first-round draft pick after helping Kansas reach the NCAA Sweet 16 in four straight seasons, Pollard was a useful big man off the bench for much of an NBA career that stretched over 11 years and five teams. He played 55 seconds in the Cleveland Cavaliers' trip to the NBA Finals in 2007, and won it all the following year with the Celtics despite a season-ending ankle injury in February.

Pollard retired after that season, then dabbled in broadcasting and acting. He was a contestant on the 32nd season of "Survivor," where he was voted out on Day 27 with eight castaways remaining.

Although Pollard, 48, has been aware of the condition at least since his father died in the 1990s, it wasn't until he got sick three years ago that it began to affect his quality of life.

"It feels like I'm walking uphill all the time," he said on the telephone, when he warned a reporter that he might need to cut it short if he got tired.

Pollard tried medication, and has had three ablations — procedures to try to break up the signals causing the irregular heartbeats. A pacemaker implanted about a year ago only gets to about half of the problem.

"They all agree that more ablations isn't going to fix this, more medication isn't going to fix that," Pollard said. "We need a transplant."

Patients in need of an organ transplant have to navigate a labyrinthine system that attempts to fairly match the donated organs with the recipients in need. The matching process takes the health of the patient into account, all with the goal of maximizing the benefit of the limited organs available.

"It's out of my hands. It's not even in the doctor's hands," Pollard said. "It's up to the donor networks."

To maximize his chances, Pollard was advised to register at as many transplant centers as possible — "it's increasing my odds at the casino by going to as many casinos at the same time as possible," he said. But: He must be able to get there within four hours; the need to return for post-operative visits also make it difficult to get treated far from home.

Pollard listed himself at Ascension St. Vincent Hospital in his hometown of Carmel, Indiana, and last week went through testing at the University of Chicago. He traveled this week to Vanderbilt, which performed more heart transplants last year than anyone else in the country. Pollard arrived on Sunday; on Tuesday, doctors admitted him to the I.C.U.

There, Pollard will wait for a new heart — one that is healthy enough to give him a chance, and big enough to fit his oversized frame. He had been living as Status 4 — for those who are in stable condition — but now that he is hospitalized he could be eligible for Status 2, the second-highest priority.

"They can't predict, but they are confident I'll get a heart in weeks not months," he texted.

Pollard acknowledged it's strange to be hoping for a donor to surface, which is essentially rooting for someone to die.

"The fact is, that person's going to end up saving someone else's life. They're going to be a hero," he said. "That's how I look at it. I understand what has to happen for me to get what I need. So it's a real hard mix of emotions."

Until then, Pollard waits with the knowledge that the same genetic quirk that helped him a basketball star — so far, the defining achievement of his life — threatens to be a defining factor in his death.

It's something he's known since his father died.

"I've thought about that my entire life," he said. "I'm from a family of giants. I'm the youngest of six and I have three brothers that are taller than me. And people are always like, 'Oh, man, I wish I had your height.' Yeah? Let's go sit on an airplane together and see how much you want to be this tall."

"It's not like being tall is a curse. It's not. It's still a blessing. But, I have known my entire life that there's a good chance I wasn't going to get old," he said. "And so it gives you a different perspective on how you live your life and how you treat people and all that kind of stuff."

Father

In some ways, Mahomes had to reinvent himself, becoming what he once seemed to loath: a game manager. Unlike that championship run four years ago, or the two Super Bowls since that earned Mahomes a second ring, the Chiefs this season did not rely entirely on their offense to carry them. They had the No. 2 scoring defense in the NFL, which had to bail out Mahomes' side of the ball when it was struggling so mightily midway through the season.

So while he can still make the audacious no-look throw, or throw that wizardly rocket through double coverage, he also learned to check down to running backs when deep shots were covered. He accepted that audibles to running plays when defenses stacked the line of scrimmage were OK. Mahomes even learned that he could take a sack when it was most beneficial to keep the clock running, which he did in the AFC championship game in Baltimore.

"I think guys understood," Mahomes said upon reflection, "that we could play a different way to win football games."

Sounds like a quarterback that has learned a few things in six years as a starter.

"He's the catalyst. He's the reason why we're here and why we're able to keep coming back to back," said tight end Travis Kelce, perhaps Mahomes' closest friend on the team. "And honestly, he just gives his team a certain sense of urgency and confidence that we can go and get it done, and that goes a long way."

Mahomes has always been mature beyond his years, even if he didn't always possess the patience that comes with experience. He almost had to be, because growing up, Mahomes was so much better than other kids his own age that he would usually have to play against older ones, whether that was in football, basketball or his first love, baseball.

The son of longtime big league pitcher Pat Mahomes recalled that one time, during a T-ball game, a ground-er was hit toward him at shortstop. Most kids at that level would throw a looping rainbow to first base, but he sent a laser across the diamond.

"It hit the kid right in the face and broke his glasses," Mahomes said with a smile, "and so they told me after that they wanted me to roll the ball to first base, and I ended up just playing first base and catching it from then on."

Good thing for the Chiefs he didn't fall in love with catching balls.

Then again, maybe he would have been a heck of a wide receiver.

"I mean, I always just loved sports from the beginning," Mahomes said, "all sports. I loved watching. I love playing. I mean, I remember my mom used to get mad at me, because I would throw — like, you know, kids throw the ball off the wall? I'd throw it off the TV, because I was watching TV at the same time, and she used to get real mad that I was doing that."

The dad in Mahomes — his daughter, Sterling, is 2, while his son, Bronze, turned 1 in November — might better understand where Mama Mahomes was coming from back in those days.

While much has changed for Mahomes over the past few years, much has remained the same. He's still one of the best QBs to play the game. Still putting up big numbers every time he steps on the field. And still a fierce competitor, as evidenced by a game against Buffalo, when he roared up and down the sideline after an offsidess call cost Kansas City a go-ahead touchdown.

"We don't take him for granted," Chiefs coach Andy Reid said. "We know we're seeing something special."

Reid points out that Mahomes is still "young in this business," just 28 years old. And for all his success, Mahomes has only been a starting quarterback for a short while, and he could have more than a decade of playing still ahead of him.

"It's humbling," Mahomes said, "because I never thought I would be in this many Super Bowl games, honestly. I mean, you strive to be great, but you understand how hard it is to even be in this game. And for us to be in my fourth one, it truly is remarkable, and I don't take it for granted, because you never know if you're going to be able to be back in this game."

Chiefs and 49ers should provide heavy dose of pre-snap motion in Super Bowl

By Josh Dubow

AP Pro Football Writer

LAS VEGAS — When the Super Bowl was in the balance in the fourth quarter a year ago, coach Andy Reid's Kansas City Chiefs put a twist on their frequent pre-snap motion.

The result?

Two wide-open touchdown passes that helped the Chiefs beat the Philadelphia Eagles 38-35 for a Super Bowl title.

Kansas City returns to the big stage on Sunday to take on San Francisco in a game that should feature players on the move at the snap at a staggering rate based on how Reid and 49ers coach Kyle Shanahan use motion to create mismatches for their offenses.

"I'm sure he's going to have some wrinkles for us," Niners defensive end Nick Bosa said about Reid. "Hopefully we can anticipate some of them."

Reid was able to catch the Eagles off-guard a year ago with how he used motion on two key plays near the goal line in the fourth quarter with a concept Kansas City called "corndog."

On the first play from the 3, wide receiver Kadarius Toney was lined up on the right side and faked as if he was going to go in jet motion to the other side of the field. Cornerback Darius Slay passed him off to a defender on the other side but Toney quickly reversed field and was wide open in the right flat for the TD that gave Kansas City its first lead of the game.

The Chiefs then scored on a similar play to wide receiver Skyy Moore on the other side of the field on the next drive and went on to win the game.

The Niners have the scars from past run-ins against Reid's Chiefs, including the jet motions and sweeps they used repeatedly in a 44-23 regular-season win in 2022 for big runs around the perimeter.

Then there was a wrinkle lifted from Michigan's 1948 Rose Bowl playbook that led to a key fourth-down conversion in the first Super Bowl matchup between these teams.

Multiple players in the backfield spun simultaneously, moving Mahomes away from the center and leading to a direct snap to running back Damien Williams for a first down.

"He gives you all different types of looks, funky looking plays, different misdirections," 49ers All-Pro linebacker Fred Warner said. "Coach Reid is one of the best at creating different plays as there's been in this league. So there's going to be different things we've seen in the game that we've never seen before, but we've got to be able to just line up and play and get through the down."

Reid even has history with some funky pre-snap movement in this stadium where the Super Bowl will be played, using a play nicknamed "Snow Globe" last season against the Raiders when the entire huddle spun around in a circle before rushing up to the line for a quick snap to catch the defense off guard.

The key for the Niners is to ignore the bells and whistles and try to defend the play.

"They want to get you enamored with all of the motion and all of a sudden they run it down your throat," defensive coordinator Steve Wilks said.

The Chiefs saw enough in him to take Pacheco in the seventh round of the 2022 draft, but a selection that late is far from a sure thing to even make the roster.

Pacheco not only made the team, he started 11 games, played in all 17 and rushed for 830 yards on 4.9 yards per play. This season, Pacheco started 13 games and gained 935 yards on a 4.6 average. He has a combined 12 touchdown runs both seasons.

"Stay patient," Pacheco said. "No matter where you go, where you come from, when you get that opportunity, make the best of it, special teams or wherever. Be the difference."

Reid put Pacheco in select company when comparing him to another back.

"I hate even mentioning this because he was a 49er, but Roger Craig was a violent runner," Reid said. "He was coming at you with knees, elbows, everything coming at you at one time. They're built kind of the same way."

Craig, who played from 1983-93, could make plays in the running and passing game. He twice gained more than 2,000 yards from scrimmage, including in 1988 when he was The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Year.

He played on three Super Bowl champions with the 49ers.

Pacheco is off to a promising start with last year's title with the Chiefs and the chance to beat San Francisco this weekend. He is the fourth back to start a Super Bowl in each of his first two seasons, joining Duane Thomas and Tony Dorsett of the Dallas Cowboys and Chuck Foreman of the Minnesota Vikings.

The Niners, however, could present quite a challenge for Pacheco. They were fifth in the NFL this season in rush defense, allowing just 97 yards per game.

But San Francisco took a step back in the playoffs, allowing 136 yards on the ground to Green Bay and 182 to Detroit. But the 49ers also shut down the Lions in the second half, allowing just 34 yards rushing.

"It's a great defense over there," Pacheco said. "I'm looking forward to competing against them. All 11 guys fly to the ball!"

Field

49ers players, however, raved about the other facilities at UNLV.

"I'm shocked because they're in the Mountain West," said safety Tashaun Gipson, who played in that conference at Wyoming. "I'm shocked the locker room is that nice. We've got to do better at Wyoming. The fields are the fields, but the weight room and everything is pretty decent."

Cornerback Deommodore Lenoir played at Oregon, known for having excellent facilities.

"UNLV, I love their locker room," Lenoir said. "It reminds me of Oregon's. The whole setup was exactly how ours was. The facilities are just like Oregon's, too."

BIENIEMY VISITS OLD TEAM

Former Kansas City offensive coordinator Eric Bieniemy talked with his former players and even attended meetings before the Chiefs played the Baltimore Ravens in the AFC championship game.

"It's always great to have EB in the building," quarterback Patrick Mahomes said. "The energy that he brings and the mentality that he brings, you can feel."

Bieniemy was the Chiefs' offensive coordinator for five seasons, but left last year for the same position at Washington. After multiple failed attempts to land a head coaching job, he wanted to show he could be an effective offensive coordinator when no longer under the shadow of Mahomes and coach Andy Reid.

But Commanders coach Ron Rivera was on the hot seat entering this season, and in fact was fired along with his staff on Jan. 8.

"His coaching future is great," Reid said of Bieniemy. "I'm obviously a big fan of his, and I know the things he can do."

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON

Kyle Shanahan has been around the NFL for almost as long as he can remember. He was just 4 when his father, Mike, got his first job in the NFL as an assistant in Denver, and the younger Shanahan followed along after that, frequently attending practices and games as his dad worked for the Broncos, Raiders and 49ers.

Kyle Shanahan takes pride in being the last person to hold the wires for a head coach in the Super Bowl in the 1997 season with the NFL going to wireless headsets the following season.

But it was all the lessons he learned watching his dad coach that help him most today.

"You don't realize how much it helps you until you get in it," Kyle Shanahan said. "You just realize that a lot of the stuff you've been around and it makes it a little easier. Not only was I a son of a coach, but my dad's the best coach I've ever been around. To be around that good of one, I think also was a huge advantage for me."

PEELING BACK THE CURTAIN

Chiefs president Mark Donovan gave a few local reporters Wednesday the first glimpse behind the scenes of what it took to host pop superstar Taylor Swift at games this season, beginning with the "week of" warning he got from tight end Travis Kelce.

"Very first conversation I had with Travis," Donovan recalled, "I told him, 'The one thing you can count on from us is we're going to be very respectful. We're going to respect your relationship first and foremost. As much as this is an amazing opportunity, we are not going to do that stuff. I think it's important for you to appreciate what this is.'"

That meant the Chiefs never played a Taylor Swift song in Arrowhead Stadium all season. Never showed her on the video boards unless they were showing all the celebrities in attendance. They certainly didn't ask her to sing the national anthem.

"The first time we had her was, as you can imagine, full of meetings with security, police, how we're getting her in, what we are going to hide, what we are not going to hide," Donovan said. "How do you move a superstar like that, and do it safely? Then we did it, and typical Travis, we had this great protocol for leaving, exactly how we were going to do it, and he grabs her in a convertible and takes off. I texted him later, 'That exit was epic.'"

THUNEY HOLDING OUT HOPE

Chiefs left guard Joe Thuney, who suffered a pectoral injury against the Ravens, hasn't given up playing Sunday — even if the odds are against him.

"Trying to do everything I can to be healthy enough to play," Thuney said. "We'll see how it goes."

If he can't play, fifth-year pro Nick Allegretti likely will start.

"I prepare like I'm starting every week," Allegretti said. "I prepare like I'm starting for all three positions. Just making sure I have the run game formations down, the motions down. I've built really good chemistry with (center) Creed (Humphrey and (tackle) Donovan (Smith) the last few weeks, so that's been awesome."

AP Pro Football Writers Rob Maaddi and Josh Dubow and AP Sports Writer Dave Skretta contributed.

"The team played hard and put together a solid performance," Tigers head coach Ben Lyles said. "The ball movement was excellent, we made the extra pass, and got more quality shots up. We were able to create a lot of transition baskets as well with our secondary break.

"Turnovers were the lowest all season and we got a lot of guys quality minutes that will pay off big over the next 2 weeks. JD, Nikiah, Dax, Joseph, Jermaine, Demarcus, and Michael all gave quality minutes, created turnovers, and generated a lot of the offense for our high scorers to get easier looks. Proud of the effort and fight in this young team."

On the same evening, the Lady Tigers defeated Clinton, 45-39, in Sedalia on Senior Night. Anastasia Bellamy led a trio of double-digit scorers with 14 points and was joined by 11 each from Dominique Bell and Eliza Cavanagh.

"We played good enough to win but the energy that we've played with this season was not there," Lady Tigers head coach Ron Rhodes said. "These girls keep fighting to the end and I'm super proud of them hanging in there when things didn't go their way and pulled out a win."

The Lady Tigers (11-9) travel to Versailles on Thursday night ahead of Friday night's doubleheader against Moberly.

The Hall of Fame Ceremony inducting Tim Morgan and Katie Meehan Hauser will be held in between the girls and boys' varsity games. The Lady Tigers are set to tip-off at 5:30 p.m. The courtwarming ceremony will be held at halftime of the boys' game.

"Players" (2024)

Get back in the game with the new rom-com "Players," making its debut Wednesday, Feb. 14, on Netflix. For years, New York sportswriter Mack (Gina Rodriguez, "Jane the Virgin"), her friend Adam (Damon Wayans Jr., "Happy Endings") and their crew have been crafting a roster of successful 'plays' to land hookups. While their plays have led to countless one-night stands for the group over the years, their playbook comes with a strict set of rules — most importantly, that you can't build a relationship from a play. So, when Mack unexpectedly falls for one of her latest targets, a charming war correspondent named Nick (Tom Ellis, "Lucifer"), she begins to question the game and is forced to learn what it truly means to play for keeps. Directed by Trish Sie ("Sitting in Bars With Cake," 2023) and written by Whit Anderson ("Daredevil"), "Players" also stars Joel Courtney ("Jesus Revolution," 2023), Augustus Prew ("The Morning Show"), Liza Koshy ("Liza on Demand"), Ego Nwodim ("Saturday Night Live") and Marin Hinkle ("The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel").

ries "The Vince Staples Show," premiering Thursday, Feb. 15, on Netflix. The comedy series follows "kind of famous, kind of rich, kind of criminal (but not really)" (per Netflix Tudum) rapper and actor Vince Staples ("Abbott Elementary"), on his (fictional) daily adventures, where anything that can go wrong usually does. From the mind of Staples, who also writes and executive produces for the show, the series sees him team up with powerhouse producer Kenya Barris ("Black-ish"), as well as fellow executive producers, writers and showrunners Ian Edelman ("How to Make It in America") and Maurice Williams ("Enter Galactic," 2022). The series also stars Naté Jones ("Abbott Elementary"), Tiberious Byrd ("Snowfall"), Vanessa Bell Calloway ("Saints & Sinners"), Andrea Ellsworth ("Truth Be Told"), Arturo Castro ("Broad City"), Scott MacArthur ("Killing It"), Bryan Greenberg ("How to Make It in America") and Myles Bullock ("BMF").

WHAT'S NEW ON HULU

"Life & Beth" - Season 2

Amy Schumer ("Trainwreck," 2015) brings hilarity to introspection in the comedy drama series "Life & Beth," premiering its second season Friday, Feb. 16, on Hulu. After a life-altering incident, New York City wine distributor Beth (Schumer) starts having flashbacks to her life as a teen. From these flashbacks, Beth learns more about how she came to be, who she is and who she wants to become in the future, while she works towards building a better, more authentic life for herself. This season, as Beth and John's (Michael Cera, "Arrested Development") relationship grows more serious and she begins to look at the possibility of marriage and a family, Beth begins to examine her own fears and her traumatic history with relationships. Created, executive produced, directed and written by Schumer, the series is also executive produced by Ryan McFaul ("Crashing"), Kevin Kane ("The Irishman," 2019) and Daniel Powell ("I Think You Should Leave With Tim Robinson"). Kane, Yamaneika Saunders ("In Security"), Michael Rapaport ("Atypical"), Susanah Flood ("For the People"), Laura Benanti ("Younger"), Lavar Walker ("Uncle Drew," 2018), Sas Goldberg ("American Princess"), Arielle Siegel ("Inside Amy Schumer") and Camiel Warren-Taylor ("Life," 2017) also star in the series.

WHAT'S NEW ON AMC+ "Far North" - Season 1

Based on a true story, the Sundance Now original series "Far North" debuts its first two episodes Thursday, Feb. 15, on both Sundance Now and AMC+, with new episodes streaming weekly on Thursdays. Across its six-episode run, this comedy drama tells the
