Council asked to reconsider three fire stations for safety, insurance savings

By Chris Howell
chrish@sedaliademocrat.com

At Monday's Sedalia City Council meeting, Second Ward Councilman Tom Oldham asked his fellow members to reconsider their decision to implement a two-fire-station model passed at the previous council session based on the Public Safety Committee's recommendation.

"The committee decided that in efforts of affordability, the best path to take would be a two-station model," Oldham told the Democrat on Thursday, June 20, "which would be keeping the 16th Street station and then revamping the Central fire station."

Oldham said the city paid for a feasibility study in 2019 by FGM Architects of St. Louis, which recommended a three-station model both for public safety and a better rating ISO rating.

"The current Fire Chief and the previous Fire Chief have been an advocate for a three-station model for several years now," Oldham said. "This feasibility study concluded a few things. One, the city's growing, our response times are diminishing and our ISO rating is in jeopardy if we don't grow our fire department."

An ISO fire rating is a score provided to fire departments and insurance companies by the Insurance Services Office (ISO). It reflects how prepared a community and area are for fires.

"The ISO grades the city in a number of things," Sedalia Fire Chief Matt Irwin explained. "Our station placement is part of that grading scale. The city can receive up to 105.5 points, 50 points for the fire department, 40 points for our water distribution system, 10 points for our communications, which is our Joint Communications, and then 5.5 points for community risk reductions."

Irwin has recommended a three-station model that would keep the 16th Street station, remove the aging Central Fire station on North Hancock Avenue and add new stations on the north and southeast sides of Sedalia.

"I have gone on record, the council knows it, that I would love to have three stations and increase staff to be better prepared for anything that comes our way," Irwin said.

Young members of the Boys & Girls Clubs of West Central Missouri received thoughtful and healthy information Wednesday, June 19, during the annual State Fair Community College Health Fair.

Boys & Girls Club members in kindergarten through fourth grade visited and learned from SFCC's nursing students, who had 16 interactive booths set up in the Heber Hunt Elementary School gym. Healthy topics included fire and bicycle safety, the importance of being clean, the dos and don'ts of bedtime, mental health, and being aware of what one eats and drinks.

The event is part of the Boys & Girls Club summer program.

Tyler Hudson, director of operations with the Boys & Girls Club, said around 250 Club members would be on hand for the Wednesday event.

"Every year, State Fair Community College and their nursing program put on a carnival/fair for us in the gym," he explained. "There are (16) different stations that the kids get to rotate through trying different educational activities related to healthcare topics."

Hudson added this summer has been the Club's biggest summer.

"Usually, we're close to 180 to 200 (members) a day," he noted. "But this summer's been a little higher, especially third and fourth grade."

He added with the March acquisition of the Fayette site, the Club now serves 14 sites. Once the Teen Center is built, it will have 15 sites.

Emily Bond, RN, a faculty member with the SFCC nursing program, said the college had 18 nursing students at the event and 16 booths set up. Two students, Kayley Woolery and DeAundre Lewis, were the team leaders for the Health Fair. The pair concentrated on ensuring the other participants had accurate, age-appropriate information and activities for the Club members.

Van Natta Road fire destroys family home

By Chris Howell

Anthony and Brittany Salmons lost everything in an early morning fire Tuesday, June 18 but were able to get family and one pet out. Firefighters found their second dog in a back room of the home and carried Maverick out with only burns to his back legs and tail.

At 4:25 a.m. Tuesday, June 18, the Pettis County Fire Protection District received a call and rushed to the home of Anthony and Brittany Salmons in the 2500 block of Van Natta Road in western Pettis County.

"Upon arrival, we had the main structure of the house fully engulfed," Pettis County Fire Chief Mike Harding told the Democrat, "with the South side of the house over the garage area with structural collapse, fully engulfed, and fire moving towards the rest of the house. The female homeowner had awoken and had notified her family to go ahead and get the rest of her family out. She had tried to put a little bit of water on the blaze and was unsuccessful but was able to get all the family members out except for one dog."

Harding confirmed the cause of the fire was a candle, as was confirmed by Brittany Salmons.

"I had gone to sleep on the couch and didn't realize there was a candle lit, I got up and I guess when I moved my pillow, the pillowcase landed above the candle," Brittany said. "I came back from the bathroom and the couch was on fire.

Kneibert selected for Newspaper Hall of Fame

By Nicole Cooke
ncooke@sedaliademocrat.com

A former Sedalia Democrat editor will be among those inducted into the Missouri Newspaper Hall of Fame later this year.

On Thursday, June 20, the Missouri Press Association announced that Doug Kneibert and three others will join the Missouri Newspaper Hall of Fame on Sept. 20 during the association's 158th annual Convention and Trade Show in Springfield. According to MPA, the 2024 class is the 34th group to be inducted since the Hall of Fame was established in 1991.

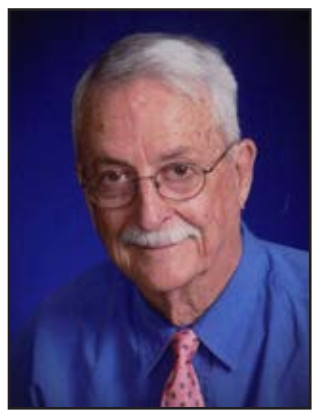

Kneibert said he didn't know he was even nominated, and found out he had been selected a few weeks ago.

"I had no idea I was being considered. This was kept a military secret by all of the family and those who were involved in it, and some past staffers at the Democrat. So it came as a big surprise," Kneibert told the Democrat this week. "... They were putting up the case for me without me even knowing it."

Kneibert added that Kevin Lujin, of Sedalia, and former Democrat managing editor Lisa Church, of Columbia, were the driving forces behind his nomination.

"If longevity in the newspaper business is a criteria, I qualify at 55 years in one form or another working for newspapers. I was gratified," Kneibert said of his inclusion in the Hall of Fame.

Kneibert started his career at The Kansas City Star in 1964 after completing his master's degree at the Missouri School of Journalism. Three years later, he joined the Sedalia Democrat as managing editor. Kneibert was promoted to editor in 1971, a job he held for more than 20 years.

Doug Kneibert

After leaving the Democrat in 1996, Kneibert became a freelance journalist, writing articles for Catholic newspapers and magazines. In 2023, he helped advise the Missouri Photo Workshop when it returned to Sedalia,

OBITUARIES

James William Reid

James William Reid, 86, of Houstonia, MO, passed away peacefully surrounded by family on Monday, June 17, 2024, at his home. He was born on August 19, 1937, in Pettis County, MO, the son of Joe Bill Reid and Josephine (Bartlett) Reid, who preceded him in death.

On June 25, 1954, in Houstonia, MO, he was united in marriage to Betty Jane Walk, who resides in the home.

In addition to his wife, Jimmie is survived by a son, Steve Reid (Mindy) of Houstonia; a son-in-law, Ken Clemons; four grandchildren, Brad, Courtney, Tyler, and Stefanie; eight great-grandchildren; a sister, Betty Jo Minor (Eddie) of Houstonia; a nephew Bill Meyer; and additional nieces, nephews, and cousins.

In addition to his parents, Jimmie was preceded in death by a daughter, Janet Clemons; and a sister, Marilyn Harris.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. on Friday, June 21, 2024, at Rea Funeral Chapel with Rev. Dr. Eddie Brown officiating.

The family will receive friends one hour prior to the service at the chapel.

The burial will be at Houstonia Cemetery, Houstonia, MO.

Memorial contributions may be made to Range Line Presbyterian Church in the care of Rea Funeral Chapel.

Judith J. 'Judy' Menefee

Judith J. "Judy" Menefee, 86, of Kansas City, formerly of Sedalia, died Tuesday, June 18, 2024, at McCrite Plaza at Briarcliff.

Mass of Christian Burial will be Monday, June 24, 2024, at 11 a.m. at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church, Sacred Heart Chapel with Fr. Brad Berhorst officiating. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. Visitation will be from 10 to 11 a.m. Monday at the church. Memorials are suggested to the Children's Therapy Center in the care of McLaughlin Funeral Chapel.

Born January 6, 1938, in Sedalia, she was the daughter of the late George and Margaret Jones Scruton. On August 31, 1957, in Sedalia, she married James D. "Jim" Menefee, and he survives of the home.

Also surviving are two daughters, Pam Crowley of Bellevue, Nebraska, and Susan Baumgartner and her husband Nick of Kansas City, Missouri; four grandchildren, Megan Reeder (Seth), Laura Harlan (Alan), Janine Diak (Robert), and Tara Baumgartner; and four great-grandchildren, Alison Harlan, Ava Reeder, James Diak, and Charlotte Diak.

She was preceded in death by five sisters.

Mrs. Menefee was a member of the St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church, Sacred Heart Chapel. She was active in volunteer work, serving as a Girl Scout leader, delivering Meals on Wheels, P.T.A., the Bothwell Hospital Auxiliary, and helping at the Sedalia Senior Center. She and her husband lived in Sedalia for many years, before moving to Kansas City seven years ago.

Brian James Estes

On Monday, June 17, 2024, Brian James Estes, age 45, lost his battle with cancer.

He was born and raised in Sedalia, MO, relocating to Cabot, AR, then Columbia, MO.

Brian is preceded in death by his mother, Betty Estes, and his father, James Estes.

He is survived by his loving wife, Susan Estes; three wonderful daughters, Alyssa Curtis (Chris), Hannah Estes (Nate), and Brinna Estes; two beautiful granddaughters, Oaklynn and Natalie; and two brothers, Michael Rayl and Steven Rayl.

A fun-loving friend and coworker, Brian spent many years in the warehouse industry, most notably at Ditzfeld Transfer and Club Car Wash. He brought joy and laughter into every place he worked. Outside of work, Brian enjoyed spending time with family and friends, fishing, swimming, and cooking.

At Brian's request, there will not be a funeral or visitation service. A celebration of life is being planned for a later date. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to further research at the National Organization of Rare Disorders (NORD) for Neuroendocrine Tumor Research (rarediseases.org/organizations/net-neuroendocrine-tumor-research-foundation).

CORRECTION

In the Tuesday, June 18 article, "Wilkins: From former nuclear plant engineer to artist," Pamala Wilkins's name was misspelled.

In the Friday, June 14 Pastor's Pulpit column, "His good news gossiping has rescued many," a hymn's title was incorrect in the list of author P.C. Thomas' dad's favorite hymns. The hymn mentioned last in the list should have read "Must I Go, and Empty Handed?"

The Democrat apologizes for the errors.

Naomi Carolyn Edmonds

Naomi Carolyn Edmonds, 88, of Friendship Village Senior Residence in Chesterfield, Mo., died there Friday, June 14.

She was born on a farm near Stanberry, Mo., on July 8, 1935. She was a resident of Sedalia from 1969 until 1992, when she and her husband, pediatrician Dr. Robert Edmonds, moved to St. Louis. Naomi was also the aunt of the late Ron Jennings, a longtime reporter for the Sedalia Democrat.

Naomi received a bachelor's degree in education from the University of Missouri. She taught elementary school and practiced as a speech therapist in both Sedalia and St. Louis. Dr. Edmonds and Naomi retired and moved to Friendship Village in 2011.

Although Naomi's physical existence has now ended, her spiritual presence lives on through her two daughters, Diane (Aaron) Levine and Kristin Edmonds; and four grandchildren, Max and Noah Levine and Emily and Wesley Itoku, all of whom reside in St. Louis, except for Emily, who resides in San Francisco. Their lives today were shaped and enriched by the power of her love, the moral principles of her conduct and the values that she both taught and practiced.

The impact of Naomi's life was also seen and felt by a host of treasured relatives, including her now-departed five brothers and sisters and one surviving sister, Lenna, 96, of Sedalia. She is also survived by numerous nieces, nephews and cousins. She loved them all dearly and showered them with cards and poems on occasions of celebration, birthdays and holidays. Even as her memory started to fade, she was always able to recall names, locations and occupations of both blood relatives and in-laws.

She had many friends from various community service agencies. These included the League of Women Voters, the St. Louis Symphony Volunteers, the Sedalia Community Theatre, the American Association of University Women, the American Medical Association Auxiliary and the Scott Joplin International Ragtime Festival Organizing Committee. She was a volunteer and donor for charities serving the needs of children. The Edmondses also were active members of Wesley United Methodist Church in Sedalia, and later of St. Mark Presbyterian Church in St. Louis.

While she looked back on her life's history fondly, she also looked forward to whatever new adventures life had in store. Her kindness, her cheerfulness, her consistent love of family, friends and community mark the course of her life with distinction. All who knew her will fondly remember and miss "Miss Naomi."

Naomi will be honored in an afternoon memorial tribute in the Theatre at Friendship Village, Chesterfield, on Friday, Aug. 16 from 2 to 4 p.m. Private interment at Jefferson Barracks National Cemetery. Hers will be placed alongside those of her husband, Robert, who was an Air Force captain (in Spain) from 1963 to 1966.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations in Naomi's honor to the Women's Safe House at twsh.org/support/donate/cash-donation. As a service of the SCHRADER Funeral Home and Crematory, friends may sign the family's online guestbook at Schrader.com.

CRASH REPORTS

Two hurt in Benton County motorcycle accident

A 12-year-old girl from Sedalia suffered minor injuries and Eugene A. Edwards, 36, of Sedalia, suffered moderate injuries at 3:17 p.m. Monday, June 17 in a Benton County accident.

According to a Missouri State Highway Patrol report, Edwards was driving a 1997 Harley-Davidson north on Route H at Spring Lake Drive when he failed to negotiate a left-hand curve and traveled off the roadway, ejecting both driver and passenger.

They were both wearing helmets and were transported by Cole Camp Ambulance District to Bothwell Regional Health Center.

Clinton man injured in Henry County crash

Brett F. Murphy, 57, Clinton, suffered moderate injuries at 12:10 p.m. Wednesday, June 19 in a Henry County accident.

According to a Missouri State Highway Patrol report, Murphy was driving a 2007 Toyota Tacoma east on Route 13 when he crossed the southbound lanes of Route 13 from Business 52 and failed to yield to a southbound 2018 Ford Edge driven by Sara L. Fellhoelter, 57, of Deepwater. After impact, both vehicles traveled off the east side of Route 13 and came to rest in the median with the Sequoia resting on its side.

Murphy was not wearing a seat belt but Fellhoelter was. Murphy was transported to Cox South in Springfield by Life Flight Eagle.

8-year-old pedestrian struck in Sedalia

An 8-year-old boy from Sedalia suffered moderate injuries at 6:40 p.m. Wednesday, June 19 in a Pettis County accident.

According to a Missouri State Highway Patrol report, Charlotte A. Reusch, 76, of Sedalia, was driving a 2017 Dodge Journey southbound on Kentucky Avenue south of 36th Street. An 8-year-old boy entered the path of the vehicle on a wagon, causing the vehicle to strike the pedestrian and wagon.

The child was flown to University Hospital in Columbia by MU Air Medical Services.

Information is taken from preliminary Missouri State Highway Patrol reports, which do not necessarily contain statements from all parties involved.

Sedalia man arrested after being seen on local porch cam

By Chris Howell
chrish@sedaliademocrat.com

A Sedalia man has been arrested after he alarmed local residents earlier this month by appearing on home surveillance cameras late at night.

Harlin Haines, 55, was arrested in Boonville this week. According to information from Pettis County Sheriff Brad Anders, Haines was caught on surveillance video sneaking around a home in the area of Sellers Road and Highway 50 in the early morning hours of Monday, May 27. He was seen again Monday evening, June 3 and early Tuesday morning, June 4 in the area of Airpark Road in Sedalia.

"What really prompted this whole thing was a resident and their surveillance system found him on their porch," Pettis County Sheriff Brad Anders told the Democrat on Thursday, June 20. "They made the initial report, and then we got another report of the guy out masturbating next to someone's house completely nude other than shoes and socks, carrying a jar of lube and a folding chair."

Haines' actions and the panic he evoked weren't lost on Anders, who wanted him locked up as soon as possible.

"This is really significant, all of it," Anders said. "We didn't have an ID on him, there were a couple of names that were given that were close but weren't quite right. We were able to do an investigation and with assistance of the public were able to get him identified and then get him run through our databases to find out that he already had an active warrant for his arrest out of Illinois for failing to register as a sex offender."

This prompted the Pettis County Sheriff's Office to issue another warrant for failure to register as a sex offender.

"He has to register with me as soon as he arrives and he did not, so we were able to get a no-bond warrant on his failure to register as a sex offender here in Pettis County," Anders said. "He left Pettis County about the time that we started to ask the public for help with identification and he was found in Boonville. We were able to track some of the things he was doing to Boonville and the Boonville PD and Cooper County Sheriff's Office got involved with the last known locations and they had him within a couple hours."

"It's disturbing for the public and it was evident that he had created some discomfort and fear within the community," Anders said. "We're glad he was arrested. Thank you to everybody who assisted with the identification and thank you to those agencies who were able to help us including the U.S. Marshals, we had them come down the day before yesterday and they are coming again today."

SBW hosts candidate forum for commissioners

By Chris Howell
chrish@sedaliademocrat.com

Tuesday evening, June 18, a candidate forum was hosted at the Sedalia Municipal Building for Eastern and Western Pettis County commissioner candidates.

The Sedalia Business Women legislative committee hosted Eastern Commissioner candidate incumbent Israel Baeza and his opponents Bob Ramey and Leonard Salmons, as well as Western Commissioner incumbent Jim Marcum and opponents Mark A. Edwards and Mark E. Rieckhoff. All six candidates are Republicans.

Moderator Lori Wightman introduced the six candidates to a full audience in City Council chambers and asked each candidate for an opening statement. Excerpts chosen by the Democrat are as follows:

"My name is Jim Marcum, and I am the current Western Commissioner. I've lived here all my life and own two successful businesses," Marcum began. "Back when my wife passed away, I decided to run for office so I could use my knowledge building roads to pay back Pettis County for supporting my business for all these years. With help, we have successfully built the Road and Bridge Department into a great working condition road crew and know how to do all kinds of safety improvements, and I've often haggled with big companies to successfully purchase proper equipment."

"I'm Mark Edwards and I've been in the Sedalia-Pettis County area my entire life," Edwards said. "I spent a lot of weekends out in La Monte on a farm out there helping my grandparents. I'm a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, State Fair Community College an accounting degree, a Bachelor of Science in accounting at Central Missouri State, UCM now, and my master's degree at William Woods University. I worked my way through college at Missouri State bank and at JCPenney. I spent six years on the City Council around the year 2000 as First Ward Council. I am experienced with the workings of public service. My career over the past 20 years has been as a CFO financial controller for a couple of different companies."

"My name is Mark Rieckhoff and I'm a lifelong resident of Pettis County and I am a farmer," Rieckhoff began. "I grew up in the Dresden, Hughesville, La Monte area, went to school in La Monte, graduated there. Went to school at State Fair Community College, graduated there. I've farmed for the last 40 years with my family in the Houstonia area. I was a farmer with my brothers in Dresden, Hughesville, La Monte area. I served as a Pettis County deputy sheriff for 11 years. I feel like my experience in the farming end of things gives me a good handle on being a county commissioner. Also, on the Pettis County Soil and Water District board."

"It's really an honor to serve as the Pettis County Eastern Commissioner," Baeza said. "Four years ago, when I came before you, I made a commitment to be a conservative, efficient and transparent commissioner. The people of Pettis County at that time spoke loud and clear, they asked for a fresh voice and a new way of doing business. I go to work every day making sure I deliver on those promises; making sure our government stays small and out of our daily lives. As a conservative, I make sure our many policies, such as keeping property tax rates low, respecting and protecting your hard-earned tax dollars. Lastly, we have been accessible and have been close to the people we represent."

"My name is Leonard Salmons, I grew up here in Pettis County, went to school here in Pettis County and when I got out of school, I went to work for Howard Construction," Salmons said. "In the construction deal, I worked for 14 years as an operator, and whenever Howard sold out, I left there and went over to the Pettis County Highway Department. From 2000 until 2011, I was a superintendent out there and laid about every road in Pettis County with asphalt road-sealing product. My years of construction out there and knowing what it takes to build a road I feel would make me a really good candidate. I'll not only work with people, I'll bring new businesses in. I feel like the city and the county, no matter what our differences are, we need to work together."

"I'm Bob Ramey and I'd like to thank the Sedalia Business Women for providing this forum here tonight," Ramey said. "I'm a lifelong resident of Sedalia-Pettis County, I've been a fixture around Pettis County. You've probably seen me running auctions, I've been involved in oval racing and for many years, I was the voice of the speedway; some of you my know me as 'Hollywood.' This is personal to me; I've run a successful business here in town in the service industry for vehicle repair. I work with businesses locally here. This is very important to me. The first county seat was established in 1883, just the stone's throw from where I was raised. Judge James Ramey held the first county seat in Pettis County, the Ramey family has been residents and business owners in Pettis County for 190 years."

For 90 minutes, the candidates fielded questions from the Sedalia Business Women on their support or opposition to taxes, landfills and county construction permits.

The primary election is Aug. 6. Absentee voting begins June 25 and no-excuse absentee voting begins July 23. The winner of each Republican race will appear on the Nov. 5 general election ballot, although there is no Democratic opposition for either commissioner seat.

To watch a recording of the forum, visit the Sedalia Business Women Facebook page.

CONTRIBUTING COLUMN

Getting in some garden therapy

Liz Schleicher
Contributing Columnist

I've been getting up early to go to my garden. I have an old metal chair in there, and I sit and watch my tomatoes grow. Black and yellow swallowtail butterflies float in and out among the onion tops, and a pair of hummingbirds comes to drink from the feeder. Sometimes, I wander up and down the rows of vegetables in my pajamas, stooping to peer closely at the buds getting ready to blossom. The mailman and my neighbors probably think I'm insane.

I don't care.

I'm at my happiest when I'm sitting in the garden, or back in my tree line picking the wild gooseberries that grow there, or weeding flower beds, or in the woods hunting for mushrooms and wild herbs. There's something primally peaceful about planting and tending and harvesting. It scratches a psychic itch that I just can't reach with any other activity — not writing, or walking, or playing games, or doing crafts. Even cooking comes in only a distant second place. There's just something about plucking that first ripe red tomato, and I'm not the only one who thinks so.

"If I feel like that about picking one tomato," said my daughter, "Think how grandpa must feel about picking hundreds of bushels of wheat."

"Just smelling the basil makes my day better," said my son.

Clearly, the urge to farm runs in my family. But I think it's present under the surface in many of us, maybe even most. To tend and keep the earth was our first commandment from God, and that makes farming the real oldest profession (sorry, prostitutes!). We are hardwired to benefit from regular, repeated contact with the natural world, and just as our collective intuition is forgetting this, science is rediscovering it for us.

Getting daily sunlight charges us up with Vitamin D and helps regulate our circadian rhythms, allowing us to sleep and wake normally. Studies have shown that time spent outside lowers the risk of heart disease and high blood pressure. Children who play outside regularly have lower rates of mental disorders, get higher grades, are more easily able to focus, and even have better eyesight.

Moreover, outdoor work heals the soul. I know this from personal experience. My garden is a place of refuge where I work out my worries as I dig and weed day after day. There's rarely a time I leave my field with a heavy heart, no matter what's weighing on me. This, too, has data to back it up. Gardening is correlated with the reduction of severe depression. A beneficial bacteria in the soil, mycobacterium vaccae, is suspected to decrease anxiety just by breathing it in. And simply living near a park, woods, or green space is associated with reduced depression, anxiety and anger.

If you're feeling weak or sad or fearful, if your thoughts are swirling and disorganized, if you have depression or trauma you're trying to heal, or even if you simply have a stressful job, please consider adding some garden therapy to your life. Go barefoot. Put your hands in the dirt. Sit and bask in the sun. Dig and cultivate until you reach your limit.

There is no other exercise that is so perfectly balanced, so physically, mentally and spiritually healthy. And the best part: at the end, you'll get to eat a perfectly ripe, sun-warmed tomato.

Thinking of veterans who haven't known life without war

Deborah Mitchell
Contributing Columnist

I thought 1998's "Saving Private Ryan" was the best movie about war I had ever seen. Steven Spielberg wasn't shy about showing, not "guts and glory," but instead, guts, blood, fear, and horror that would stay with soldiers for the rest of their lives. The first 24 minutes depicting the landing at Omaha Beach on D-Day was harrowing.

I sometimes had to close my eyes, as wave after wave of boys exited the ducks on the beach, only to be mowed down by Germans in bunkers high on the bluffs. My heart was pounding so hard that I thought I might faint.

The rest of the movie was just riveting. By the end, I was in tears and hoped to make it down the stairs at the Galaxy Theater without my legs giving way.

Until now, "Saving Private Ryan" was the standard by which I judged all movies about war – even those made years ago that I still see on television.

But our binge-watching on nights when it's too hot to do anything else has shown that while "Saving Private Ryan" is a realistic almost-three-hour look at the ugly side of war, Spielberg and Tom Hanks' "Band of Brothers," released in 2001, two days before 9/11, is a 10-hour deep dive into the constant pressure our soldiers felt as they left Normandy on the way to liberating Europe from the maniacal grip of Adolf Hitler.

The mini-series is based on historian Stephen E. Ambrose's book, "Band of Brothers," which chronicles the movements of Easy Company, 506th Parachute Infantry Regiment, 101st Airborne Division, from D-Day through traipsing through Hitler's Eagle's Nest. Ambrose interviewed the surviving veterans and related their unrelenting march from D-Day, where they "put out of action a German battery of four 105 mm cannon that were looking down on Utah Beach" (Ambrose 15), through Europe.

The audience can easily see that war is truly hell. As we watched episode after episode, we saw the terror of war and how horribly men died.

Each segment begins with video interviews of surviving veterans of Easy Company. As I watched them speak, I could see the lasting effects of the war, even though they had survived and had gone on to lives, families and careers back home. One of the veterans said in one of his interview segments that some men could handle the constant pressure and danger, and some couldn't. He said he could handle it as it happened, but that he had some problems later in his life.

I thought of my father. I don't know how he handled it as it happened, but, like the Easy Company veteran, he had some problems later in his life. Though in his younger years, according to Thayer legend, he had been ebullient, outgoing, a popular teacher and coach, and a guy with a great sense of humor, his later years were full of fear, isolation, and excessive worry.

Although I didn't know what was wrong with him, I assumed he was just becoming grumpier and unhappier as the years passed. As he started a downward spiral, my mother became more and more successful in her career. I thought that affected him badly and that part of his bad humor emanated from his feeling of either competition with her or inadequacy around her.

What we didn't know until recently is that many war veterans suffer the same kinds of pain as my father. Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder was added to the range of psychological diagnoses of veterans in 1980. Until then, though veterans often exhibited what we now recognize as symptoms, those symptoms did not have a name. Now they do.

I am certain that my father suffered from PTSD, although not as badly as others. It was enough, though, to change his personality and detrimentally affect his relationships with others throughout his life.

I'm proud of what he did to keep our way of life safe during WWII, but he paid a huge price.

One of the vets says, at the end of the mini-series, that he thinks about the men who were lost who never knew life without war.

My dad came home. But he never knew life without war.

GREEN MINUTE

Recognizing the importance of birds in our lives

Angela Palmer
Guest Columnist

When driving through Warrensburg, I often observed a tall figure walking slowly but purposefully and felt comforted knowing that Larry was out birding. As his obituary concluded, Larry will be missed by those of us who knew him, and indeed, we all knew him as a "jolly good fellow."

Larry Olpin retired from the University of Central Missouri's English department in 2001 after a 32-year teaching tenure. I did not have the privilege of being taught by Larry during my time at UCM; instead, I got to know him later in life as a gardener and a fellow nature lover. I don't think he thought of himself as an environmentalist, but I interviewed him once for a video that CEA produced, and it was easy to see that he had a deep reverence for the natural world.

He and his wife, Margaret, bought their home on Grover Street in 1977 and immediately began growing vegetables and many beautiful varieties of flowers. I visited their backyard several times, and it felt like stepping into a secret garden – an oasis in the center of town. Larry was also a Missouri Master Gardener and active on the local tree board.

After retirement, he took up birding as a hobby and quickly became one of Johnson County's most dedicated and well-known birders. He loved taking his binoculars to Knob Noster State Park, Pertle Springs, Lions Lake, and Turkeyfoot Prairie regularly. He had 600 species of birds on his life list, with 271 of those seen in Johnson County and 103 in his backyard, a remarkable sum for a small piece of land in the middle of town.

The presence of birds is a near-constant in our lives, and because of that, we sometimes fail to notice them, but birders like Larry always notice them. Their ears are primed to the springtime dawn chorus, noticing the subtleties of the different calls and songs. The movement catches the corner of their eye, and they discern minute details in the precious few seconds birders usually have to identify their quarry.

Connecting with nature in this way is thrilling but also comforting. It reminds us that it's not all about us — there are other complex and beautiful systems in motion all around us. When we tune in to nature, we can't help but remember that all of Earth's beings are connected and interdependent.

Many of us enjoy putting out hummingbird feeders and watching the antics of these tiny birds as they zip around, but as they drink nectar from flowers, pollen gathers on their beaks and feathers and they pollinate neighboring flowers.

Pollination is just one helpful thing birds do. Some species are indicators of environmental health because they are sensitive to minor changes in conditions, especially climate. Scientists use data from monitoring bird populations to instigate change that benefits the rest of us. Many species consume the fruits of native plants and later disperse their seeds, lending us a hand in native plant propagation. Birds eat 400-500 tons of insects annually, protecting gardens and crops from decimation. Without birds of prey, such as owls, hawks and eagles, our rodent population would be out of control. We can also appreciate insectivorous birds for eating biting insects such as mosquitoes, making outdoor adventures more enjoyable.

Unfortunately, according to the Audubon Society, more than half of U.S. bird species are in decline. Since they are so incredibly helpful to us, we owe it to them to return the favor.

Peter Marra, director of the Earth Commons at Georgetown University Institute for Environment and Sustainability, said, "Protecting wildlife and biodiversity is something that everybody should be concerned with. Once we save birds, we're going to save a lot of other species." We can do many things, such as keeping cats indoors, reducing pesticide use, planting native vegetation, using window strike-prevention technology, and participating in bird-related community science initiatives such as the Audubon Society's Christmas bird count. The National Audubon Society, Cornell Lab of Ornithology, and Missouri Department of Conservation websites have information on ways to help birds.

One way I cope with heavy feelings that stem from considering the immensity of our environmental problems is to pick one new action, no matter how small, and move forward with it. That's something Larry and I spoke about once, and it's something he practiced. To honor his memory and the importance of birds in his life (and ours), I leave you with the words of poet Emily Dickinson:

"Hope" is the thing with feathers -

That perches in the soul -

And sings the tune without the words -

And never stops — at all -

And sweetest — in the Gale — is heard -

And sore must be the storm That could abash the little Bird That kept so many warm -

I've heard it in the chillest land -

And on the strangest Sea -

Yet — never — in Extremity, It asked a crumb — of me.

Fire

I ran in my kitchen, tried to put it out, but it was spreading too fast. There was already smoke throughout the house."

Brittany woke her husband, Anthony, who roused their young daughters and Brittany's father and got them out of the blaze safely. They were also able to get the smallest of their two dogs to safety.

"I got a big one and a small one," Anthony explained. "She woke up, woke me up, I got the littlest one up and then we got out the back door, I tried to get the big dog, but he took off running towards the back and went into my office, and thankfully it wasn't completely shut, but he was able to nose his way in there, somehow shut the door."

Pettis County Fire and La Monte Fire responded with around 17 pieces of apparatus and 35 firefighters.

"They got here within probably 20 minutes, and they ran in there," Anthony said. "So I think we had two of their own trucks and then they brought in volunteers from La Monte and La Monte trucks came in to do the rest. I think they had four or five trucks total full of water because they can't refill out here."

Brittany feared the worst for their beloved Great Dane, Maverick, who she said was in the engulfed home for two hours.

"I had specifically said, 'please don't bring him out in front of my girls,' assuming he was dead," Brittany recalled. "My husband had tried to knock out some of the back windows of our youngest daughter and his office to try and see if we could get him."

Their rescue efforts were a failure, but firefighters were eventually able to enter the home and went to the back room where Maverick had fled.

The family felt a gush of relief when a firefighter walked out the front door, carrying Maverick safely in his arms.

"The firefighter came right through our front door carrying him and he took off," Brittany said. "It was the best feeling in the world knowing he was OK."

Maverick had suffered minor burns to his tail and back legs but was taken to a local vet and returned to his loving family in good condition.

The Salmons' joy at saving Maverick was shared by the firefighters involved in his miraculous rescue. They told the family that Maverick would have surely died had he not closed the door behind him.

"It was an amazing feeling to see that dog still alive," Harding said. "When we got there and saw how much was involved and then for our guys to go in and make interior and to get this dog out and the dog to be alive, it was an amazing feeling."

Within hours, family and friends showed up to help salvage what little material goods could be saved, including a wedding ring found in the charred bedroom.

"We lost all of our vehicles, mine, my husband's, our 16-year-old's," Brittany said. "We lost everything, but we all survived, thankfully, and that's all that matters."

Asked if they needed help, Brittany said they had family to support them, and a family friend unknown to them started a GoFundMe account to help as they rebuild their lives.

having helped bring the workshop to Sedalia in 1980. At age 88, he continues his involvement with the Democrat as a monthly contributing columnist.

"If you add contributing columnist to it, by far, the main show has been in Sedalia," Kneibert said. "I've had metro and small-town experience both, which I think is helpful. I learned a lot at the Star about editing primarily."

Kneibert said he's always enjoyed small towns. When he left the Star in the late 1960s, he said he was qualified to stay with the metro newspaper or find a spot at another larger paper, but felt heading to a town like Sedalia was the right choice.

"I'm a small-town boy. I grew up in a small town, Poplar Bluff," Kneibert said. "I didn't want to stay in the big city; I wanted to go back and be in a smaller town even though maybe I could've been a success if I stayed with the Star, but I like smaller markets about the size of this one. I never regretted making that decision."

According to his biography from MPA, in 1970, three years after Kneibert joined the Democrat, it was presented the Honor Award for Distinguished Service in Journalism by the MU School of Journalism. The Democrat took five first-place awards for general excellence in MPA's Better Newspaper Contest during his time in the editor's office, plus many other first-place awards.

"Mr. Kneibert kept a watchful eye over the Democrat's news staff, which was made up of young Missouri J-School-trained journalists looking to get experience before moving on to other publications," the biography states. "He took pride in writing daily local editorials plus a weekly column that made it clear where the newspaper stood politically, but kept opinions to the editorial pages, expecting reporters to be objective watchdogs who looked out for the public interest."

"I think you have to compile some sort of record to be considered for that (Hall of Fame). They look at your whole career and determine whether you contributed anything significant to journalism and newspapers," Kneibert said. "Evidently, they found out that I did, so I'm gratified that they did. I achieved some stuff at the Democrat that I'm rather proud of. We reached our highest historic circulation either in the late '70s or very early '80s. We sold more than 20,000 copies of the Sunday paper."

His biography states that Kneibert also served as president of the Mid-America Press Institute, the Sedalia Council on the Arts, the Sedalia Symphony Society, the Sedalia Kiwanis Club and the Pettis County Pachyderm Club.

The three other 2024 inductees are Mike O'Brien, former editor and columnist for the Springfield News-Leader; Dianne Elizabeth Osis, founding publisher of Springfield Business Journal; and Michael Stair, former city editor for The Joplin Globe.

Information from MPA states that Hall of Fame inductees or their families receive Pinnacle Awards in honor of the inductees' service to the Missouri newspaper industry and their communities. Inductees' plaques will join the permanent display of inductees in the MPA office in Columbia and the student lounge in Lee Hills Hall at the Missouri School of Journalism.

Kneibert is the second Democrat employee inducted into the Missouri Newspaper Hall of Fame. The late Ron Jennings, a long-time reporter for the Democrat, was inducted in 2011. Former staff photographer Sydney Brink was inducted into the Missouri Photojournalism Hall of Fame in 2014.

Robert F. Kennedy Jr. fails to qualify for CNN's debate

By Meg Kinnard
Associated Press

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Independent presidential candidate Robert F. Kennedy Jr. has failed to qualify for next week's debate in Atlanta, according to host network CNN, falling shy of benchmarks both for state ballot qualification and necessary polling.

The missed markers mean that the June 27 showdown will be solely between Democratic President Joe Biden and presumptive Republican nominee Donald Trump. That denies Kennedy a singular opportunity to stand alongside the leading candidates in an attempt to lend legitimacy to his longshot bid and convince potential supporters that he has a shot at winning.

In a statement Thursday, Kennedy called his exclusion from the debate "undemocratic, un-American, and cowardly."

Both the Biden and Trump campaigns fear that Kennedy could play spoiler in what's anticipated to be a close general election.

According to the criteria set out by CNN, candidates would be invited to participate in the debate if they had secured a place on the ballot in states totaling at least 270 votes in the Electoral College, the minimum needed to win the presidency.

Biden and Trump have easily cleared the polling threshold but won't be certified for the ballot until their parties formally nominate them later this summer. Both have secured enough delegates to lock in their nominations.

Kennedy's campaign says he has satisfied the requirements to appear on the ballot in 22 states, with a combined 310 electoral votes, though not all have affirmed his name will be listed. California, the largest prize on the electoral map with 54 votes, will not certify any candidates until Aug. 29.

Candidates were also required to reach a polling threshold of 15% in four reliable national polls by June 20, another metric CNN said Kennedy failed to meet. According to the network, Kennedy has received at least 15% in three qualifying polls so far and is currently on the ballot in six states, making him currently eligible for 89 Electoral College votes.

Last month, Kennedy filed an election complaint alleging CNN is colluding with Biden and Trump to exclude him from the June 27 debate, alleging that the participation requirements were designed to ensure only Biden and Trump would qualify and claiming that he is being held to a higher standard.

Members of the Boys & Girls Clubs of West Central Missouri are getting a lesson on the "do's" and "don'ts" of bedtime with Amelia Morris, a State Fair Community College nursing student, on Wednesday, June 19. One "do" was to read a bedtime story, and one "don't" was to not drink soda before bed.

"Part of nursing is also providing education to our patients," she explained. "And so one of the things we can do as nurses is provide real-life education that people can take and disseminate into their lives.

"Something we're doing today is reaching out to these kids," she continued. "This is the pediatric clinical group. And so they are teaching kids kindergarten through fourth grade on different topics that can affect them."

She added that they were touching on topics such as hand sanitizing, swim safety, sunscreen safety, and how to handle emotions.

"How to stay fit with exercise," Bond said. "And how we can do that at home with minimal equipment. There's a dehydration/hydration station next after the exercise so the kids can learn the importance of hydration. It's to give them some practical tools to take home with them and to use in their lives."

SFCC students spent an hour setting up the booths for the event and planned to be there for the Club members until around 3 p.m.

"We are just really appreciative to the Boys & Girls Club for allowing us this opportunity," Bond noted. "We don't get many pediatric patients in the clinic often.

"And so for this rotation, it really gives the students the best immersive-specific experience with this age group," she continued. "It gives them the chance to amend their teaching for age ranges they might be seeing out in a real practice."

Council

"The two stations that we currently have are kind of in a straight line, so if a tornado were to come, it could take out both stations. By separating them and making a triangle, we're less likely to lose all our emergency resources."

Oldham missed the previous council meeting where the council voted to go with the Public Safety Committee's two-station recommendation.

"This has been a discussion that a three-station model was the path that we needed to do for several years," Oldham said. "At the council meeting was somewhat of a shock to me that we've just decided no, we no longer can do that, it's got to be a two-station model."

The cost of building two new stations is considerable, but staffing three shifts of firefighters would be cost-prohibitive and require a major buy-in by Sedalia residents in the form of a bond issue or additional taxes.

"It's not necessarily the building that is the issue," Irwin said. "It's the staffing that we must put in it. Even with the single-engine, it's a four-person engine company, so that's four people you must put on 24 hours a day, seven days a week. That means we have to add 12 to our staffing to catch it for all three shifts, and that's a pretty large number for an annual salary and benefits."

"I brought up the feasibility study because I recalled that there was only three members currently on council who were on council during the time of this feasibility study," Oldham said. "So it needed to be brought to their attention that it's been determined for several years now that we need and recommended a move towards a three-station model. If our fire stations aren't placed correctly, and our response times are high, one, that means safety is in jeopardy because we can't get to a fire in time, and two, your insurance goes up."

Oldham promised Monday to get the FGM feasibility study to councilors in time for a reconsideration of the three-station model by the next city council meeting.

Chris Howell can be reached at 660-530-0146.

CELTICS CONNECTION:

MATT BROWN TALKS RELATIONSHIP WITH NBA CHAMPION COACH

There was never a doubt who Matt Brown was rooting for in the NBA Finals this year.

The State Fair Community College head basketball coach was all in on the Boston Celtics as one of his former players from the University of West Virginia was coaching the team to the championship.

That former player is Celtics head coach Joe Mazzulla.

"I'm, obvio Celtics fan now," Brown said. "I'm really proud of Joe and all he has accomplished there, too. He's done a good job. He tuned out the noise last year when he was an interim coach and found ways to be successful, and obviously the players responded to him."

Mazzulla started with the Celtics as an assistant coach in 2019 under coach Brad Stevens. Then, Mazzulla was named the team's interim head coach ahead of the 2022-23 season after former coach Ime Udoka was dismissed for violating team policy.

During his two years as the Celtics head coach, Mazzulla, 35, has coached the team to a 121-43 record, including an NBA-best 64-18 record this season before winning the championship over the Dallas Mavericks. The title was the Celtics' 18th in franchise history, the most by a team in the NBA.

Tony Dobbins, who Brown coached at the University of Richmond, Virginia, was part of the championship team as well, as he is an assistant coach under Mazzulla.

Brown and Mazzulla first met at the University of West Virginia during Mazzulla's freshman year in 2006. Brown said there were a lot of things Mazzulla did that showed he could be a coach some day.

"He was always willing to learn and listen," Brown said. "He's not afraid to ask questions about basketball and things like that. So, as a coach, if you're not willing to learn in depth most things, you're not going to be successful, and that's what I think has made him successful."

As a player at West Virginia, Mazzulla averaged 4.8 points on 43% shooting. He also averaged 2.4 rebounds and 2.6 assists in his career.

Post 642 Juniors take down Warrensburg

By Democrat Staff

The Sedalia Post 642 Junior Legion baseball team ended the Mule Club Legion's undefeated season Tuesday, June 18, with a doubleheader sweep.

Post 642 won the first game 10-4 and the second game 12-7.

In the first game of the doubleheader, Post 642 jumped out to an early five-run lead in the first inning.

Elliot Nieters hit a two-run single to get the scoring started. Then, Jayden Archibeque tripled to score two more runs.

Then, Talon Newell drew a bases-loaded walk to give Sedalia a 5-0 lead.

Post 642 scored three more runs in the fourth inning thanks in large part to a Kaden Wiskur single that scored two runs.

In the fifth inning, Caden Homan drove in another run with a single to make the score 9-3. Homan led the team at the plate in Game 1 as he collected four hits in five at-bats.

Qwentin Madrid drove in the team's final run of the game in the seventh inning with a bunt single.

In the second game of the doubleheader, Post 642 had to hang on for the victory.

After four innings, Sedalia led 11-3, but the Mules Club started to mount a comeback in the late innings as they scored two in the fifth and sixth innings.

Post 642 scored an insurance run in the sixth inning to help them secure the 12-7 win and complete the sweep.

Cooper Woolery and Karson Wiskur led the team with two hits apiece in Game 2 while Aidan Fiet led the team with three RBIs.

BOMBERS SNAP LOSING STREAK WITH SWEEP OVER WARREN COUNTY

The Bombers broke out of their recent slump in a big way Wednesday, June 19, with a doubleheader sweep of the Warren County Crop Dusters.

The Bombers won the first game 6-4 and then came back from a 12-run deficit to win Game 2 17-16.

Head coach Drake Miller said the wins were a great way to snap the team's five-game losing streak and recent offensive funk.

"Our hitters the last couple games haven't backed up our pitchers, and I told the guys, 'Hey, I think we're even now,'" Miller said on the Bombers' social media Wednesday night.

In the second game of the doubleheader, the Bombers scored 12 runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to tie the game after they had trailed 16-4.

Shortstop Sam Paule drove in three of the team's runs in the fifth inning with two singles. Outfielder Sam Russo also had two RBIs in the inning with a base hit.

Then, the Bombers scored the winning run in the sixth inning following a bases-loaded walk drawn by outfielder Chris Miller that scored Dayne Wimberly.

"Flat out the craziest game I've ever been a part of," Miller said about the back half of the doubleheader.

Game 1 of the doubleheader was a little more tame, but still close.

The teams entered the fourth inning tied 2-2, but the Bombers put up runs in the fourth and fifth innings to take a 4-2.

The Crop Dusters answered with a run in the sixth inning, but the Bombers came back with two of their own in the bottom of the sixth to take a 6-3 lead.

Warren County threatened in the seventh, but could only get one run home to bring the game to its final score of 6-4.

Infielder Connor Rice led the team at the plate in Game 1 as he went three for three and scored twice. Infielder Ryan Retone drove in two of the team's six runs to lead the team.

The Bombers (8-7) play the Carroll Merchants (8-11) in a doubleheader starting at 4 p.m. Friday, June 21.

KANSAS TARGETING KC TEAMS WITH PLAN TO HELP PAY FOR NEW STADIUMS

By John Hanna
Associated Press

TOPEKA, Kan. — Kansas is making a serious run at becoming the new home for the reigning Super Bowl champions with legislators approving a plan Tuesday to lure the Chiefs and Major League Baseball's Kansas City Royals away from Missouri.

Bipartisan legislative supermajorities OK'd the measure to authorize state bonds to help finance new stadiums and practice facilities for both teams on the Kansas side of the metropolitan area of 2.3 million residents, which is split by the border with Missouri. Three Super Bowl victories in five years — and player Travis Kelce's romance with pop icon Taylor Swift — have made the Chiefs perhaps the area's most celebrated civic asset.

The plan from the Republican-controlled Legislature goes next to Democratic Gov. Laura Kelly. While she stopped short of promising to sign it, she said in a statement that "Kansas now has the opportunity to become a professional sports powerhouse."

Both the Chiefs and the Royals said they look forward to considering Kansas options. The lease on the Missouri complex with their side-by-side stadiums runs through January 2031, but both have said they already should have been planning for the future.

"We're excited about what happened here today," Korb Maxwell, an attorney for the Chiefs who lives on the Kansas side, said at the Statehouse after the bill cleared the Legislature. "This is incredibly real."

The approval capped a two-month push to capitalize on the refusal in April by voters on the Missouri side to continue a local sales tax used to finance the upkeep of the teams' stadiums.

Backers of the plan brushed aside decades of research by economists concluding that government subsidies for professional sports stadiums are not worth the cost. They also overcame criticism that lawmakers were moving too quickly.

A spokeswoman for Missouri Gov. Mike Parson did not immediately respond to an email seeking comment. But in Kansas City, Missouri, Mayor Quinton Lucas promised to "lay out a good offer" to keep both teams in town.

"Today was largely, in my opinion, about leverage," Lucas said. "And the teams are in an exceptional leverage position."

Some Kansas officials reached the same conclusion.

"I think the Chiefs and the Royals are using us," said state Rep. Susan Ruiz, a Kansas City-area Democrat.

The votes on the Kansas stadium-financing plan were 84-38 in the state House and 27-8 in the Senate. Lawmakers from across the state — even western Kansas, far from any new stadium — supported the measure.

It would allow state bonds to cover up to 70% of each new stadium, paying them off over 30 years with revenues from sports betting, state lottery ticket sales and new sales and alcohol taxes collected from shopping and entertainment districts around the new stadiums.

House Commerce Committee Chair Sean Tarwater, a Kansas City-area Republican, said the Chiefs still are likely to spend $500 million to $700 million in private funds on a new stadium.

"There are no blank checks," Tarwater told GOP colleagues during a briefing.

Legislators debated the plan during a one-day special session called by Kelly to have them consider reducing taxes after she vetoed three tax-cutting plans before legislators adjourned their regular annual session May 1.

Republican leaders had promised that the stadium proposal wouldn't come up until the Legislature first approved a plan to cut income and property taxes by a total of $1.23 billion over the next three years. Many lawmakers argued that voters would be angry if the state helped finance new stadiums without cutting taxes.

With the tax bill passed, the stadium plan gained support even from lawmakers who saw it as a handout for wealthy team owners. Some said failing to act risked pushing the teams to leave the Kansas City area, and a few said they had wanted the Chiefs in Kansas since childhood.

"It is amazing to me the speed with which we can solve problems when they're oriented around wealth, when they're oriented around business," said state Rep. Jason Probst, a Democrat from central Kansas.

Yet Probst voted for the bill.

"This is the system that we're stuck in, so if we choose to opt out of that system, we will lose every time," he said.

Economists who study pro sports teams have concluded in dozens of studies that a new stadium and shopping-and-entertainment area merely takes existing economic activity away from elsewhere in a community, resulting in little or no net gain.

"It could still help Kansas and maybe hurt Missouri by the same amount," said Andrew Zimbalist, an economics professor at Smith college in central Massachusetts who has written multiple books about sports. "It's a zero-sum game."

A skeptical state Sen. Molly Baumgardner, a Kansas City-area Republican, used a Christmas Eve metaphor to characterize supporters' excitement before she voted no.

"There are visions of sugar plums," Baumgardner said.

Tributes to Willie Mays pour in as mural is unveiled in Alabama

By Alanis Thames
Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Willie Mays gave a message to his longtime friend Dusty Baker just a day before he died.

Mays, who died Tuesday afternoon at 93 years old, knew that he wouldn't be able to make the trip to Birmingham, Alabama, for a week of festivities honoring the contributions that he and other Negro Leaguers have made to baseball. But he wanted Baker to share a message to the city he long called home.

"Birmingham, I wish I could be with you all today," said Mays' good friend and adviser Jeff Bleich, reading the statement at a ceremony Wednesday honoring Mays' life and career. "This is where I'm from. I had my first pro hit here at Rickwood as a Black Baron. And now this year, some 76 years later, that hit finally got counted in the record books. I guess some things take time. But I always think better late than never."

Mays also sent an antique clock with his picture on it to the city of Birmingham. Baker was not feeling well, Bleich said, so he was not at the ceremony.

"Time changes things," Mays continued in his note. "Time heals wounds. And that's a good thing. I had some of the best times of my life in Birmingham. So I want you to have this clock to remember those times with me, and to remember all the other players who were lucky enough to play here together."

The ceremony took place in downtown Birmingham just miles from Rickwood Field, where Mays' unforgettable career began. Bleich joined Birmingham Mayor Randall Woodfin and San Francisco Giants CEO Larry Baer in giving speeches in Mays' honor, standing in front of a grand mural display of the former Giants center fielder.

It's an enchanting depiction of the electrifying "Say Hey Kid," showing Mays beaming with his hands resting on his knees, his bevy of athletic accomplishments painted around him.

The artwork was created by artist Chuck Styles, who said he wanted to capture Mays' humanity.

"I knew I wanted to showcase him in a way that everybody knew him for," Styles said, "and that was his smile."

Other tributes to Mays, born in Westfield, Alabama, near Birmingham, poured in all over the country on Wednesday, including from President Joe Biden.

"Like so many others in my neighborhood and around the country, when I played Little League, I wanted to play center field because of Willie Mays," Biden said in a statement. "It was a rite of passage to practice his basket catches, daring steals, and command at the plate — only to be told by coaches to cut it out because no one can do what Willie Mays could do."

Mays, who began his professional career with the Birmingham Black Barons of the Negro Leagues in 1948, had been baseball's oldest living Hall of Famer and was considered the sport's greatest living player.

He died two days before a game between the Giants and St. Louis Cardinals to honor the Negro Leagues at Rickwood Field in Birmingham.

"It's actually even heavier today," said Giants manager Bob Melvin, wearing a Mays T-shirt. "When you read all the articles and you read what everybody has to say about him, it kind of comes full circle in what he's meant to our country. Even if you don't know baseball, you know who Willie Mays is."

The Giants wore patches with Mays' No. 24 on their chest for Wednesday's game against the Chicago Cubs.

When the team travels to Birmingham for the commemorative game at Rickwood Field on Thursday, the Giants will open Oracle Park for fans to watch the game on the scoreboard, the team announced.

Images of Mays will appear on the scoreboard before and after the event, and a sculpture of his jersey number will be placed in center field to honor him.

Cardinals assistant coach Willie McGee said he had several conversations with Mays when he played for the Giants from 1991-94.

"Willie was the best, man, the greatest I have ever seen," McGee said. "He had all six tools. His aggressiveness, his baserunning. That is what separated him, for me, his aggressiveness and his instincts from other five-tool guys."

When asked if Mays ever gave him any advice, McGee chuckled.

"All the time — but I don't remember none of it," he said.

Some of the most sincere words Wednesday came from those who grew up in Alabama.

Jameis Winston, a backup quarterback with the Cleveland Browns who was born in Bessemer, Alabama, smiled graciously as he looked out at Rickwood Field. Winston was in town along with many other notable figures to celebrate Mays and the Negro Leagues in a celebrity softball game at the ballpark.

"He was an amazing man," Winston said. "He had a tremendous legacy, a tremendous career playing baseball. I'm so happy that I'm allowed to be on the diamond, united with all my brothers."

Next to Winston, comedian and actor Roy Wood Jr. spoke thoughtfully and earnestly. Wood, who grew up playing high school baseball at Rickwood Field, was doing a broadcast at the ballpark Tuesday night when news of Mays' death was announced.

Wood took brief pauses between his sentences Wednesday, as if carefully choosing the words that would best describe that moment.

"The dichotomy of live television is trying to remain human but also being a professional," Wood said. "And it was saddening. ... There was a 90-second round of applause for Willie Mays, and you looked up in the crowd and you saw people crying but you saw them hugging and smiling."

Kelly McFarland had taken a brief break from her job directing buses into the ballpark when she heard the news Tuesday evening. She was taking pictures next to one of the tributes of Mays at the ballpark when someone tapped her on the shoulder.

"They said, 'You know he's passed?'" said McFarland, a Birmingham native. "And so I look over at the field and that's when you could just feel an eerie feeling. And you just saw tears from grown adult people, men, just crying.

"I'm glad I got a chance to experience what he put out into the community, and to see the emotions from people age 93 to 3."

Pistons fire coach Monty Williams after one season

By Tim Reynolds
AP Basketball Writer

The Detroit Pistons fired coach Monty Williams on Wednesday after just one season that ended with an NBA-worst 14-68 record.

"Decisions like these are difficult to make, and I want to thank Monty for his hard work and dedication," Pistons owner Tom Gores said in a statement. "Coaching has many dynamic challenges that emerge during a season and Monty always handled those with grace. However, after reviewing our performance carefully and assessing our current position as an organization, we will chart a new course moving forward."

Last season was the first in what was a six-year, $78.5 million contract for Williams — one that, at the time, was the richest ever given to an NBA coach. The team started a front office rebuild when the season ended, including the hiring of Trajan Langdon as president of basketball operations, the departure of general manager Troy Weaver and now a vacancy at head coach.

The firing continues a wildly strange run for Williams. In 2021, as coach of the Suns, he went to the NBA Finals, where Phoenix led 2-0 before falling in six games to Milwaukee. In 2022, he was the NBA's coach of the year in runaway voting. In 2023, the Suns fired him and now, in 2024, the Pistons have done the same.

The record for total value of a coaching contract has since been eclipsed; Miami gave Erik Spoelstra an eight-year extension worth $120 million earlier this year.

This was, by any measure, a disaster of a season for the Pistons. They started 2-1 and didn't win another game for the next two months.

A 28-game losing streak, the longest ever in a single season in NBA history and tied for the longest ever when factoring in multiple seasons, turned the season into a debacle. The Pistons' longest winning streak was two games (done on three occasions) and the roster was constantly in flux. Detroit used 31 different players over the course of the season and 36 different starting lineups and lost 39 times by double digits.

The vacancy in Detroit is the third active one in the NBA, with Cleveland and the Los Angeles Lakers still seeking coaches. The Pistons' move comes a week before the start of the NBA draft, with Detroit set to make the fifth overall pick on June 26 — someone that should be able to further enhance a young core led by Cade Cunningham, Jaden Ivey and Jalen Duren.

Those players, all 22 or younger, were the only three Pistons to start at least 60 games this past season.

"We are unwavering in our commitment to bring a championship-caliber team to Detroit," Gores said. "We will be diligent and swift in our search for a new head coach to lead our exciting young core of players and will continue our vision towards building a best-in-class front office that will help us achieve sustainable success."

CELTICS HAVE SHORT TO-DO LIST IN PURSUIT OF REPEAT

BOSTON — It took more than a decade, savvy front office and draft moves, and some free agency luck for the Celtics to ultimately build the roster that brought an end to their 16-year championship drought.

But with NBA Finals MVP Jaylen Brown already locked up long-term and fellow All-Star Jayson Tatum set to join him in the $300 million club this summer, Boston doesn't have nearly as much work to do this offseason to keep together a core that is set up to become the first team since the 2018 Golden State Warriors to repeat as champions.

In the euphoria of locking up the franchise's record-breaking 18th championship, Celtics majority owner Wyc Grousbeck gave president of basketball operations Brad Stevens a shoutout for finishing a process that began when Stevens was originally hired as Boston's coach in 2013.

"We all watched the team the last few years. Great teams, but not quite there," Grousbeck said. "And Brad was brilliant. We knew we needed to make changes ... and he got it done."

Moving away from longtime executive Danny Ainge — the architect of Boston's 2008 championship Big 3 of Paul Pierce, Kevin Garnett and Ray Allen — in favor of the 44-year-old Stevens was bold. Now, just three years after being pulled off the sideline, Stevens has made good on the belief that ownership had in him.

He did it by taking the war chest of draft picks Ainge left him and borrowing from the aggressiveness his predecessor was known for to immediately go to work.

It started coyly with a February 2022 trade deadline acquisition of Derrick White, a young defensive-minded reserve with San Antonio.

Then, following the loss to the Warriors in the Finals, he steered the team through the suspension and ultimate departure of coach Ime Udoka for having an inappropriate relationship with a woman in the organization.

Facing a franchise-altering moment, Stevens leaned on his gut, elevating back bench assistant Joe Mazzulla to the top job.

Then, after a conference finals loss to Miami last season, he did what was originally unthinkable by trading veteran leader Marcus Smart and reigning NBA Sixth Man of the Year Malcolm Brogdon in separate deals that brought in 7-footer Kristaps Porzingis and defensive stalwart Jrue Holiday.

The pair turned out to be the missing links for a team that, including the playoffs, finished 80-21 this season, placing it second in team history behind only the Celtics' 1985-86 championship team that finished 82-18.

It also marks the first time in seven seasons the team with the best record during the regular season went on to win the title.

Most importantly, Boston is set up to keep the current core intact for the foreseeable future.

Brown is already locked up through 2029. Tatum is eligible to sign a five-year supermax extension this summer that will be worth a record $315 million and run through 2031. White, who is set to be a free agent in 2025, can ink a four-year deal worth about $125 million this offseason.

The remaining returning starters, Holiday and Porzingis, have already been extended through 2028 and 2026, respectively.

While some tough, luxury tax decisions could be looming in a few seasons, it's a team constructed to win now.

Brown said it's left everyone poised to defend their title next season and beyond.

"I think we have an opportunity. I think we definitely have a window," he said. "We take it one day at a time. We definitely have to make sure we stay healthy. But, we'll enjoy the summer, enjoy the moment, and then we get right back to it next year."

MAZZULLA

Brown said what separated Mazzulla from other players at West Virginia was his hard-nosed mentality, which Brown thinks has helped Mazzulla reach the NBA's highest summit.

"He always had a chip on his shoulder. We lived off kids who were under-recruited and had that edge to them, and that's what Joe had and that's what we loved about him," Brown said. "He's tough, hard-nosed, you know, he wasn't a four-star recruit, but he wanted to prove he could play at that level."

"You don't make it to Glenville State, to Fairmont State and to the developmental league and make it to the Celtics if he didn't have the determination to," Brown continued, referring to Mazzulla's previous stops as an assistant coach. "He's a lunch pail, brown paper bag type of guy. He's a hard worker… He's still really grounded. He still calls me Coach Brown when he calls me even though he is the coach of the Celtics."

While he is happy for Mazzulla and all of his accomplishments, Brown said he is even more proud of the man Mazzulla has become.

One thing Brown said he will always remember is when his late son, Coen, was in the hospital battling cancer and Mazzulla would often check in to see how Brown and his family were doing.

Mazzulla even talked with Coen via FaceTime and brought on Celtics star Jayson Tatum to encourage Coen to keep fighting.

Brown said it meant the world to have somebody brighten his family's day during a challenging time.

"It definitely put a smile on our faces more than anything else," Brown said. "It just speaks volumes for who he is as a person. It meant a lot to Coen. Coen's a big basketball fan. So, Joe is a good person more than anything else… Joe's dad passed away from cancer, so there was a connection there not only from player to coach, but just as a person, too."

Brown said he and Mazzulla still keep in touch and he plans to reach out to Mazzulla to congratulate him on winning the NBA Finals soon.

Travelers sweep Chariton County

The Sedalia Post 642 Travelers defeated Chariton County in a doubleheader sweep 10-4 and 13-3 Tuesday, June 18.

In Game 1, the Travelers led 8-1 after two innings. A two-run home run by Riley Sanders in the first inning helped get the scoring started.

Then, in the second inning, Ty Ollison doubled, Camden Everhart singled and Tanner Johnson singled to help the Travelers extend their early lead.

The team put up runs in the sixth and seventh innings to help them secure the win.

In Game 2, the Travelers got on the board first after Johnson homered, but Chariton County answered right back with a run in the first inning to tie the game.

But, the Travelers came back with five runs in the second inning. Everhart delivered the biggest hit in the inning with a double that scored two runs.

Then, the Travelers went on another scoring outburst in the fourth inning with six more runs. Ollison, Everhart and Avyn Burkhart all had hits that scored runs in the inning.

The Travelers are now 13-10-1 on the season after losing to the Inevitable A's 6-0 Thursday, June 20.

Smith-Cotton alum finishes in Top 10 of golf tournament

Pannier finished with a three-day total of 223 (+7). She shot a 76 (+4) in Round 1, a 74 (+2) in the second round and 73 (+1) in the final round.

Wildwood's Brooke Biermann was the tournament champion with a three-day total of 211 (-5).

Beard sisters keep winning at KC Summer Slam

Natalie and Gretchen Beard came home with two more second place finishes at the Eagle Slam series of the KC Summer Slam Tennis Tournaments this week.

The Beard sisters entered the girls varsity doubles as the No. 1 seed, but ended up taking second place Tuesday, June 18. The Smith-Cotton duo won their first two matchups 8-1 before falling in the championship round 8-6.

Then, Natalie Beard finished second in the girls varsity singles Thursday, June 20, after she finished second in the same event of the Hornet Slam series on June 6.

Natalie Beard cruised her way to the championship round by winning her first four matches 8-0, 8-1, 8-0 and 8-2, but fell to North Kansas City's Angel Denopol 8-0 in the championship round.

Gretchen Beard also competed in the girls varsity singles and won her first round matchup 8-2, but lost to Denopol in the second round 8-0.

The Beard sisters will be back at the KC Summer Slam in the Summit Slam series starting July 9.

ALL ABOUT ART

Find yourself by helping nonprofits

Dustin Schmidt
Guest Columnist

Volunteering for a nonprofit organization offers many benefits, both personally and professionally. Engaging in such work can be a transformative experience, enriching your life in ways you might not initially expect. From building lasting relationships to enhancing your career prospects, becoming a member of a nonprofit group is a rewarding endeavor that goes beyond mere altruism.

Personal Gains

On a personal level, volunteering for a nonprofit allows you to immerse yourself in causes and activities that resonate with your values and interests. The first step is to find a group whose mission aligns with your passions. Whether it's art, community development, or animals, choosing a nonprofit that reflects your interests ensures that your involvement will be meaningful and fulfilling.

One of the most rewarding aspects of volunteering is the opportunity to make new friendships. When you volunteer, you meet people with similar interests and values, which makes it easier to form deep, lasting connections. These relationships often extend beyond the volunteer setting, enriching your social life and providing a support network.

Additionally, volunteering allows you to make an impact on your community. Your efforts contribute to creating a better environment, whether you're helping to clean up local parks, organizing art events, or providing services to those in need. This sense of contribution can be incredibly satisfying, reinforcing your sense of purpose and belonging.

Moreover, volunteering can be a powerful way to show others that you care about more than just personal gain. By dedicating your time and energy to a cause, you demonstrate a commitment to something larger than yourself, which can inspire others to take action as well. This kind of influence can ripple through your community, fostering a culture of giving and mutual support.

Through volunteering, you also have the chance to learn more about yourself. Engaging in different activities and facing new challenges can reveal strengths and talents you might not have known you possessed. This self-discovery can boost your confidence and help you to develop a clearer sense of your goals and aspirations.

Furthermore, volunteering is an excellent way to acquire new skills and improve existing ones. Whether you're organizing events, managing projects, or working directly with people, you'll be developing valuable competencies that can be applied in various aspects of your life. These skills not only enhance your personal growth but also make you more adaptable and resourceful in different situations.

Professional Benefits

From a professional standpoint, volunteering can significantly enhance your career prospects. One strategic approach is to volunteer with a group that operates in a field related to your career or an area you wish to explore in the future. This alignment can provide you with practical experience and insights that are directly applicable to your professional development.

Volunteering can expand your professional network. By working alongside other volunteers, staff and board members, you can make valuable contacts within your industry. These connections can lead to job opportunities, mentorships and collaborations that might not have been possible otherwise.

Additionally, volunteering exposes you to a wealth of resources that can aid your professional growth. Nonprofit organizations often provide training and development opportunities that can enhance your skill set. From workshops to conferences, these experiences can equip you with the knowledge and tools needed to excel in your career.

Kite adventures in Sedalia

Kite artist visits Boonslick Library

This week, children at Boonslick Regional Library in Sedalia have been treated to an art project featuring stunt kites by Missouri hobbyist George Blume.

Blume, of Kansas City, gave two programs this week, one on Tuesday, June 17, and the other on Thursday, June 20, for the library's "Adventure Begins at Your Library" summer event. To accompany his presentations, he decorated Boonslick with around 28 of his kites, including a dragon, a World War II plane, a carousel, a moon dart, a helicopter, and a butterfly.

As a child, he became a fan of kites and began flying stunt kites, which use two to four strings instead of one, with his father, Arnold Blume, as he grew older. From 1987 to 2024, Blume has amassed 60 kites worth thousands of dollars — some spanning 10 feet in width. A retired school teacher, Blume and his wife, Shelia, and daughters Heather and Lisa were featured in the Hayes, Kansas, newspaper in 1990 due to their camaraderie of flying kites as a family.

On Tuesday, while at the library, Blume spoke to the Democrat about his love for kites over the years. He said that he outgrew the standard one-stringed kite for more adventurous stunt kites as he grew older.

"Then, when my children were 6 and 12, my folks used to winter on Mustang Island down by Corpus Christie," he noted. "And they took us on a trip. They wanted to show the girls where they spent the winter.

"And we pulled into a kite shop," he continued with a laugh. "And my dad and I ended up coming out with three (kites) apiece. And then I bought three more and three more."

In 1990, Blume created a "train" of kites that featured nine triangular kites flown together. Stunt kites can have a powerful wind lift, and once, when his daughter Lisa, who was 15 at the time, tried to fly the train, it lifted her off the ground and Blume had to swoop in and grab her waist to keep her on the ground.

"The padded handles that you see over there, the heavy ones, there's a reason because that is 300-pound Kevlar line, and the reason for that is because I broke the 250. These (kites), they will drag you around.

"To get these off the ground, you've got to have somebody pick up the back kite and pull them tight," he added. "And then, once the air starts catching them, you turn loose. Without getting your feet caught in the tails."

Blume added that he flies kites only for fun; when he was young, there wasn't time for him to become a professional and enter contests.

"I just have fun," he noted. "I was a school teacher when I was doing this. I was in the fire department, I was also an EMT with the ambulance service, and I was also an organist at the church and choir director.

"So, for me to enter a contest, I didn't have enough time," he continued. "To do that, you're flying kites three and four hours a day."

Over the years, Blume also began collecting kites and enjoys going to his family's cabin at the Lake of the Ozarks and raising a kite to fly while there.

ENTERTAINMENT BRIEFS

Missouri River artist to visit Marshall Library

Missouri artist Steve Snell will talk about his "Adventure Art on the Mighty Mo'" film series at 6 p.m. Tuesday, June 25 as part of the Marshall Public Library summer reading program.

Snell traveled the length of the Missouri River painting what he saw. Starting at the headwaters in Montana, he created more than a hundred paintings while on expedition down the river. Several of these paintings will be on display at the library throughout the month.

Before the evening presentation, Snell will host a "plein air" watercolor workshop at Indian Foothills Park at 3 p.m., inviting local residents ages 16 and up to learn how to paint landscapes. En plein air is a French expression meaning "in the open air" and refers to the act of painting outdoors.

DURRILL ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Durrill, of Sedalia, will celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary with a weekend getaway.

Kimberly Callahan and Thomas Durrill were married June 9, 1984, at First Baptist Church in Windsor by Elvis Durrill.

Mr. Durrill is medically retired. Mrs. Durrill is a paraprofessional at Pettis County R-XII School.

The couple has four children, Amanda (Marty) Baughman-Durrill of Tipton, Brandon (Emily) Durrill of Sedalia, and two additions they consider their own as well: Brendan Durrill of Sedalia and the late Timothy Callahan; and one grandchild.

NEWS FROM THE CLUB

Summer programs are a hit in the community

By Brooke Wilkens
Boys & Girls Clubs Executive Director

The summer programs for the Boys & Girls Clubs of West Central Missouri have seen a huge increase in attendance for the 2024 summer.

This program is operated in four different locations: Heber Hunt Elementary, Sedalia Middle School, the Sedalia Housing Authority and our newest Fayette site. The Boys & Girls Clubs offer a fun, safe and interactive environment for kids who have just completed kindergarten to those entering high school.

The summer programs run from June 3 to Aug. 9. Some of the activities are attending the Hot Air Balloon & Kite Festival, the State Fair Community College Nurses Fair, Whiteman Air Force Base STEM Day and our annual National Night Out. Two field trips have been scheduled, one to the Kansas City Zoo and the other to the Missouri State Fair.

Thanks to the generous support of the Sedalia and surrounding communities, this year's summer program is offered at no charge for all eligible students. Along with the programs, the Clubs are able to offer breakfast, lunch and a snack daily to all attending.

Currently, our third and fourth grade classes are completely full! We have begun the process of hiring more staff and have started a waiting list for those who would like to attend. If you would like to sign up your child, get put on the waiting list or donate to the Club, please find us online at www.bgckids.com or call your local office at 660-826-8331.

Find out the latest news from the Boys & Girls Clubs of West Central Missouri, plus information on upcoming events and stories about Club members, in this monthly column published by the Democrat.

Brooke Wilkens is the Executive Director of Boys & Girls Clubs of West Central Missouri. She can be reached at 660-826-8331 or bwilkens@bgckids.com.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Ham Radio Club to host public field day

The public is invited to attend Ham Radio Field Day presentations from 1 p.m. Saturday, June 22 to 1 p.m. Sunday, June 23 at the Cooper County Youth Fairgrounds in Boonville.

Ham radio operators will be participating in a national exercise to contact other "hams" around the world as they test their equipment and skills to make radio contact. Hot dogs and hamburgers will be shared around 6 p.m. Saturday.

Public Works to spray for mosquitos & flies

The Sedalia Public Works Department will be spraying for mosquitoes and flies between midnight and 6 a.m. in the areas bordered by the below-listed streets on each of the following days. The spraying is weather permitting with rain resulting in rescheduling:

Monday, June 24: Broadway Boulevard south to the south city limits and Ohio Avenue west to the west city limits (to include Missouri State Fairgrounds).

Tuesday, June 25: Broadway Boulevard north to the north city limits, Ohio Avenue west to the west city limits.

Sedalia Parks & Rec looking for parade entries

Sedalia Parks and Recreation is looking for entries for the annual Fourth of July parade, which will be hosted at 10 a.m. Thursday, July 4 in downtown Sedalia.

Registration to join the parade is open, and all enthusiastic participants are invited to join. There are several ways to participate:

Floats: Decorate a float representing your organization, business, or neighborhood. Let your creativity shine as you showcase the spirit of Independence Day with the theme "United We Shine."

Bands: School and community bands are welcome to provide lively music and entertainment along the parade route.

Walking Groups: Gather friends, family, or organization members for a fun walk in the parade. Dress in your best red, white, and blue attire and show your patriotic spirit.

Classic Cars: Showcase a classic car or vintage vehicle in the parade and add a touch of nostalgia to the festivities.

Community Organizations: Local clubs, nonprofits, and community groups are encouraged to participate by showcasing their missions and activities.

Registration is free, but spots are limited. To register, visit secure.rec1.com/MO/sedalia-mo-/catalog and fill out the online form, stop by the Heckart Community Center, or call at 660-826-4930. The deadline is June 26.

Community to gather to 'Cheer for Life' observance

The "Cheer for Life" commemoration service will begin at noon June 24 at the Pettis County Courthouse, led by local pastors and community leaders.

The keynote speaker is Michelle A. Blackwell, an adoptee and an adoptive mother from Branson. Blackwell has worked as a brain trauma nurse, an ICU nurse, and hospice nurse. She and her husband founded Hearts Intertwined Ministries, which exists to encourage, empower and help transform marriages through a deep personal relationship with God and their spouse.

The event is sponsored by the Sedalia Chapter of Missouri Right to Life, the largest pro-life group in the state of Missouri. For more information, visit www.missourilife.org.

PASTOR'S PULPIT

Learning to ride the waves of life

By Pastor Tara Thompson
Associate Pastor, First Christian Church

Recently, my 4-year-old son and I were on vacation at Table Rock Lake. He was so excited to go to White Water for the first time – water, slides, and wave pool! What 4-year-old wouldn't love that? My son is what you would call a daredevil. Me, on the other hand? I'm terrified of heights.

Most of the slides that my son is tall enough to ride were fine. That was until we got to the mat race slide. It's one of those TALL ones you can see from Highway 76 in Branson. As we were walking up the steps with our mat, my son kept saying "OH MY, OH MY, OH MY" with excitement. I was thinking the same thing for a much different reason. I kept asking the lifeguards if he was really tall enough to ride this ride. With each step up, I took deeper and deeper breaths, preparing myself mentally for us to plummet down this slide while my son was jumping with excitement proclaiming it was the best day ever.

Then the moment of truth came. A time for me to face my fears. We were finally at the top of the stairs, waiting for the lifeguard to tell us to lay down our mat and to get ready. When it was time, we laid our mats down on the water slide, laid down on our bellies, and down we went over many bumps with water spraying in my face. While it was quick, it was quite a ride. Interpret that how you wish. I remember my best friend calling me out of my shock from the ride saying, "Tara, Tara, are you OK?!" That's never a good sign, is it?

Yes, I was OK. Just a little bruised and battered. I started thinking, that ride is like life, isn't it? Sometimes we are on an incline going up, or sometimes our descent is wild and bumpy. Whatever it is, our knuckles are often white as we hold onto the mat we are riding on and often times we hear someone calling out of the darkness, asking if we are OK.

The difference is the mat we are clinging to. Does the mat bring things into your life that give hope, love and encouragement? Or does this mat whiplash you with all the negatives in life? I think we often find ourselves clinging to the wrong mat as we are riding the waves of life.

Not only should we look at the mat we are clinging to, sometimes with white knuckles, and wonder if it is the mat of Jesus or the mat of worldly things we are told we need to cling to; there are also times we must face our fears. There are times we need to climb those stairs, even if we feel as if we are standing on top of the Ozark Mountains, and trust that Jesus is with us. That he has our back.

There are times when we are called to walk through the valley of the shadow of death. I think that valley looks different for each and every one of us. Our valleys are different. However, they are no less scary than someone else's valley. Your valley might contain doctors appointments after doctors appointments with treatment that leave you drained. Your valley might contain separation from those you love due to disagreements. Your separation might include people telling you that you aren't good enough. Your valley might be overflowing with debt and you feel like you are being pulled under by the waves of life as if in the wave pool.

Whatever those valleys are for you, I hope and pray that you know you are not alone and you are loved beyond your wildest imagination. Whenever you find yourself being hurled down that slide of life, I hope and pray that the mat of Jesus is what you cling to. Even when the waves of life threaten to take us under or the bumps we encounter on the journey seem a little too much to take, holding onto Jesus will always be life-giving.

Even if we might find ourselves jarred from life, we will hear Jesus say, "you are OK because I've got you. I will never leave you or forsake you." What beautiful words to hear during the race of life. I hope you will agree.

When colleges close, students are left scrambling

By Michael Rubinkam and Maryclaire Dale
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Katherine Anderson trekked from Texas to Philadelphia last year for a college program she couldn't find anywhere else, combining the music business, entrepreneurship and technology. Two weeks ago, she received the startling news the university would be shutting down within days.

The closure of the University of the Arts has left her and 1,300 other students scrambling to find somewhere to go or something to do.

By the time the school announced its closure, many colleges had already cut off admissions for the fall. Anderson was accepted into the music industry program at nearby Drexel University, which she said wasn't a perfect match, but "the next best thing, I guess."

"Because of all that's going on, I felt very pressured to make a decision as fast as possible," Anderson said. She is now suing the University of the Arts.

More colleges around the country have been closing as they cope with steep declines in enrollment, a consequence of both changing demographics and the effects of the pandemic. The closures in recent years have left tens of thousands of students in limbo — and at increased risk of never finishing their degrees at all.

Nationwide, private colleges have been closing at a rate of about two per month, according to the State Higher Education Executive Officers Association.

Before announcing it would close, UArts, as it's often called, had trained musicians and artists, dancers and designers in Philadelphia for nearly 150 years. The school had suffered from plunging enrollment and said it was confronted with "significant, unanticipated expenses" that forced its closure. Several state and local investigations are underway into how the university ran out of money so suddenly.

"We have yet to receive the answer to that question," Lynette Kuhn, a high-ranking official in the Pennsylvania Department of Education, said Friday in an online information session for University of the Arts parents and students. Kuhn was responding to one of several questions posed by frustrated students about what university officials knew of its precarious finances — and what they did about it.

"We understand that you students ... face an impossible set of circumstances, with frustration that expands beyond measure," Heather Perfetti, president of the Middle States Commission on Higher Education, an accrediting agency, said at the same session. "We all believe that no academic journey should include this kind of severe and abrupt disruption."

Drummer Adam Machado, 18, came to the University of the Arts from New York's Hudson Valley so he could study a range of styles, including jazz and contemporary, in a major city. He had a $32,000-a-year scholarship, and it's unclear if any other schools will match that. But he also wonders if he'll find the same curriculum, sense of community and ability to pursue gigs in both New York and Philadelphia, where he performed Wednesday night with a band called "Kids That Fly."

He grieves for "not only me, but 1,000 other artists (who) are without a home."

Like many classmates who went through the draining college search process just a year ago, he's not sure what he'll do next.

"You don't really know where to start," said student Cyrus Nasib, 18.

"It's very numbing," said Nasib, a theater major who had just signed a lease for an apartment near the college campus, since his parents are moving from the Philadelphia suburbs to the West Coast. "It kind of just saps your motivation to do anything."

Enrollment at the University of Arts had dropped by nearly half since 2009. Nationwide, the number of college students in the U.S. had already been steadily decreasing for years before the pandemic led to a sharp drop in enrollment. Schools' financial woes have been complicated further by the botched rollout of a new federal financial aid form, which has raised fears that hundreds of thousands of students will forgo college entirely.

The University of the Arts has made arrangements with a half-dozen colleges and universities to take in UArts students and help them complete their degrees. Formal agreements with a half-dozen other schools are under review by the school's accrediting agency.

But the disruptions created by college closures have a history of derailing students' educations.

Nationally, as many as half of students whose campuses close don't resume their studies, according to the State Higher Education Executive Officers Association, whose data surveys both nonprofit and for-profit schools, including two-year colleges. Other students lose credits or have to spend more to enroll elsewhere.

Democratic state lawmakers held a hearing Monday on the University of the Arts shutdown, while the Philadelphia city council plans its own hearing for later this month.

"It throws so many red flags up," said Councilman Mark Squilla. "How can the board not be aware of the financial situation and then say, 'We just found out last minute we couldn't get any money.' Were they already leveraged to the hilt? Did they have a line of credit that they can no longer borrow from? Did the banks shut them off? You know, all these questions, nobody's answering."

Film major Ian Callaghan-Kenna, who commuted by bus to the University of the Arts, has been coping with bouts of intense anxiety — not least because the college already has thousands of dollars of his federal aid for the fall term. He has joined a potential class-action lawsuit against the school.

He said he's most upset by how quickly it happened.

"The fact that they acted like everything was normal and that we were a thriving institution just a couple weeks ago, and now they're just all the sudden $40 million in the tank, having to shut down," he said, referring to one estimate of the shortfall, "it's just very, very upsetting."

Use caution during the hot days of summer

By Democrat Staff

Although it's not July, this week has seen higher-than-normal summer temperatures and heat indices. During a heat wave, it is essential to watch out for heat-related illness.

People who work outside need to take special precautions during heat waves. Missouri Extension Health and Safety Specialist Karen Funkenbusch shared tips for staying safe during summer's high temperatures.

"During heat waves, farmers and ranchers face an increased risk of heat-related illness, which in severe cases can be fatal if untreated," she noted. "It takes new workers time to adjust to heat.

"Healthy workers get used to higher temperatures over a two- or three-day period," she continued. "Within seven to 10 days, they adjust completely. However, it takes only two to three days to return to the original state."

She suggests new workers or workers returning from vacations or sick leave gradually increase workloads and take breaks to build tolerance to heat.

When working with co-workers, one should monitor them for signs of heat-related illness. Funkenbusch said this is especially true for those who do heavy tasks or wear protective clothing. Avoid rapid changes in work intensity. Set up a buddy system to look out for others.

"Heat rash occurs when sweat glands clog due to extreme sweating," she explained. "The rash will look like pimples and white bumps may appear. Mild temperatures cause the rash to disappear.

"Loss of salt and electrolytes causes heat cramps," she continued. "Cramps may occur several hours after you have been out of the heat. They may affect arms, legs, and the abdomen."

Refilling fluids and electrolytes is essential. Drinking liquids that contain electrolytes restores potassium, sodium, and chloride.

"Heat exhaustion also follows heavy sweating," Funkenbusch noted. "Nausea, confusion, headache, and thirst often occur. Getting out of the heat and drinking liquids with electrolytes help return the body to a normal state.

"Heat stroke is a life-threatening situation," she added. "Victims may stagger, become irritable, and lose consciousness. They may have seizures and vomit. Take the victim to a cool place and seek immediate medical attention."

Funkenbusch recommends the following:

- Drink a cup of water every 15-20 minutes to avoid dehydration. Avoid caffeine and carbonated and alcoholic beverages.
- Rest in the shade as needed. Work and rest cycles let the body eliminate excess heat, slow the heart rate, and provide greater blood flow to the skin.
- Wear a hat and light-colored, loose-fitting clothing.
- Slightly increase daily salt intake to replace salt lost by sweat.
- Review medications and their effects on the body during high-heat periods. Diuretics and antihistamines are common drugs that affect heat resistance.
- Check your air conditioner for efficiency. If your home is not air-conditioned, use fans to move air through it, close blinds and shades, and sleep in a cooler part of the house, such as the basement.
- Plan before you go to work. Bring an adequate supply of water, shade devices, and protective clothing. If you work outside, bring sunscreen.
- Be a "cool" cook. Serve cold sandwiches, salads, and other foods that need not be cooked or baked.
- Use the heat index rather than temperature to measure heat. Use air temperatures and humidity to estimate risk. Learn more about the heat index at www.weather.gov/ama/heatindex.

This weekend, the high temperature in Sedalia will reach the low 90s with a low of around 72. Heat index values could reach as high as 95. There is a 40% chance of showers and thunderstorms Saturday night. On Monday and Tuesday, the high will reach near 97. There is a 50% chance of showers and thunderstorms on Tuesday night and a 30% chance on Wednesday. Temperatures will remain in the 90s for the better part of next week.

You don't have to live in the tropics to grow peanuts

By Jessica Damiano
Associated Press

Peanuts are generally grown in southern climes.

Most come from China, India, Nigeria and the southern U.S., which all fall squarely in climates in or similar to USDA hardiness zones 8-11. Which is to say, their summers are long enough to allow for the up to 150 days necessary for the plants to reach maturity.

But with some planning, home growers as far north as zone 6 can also have success growing peanuts for snacking, peanut butter and, of course, bragging rights.

If you live in one of those more northern areas, direct sowing isn't possible, so you'll have to purchase starter plants or start seeds early indoors (or in a greenhouse, if you have one). Then transplant them outdoors two to three weeks after the danger of frost has passed.

With that date in mind, research your first fall frost date and calculate whether there are enough days between them to allow your chosen peanut variety to mature: Valencia takes 90-110 days; Spanish, 90-120; Virginia and runner types, 130-150. If not, calculate the number of extra days (but no less than 14) they'll need to develop indoors and start seeds accordingly. Don't subtract more days because starting seeds too early can result in leggy, stressed plants.

In my Long Island, New York, garden, I would aim for an early April start date.

I recommend buying seeds from a specialty garden center or a seed catalog. Yes, you can theoretically crack open raw, unsalted, in-the-shell peanuts from the grocery store and plant them — and if you do, take care not to remove the red seed coat — but you'll have no way of knowing which variety you are planting or how long they've been sitting in their shells and under what conditions.

In zones 8-11, plant seeds directly outdoors in full sun (a south-facing slope is ideal) between mid-April and mid-June. Loosen soil and sow 2 inches deep and 10 inches apart in rows 20 inches apart. Keep the soil moist until they sprout, then provide 1 to 1½ inches of water per week, including rainfall.

In zones 6 and 7, sow seeds indoors about 1 inch deep in individual biodegradable pots, and place them under grow lights or by your sunniest window. Water about once a week and transplant the entire pot outdoors two to three weeks after the soil temperature has warmed to at least 60 degrees and the danger of frost has passed. Starter plants, if using, should be set out at the same time.

Hill soil around the bottoms of plants, as you would potatoes, beginning when they are a foot tall, by applying 2 inches of straw or dried grass clippings around them to encourage "pegging," or underground seed production. Those seeds are peanuts, so they must be dug up to be harvested.

Because peanuts aren't actually nuts but rather legumes, like beans and peas, they capture nitrogen from the air and add it to the soil, so avoid applying nitrogen fertilizers around plants.

Self-pollinating yellow flowers will emerge roughly 40 days after planting. Petal drop is a sign that peanut formation, or pegging, has begun underground.

Depending on your variety and growing conditions, leaves will turn yellow about four to five months after seeds are planted, signaling it's time to harvest.

Dig up plants — roots and all — shake off excess soil, and place in a dry spot with good air circulation for two to three days until the remaining foliage dries completely. Remove peanut pods from roots, then roast, or store unshelled peanuts in airtight containers. They'll keep for about a year.

What's a heat dome? Here's why so much of the US is broiling this week

By Tammy Webber
Associated Press

FENTON, Mich. — With much of the Midwest and the Northeast broiling — or about to broil — in extreme summer heat this week, meteorologists are talking about heat waves and heat domes.

Both mean it's really hot — and people will hear those terms a lot more as the world heats up. What's the difference?

Here's what to know:

What's a heat dome?

It's helpful to think of a heat dome as what's happening in the atmosphere. A heat wave is how that affects people on the ground, said Ken Kunkel, a research professor of atmospheric sciences at North Carolina State University.

When a high-pressure system develops in the upper atmosphere, it causes the air below it to sink and compress. That raises temperatures in the lower atmosphere.

Because hot air expands, it creates a bulging dome.

The boundaries of this week's heat dome are not well-defined, Kunkel said, but the National Weather Service has said that the most extreme heat is expected in the Ohio Valley and the Northeast.

The eastern heat dome follows an earlier-than-usual one this month in the Southwest. Last year, there were 645 heat-related deaths in Phoenix.

What is a heat wave?

A heat wave is defined by how intense the heat is, how long it lasts and where it occurs, said Jeff Masters, a meteorologist with Yale Climate Connections.

In general, several days of 90-plus degree temperatures in Texas are "no big deal," Masters said. But farther north, it is forecasted to be in the mid- to high-90s over the Midwest and Northeast this week, with heat indexes of 100 F (38 C) or greater.

"The population's just not conditioned to that sort of heat," he said.

The National Weather Service said that some areas likely will reach daily records, with the heat wave lasting all week and into the weekend in some places.

The combination of clear skies and the higher summertime angle of the sun can result in high heat index readings, a measure of temperature combined with humidity. Humidity makes the weather feel hotter because the body cools itself by sweating and has to work harder when the air's already moist.

UCM expands out-of-state scholarship program

The University of Central Missouri announced the expansion of its automatic, in-state, out-of-state scholarship program, which now includes residents of Louisiana and Mississippi. This initiative was approved by the UCM Board of Governors in March.

Currently, the UCM Bound Out-of-State Scholarship offers a tuition reduction equivalent to in-state tuition for residents of states with Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletics Association member institutions and bordering states.

"Providing in-state tuition to our newest MIAA member bordering states furthers our commitment to offer valuable higher education degrees that are accessible and affordable," said UCM President Roger Best. "The success of our students remains our top priority as evidenced by our national rankings along with career placement rates that are substantially higher than the national average. UCM is home to students from 48 states and 52 countries. It is our privilege to welcome them to our community."

Effective July 1, the University of Arkansas-Fort Smith will join the MIAA, thereby designating Louisiana and Mississippi as new border states. This expansion aligns with the board's March 2021 decision to extend the non-resident tuition waiver to all states with MIAA member institutions and their neighboring states, previously adding five states to the scholarship program.

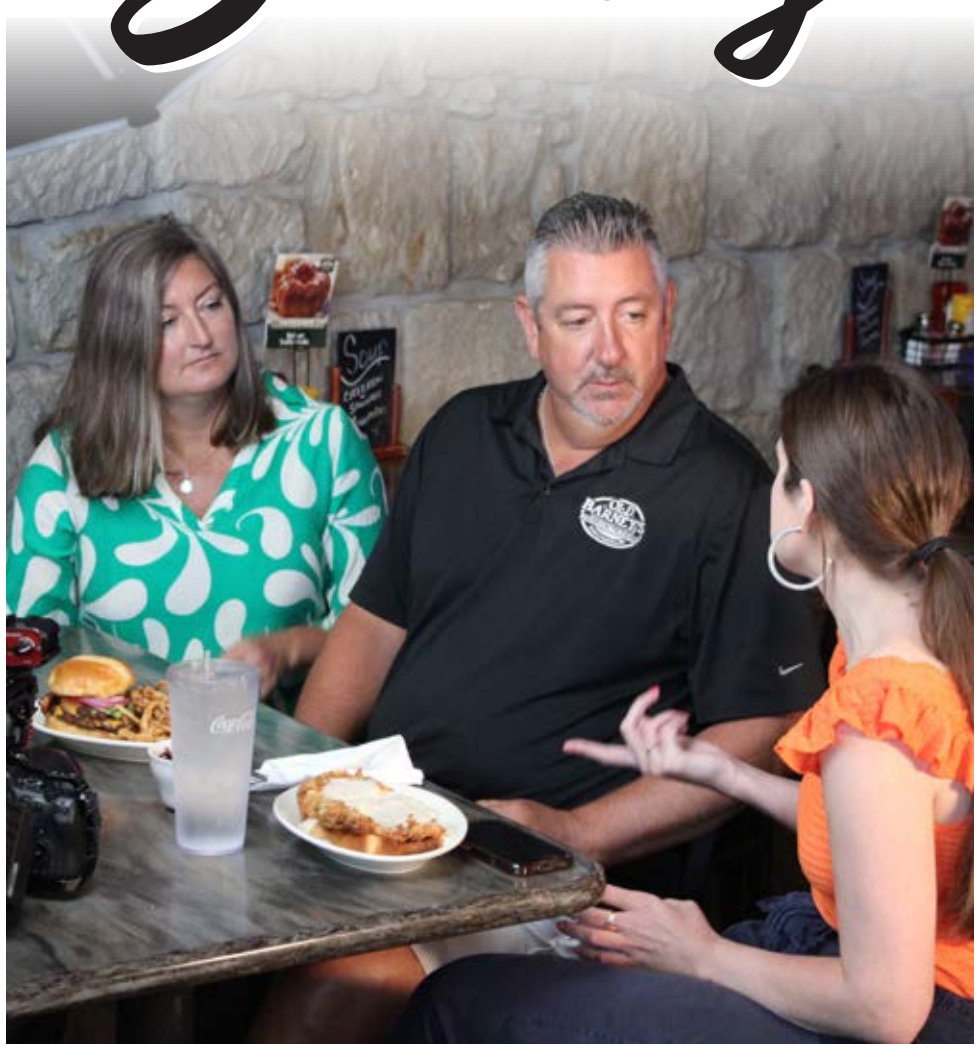

With this expansion, UCM continues its commitment to providing greater access and success for students from diverse geographic regions. For more information regarding eligibility, visit ucmo.edu or contact UCM Student Financial Services at 660-543-8266.

America's Best Restaurants to feature Old Barney's

Old Barney's Bar & Grill has a reputation that speaks for itself.

As its sign says as you walk into the restaurant, Old Barney's has been "A Warrensburg tradition since 1941."

With a menu consisting of its hand-breaded pork tenderloin, the chicken fingers, and its "Barney Burger," it seems that Barney's can fit everyone's tastes.

With that long-standing relationship with the city and a menu that suits all, the restaurant's accolades have begun piling up. In previous years, Old Barney's has won the Warrensburg Star-Journal's Best of the 'Burg for Best Burger, Best Sports Bar and Best Bartender, with the 2024 results to be announced in July.

Its latest proud honor is being featured on "America's Best Restaurants Road Show," a social media restaurant show that tours the county in search of the best eats.

Owner Stacey Fitterer and his wife, Holly, were interviewed as part of the show to go along with video highlights of Old Barney's food and culture. Fitterer could not be reached by press time.

ABR Show host Danyel Detomo spoke to the Star-Journal when the show toured the Warrensburg restaurant on May 20, speaking on the show's production and values.

"We go around state to state with a film crew and we film an episode for social media," Detomo said. "When we go to the restaurants, they feature three to five of their menu items. We talk about what makes them unique, why the customers enjoy them, anything cool they do. We taste (the food) on camera, and then we go into learning the history of the restaurant and how it started."

Old Barney's was chosen to appear on the show after a community member contacted ABR on its social media.

"It could happen in one of three ways," Detomo said. "Someone in the community will see what we do, and they'll go on our website and nominate them. The owner might see what we do and reach out. Then, of course, when it's kind of a staple in the community."

Detomo pointed to the uniqueness of a restaurant like Old Barney's and how it paired perfectly with ABR's values.

"It's a lot of fun because local spots are (like) hidden gems," Detomo said. "You go somewhere to visit and you want to know, 'Where do the locals go?'"

"It's just really cool to be able to showcase these true local spots because they all have a unique story and it's fun to show their community this is what they're all about."

America's Best Restaurants was founded by CEO Matt Plapp, who had a vision of marketing small-town restaurants around the country and wanted to use the power of social media to do so.

In 2021, he launched the road show with around five employees. Now, ABR, which is based in Florence, Kentucky, has a 50- to 60 person crew that travels the country.

"We are really big on helping people with their social media because social media is what gets people's name out there now," Detomo said. "You go somewhere to eat, what do you look at? Social media."

Keep an eye out for Old Barney's episode on America's Best Restaurants or Old Barney's Facebook page when it gets published in the coming months. The video will also be posted to ABR's YouTube channel and website.

Old Barney's has won the Star-Journal's Best of the 'Burg for Best Burger, Best Sports Bar and Best Bartender in previous years. The 2024 results will be announced in July.

Main Street accepting additions to downtown Selfie Trail

Warrensburg Main Street is accepting bid proposals for additional art pieces to be added to Downtown Warrensburg.

Over the last several years, Warrensburg Main Street's Design and Art Committee has worked to bring more color and art to downtown Warrensburg. Using many local artists, students and groups, the organization has added more than a dozen pieces of artwork.

Warrensburg Main Street is seeking local artists to submit a proposal for a mural on the south wall of Ivory & Lace Bridal Boutique, 124 N. Holden St., owned by Rachel Mifflin.

"Warrensburg Main Street Art Committee thought this location would be a great placemaking mural. This would allow for brides of Ivory & Lace and visitors to Downtown to have a destination photo, which could help market the Downtown area," Executive Director Jamie DeBacker said. "The committee and business owner decided they wanted to see a theme of love, loving Downtown Warrensburg, being proud of the community or a similar concept for this next mural."

The mural will be added as a stop on the "interactive selfie trail," which was started in 2020. The trail is a twist on a typical selfie wall or mural. A "selfie wall" is when an artist creates artwork that encourages an individual to do an action or become part of the art. Examples include butterfly wings or blowing a bubble. These murals are slightly hidden or off the main street of downtown Warrensburg, allowing for an art scavenger hunt for visitors.

Proposal requirements include that the art piece must fit within a 6-foot by 8-foot space and can be added to a variety of surfaces such as brick, cement, etc. The deadline is July 2. Proposals can be submitted at www.warrensburgmainstreet.org under Downtown Opportunities, Selfie Trail. Submissions can also be emailed to director@warrensburgmainstreeet.org or mailed/dropped off at 125C N. Holden St. Warrensburg, MO 64093.

For more information, contact Warrensburg Main Street through email or at 660-429-3988.

Butler, Hardy, Comer capture 1960s rebel cool in 'The Bikeriders'

By Lindsey Bahr
AP Film Writer

Jeff Nichols had dreamt of making a film about a 1960s motorcycle club for over 20 years.

The obsession started when he first cracked open Danny Lyon's book "The Bikeriders," a New Journalism-style account of the Chicago Outlaws Motorcycle Club in the mid-1960s. He saw it as a story about rebels, romantics, frauds and the end of an era.

But he didn't quite realize just how terrifying it would be to film the motorcycles in motion.

The bikes were vintage. The actors, including Austin Butler and Tom Hardy, would be riding at high speeds. And there would be no helmets. At some point, one of his stunt coordinators just came out with it: "There is no way to make this 100% safe."

They went for it. The danger was kind of the point. And everyone made it out unscathed.

"The Bikeriders" (racing into theaters nationwide Friday) is a rare summer gem: An original film with stars (including Jodie Comer, Michael Shannon, Norman Reedus and Mike Faist), cool cred, pathos and a clear-eyed wistfulness for a brief moment and a type of guy.

"This is a film that's really about nostalgia," Nichols said. There is a sadness that comes with that. But there's also a joy in remembering it."

Catching a star on the riseNichols has always had luck with casting, getting movie stars in his films right as they're about to break big (like Jessica Chastain in "Take Shelter").

For "The Bikeriders," it was Butler. " Elvis " had yet to come out, but when he met him, he was certain: This is a movie star.

"I read a lot of scripts and this one just felt different," Butler said. "It felt full of humanity and these cinematic moments…I felt like I was being invited into this other world. And he was one of the coolest characters I've ever read."

Butler's Benny is also the most enigmatic of the bunch: A guy whose face is never shown in Lyon's book and who is never interviewed – just talked about.

"I love how Jeff talks about him as being this empty cup that everybody wants to fill with their own expectations and their own responsibilities. He doesn't want any of that," Butler said. "That's when he wants to cut loose and be free."

Nichols wanted Benny to be bottled up until the end and remembered telling his star to "pull it back" a few times.

"Like, stop smiling," Nichols laughed. "When that kid smiles the whole world smiles."

But he soon realized that was missing the point of casting someone like Butler — an emotive actor with a big heart.

"That character got better because of him," Nichols said.

A different point of viewOne of Nichols' biggest breakthroughs was when he realized the narrator should be Kathy, who falls for Benny at first sight and gets wrapped up in the club.

"She just pops off the page," Nichols said. "She's witty, she's introspective, she's self-deprecating, she's infuriating at times. She is a real person."

Comer saw in her a fascinating character, an "ordinary" but still extraordinary person that reminded her of women she knew growing up in Liverpool. She worked tirelessly to nail Kathy's very specific working-class Chicago accent.

But on another level, she was just a better voice for what he wanted to say.

"The ultimate truth, and a subtext of the film, is that men are really bad at sharing their emotions," he said. "Observing this group in the hands of a male narrator I think would be really boring."

Fact, fiction and telling a good story"The Bikeriders" is a work of fiction. Nichols didn't want to be the historian of the Outlaws, a group which still exists. He mostly wanted to capture this time and culture and evoke the feeling he got when he opened that book so many years ago.

But he also draws heavily on Lyon's images, some of which are recreated, and reporting. Much of Kathy's dialogue are things the real Kathy, who was married to Benny, said. Hardy's character Johnny was also apparently inspired by the Marlon Brando film "The Wild One" to start the club. He was the leader and also a bit of a fraud — a suburban dad with a real job on the side.

Nichols chose to make the film in color, instead of mimicking Lyon's famous use of black-and-white photography.

"They're beautiful, but they are romanticized," Nichols said. "I think when you put them in color, they become less affected. They become more realistic."

The joys and pains of riding those bikesLike Butler, Hardy came into the film with some motorcycle know-how. But neither would describe it as a leg up — antique bikes are a different beast.

"It just happens to be a convenience because I can ride as opposed to lying about skiing," Hardy said.

Still, once they got it down it could be rather exciting.

"It was exhilarating riding in a giant group," Butler said. "You feel the energy of every motorcycle coming together."

Comer said riding on the back of Benny's bike, in the Cincinnati night with engines roaring and street lights twinkling, was "a really magical kind of movie moment."

And the danger was ever-present. But it also resulted in some real movie magic, like the near-impossible recreation of one of Lyon's most famous photographs with a single rider speeding across the Ohio Bridge.

In the film, Butler is the rider. They had shut down a bridge. They couldn't do it more than twice (both logistically and because they couldn't risk anything with their star). They had a 35mm film camera mounted on a car with a moving crane, attempting to speed alongside Butler.

"All of a sudden we lock in the cameras in the right spot, the bridge is in the right spot, Austin looks back, then he drives off," Nichols said. "And you're like holy (expletive): 'We got it.'"

KITES

Blume added he's invested in buying specialized bags to preserve his kites.

"One of the things I like to impress upon people is that when you get serious about kite flying, and you're willing to spend a little more on a quality kite, you keep it well," he noted. "You protect it; you just don't lay it down in the corner."

He added flying stunt kites is an excellent way to keep one's brain alert.

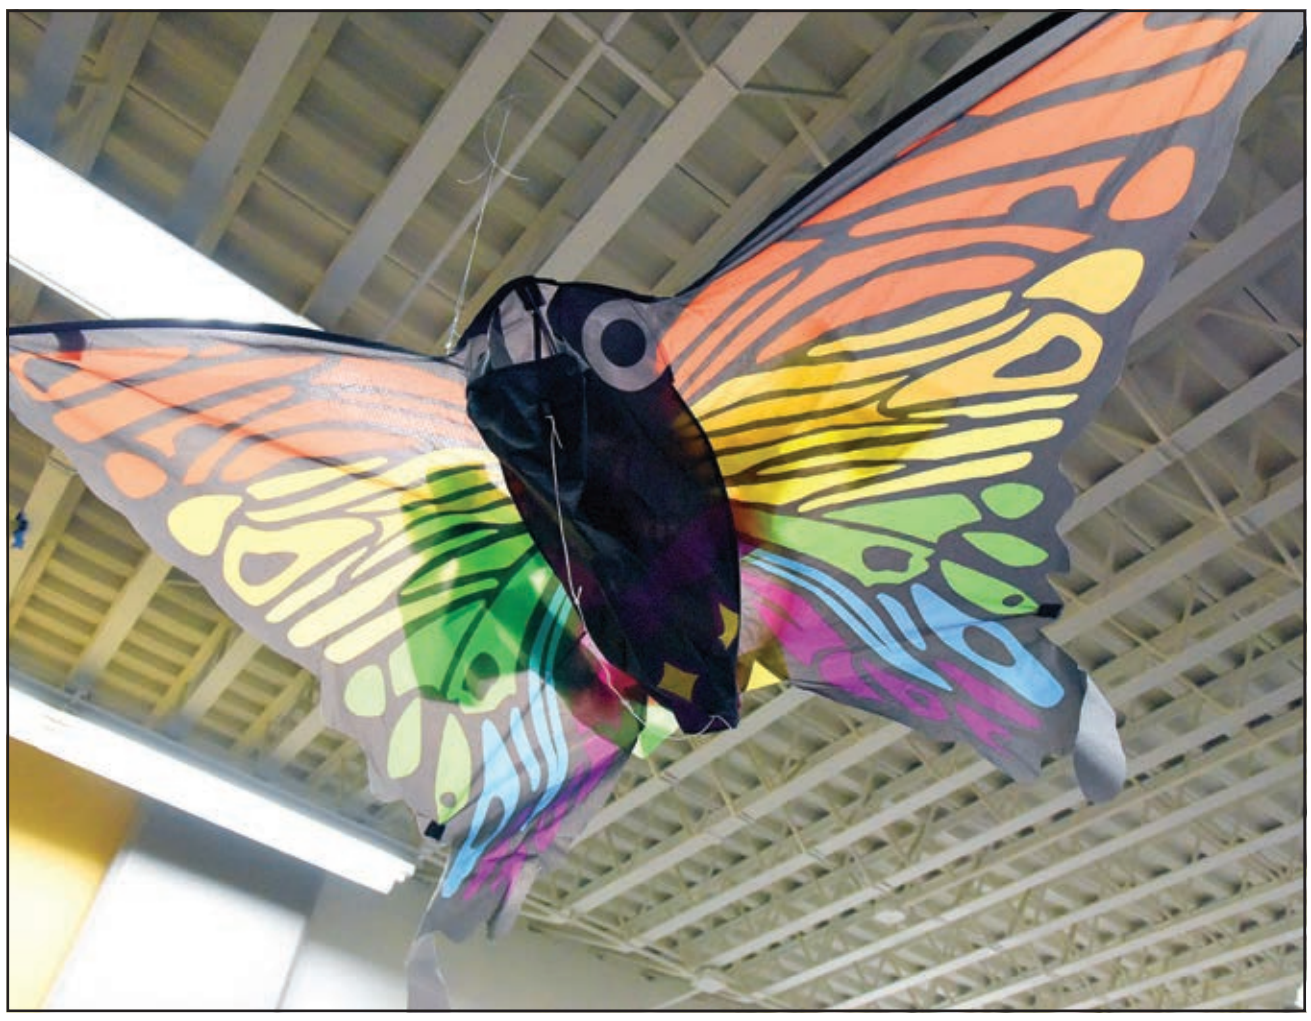

"No. 1, stunt kites, keep your mind sharp," he noted. "Because if you don't stay ahead of that kite, you going to put it in the ground."

For those interested in flying kites, Blume will also have an adult kite program at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, June 29.

Volunteering also offers numerous opportunities to develop and showcase your leadership skills. Whether you're leading a team, coordinating events, or managing projects, you'll gain practical experience in guiding and motivating others. These experiences can be invaluable when seeking leadership roles in your professional life.

Moreover, volunteering allows you to build and enhance your resume. Employers value candidates who have a demonstrated commitment to their community and who possess a diverse set of skills and experiences. By including your volunteer work on your resume, you highlight your initiative, dedication and ability to work well with others.

Engaging with a diverse group of professionals through volunteering can also improve your communication skills. Working with people from different backgrounds and with varying perspectives can enhance your ability to convey ideas clearly and effectively. This improved communication can be a significant asset in any professional setting.

In conclusion, volunteering for a nonprofit organization can profoundly impact your life, providing both personal satisfaction and professional development. The benefits of volunteering extend far beyond the immediate gratification of helping others; they encompass a broad spectrum of personal growth and career advancement opportunities. By dedicating your time and skills to a nonprofit, you not only contribute to a worthy cause but also enrich your own life and community.

REAL ESTATE & ESTATE AUCTION

4574 HWY JJ, FLORENCE, MO (TIPTON SCHOOLS) ~ 116 ACRES M/L SOLD IN 4 TRACTS

To settle the estate of Jerry Connor, we will offer the following described real estate, machinery and personal property at public auction located: From the Junction of Highways D & JJ (south of Syracuse), Take JJ highway west 3.4 miles to the sale site on the right (at the home on Tract 1). Watch for the orange auction signs on:

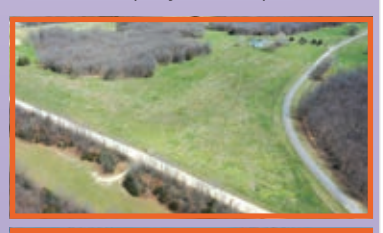

SATURDAY, JUNE 29TH, 2024 10AM

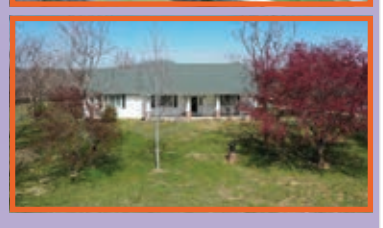

PROPERTY VIEWING FOR ALL 4 TRACTS: THURSDAY, JUNE 20TH, 6-7:30 PM

TERMS: We will sell Tract 1, followed by Tract 2 to the high bidder with NO RESERVE. After they have sold, we will offer tracts 3 and 4 choice to the high bidder with NO RESERVE! The winning bidder will be able to choose either tract or both. Tracts 3 & 4 will be sold by the acre with the winning bid multiplied by the total number of acres in the tract(s). Acres here are estimates only - final prices will be determined by surveyed acres. We will require $25,000 down on each of the 4 tracts the day of the auction. If one buyer purchases more than one tract, the down payment will be an aggregate of the requirement for all tracts purchased. The balance of the purchase price for each tract will be due at a real estate closing to be held on or before Tuesday, August 13th, 2024. The seller will provide an owner's title insurance policy; the buyer(s) will be responsible for any lender's title policy. Taxes will be prorated at closing, and the closing fee at the title company will be split 50/50.

TRACT 1 - 27.5 ACRES M/L 1- Tract 1 is nearly 73% open (around 20 acres) pasture/grassland, with the residual in timber. The property has perimeter fencing, and plenty of access with ¼ mile of Highway JJ frontage on the south and ¼ mile of Jaybird Road (gravel) frontage on the west. The beautiful custom home on tract 1 was built in 2000. The main floor offers 3 bedrooms, 2 bathrooms, a living room, large formal dining room, sitting room, mud/laundry room, large eat-in kitchen (with appliances) and a 2-car attached garage. The full basement is partially finished with another bedroom, a 3rd bathroom, a kitchenette with dining area and a large storage area. The home has central heat (LP) & air, and is serviced by a well & lagoon. The home has beautiful custom wood floors and woodwork throughout (including crown moldings in many rooms). Nearly every room has a unique vaulted ceiling.

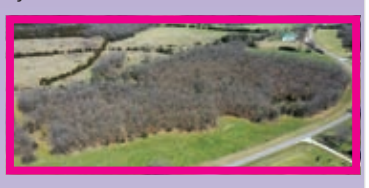

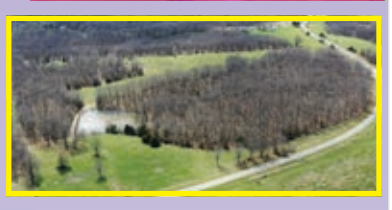

TRACT 2 - 8 ACRES M/L Tract 2 is about 50% open with the residual in timber. The tract boasts a 3-bedroom, 1-bathroom manufactured home that was built in 1980. The home has a kitchen (with stove & refrigerator), a dining room, living room and laundry area. The home boasts central heat (LP gas) and air, and is serviced by a well (with new pump in 2023) & lagoon. The acreage also has a 15' x 24' detached garage/workshop with electricity, concrete floor and an overhead door. Highway JJ forms the northern boundary and South Jaybird Lane (gravel) is the eastern boundary.

TRACT 3 - 27.5 ACRES M/L Tract 3 is about 30% open (around 8 acres) pasture/grassland, with the residual in timber and a pond. The acreage has perimeter fencing on, and offers some nice building spots. Tract 3 has nearly 3-tenths of a mile of Highway JJ frontage all along the southern boundary.

TRACT 4 - 54 ACRES M/L Tract 4 is about 28% open (around 15 acres) pasture/grassland, with the residual in timber and a large pond. The acreage has perimeter fencing, and offers some nice and secluded building spots. There is a ¾ acre pond, and 3-tenths of a mile of Highway JJ frontage all along the northern boundary.

TRACTORS & EQUIPMENT 1 - 2014 John Deere 4052R MFWD tractor with H180 loader, 3-speed hydro transmission, only 36hrs (looks news), 1 - 2021 Kawasaki Mule 4010 crew cab, gas, 20hrs (nice), 1 - Z-Force L 60" Cub Cadet zero turn mower, 25hp Kohler, 400 hours 1 - Stihl FS56 RC weed eater 1 - Husky air compressor

AUCTIONEER'S NOTE: Wow… what a collection of antiques Jerry had! This will be the best antique sale we've had for as long as I can remember, and it's worth the trip just to come see some of these extremely rare items. The John Deere tractor is ultra slick, and the Kawa saki Mule is all but new. We will start by selling antiques right at 10am, and the shot list of equipment will sell over the noon hour. Please be on time!

WHAT'S NEW ON PRIME VIDEO

"My Lady Jane" - Season 1

Within the annals of history lies the story of Lady Jane Grey, who was crowned Queen of England for nine days in 1553 before being removed from the throne in favor of "Bloody Mary" Tudor, accused of treason and later beheaded. But now, series creator Gemma Burgess, author of the Brooklyn Girls trilogy, is turning history on its head and telling the story the way it should have happened in the new comedy "My Lady Jane," making its debut on Prime Video Thursday, June 27. Set in an alternate fantasy Tudor universe, the series, based on the bestselling book by Cynthia Hand, Brodi Ashton and Jodi Meadows, is a radical retelling of English royal history. In this world, King Henry VIII's son Edward (Jordan Peters, "Everything I Know About Love") doesn't die of tuberculosis, Lady Jane Grey (portrayed by Emily Bader, "Paranormal Activity: Next of Kin," 2021) is not beheaded and neither is her husband, Lord Guildford Dudley (Edward Bluemel, "Killing Eve"). But, the brilliant and headstrong Jane still finds herself crowned queen — and the target of a number of nefarious characters who are after both her crown and her head. But, this time, the damsel in distress is saving herself. Also starring in the series are Dominic Cooper ("Preacher") as Lord Seymour; Anna Chancellor ("The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy," 2005) as Jane's mother, Lady Frances Grey; Rob Brydon ("The Trip") as Lord Dudley, Guildford's father; Jim Broadbent ("Iris," 2001) as the Duke of Leicester, Jane's uncle; Henry Ashton ("Outlander") as Guildford's brother, Stan; Isabella Brownson ("Napoleon," 2023) and Robyn Betteridge ("The Wheel of Time") as Jane's sisters Katherine and Margaret; and Kate O'Flynn ("Bridget Jones's Baby," 2016) and Abbie Hern ("Enola Holmes 2," 2022) portray the King's sisters, Princess Mary and Princess Bess, respectively.

WHAT'S NEW ON AMC+

"Orphan Black: Echoes" - Season 1

Based on the hit Canadian sci-fi series "Orphan Black," AMC's new spinoff, "Orphan Black: Echoes," premieres Sunday, June 23, on AMC+. Set in the near future, "Echoes" follows a group of women whose lives intertwine in unexpected and mysterious ways. Leading them on a thrilling journey, the group begins to "[unravel] the mystery of their identity and uncovering a wrenching story of love and betrayal" (per AMC). Front and center in the show is the story of Lucy, played by Krysten Ritter ("Jessica Jones"). Lucy is described by AMC as "a woman with an unimaginable origin story, trying to find her place in the world." Alongside Ritter, who also acts as an executive producer for the series, "Orphan Black: Echoes" stars Keeley Hawes ("Line of Duty"), Amanda Fix ("North of Normal," 2022), Avan Jogia ("Zombieland: Double Tap," 2019), Rya Kihlstedt ("Superman & Lois") and James Hiroyuki Liao ("Unforgettable"). Anna Fishko ("Fear the Walking Dead") is the creator, writer, showrunner and executive producer, while original series co-creator John Fawcett ("Sight Unseen") directs and executive produces.

WHAT'S NEW ON HULU

"Diane von Furstenberg: Woman in Charge" (2024)

Taking a deep dive into the non-stop life of cultural icon Diane von Furstenberg, the new feature-length documentary "Diane von Furstenberg: Woman in Charge" premieres Tuesday, June 25, on Hulu. Approaching the eve of her retrospective exhibition, which marks an incredible and distinguished 50-year career, the Belgian fashion designer looks back on her career, reflecting on "her pioneering path in a male-dominated realm," in which she challenged the status quo "as an early visionary and influencer … with the bold inquiry, 'Why can't a woman do what a man does?'" (per Hulu). "With resolute determination, [von Furstenberg] faced various challenges — she was a single woman balancing a career, raising two children and bravely confronting cancer. These hurdles didn't stop her; instead, she embraced them and they fueled her mission to inspire women everywhere to pursue their lives with equal passion and purpose and design their own lives. DVF was born to be a woman in charge. And she was born to inspire other women to take charge of their lives" (Hulu). Directed by Sharmeen Obaid-Chinoy ("Ms. Marvel") and Trish Dalton ("Student Athlete," 2018), "Woman in Charge" is produced by Obaid-Chinoy, Fabiola Beracasa ("The First Monday in May," 2016), Tracy Aftergood ("Helen Believe," 2023) and Sean M. Stuart ("The Blue Angels," 2024).

WHAT'S NEW ON NETFLIX

"A Family Affair" (2024)

Exploring the ways in which we never truly stop "coming of age," the multi-generational family comedy film "A Family Affair" premieres Friday, June 28, on Netflix. Zara Ford (Joey King, "We Were the Lucky Ones") is the harried assistant to Chris Cole (Zac Efron, "The Iron Claw," 2023), a conceited movie star and nightmare boss. When Zara's mother, Brooke (Nicole Kidman, "Big Little Lies"), falls into a relationship with Chris, it puts Zara in a horribly awkward position. As the trio move through their lives, "they face the complications of love, sex and identity" (per Netflix). Directed by Richard LaGravenese ("The Divide"), "A Family Affair" is Carrie Solomon's ("The Good Fight") screenwriting debut. Kathy Bates ("The Great Lillian Hall," 2024), Liza Koshy ("Players," 2024), Sherry Cola ("Good Trouble"), Gissette Valentin ("The Walking Dead: World Beyond") and Olivia Macklin ("The Young Pope") round out the cast.

Emily Bader stars in "My Lady Jane"

"That '90s Show" - Part 2

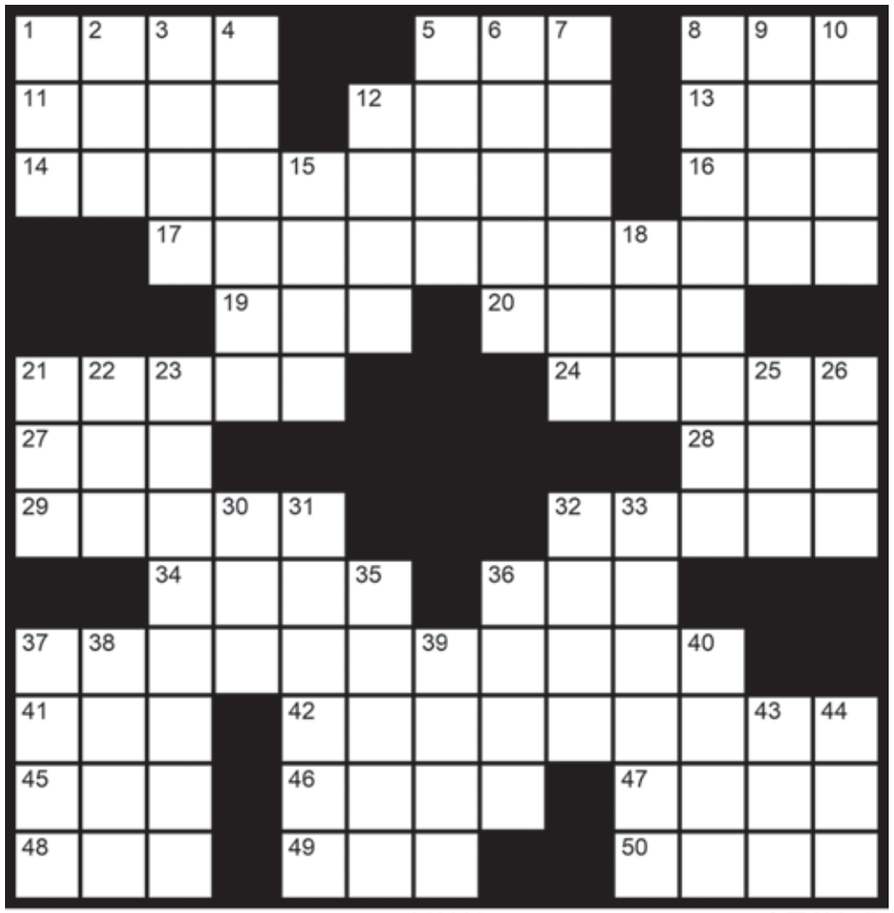

Back in Wisconsin for another summer in Point Place, "That '90s Show" kicks off its second installment Thursday, June 27, on Netflix. Now set in 1996, this spinoff of "That '70s Show" finds Leia Forman (Callie Haverda, "Shut Eye") back with her grandparents, Red (Kurtwood Smith, "RoboCop," 1987) and Kitty ("The Ranch"). While Leia and Jay Kelso (Mace Coronel, "Nicky, Ricky, Dicky & Dawn") are excited to be back together after nine long months apart, tensions rise as secrets between Leia and Nate (Maxwell Acee Donovan, "Gabby Duran & The Unsittables") threaten to tear the group apart. Will the summer of fun end before it can even get started? Also starring Ashley Aufderheide ("Emergence"), Reyn Doi ("Side Hustle") and Sam Morelos ("Descendants: The Rise of Red," 2024), the series comes from creators Gregg Mettler ("That '70s Show"), Bonnie and Terry Turner (both of "3rd Rock from the Sun") and first-time producer Lindsey Turner.

WHAT'S NEW ON APPLE TV+

"Fancy Dance" (2024)

Set off on a bold new journey with the acclaimed drama film "Fancy Dance," making its debut Friday, June 28, on Apple TV+. The film, which debuted in select theaters on June 21, follows Jax (Lily Gladstone, "Killers of the Flower Moon," 2023), who has cared for her niece, Roki (Isabel Deroy-Olson, "Three Pines"), since her sister's disappearance. Scraping by to provide a living for Roki on the Seneca-Cayuga reservation in Oklahoma, Jax uses every spare moment available to search for her sister. All the while, Jax also helps Roki to prepare for an upcoming powwow. With Roki's custody at risk, the two head out into the backcountry to find Roki's mother before the powwow, and "what begins as a search gradually turns into a far deeper investigation into the complexities and contradictions of Indigenous women moving through a colonized world while at the mercy of a failed justice system" (per Apple TV+). Directed by Erica Tremblay ("Reservation Dogs"), the film is written by Tremblay and Miciana Alise, in her screenwriting feature film debut. The film also stars Ryan Begay ("Dark Winds"), Shea Whigham ("Perry Mason"), Crystle Lightning ("Ghosts") and Audrey Wasilewski ("Big Love").
