Cole Camp man
selected for 'The Voice'

By Faith Bemiss-McKinney

A Cole Camp teen who sang "Religiously" on the Monday, March 3, NBC episode of "The Voice" was selected to be on coach Adam Levine's team.

During Tuesday night's blind auditions of season 27, Trevon Dawson, 17, wowed the coaches with the song "Religiously" by Bailey Zimmerman. Coach Michael Buble embraced Dawson, and Levine chose him to be on his team.

During the show, Buble said, "Dude, if that's how you sound when you're a little nervous, then dude, you just got a massive score."

According to NBC, Dawson is a fan of "red dirt outlaw country" music. On Tuesday, Coaches Kelsea Ballerini, John Legend, and Buble had already chosen their team, and it was Levine's turn. NBC said Dawson was "clearly nervous" but received his "jackpot" match, as Ballerini expressed.

"Music is my life and passion," Dawson said on his Facebook page, which has 2.3k followers. "And I would not be here if it was not for my family and the one I love pushing me to be the best I can be.

Sedalia Police Department names
SRO Antonio Karr Officer of the Year

By Chris Howell
chrish@sedaliademocrat.com

The Sedalia Police Department held its 2024 Awards Ceremony at the First United Methodist Church on Tuesday, March 4.

"Tuesday night we all got together," Sedalia Police Chief David Woolery said. "Annually we do this; get together and celebrate the dedication officers have shown and their achievements from the previous year."

A Citizen Recognition Plaque was awarded to Maybelle Koeller and Citizen Recognition Letters were given to Kayla Nilges, Randy Kirby, Madison Roberts, Coralyn Downs-Vega, Logan Deal and Drake Davis.

"It was a good year, it was a busy year," Woolery said. "It seems like every year is busy and we've been a little short-handed, but we're used to that, nobody wants to go into law enforcement anymore. These folks do a lot of calls and do quality work."

Drone Unit Ribbons went to Det. Sgt. Aaron Berry, Officer Alex Stevenson and Officer Christian Wolfe.

Search and Entry Awards are given after 20 search warrants are executed and additional ribbons are awarded for executing each additional 10 search warrants.

The number of ribbons awarded Tuesday indicates many search warrants have been executed.

Det. Mark Cherry earned one ribbon, his eighth overall; Det. Travis St. Cyr earned one ribbon, his sixth overall; Berry earned one ribbon, his seventh overall; Cmdr. Joshua Howell earned one ribbon, his ninth overall; Woolery earned one ribbon, his eighth overall, Cpl. Davis Mittelhauser earned one ribbon, his fourth overall; Cmdr. Michael Elwood earned one ribbon, his 11th overall, Det. Nicklous Camirand earned his first ribbon and Cpl. Ty Barrett earned his first ribbon, third overall.

The event was meant for officer families to attend and gain a better appreciation for the first responders' work.

"Having their families there is very special," Woolery said, "many of the officers have their kids hold their hand or are in their arms and they carry them to get their awards with them. It's really nice having that family dynamic, that adds to our PD family."

Letters of Commendation were given to Officer Terrence Conness (2), Officer Robert "Bobby" Mitchell (2), Barrett (2), Officer Matthew Aragon (2), Sgt. Daniel Benner (2) and Officer Justin Franken (2).

A Police Commendation Ribbon was given to St. Cyr, a Meritorious Service

Ribbon to Cpl. Andrew "AJ" Silvey, and Life Saving Awards to Officer Jesse Page, Officer Keaton Schnell, Officer Derick DeSalme and Sgt. Neva Overstreet

"We had some higher rewards than we normally do," Woolery said, "Sgt. Daniel Benner and Officer Justin Franken with the Purple Heart, Cmdr. Mike Elwood and Officer Alex Stevenson with the Medal of Valor for the lady who ran off the road on East Broadway and her car caught on fire and Cmdr.

Elwood cut the airbags out, got her unbuckled and pulled her out of a blazing vehicle."

The Chief's Award went to Page and Officer of the Year went to School Resource Officer Antonio Karr.

"That's one of our highest awards of the year, and it was well deserved with Officer Karr," Woolery said. "He's the school resource officer for the Smith-Cotton Junior High School and Tony is very dedicated to that task."

Mark Clinton Williams

Mark Clinton Williams was born on January 29, 1956, to Rev. Roger Edward Williams of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Rebecca Andree Benoist Williams of Natchez, Miss. He was the third of five siblings.

Mark's early life was spent in St. Joseph, Missouri, and the family later moved to Tuscaloosa, Alabama, before returning to Missouri to live in Sedalia. There Mark met and fell in love with the girl next door, Georgiana Goodier Williams, his wife of 47 years. Mark was the kicker for the football teams of Tuscaloosa High School and then Smith-Cotton High School, where he graduated in 1974.

Mark took agriculture courses and worked on a cattle farm in Missouri before moving to Natchez, Miss., in the late 70s. There he assisted his esteemed Uncle Jack in managing the family business on Main Street — Benoist Brothers, a gentlemen's clothing store founded by his great-grandfather in 1897. His two daughters, Katherine Benoist Williams Hicks (Katie) and Anna Marie Williams, were born during this time in Natchez.

In 1990, Mark accepted a position at EBSCO Industries and moved his family to Birmingham, Alabama. For the next 24 years, he worked his way from being a traveling salesman to a vice president of the company, even receiving the honor of induction into the Founders Club. During his time at EBSCO he traveled the world, visiting at least ten countries throughout Europe, Asia, and Central America.

Mark was incredibly generous, fiercely protective of his family, a wonderful storyteller with a great sense of humor, and a fast friend to all who met him. Some of his favorite memories from later in life were traveling the world with his Georgiana, spending time with his sons-in-law David Hicks and Joe Chappell, and hitting the links with his best golf buddies Frank Buckley, Frank Mapes, and Tom Lampkin. An avid gardener, his lawn was immaculate and his tomatoes were legendary. He was an enthusiast of Budweiser, the Crimson Tide, golf, and fishing. He could frequently be found at Shades Mountain Park in Hoover watching his grandsons play baseball. Known as "Paw Paw" to Will, Jay, and Jude, his devotion to his family will never be forgotten.

A private celebration of life will be held for family and friends at a later date. In lieu of flowers, please make donations to the Parkinson Association of Alabama.

SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

CONTRIBUTING COLUMN

Are you loud or just a bad sport?

I have been to a lot of school sporting events. More than your average Midwesterner, even. My mother was a high school teacher, so I've been attending youth athletic games since I was old enough to be dolled up in a tiny school spirit outfit.

I have a large, close family with upwards of twenty first cousins whose games I've watched over the span of four decades. I played basketball, softball and soccer during my own school years, and I attended many other games as part of the pep band. When I graduated high school, I joined Marching Mizzou, and I didn't miss a home football game for four years.

I have seen a lot of poor sportsmanship in that time.

Parents and spectators who get thrown out of gymnasiums. Hecklers — some funny, some dumb. Players who mouth off to referees. Refs who mouth off to players. Flagrant fouls, near fistfights, and about as many drunken, beligerent Big 12 fans as you'd ever care to meet. (Oklahoma had the worst fans, K-State was always reliably classy.)

But one thing I never encountered until this year was someone who vocally tried to make excuses for their own insufferable behavior. My family and I attended a local game, and I began to get rather uneasy when the individual behind us started in with angry shouting at everything under the sun before the first quarter had even ended.

At one point I looked back in annoyance, and Yelly McYellerson's spouse met my eye: "If you're going to sit here, just know that [Name] is going to be loud," the person said.

I stifled a snort.

I know what loud is. Loud is eight uncles, nine aunts and twenty-something cousins all fighting to be heard in a holiday din. It's 70,000 fans and a 200-piece marching band at Faurot Field. It's me – I inherited a big, booming voice that carries well, causing my parents to refer to me as Foghorn for much of my childhood. This loudness has gotten me in trouble over the years, and I've had to work hard to modulate my tone so that I'm not totally annoying to the people around me. Because I also know what obnoxious is. I've shouted and heckled with the worst of them. But as I've grown and matured, I've come to understand that what's witty and excusable for a pep club or college crowd is embarrassing and shameful for adults attending a youth game. There's a difference between being loud and being a loser. Here are some dividing lines:

1. Setting: As I mentioned above, what's acceptable in a crowd of thousands could be totally inappropriate for a small gymnasium where your voice carries easily.

Liz Schleicher
Contributing Columnist

For example, when I attended Mizzou games, the student crowd could roar, "KILL HIM! BREAK HIS LEGS!" on the punt return and be totally drowned out. If you tried to pull that at a peewee football game, you'd be beaten up by the player's parents, and you'd deserve it.

2. Age of athletes: The outfielders at a professional baseball game get paid the big bucks to ignore insults and hecklers. The student athletes at your local baseball game aren't even done developing, emotionally or morally. There is never an excuse for shouting something personal or critical at a minor in a sports setting. If it's at your own child, that's even more shameful.

3. Timing: High spirits are understandable at a close game or during a pivotal play. But if the game is a blowout (or hasn't started) it's time to tone it down. If you're still shouting your head off when the stakes are low, you're making a pest of yourself and teaching your peers not to take you seriously, even when you have a good point.

4. Content: Nobody ever got in trouble for yelling, "Defense!" or "YEAH!" But personal insults, angry criticisms, and pointed curse words are all lemon behavior, especially at a game where children can hear you.

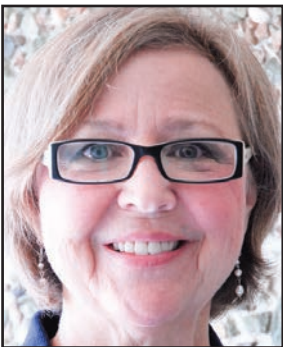

5. Nuance: What if the referee is wrong? They often are. Some of the worst game behavior I've ever seen came from high school athletic officials. But arguing a call is a delicate art, and you're not going to help your team's chances by insulting the ref. If he's really that blind, you can't help him, and if he's really that unfair, your two cents is just going to add to the punishment your team is receiving. Ref criticism is like hot pepper – use it tastefully and sparingly or it gets disgusting quick.

All these bullet points can be summed up in one final flourish. Is your behavior helping your favorite athlete? When you go to her game, is it all about her and her teammates? Or is it all about you and what you want to say? Is your team proud to have you as their representative? Or do they secretly cringe every time you turn up? Being a public sports fan comes with a certain set of responsibilities. Be loud, be proud, but don't be a loser.

CONTRIBUTING COLUMN

And the randomizer says

Deborah Mitchell
Contributing Columnist

One of my favorite cooking shows uses a "randomizer." Chefs spin the randomizer to find out how long they will have to prepare the dish they will cook, what appliance they must use, and an ingredient they must use.

Today, I used the randomizer to help me choose which of Donald Trump's antics to write about, because he's done so much in the past seven days. Two things won: The Oval Office ambush, and the Executive Order declaring English to be the national language of the US.

First, I was pleasantly surprised to find that Doug Kneibert and I see things the same way about Donald Trump's heinous embrace of Vladimir Putin while throwing Ukraine under the bus. As if Trump's actions haven't been bad enough, his despicable treatment of Ukraine's President in the Oval Office last Friday – with help from henchman J.D. Vance – was nothing short of gobsmackingly disgraceful.

I believed that this was a set-up, as the White House press corps was present for the entire sad episode. It began with Vance chastising Volodymyr Zelenskyy as if he were a small child instead of an elected head of state. I thought Vance and Trump wanted Zelenskyy to act like a puppy with his tail between his legs, thereby ceding all power in the room to Vance and Trump.

Donald Trump tried to intimidate Zelenskyy, and threatened him, complaining that Zelenskyy hadn't ever said "thank you." This is absolutely false. Zelenskyy has a presence on social media, and he has thanked the US, as well as other countries, for keeping his country's hopes alive during Putin's hideous war many, many times.

Donald Trump acted like a bully, even laying his hands on Zelenskyy in what could be considered a threatening gesture. I was ashamed, but most of all, I was sorry that Zelenskyy had to grovel to the head of our country to keep life-saving aid coming. That was a terrible day.

On a lighter note, now that English is our national language, I hope that means more people will use it correctly. I often must teach native English speakers the basics of our language. Perhaps if we, as a society, place more value on our language, we will hear and see correct grammar more often. That would make me very happy. My mother would be cheering.

Truly, the young people I worked with in Afghanistan had a better grasp of how to write in English than some of my students. But that was because their educational system teaches grammar and writing in English all throughout their students' schooling. I don't think ours does that. Maybe now it will.

And while we're on the subject of education, the entire Department of Education is on Trump's chopping block, because he thinks that education should be up to the states. I don't think that's such a hot idea.

Our state doesn't think much of education, it seems, as it has one of the lowest beginning teacher salaries in the country. Additionally, one of the ways Missouri funds schools is through property taxes, which is patently unfair. Someplace like Thayer has a very low property tax rate, meaning that the Thayer district spends less per student than someplace like Ladue in St. Louis. And Thayer kids don't have the advantages of larger schools, such as foreign language classes, and, when I was there, advanced math.

The state also uses federal funds to make sure that all students have equal access to public education. This means that kids who have developmental delays or learning disabilities have IEPs (Individual Education Plans), which help them navigate better through school. Without federal funding, these students probably won't get the extra help they need. And vouchers? They may help some, but vouchers will take money away from public education, and private schools don't have to take all students, leaving those with learning problems to the underfunded public schools.

But by all means, take the federal government out of it.

I could have written about many more head-shaking moments in the past week, but I have to stop now. I'm hoping I won't have to use the randomizer anymore. But I'm not holding my breath.

THE ROCKWOOD FILES

Different isn't the same as wrong

When our three college kids are home for a visit and we go out to eat, we follow a protocol. We usually ask for a big booth and slide into it in a particular order – with our two left-handed kids sitting together. Over the years, we've learned that when a lefty sits to the right of a righty, elbows collide. So, we've learned to arrange ourselves to give everyone room to move, no matter which hand holds the fork.

I love lefties, partly because I'm the mother of two of them and because the history of left-handedness is so interesting. Only about 10 percent of the human population is left-handed, which means there are more than 700 million left-handed people in a world of more than seven billion. Even dogs and cats have a "paw preference," and one study shows that more than 30 percent of dogs and cats are lefties, too.

Scientists have been studying left-handedness for a long time now, but they still don't completely understand it. They do know that genetics play a role. But I can tell you from experience that two right-handed parents like Tom and me can have one right-handed kid and two left-handed ones.

Fascinated by the mystery of it, I once asked my parents and Tom's parents if any of their parents were left-handed. That's when I learned that Tom's dad (who I thought was right-handed) was born left-handed and had been "retrained" to use his right hand when he started school.

These days, forcing a kid to use his non-dominant hand seems like an absurd and even cruel thing to do. Forcing a change never even crossed my mind when I realized that two of my toddlers were reaching for Cheerios with the left hand versus the right. It just didn't matter.

But for centuries, trying to force change toward conformity was regularly done because people made up crazy ideas about what it meant to be left-handed. They feared differences that didn't matter, and that fear even crept into languages. The word "sinister" originates from Latin and translates to the word "left." In the Middle Ages, sometimes left-handed people were actually burned at the stake because they were assumed to be the offspring of witches or devils.

Throughout history, people continued to be so unnerved by a simple difference in hand dominance that teachers were told to "correct" left-handed kids into right-handed ones. In some Asian cultures, the right hand is called "the good hand," and the left is called the "bad" one. Can you imagine what it must have felt like to be a little kid who adults called "wrong" or treated as unacceptable for simply moving in ways that felt natural since birth?

Over and over, scientific studies, common sense, and real-life experience have shown that being left-handed and being right-handed are both natural. Different but natural. Left-handed people aren't trying to hurt anyone or destroy society by grabbing a cup of coffee with the left instead of the right.

Thankfully, in the 1960s and 70s, Americans finally put an end to the foolishness of trying to force kids to be right-handed. It's a shame it took that long, but it finally happened. We learned that different doesn't equal destructive or demonic. We created left-handed scissors and expanded our minds to accept that right-handed and left-handed people are all just people. Our world is packed with differences and diversity – in plants, animals, people, abilities, landscapes, colors, climates, languages, accents, and cultures – yet we all survive on one planet.

Sometimes I wonder if this is one of those lessons human beings will have to keep learning in all areas of life – that different doesn't always mean wrong. That difference can deliver its own blessings and strengths. Two hundred years from now, what biases and conflicts will seem ludicrous to future generations?

I hope they'll look back at the political fights of our current age and wonder why people wasted so much energy and spewed so much hate over a simple difference between left and right.

“We requested and were granted $50,000 last July to do some work on our two houses here in town,” Graff said. “So far we’ve billed the city $8,357.89.”

Sedalia holds a portion of opioid settlement money and is paying for repair work done at Embassy properties.

“We have pending work still, $26,872,” Graff said. “A lot of that got held up because of weather.”

Underlying foundation problems found during the creation of a basement entry at The Embassy have delayed progress on finishing a fence, completing a new classroom, a basement remodel and reworking the roof.

“So, we’re asking City Council to grant us an additional $100,000,” Graff said. “Through the opioid settlement to complete the work that we’ve described.”

Boggess suggested the council take some time to consider The Embassy request.

During the Finance / Administration portion of the meeting, a presentation on FY2026 budget highlights was given by Interim City Administrator Matt Wirt, who showed changes made to the budget a Feb. 24 work session.

“Drones as First Responders, we had left that out in the recommendation and we had talked about possibly reducing it,” Wirt said. “We did the best we could at coming up with a number for that, so that is a question there.”

Allocations for the program in the budget proposal have been reduced from $75,000 to $29,500.

Changes to the committal shelter at Oak Lawn Cemetery also needed to be reflected in the new budget, though the final design is still in question.

Long-term disability insurance for city employees will be purchased. Budgeted cost is $50,000.

A new goose-neck trailer for hauling equipment by street crews was voted into the budget to keep damage from occurring.

The FY2025 budget should be finalized by March 17.

The council was asked to approve a construction manager for the city’s east side project.

“The next step in that construction process is the construction of the fire station, the fire training center, the aqua center, the bowling alley is to approve the construction manager.” Second Ward Councilperson Tom Oldham said. “When we sent out our RFQ (request for quotes) the most qualified to come back was Nobles Construction, tonight we need to approve that agreement for the Construction Manager at Risk.”

Under Community Development, the outdoor clock at recently closed Bichsel Jewelry will return to its original home at 217 S. Ohio Avenue.

The measure was presented by City Planner Joleigh Cornine, and approved by the council as a restrictive donation.

“This clock has witnessed generations of Sedalians grow up since 1882,” Cornine said. “Thank you to Mr. Robert Walters and Mr. Mark Callis for working together to see the Bichsel clock returned to downtown Sedalia.”

Fourth Ward Councilperson Steve Bloess addressed the demolition of a home on North Stewart Avenue and the conversations it created.

“I’m proud of councilwoman [Rhiannon] Foster, I thought it was a good article in the paper,” Bloess said. “Mr. Kopp [Community Development Director Bryan Kopp] did a good job, too. We’ve got a responsibility to explain what’s going on and I think they did a good job.”

That feeling wasn’t universal, and during the Good and Welfare portion of the meeting, Debbie Covington made her feelings known.

Covington was one of eight people to speak during the portion of the meeting.

“You kick an elderly couple out of their home on 325 North Stewart for them to live on the street or in their car, that does not sound safe,” Covington said. “You allowed the same house to remain vacant for nine months while squatters ran in and out, tore the house up, left windows and doors open for it to dilapidate rapidly, that is not public safety.”

“Rhiannon Foster and Bryan Kopp, you used your position of power to influence Chris Howell with the Sedalia Democrat to publish an article full of lies and misinformation. An entirely different type of abuse of the public health.”

Mayor Andrew Dawson and Second Ward Councilman Chris Marshall were not present.

Emergency Management hosts Subby’s Weather Talk at Junior High

By Chris Howell
chrish@sedaliademocrat.com

Pettis County Emergency Management hosted a severe weather seminar and radar technology class Tuesday, March 4, at Smith-Cotton Junior High School.

Featured speaker Jim Sublette with Subby’s Weather Talk explained the dynamics of storm formation and the various radar systems used in their detection.

A gathering of around 20 people interested in weather forecasting watched Subby’s presentation on the websites and apps he likes to predict tornados, hail, snow and torrential rain.

“We’re kicking off Severe Weather Awareness Week,” Pettis County Emergency Management Director Trisha Rooda said. “I thought it would be neat to have a training on how to look at a radar, a better understanding of what we’re looking at on our apps on our phone.”

Sublette walked the audience through the atmospheric conditions needed to create a storm, the use of modern radar technology, how each system works and the most useful software and mobile apps.

“I ran across Subby’s page last year and then I found out that he started working part-time for Henry County’s Emergency Management program,” Rooda said. “I said, ‘hey, would you mind coming to Pettis County sometime in March next year? So, I’ve had it planned. I like his page because it catches some of the storms in southern Pettis County because he’s focused on like Clinton, in Henry County. I just think it benefits us too on some of the storms.”

Sublette told the Democrat he has been a weather tracker for years.

“Weather has been my passion ever since I was seven years old and my mother still keeps my weather journal back from 1973,” Sublette said.

Besides being a talented forecaster, Sublette puts on a number of weather and radar presentations at schools each year.

“Typically, every spring go around, last year I had 13 schools that I went around to in West Central Missouri,” Sublette said. “I have a total of 19 this spring extending from Osage Trails and Independence and all the way down to Springfield Public School System.”

Sublette keeps his audiences engaged with visual demonstrations and common-sense explanations about weather behavior.

“What I try to do with the kids is keep it interactive,” Sublette said. “I bring in a bunch of different elements of the weather; we do everything from an egg in a bottle to a twister in a bottle.”

Sublette said many children discover an interest in meteorology after just one of his presentations.

“We do all these experiments and to see their eyes light up when they see something happen that they’ve never seen before,” Sublette said. “Matter of fact, I had a couple teachers reach out to me and they thought, ‘Well, now I’ve got a classroom with 12 kids, and they all want to be meteorologists. If I can get kids interested in the weather and the science and get them into something other than Pokémon, I feel like I have succeeded.”

Karr handles all the investigations at the school and all of their law enforcement needs.

“He is the go-to person for any of our folks that are dealing with juvenile cases,” Woolery said. “or [if we] need information or insight on how to deal with those.”

Woolery noted every police officer needs a good heart of service. Karr had that something extra.

“But to be a police officer in a school takes a special person and a special ability to really connect with the teachers and the kids in a way they can trust you and know they can count on you in an emergency,” Woolery said.

Karr said he was humbled by the honor.

“I never would have thought that being an SRO I would ever be Officer of the Year,” Karr said. “That was not something I was expecting at all. Sedalia’s a great department with some of the finest officers I’ve ever had the pleasure of working with.”

Woolery noted the sacrifices of all his officers and their families and wished he had an award for each of them.

“These awards are not all-encompassing,” Woolery said. “There’s countless times that officers at two in the morning are making the right decision and making a positive impact on people’s lives and there’s absolutely no way to acknowledge all of those.”

Missouri Wing Delegation Cadet 1st Lt. Justin Miller and Cadet Capt. Hauqitz speaks with Missouri Rep. Sam Graves in February while visiting Washington, D.C.

D.C., Feb. 12-16. The Civil Air Patrol is the official auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force.

Information supplied by the Civil Air Patrol said the event “provides cadets an opportunity to educate elected representatives at the national level about all that CAP does for the nation.”

The day also involves meeting with members of Congress and educating them on the benefits of CAP and what the program means to them. The cadets are paid for all the accommodation and transportation to and from Washington, D.C., but they are responsible for their meals and souvenirs.

Miller, the son of Tony and Cheri Miller of Wentzville, spoke with the Democrat on Feb. 26 about his trip and what it meant to him to attend the event. He attends the University of Central Missouri in Warrensburg and plans to receive a Bachelor of Science degree as a professional pilot.

Miller said he’s been a member of the Civil Patrol for six years.

“The Cadet Program, which is what I’m in, you can join at the age of 12,” Miller said. “You can no longer join at 18, but you can stay in until you’re 21 You then become what’s called a senior member. And that is for the rest of your life.”

Miller plans to stay in the Air Patrol and become a senior member.

“I’ve already had discussions, my birthday is in October,” Miller said. “So, I’ve already started that process of transition.”

He added that the trip to Washington, D.C., was his first time visiting the nation’s capital.

“It’s an application process you go through,” Miller said. “And then they interview ... and they chose the best four cadets. I believe 50 or 60 people applied. There’s a minimum criterion of rank and ... age.”

Miller noted that the Civil Air Patrol is a federal nonprofit organization that receives funding from Congress, and that was the main purpose of the cadets’ going to Washington, D.C.

“It was actually to ask Congress for their consideration of what we would like, which was $79 million for the entire national organization,” Miller said. “So, all 50 wings. That was our main purpose. We talked to Rep. Eric Schmitt and their staffers about (how) the program has affected us — our personal stories. And why it’s important to keep funding it as Congress has for the last 80 years.”

The Missouri Wing Delegation of the Civil Air Patrol had a photo taken on the Capitol Hill steps in Washington, D.C., during their visit in February.

Miller added that he found Washington “as a whole is going through a lot of change” right now. Many of the lawmakers they talked to noted that they had supported the Civil Air Patrol and hoped to do so in the future, but they are unsure of many things right now.

Miller noted the trip was important to him.

“The Civil Air Patrol has been such a large part of my life,” Miller said. “It’s made me who I am, and the fact that I’m most likely going to graduate a year early — I credit that to the Civil Air Patrol. Because of the discipline, determination; it’s really taught me. If I do fail somewhere, it’s inevitable, and it is to fail forward. Take it as a life lesson and move ahead. It’s just something that’s really ingrained. It’s something our society really needs a lot of.”

Miller added that this is his way of giving the new generation of cadets the same opportunity that he had as a cadet and advocating for them.

“That was my main reason for going,” Miller said. “To advocate for them.”

Once Miller receives his degree, he hopes to go into flight instruction and considers the Air Force an option.

“It really depends on their hiring and what’s open,” Miller said. “Because they go through cycles just like the airlines do.”

He added his goal is to be an airline pilot.

“In fact, sitting on my desk is a model of the Southwest 737,” Miler said. “I wake up to that every morning.”

Miller’s advice to youth who wish to join the Civil Air Patrol is that “you get out of it what you put into it.”

“And also, don’t let your failures define you,” Miller said. “Let how you overcome them be what you’re known by.”

The Sedalia Civil Air Patrol meets at 6 p.m. each Thursday at the Sedalia Airport at the Civil Air Patrol Building. The program is open to everyone, male and female, as well as people with disabilities. For more information visit gocivilairpatrol.com.

It is the greatest honor to make my family proud.”

Dawson’s good fortune made it onto social media posts on Facebook Tuesday evening and Wednesday, and many said his voice blew them away.

On Thursday, March 6, Cole Camp Mayor Diana Burdick told the Democrat that she was proud of Dawson and wished him well.

“I read some things on Facebook, and I’m proud that he has come so far,” she added. “And I wish him luck in the future.”

Dawson opened for the former band Dirt Road Addiction in Sedalia at the Hayden Liberty Center in 2023 and for Cedar Creek at the Liberty Center in 2024. LCAA Board Member Joe Fischer told the Democrat at the time that Dawson, a songwriter, singer, and guitarist, often performed during First Thursday events in downtown Sedalia.

Dawson’s Facebook page says he’s inspired by Garth Brooks, Johnny Cash, and his father.

Lincoln boys prevail against St. Paul Lutheran in Class 2 sectional

By Jack Denebeim

jackd@sedaliademocrat.com

LINCOLN — Before its Class 2 sectional game against St. Paul Lutheran, Lincoln boys basketball set a goal of what it wanted the final score to be.

The Cardinals achieved that mark almost exactly, defeating the Saints 47-46 on Monday, March 3, at Lincoln High School.

“We had said before the game that we wanted to win 46-45,” Lincoln head coach Tyler Burke said. “All year long, we’ve held our opponents to 10-12 points below their average. They average 55 points. So, we thought, ‘OK, if we can hold them to 45, [we just got to] figure out how to score 46.’ The kids were pretty impressed when we got back to the locker room and we won 47-46. That was our goal and we got it done.”

Lincoln struggled to get its offensive motor started for much of the game, but junior Ben Eckhoff provided a spark by making a basket and drawing a foul at the 5:39 mark of the fourth quarter.

The play was the start of a 16-3 run the Cardinals used to turn a 34-28 deficit into a 44-37 lead.

“It kind of felt like that turned the game back in our direction,” Burke said of Eckhoff’s and-one. “We had that bucket there to cut it to three or four and then turned around and hit a three to cut it to one. So, we gained a lot of confidence.”

Following Eckhoff’s basket and missed free throw, junior Dawson Parrott hit a 3-pointer, junior Braydn Benham scored a layup and junior Riley Sanders sank a pair of free throws to put Lincoln up 37-34 with 3:18 remaining.

2:55 to play.

After that, Benham sank a triple, Parrott made a layup and Sanders scored a basket to give the Cardinals (22-4) a seven-point lead with 1:02 left.

“We’ve been in a lot of close games this year and we’ve won most of them,” Burke said. “So, we felt pretty confident that if we could just get it down to the end and not have a six, eight-point deficit, we felt like we could win.”

The Saints (21-6) made a push in the final minute through a 9-2 run that tied the game at 46 with about 20 seconds to play.

Parrott was fouled on the Cardinals’ next possession, which sent him to the free-throw line where he went 1-for-2 to put Lincoln up 47-46 with 13.4 seconds left.

Lincoln forced and earned a jump ball on St. Paul’s next possession, making the Saints foul in order to extend the game.

However, the Cardinals missed a pair of free throws with three seconds left.

After a timeout, St. Paul in-bounded the ball from under its own basket, but Parrott picked off the pass to end the game.

State Fair men bash MSUWP in Region 16 tourney quarterfinals

By Jack Denebeim

jackd@sedaliademocrat.com

After having a winless month of February, State Fair Community College men’s basketball knew that once March hit it was time to start a new season.

Since the calendar turned, the Roadrunners are undefeated in two games, most recently defeating Missouri State University — West Plains 73-60 on Tuesday, March 4, in the Region 16

Tournament quarterfinals at the Fred E. Davis Multipurpose Center.

“That was in the rearview mirror March 1,” SFCC head coach Matt Brown said about the month of February. “I’ve been doing this a long time. I’ve seen the good, the bad and the ugly. I was at West Virginia as an eight-seed and went all the way to the Elite Eight. We were one win away from the NCAA Final Four. A lot of things can happen in March.”

S-C’s Williams to continue softball career at Stephens College

By Jack Denebeim

jackd@sedaliademocrat.com

Smith-Cotton senior Zakiyah Williams may be a state-qualifying wrestler and a state-qualifying DECA member, but softball is where her true passion lies.

Williams signed her letter of intent to play softball at Stephens College on Thursday, Feb. 27, at Smith-Cotton High School.

“It feels really great,” Williams said. “I feel really accomplished. I’m super excited that I could be so involved in my senior year.”

Williams was with the Lady Tigers throughout high school, earning a letter in each of her four years.

“I’m excited for her because she made a lot of progress over the last couple of years,” Smith-Cotton softball head coach Amy Miller said. “She kind of started as a girl who ran for varsity, but didn’t see a lot of playing time. Then, her sophomore year, she kind of got a little playing time here and there, but as a junior and senior she stepped into a role of pinch runner, player in the field. Then, as a senior, she took over that role of right field, center field and whatever else I needed her for. She’s progressed really, really well.”

S.G.A. scores 41 in Thunder's win over Grizzlies

By Clay Bailey
Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Shai Gilgeous-Alexander scored 41 points and keyed a third-quarter rally as the Oklahoma City Thunder beat the Memphis Grizzlies 120-103 on Wednesday night.

Jalen Williams added 20 points and Aaron Wiggins had 16 for the Thunder, who have now won five straight games and seven of their last eight. Isaiah Hartenstein finished with 10 points and 15 rebounds.

Ja Morant, who returned after missing two games with a sore shoulder, led Memphis with 24 points, but was 8 of 22 from the field. Desmond Bane and Scotty Pippen Jr. finished with 15 points each as Memphis dropped its fourth straight and seventh in its last nine games.

The Thunder used a 15-6 run to create a slight buffer in the second quarter, then outscored Memphis 30-23 in the third.

Takeaways

Thunder: Oklahoma City's winning streak is indicative of how well the Thunder are playing. They have won 14 of 16 and maintain a solid hold on the top seed in the Western Conference.

Grizzlies: Memphis has struggled to close games recently, losing the last three in the final seconds. The previous six games were decided by an average of 2.5 points.

Key moment

The Thunder put together a 14-2 run midway through the third quarter to turn a three-point lead into a 15-point advantage. Gilgeous-Alexander scored 15 in the period.

Key stat

The Thunder force almost 18 turnovers a game, best in the NBA. Memphis commits 16.4, among the worst in the league. That was a recipe for disaster as Memphis committed 15 turnovers, leading to 17 Thunder points.

Central Missouri's Tilley tabbed MIAA Freshman of the Year

By Joe Andrews
joea@warrensburgstarjournal.com

Central Missouri men's basketball guard Kyran Tilley was named as the MIAA Freshman of the Year, highlighting a pair of two Mules to receive All-MIAA awards.

Tilley is the first UCM athlete to receive the honor. The Mules last had an athlete earn a headlining honor when Ja'Cor Nelson was named as the MIAA Defensive Player of the year in 2021-22.

Tilley, who appeared in 27 games including 23 starts in the regular season, was one of two Mules to average double-figure scoring with 10.4 points per game.

Tilley led UCM with 66 assists, an average of 2.4 per game, while sitting second in line with 37 steals. He had a team-best 86.3% success rate at the free-throw.

Tilley surpassed 20 points in a game twice in the regular season, posting 21 on 3-of-8 shooting and a 14-of-15 success rate at the free-throw line in a 70-67 loss to Fort Hays State on Dec. 15 and 20 points on 7-of-12 shooting in a 78-56 win against Missouri Southern on Feb. 27.

Tilley had a season-best eight assists in a 80-70 win over Newman on Jan. 16. He tallied four steals twice, arriving in the win over Newman and a 57-52 loss to Nebraska-Kearney Jan. 30.

Tilley was not named to an All-MIAA team.

Senior DeAirius Barker received All-MIAA Honorable Mention status.

Barker led UCM with 12 points per game and 2.4 rebounds per game. He also had a team-best 60 3-pointers made, 337 points scored and 67 free-throws made.

He crossed double-digit scoring in 18 games, including 35 points in a 72-58 win over Illinois-Springfield on Nov. 26.

Barker appeared in all 28 contests, making 27 starts and averaging 30.3 minutes per game.

Central Missouri finished the regular season with a 14-14, 9-10 MIAA record.

MIAA regular season champion Washburn took three of the five highlight league honors.

Jacob Hanna won the MIAA Defensive of the Year and the first-ever MIAA Newcomer of the Year while Brett Ballard was named as the MIAA Coach of the Year.

Pittsburg State's Jordan Frison was named as the MIAA Player of the Year.

leb Hammeke, Washburn's Jacob Hanna, Washburn's Michael Keegan and Fort Hays State's Shaun Riley.

The All-MIAA First Team included Washburn's Jack Bachelor, Frison, Hammeke, Hanna and Rogers State's Anthony Marshall.

The All-MIAA Second Team included Missouri Western's Zane Nelson, Northeastern State's Trey Phillips, Central Oklahoma's Jacobi Sebeck, Washburn's Brayden Shorter and Pittsburg State's Avery Taggart.

The All-MIAA Third Team featured Northeastern State's Ethan Blackmon, Emporia State's Kayriek Dixon, Nebraska-Kearney's Ja'Bryant Hill, Washburn's Andrew Orr and Nebraska-Kearney's Allen Taylor.

The All-MIAA Honorable Mention team included Barker, Pittsburg State's RJ Forney, Rogers State's Caden Fry, Fort Hays State's Kyle Grill, Central Oklahoma's Israel Hart, Missouri Southern's Martin Macenis, Rogers State's Andrew Mason, Newman's Sam Smoerhalder, Newman's Boston Stanton, Missouri Western's Zion Sawder, Nebraska-Kerney's Chase Thompson and Arkansas-Fort Smith's Terrell Williams.

Chiefs trade Thuney to Bears

By Dave Skretta
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Chiefs are trading two-time All-Pro guard Joe Thuney to the Chicago Bears for a fourth-round pick in the 2026 draft, a person familiar with the deal told The Associated Press on Wednesday.

The person spoke on condition of anonymity because the trade had not been finalized.

The 32-year-old Thuney would have carried a salary cap number of nearly $27 million next season, unless the Chiefs could have worked out a contract extension. That extension is now expected to come from the Bears, who have been working to retool their offensive line to better protect young quarterback Caleb Williams next season.

On Tuesday, the Bears agreed to send a 2025 sixth-round pick to the Los Angeles Rams for Jonah Jackson, a former Pro Bowl offensive guard. Jackson was drafted by the Detroit Lions, where he had played for new Chicago coach Ben Johnson.

Williams was sacked an NFL-high 68 times last season. The Texans' C.J. Stroud was next with 63 sacks.

Kansas City would have liked to keep the dependable Thuney, who has started all 146 games in his nine NFL seasons. He is a four-time Super Bowl champion, winning two with the Patriots and two with the Chiefs, and has proven to be the consummate team player, even sliding out to left tackle late last season as Kansas City struggled to protect Patrick Mahomes' blind side.

The trade to Chicago ultimately came down to finances.

By trading Thuney,

the Chiefs freed up $16 million in much-needed salary cap space to address other needs. They are still in search of a solution at left tackle — a season-long problem that doomed them in their Super Bowl loss to Philadelphia — along with help at wide receiver, along the defensive line and in the defensive backfield.

The Chiefs placed the franchise tag on Pro Bowl offensive guard Trey Smith on Tuesday, which equates to a one-year deal worth about $23.4 million for next season — unless the sides work out a long-term deal. That effectively makes Smith the highest-paid guard in the NFL next season. And when his salary is combined with the four-year, $72 million deal that center Creed Humphrey signed last fall, the Chiefs have tied up a huge chunk of their cap space in their offensive line.

Meanwhile, the Chiefs have several options to replace Thuney already on the roster.

Mike Caliendo finished the season at his spot once Thuney moved to tackle, though he struggled mightily against the Eagles in the Super Bowl. They also drafted interior lineman Hunter Nourzad in the fifth round of last year's draft.

The most intriguing possibility, though, may be Kingsley Suamataia, whom the Chiefs drafted in the second round last April in the hopes that he could play left tackle. Suamataia struggled at that position early in the year and was summarily benched, but the Chiefs began to try him at guard during practice and he seemed to flourish at the new spot down the stretch.

The Chiefs are expected to take another swing at addressing the left tackle position in the April draft.

Chargers release Bosa after nine seasons

By Joe Reedy
Associated Press

The Los Angeles Chargers released Joey Bosa on Wednesday night, ending the linebacker's nine-season tenure with the franchise.

The move, which came less than a week before the start of the new league year, was expected due to Bosa's large salary cap number and injury history. Bosa had a cap number of $36.47 million for the 2025 season, but the Chargers will save $25.36 million in cap space.

Bosa was the third overall pick by the Chargers in the 2016 NFL draft and was the last player on the roster from when the team played in San Diego. He signed a five-year extension worth $135 million in 2020 that made him the league's highest-paid defensive player at the time.

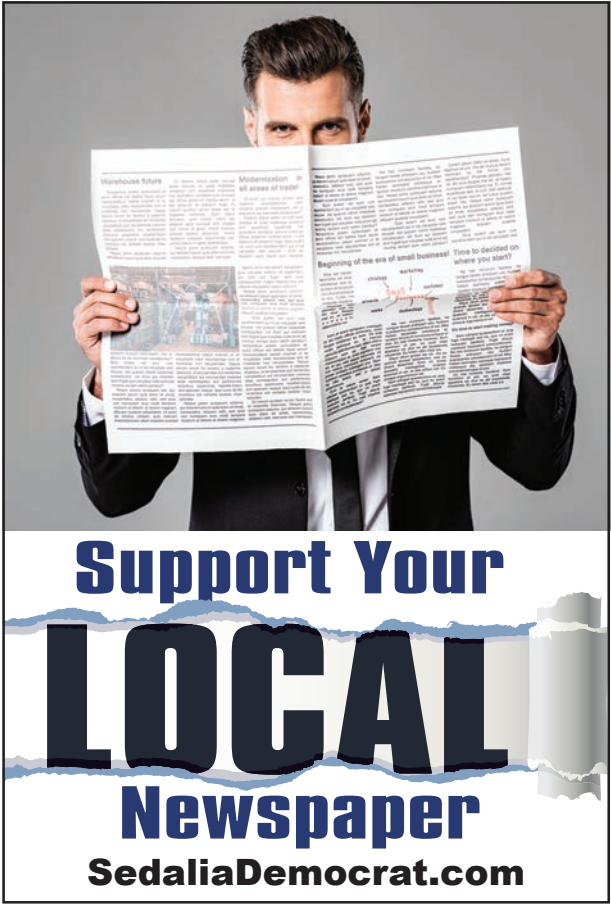

Bosa played in 14 games with nine starts this past season after agreeing to restructure his contract. But his five sacks were his fewest in the six seasons during which he has played at least 12 games as he battled hip and back injuries.

After seeing action in 16 games in 2021, Bosa saw the field for only 14 games combined in the 2022 and '23 season. He missed most of 2022 because of a groin injury, but returned late in the year. He was sidelined the final seven games in 2023 with a foot injury.

Bosa's 72 sacks are tied for 10th most in the NFL since he entered the league and are second in franchise history.

With Bosa's release, the Bolts will put a bigger emphasis on trying to re-sign linebacker Khalil Mack, who is an unrestricted free agent for the first time in his 11-year career.

Tuli Tuipulotu, who led the Chargers with 8 1/2 sacks this past season, is expected to move into a starting spot with Bosa's departure.

LINCOLN

“Mostly relief,” Burke said on what his reaction was when the final buzzer sounded. “You really like to be up two or three there, but we’ve been in those spots. We know how to get it to our free-throw shooter. We know how to execute our stuff. I’d like it if we shot a little better from the free-throw line, but we still came through.”

Sanders led the Cardinals with 14 points, Benham had 12 and sophomore Chance Koll had 10. Benham and Koll each made two 3-pointers.

Parrott added six points and Eckhoff finished with five.

Senior Kaden Gallup paced St. Paul with 17 points, junior Tate Kreisel had 12 and junior Easton Sheets had eight.

Lincoln held an 8-7 lead after the first quarter, but trailed 15-12 at halftime.

Koll opened the third quarter with back-to-back triples to give the Cardinals their first lead since the first quarter at 18-15. Benham added a layup to make it 20-15.

St. Paul answered with its own 5-0 burst to tie the game at 20.

Lincoln looked like it was going to take a 25-24 lead into the fourth, but Gallup was fouled on a 3-point shot right before the buzzer. He sank all three free throws to put the Saints up 27-25 ahead of the final frame.

Gallup, Kreisel and Sheets each scored a basket to make it 34-28 before Lincoln’s big run.

7 p.m. Friday, March 7, at Chillicothe High School. The game was moved from Gallatin High School due to tickets being in high demand.

The Bulldogs defeated Stewartsville with Osborn 55-53 in its sectional game Monday.

“Every time you win a game on this run, you kind of go through a cycle,” Burke said. “You win and then you feel great about it. Then, you start the preparation and you go, ‘Wait, these guys are really good.’ So, you got to get them up for it and you got to prepare for it, and then you win and you go back to the start again. STATE FAIR

No. 4 seeded State Fair (18-12) only trailed once in Tuesday’s contest when the score was 2-1 just a minute and 15 seconds in.

Four players scored in double figures for the Roadrunners led by sophomore Sam Bradford’s 17. Sophomore Jon Brandtner had 14, sophomore Mosa Osagie had 12 and freshman Malick Ndiaye had 10.

“We can’t just be Sam dominate where he scores 25 points,” Brown said. “We lost a lot of those games. We got to have guys score in double figures and we had four tonight.”

Brandtner helped the Roadrunners start strong when he sparked a 9-0 run by himself to put SFCC up 14-2 early. He hit two 3-pointers and converted an and-one during the stretch.

State Fair’s first-half lead peaked at 31-16 after Osagie had a stretch that saw him score seven straight points.

The Roadrunners led 34-21 at halftime.

SFCC extended the lead to 18 at 51-33 about midway through the second half thanks to three 2-point baskets by sophomore Chin Hanson, a layup by Bradford, a 3-pointer by Osagie, a basket by Brandtner and a 3-pointer by Ndiaye.

West Plains answered with an 8-0 burst that trimmed State Fair’s lead down to 10, but the Roadrunners came right back with a 15-2 run that gave them their largest lead to that point at 66-43.

“We want to value the ball, share the ball and move the ball, and that’s what we did,” Brown said.

The No. 5 seeded Grizzlies (12-19) made another push late to chip away at the lead, but ultimately, it wasn’t enough.

Along with the four in double figures, Hanson had nine points, freshman Daniel Garza had nine and sophomore Alex Gunnels had two.

As a unit, the Roadrunners shot 46% (29-of-63) from the field and 35.3% (6-of-17) from deep. They also outrebounded MSUWP 47-42 with Bradford and Brandtner each having nine.

Gunnels led State Fair with seven assists, while Osagie had three steals.

Sophomore Ryan Richardson led MSUWP with 13 points. Freshman Shunderrius Glass had 11 and sophomore Ergie Kougnami had eight.

West Plains shot 34.4% (22-of-64) from the field and 21.7% (5-of-23) from 3-point range.

Both teams had a rough night at the free-throw line. SFCC shot just 47.4% (9-of-19), while MSUWP shot 52.4% (11-of-21).

The Roadrunners move on to play No. 1 Moberly Area Community College in the Region 16 semifinals at Jefferson College on Friday, March 7. Tipoff is at 5 p.m.

SFCC is 0-3 against the nationally-ranked Greyhounds this year.

Williams recognized her own improvement as well, remembering a time when she ran into the outfield fence as a freshman while tracking down a fly ball.

“I accidentally went too far and I didn’t hear them yell, ‘Fence,’” Williams said. “I ran into the fence and got my foot caught underneath the fence, so [assistant coach Justin] Wiskur had to go outside and lift up the fence. I was so embarrassed, but it was so funny.”

As a senior, Williams had a batting average of .288, scored 22 runs, had seven RBI and stole 12 bases. Those numbers helped the Lady Tigers set a program record 17 wins.

Williams first learned that Stephens College was interested in her when senior Jennifer Bowman signed her letter of intent to play for the Stars on Oct. 24.

“My friend signed and [Stars head coach Clint Poulsen] came up and talked to me and told me they were looking into me,” Williams said. “I went and visited their campus. It was just a really great environment. It’s an all-girls campus. All the students are really nice, and Clint just shows me that he really cares about his girls. They love the sport and I feel like it’s a good next step.”

Williams added that continuing to play with Bowman makes her signing even more special.

“We have been friends our whole lives,” Williams said. “To be able to go to college together and take that next step, it’s really been good.”

Stephens College is coached by Clint Poulsen, who is entering his second year with the program after most recently coaching at Rock Bridge, but also spending time at Cole Camp, Pilot Grove and Boonville.

Poulsen said what made Williams such an attractive recruit was her speed.

“In our game, as they say, ‘speed never slumps,’” Poulsen said. “I’m always looking for kids that are going to be fast and put a lot of pressure on other teams, and I think that’s what she’s going to do. She’s going to bring us that speed and that part of her game to our program.”

The Stars are 0-6 to start this season and went 16-30 last year.

Williams said she will always remember her coaches at Smith-Cotton who helped her get to this point in her career, especially Miller.

“Miller is my favorite,” Williams said. “I’ve known her my whole life. She’s like my mom, like we butt heads, but she has really made me the player I am today.”

Williams plans to study psychology at Stephens College.

STORIES ABOUT LIFE

Does social media control you, or do you control it?

I grew up in a bubble, physically and mentally. I lived in a small town in the middle of Missouri, in the middle of the United States, in the middle of the world. Everyone was close to the same income bracket, and we all looked the same. We shopped at the same stores and ordered from the same catalogs. We all watched the same three channels on television and read the same magazines and books. We all went to church on Sunday and then spent the rest of the day with our families.

Sherry Broyles
Guest Columnist

If we had disagreements with family or friends about religion or politics, we didn't talk about it. My mother was Republican, and my father was Democrat. They voted in every election, and I never heard an argument about it, before or after the election. Most of us knew not to ask anyone how they voted – if you did ask, most of the old-timers would let you know that it was none of your business. I guess that's why they put curtains on voting booths. We all kept our thoughts and opinions about religion and politics to ourselves.

Now we did get together and gossip, face to face on Saturday nights, sharing rumors and occasionally facts about others' private affairs. Who was getting divorced, who was cheating on who? Our inquiring minds needed to know. Come Sunday morning we all headed to church and asked the good Lord for forgiveness. We had boundaries, back in the good old days.

Social media has changed everything, and not all for the better. In face-to-face interactions, most folks show some understanding, empathy and good old fashioned common sense. Somehow, social media platforms have convinced so many people to share their opinions on everything, no matter what the topic. You know, it is not necessary to comment on every social media post, you can just keep scrolling. It is also not necessary to broadcast every detail of one's life online. Take it from an old-timer, it's not anyone else's business and honestly not everyone wants to hear about it.

Last month I found myself in the middle of a family feud that had gone live on Facebook. I did not comment, I turned off my television and just watched the comments come in. I could find this type of drama everyday online and just cancel my cable, but watching the proverbial train wreck as entertainment is not helpful or healthy.

So how do you engage on social media without getting frustrated and losing your mind? The first step is to realize that social media may be controlling you, not the other way around. You don't have to be everyone's friend. You can unfollow people and they won't even know.

Fifty seven percent of Americans who use social media suffer from posting regret. Remember, you are in control, stay in your own lane, when in doubt, don't share. If you are feeling compelled to share your opinion about something controversial, take a moment before you post. Eat some chocolate, phone a friend. Matthew 7:5 says, "take the plank out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to remove the speck from your brother's eye". Ice Cube said, "Check yourself, before you wreck yourself". Good advice all around.

Here's a few positive things to share on social media that will keep your feed more fun and less negative: Photos, videos, personal updates about your day, favorite quotes, recommendations for movies, books, restaurants, an interesting article, funny memes, inspirational stories and quotes, events you are attending.

Smithton Schools to present 'The Little Mermaid'

By Faith Bemiss-McKinney
faithb@sedaliademocrat.com

The magic of "The Little Mermaid" will be presented in a musical by Smithton R-VI School students on Friday, March 7, and Saturday, March 8.

Alyssa Gerke, the school's speech and drama coach, and high school history teacher, said that although recent snow days have delayed practice sessions, the students are rallying and working toward perfecting the production for this weekend.

"They have picked up the slack," Gerke said. "I think they feel the stress maybe more than I do, sometimes. But they are making up that time that was lost during our snow days."

She said they picked "The Little Mermaid" because they performed their first musical in a long-time last year with "The Wizard of Oz."

"When we were throwing out ideas, my assistant director and musical director, we wanted to do something princessy," Gerke said. "Because our seniors wanted a princess theme. Somebody suggested 'The Little Mermaid,' and I was like, 'We can do that. We had the vocals for that; we could make it work, and we knew it would be enjoyable to watch.'"

This year, Gerke has

Izzy Brown, a senior at Smithton R-VI High School, portrays the lead character, Ariel, during a dress rehearsal for the musical "The Little Mermaid" Monday night, March 3. three seniors in the musical: Izzy Brown, who plays the lead character Ariel; Lily Stevens, who plays the second lead, Ursula; and foreign exchange student Gabby Sanchez, from Ecuador.

Brown has been in theatre since seventh grade when she had only one line, but now she plays the lead role. Stevens began later in high school.

"They both kind of broke out of their shell," Gerke said. "And then the third one is our foreign exchange student — so that's been fun."

'Silent Sky' actors discuss their real-life characters

By Kayla Nilges
Special to the Democrat

As the premiere of "Silent Sky" approaches Friday, March 7, three actresses discuss their historical characters.

Jan Bahner, who plays Scottish immigrant/single mother, Williamina "Mina" Fleming, recounted the seemingly tragic incident that led to Fleming's career in astronomy.

"I think Mina's abandonment by her husband was possibly the best thing that could have happened to her," Bahner said. "She was destined for a completely different life with him as the 'usual' wife and mother...she probably would not have had an interest in astronomy at all without Dr. Pickering in her life."

Bahner went on to describe Fleming as a charming woman, known for hosting dinner parties, attending theatre productions, and enjoying a good football game—yet Fleming, unlike her colleagues, was not college educated. In fact, her schooling did not exceed the eighth grade.

"But she was an incredibly bright and quick learner with innate talent that suiting her for the classification and cataloging of stars," Bahner said. "Keen eyesight, attention to detail, creative problem solving, and off-the-charts organizational skills."

Henrietta Leavitt (Alex Sword) expresses her frustrations to her colleague, Williamina Fleming (Jan Bahner) as she is in the depths of her independent research.

Also unlike her colleagues, Fleming was the only "Harvard computer" to balance motherhood. After her initial abandonment in 1878, the heavily pregnant Fleming decided to return her son to Scotland to live with her mother as she sought employment and housing. At the age of 8, her child at last permanently joined her. It was then that Fleming felt the full weight of single motherhood.

"My home life is necessarily different from that of the other officers of the University since all house-keeping cares rest on me, in addition to those of providing the means to meet their expenses," Fleming once wrote.

Bahner noted the additional mental load Fleming carried.

"There is an interesting contrast in the play between Williamina and Henrietta (Leavitt)," Bahner said. "In Act 2, Henrietta expresses frustration with not being able to know how her work might connect her to the future. I think that because Williamina has a son, she would be less concerned about her own legacy and more concerned about her son's. Most parents are quite focused on making sure that their children will have a better life than they have themselves. And they see that their own legacy is very much wrapped up in the legacy of their children and grandchildren."

Trade tariffs squeeze US Farmers amid global retaliation

By Jack Payne
Special to the Democrat

U.S. farmers are bracing for economic uncertainty as newly imposed trade tariffs spark retaliatory measures from key agricultural trading partners.

The Trump administration recently announced a 25% tariff on imports from Canada and Mexico, along with a 10% tariff on certain goods from China. In response, these nations have enacted countermeasures targeting American agricultural exports, leaving farmers vulnerable to shifting global markets.

The agricultural sector, heavily reliant on exports, is feeling the immediate effects of these tariffs. Soybean, corn and wheat producers are particularly at risk as China, one of the largest importers of U.S. crops, has imposed tariffs on American-grown grains.

With China historically purchasing billions of dollars’ worth of soybeans from U.S. farmers, any disruption in trade flows could have long-term financial consequences for the industry.

The impact of these trade policies extends beyond row crops. The dairy and meat industries are also caught in the crossfire, with Canada and Mexico implementing duties on American cheese, beef, and pork products.

These tariffs threaten to slow U.S. agricultural exports, increasing supply domestically and potentially lowering prices for farmers already operating on tight margins.

Market analysts warn that these tariffs could lead to a decline in farm incomes as producers struggle to find alternative markets. While some countries, such as Brazil and Argentina, may step in to fill the supply gap left by American exports, U.S. farmers could face long-term consequences if buyers establish new, more stable supply chains elsewhere.

“Exactly how strong our economy is over time has a lot to do with U.S. consumers’ comfort with continuing to go out to restaurants and continuing to buy washers and dryers and just that general activity. And a lot of what we’re talking about here is probably going to slow some of that,” said Glynn Tonsor, an agricultural economist at Kansas State University.

Agricultural leaders across the country are urging policymakers to negotiate trade deals that protect farming interests.

While President Donald Trump told farmers in his State of the Union Address on Tuesday, March 4 to “have fun” selling their products domestically, many farmers who rely on international sales argue that tariffs disrupt a delicate balance, making it difficult to plan for future planting and production cycles. With global commodity prices fluctuating, uncertainty in the trade landscape adds another layer of financial strain.

Federal officials have indicated that relief programs may be expanded to offset potential losses for farmers affected by the tariffs.

However, past assistance programs during previous trade disputes have received mixed reviews from the farming community, with many arguing that financial aid does not fully compensate for lost market access and long-term damage to trade relationships.

In the meantime, farmers continue to monitor developments, hoping for a resolution that will stabilize international trade.

Persistent drought costs Missouri ag industry

Drought is costing Missouri agriculture significant amounts of money.

Since the 1980s, Missourians have had 16 drought disasters costing $1 billion or more, says University of Missouri Extension state climatologist Zachary Leasor. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration estimates the total cost of these disasters is between $10 billion and $20 billion.

Leasor refers to it as “persistent drought,” the kind that doesn’t go away with a couple of good gully washers. It’s the kind of drought that digs down deep in the soil.

That is part of why he and other members of the Missouri Climate Center team are installing in-ground moisture sensors at some stations in the Missouri Mesonet, a statewide network of 45 weather stations. The sensors will record soil moisture at different depths to understand how soil responds to drought or excess moisture.

The additions are part of a partnership with Missouri Hydrology Information Center and Missouri Department of Natural Resources to develop a statewide soil and atmospheric monitoring plan and produce daily soil moisture maps.

Soil moisture data helps in understanding the storage and movement of water within the soil profile, Leasor says. Soil moisture also influences critical exchanges of water between the atmosphere and land surface.

Missouri has been hit hard by drought during the past three consecutive years, he says. In 2024, the state recorded its 11th-driest August-to-October period ever, based on data going back to 1895. That followed 2023, when the state had its 7th-driest May-November on record, and 2022, when Missouri had its 15th-driest June-September on record.

By the end of October 2024, most of southwestern Missouri was in drought condition D3, indicating extreme drought, according to the U.S. Drought Monitor. Stone, Barry, Hickory and Lawrence counties in southwestern Missouri’s forage and cattle stronghold all had rainfall deficits of 6 inches or more from August to October.

By the end of November, the waterspouts had turned back on, and most of the state received an abundance of rainfall. St. Louis had 9.68 inches of rainfall, giving the city its second-wettest November on record. Kansas City, Springfield and Columbia also had above-normal precipitation. Several longstanding one- and two-day November rainfall records were broken on Nov. 4 and Nov. 5, with Mountain Grove in Wright County getting 12.50 inches of rain during the two-day period.

In addition to rainfall shortages, producers of row crops, forages and livestock saw higher temperatures in 2024, with the preliminary annual temperature 3.5 degrees above normal. The year was Missouri’s second-warmest in 130 years of records, says Leasor.

Looking to 2025, Leasor says La Nina may or may not bring relief. While January and February were colder and snowier for many, most of the state is slightly below average for wintertime precipitation, and springtime moisture will be critical. Typically, La Nina can bring wetter conditions mainly to eastern Missouri, but most of Missouri’s current drought areas are to the west. This is also a weak La Nina that is not expected to last long, so there is uncertainty over how much impact La Nina will have on spring weather.

Leasor notes that the U.S. Drought Monitoring Network has improved communications about drought. The network includes more than 400 scientists from across the U.S. who provide input on local conditions. Through their observations, the network works to understand the science of drought and improve awareness and decision-making about drought, he says.

PASTOR’S PULPIT

By P.C. Thomas

Sedalia Bible Academy

Exhibit 1: “I not only locked up many of the saints in prison..but when they were put to death I cast my vote against them” (Acts 26:10).

Exhibit 2; “To ail those in Rome who are loved by God and called to be saints” (Romans 1:7).

Exhibit 3: “...the Spirit intercedes for the saints according to the will of God” (Romans 8:27b).

Exhibit 4: “To the church ... in Corinth, to those sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints...” (ICorinthians 1:2).

Exhibit 5: “When one of you has a grievance against another, does he dare go to law...instead of the saints?” (I Cor. 6:1)

Exhibit 6: “As in all churches of the saints,...” (I Cor. 14:33b).

Exhibit 7: “All the saints greet you” (II Cor. 13:13).

Exhibit 8: “...to the saints who are in Ephesus...” (Ephesians 1:1b).

Exhibit 9: “...to all the saints in Christ Jesus who are at Philippi....” (Philippians 1:1b).

Exhibit 10: “Greet every saint in Christ Jesus.. ...All the saints greet you, especially those of Caesar’s household” (Philippians 4:21-22).

Exhibit 11: “To the saints and faithful brothers in Christ at Colossae...” (Colossians 1:2)

Exhibit 12: “...because the hearts of the saints have been refreshed through you” (Philemon 7b).

In Ephesians 4:11-12, Paul says that Christ gave to the church apostles, prophets, evangelists, and pastor-teachers so that they will “equip the saints for the work of the ministry.”

Over the years, the word “saint” has been sinned against, and its popular, modern usage has become mega-morphed. Those who give top priority to the Christian scriptures can help restore the word to its original meaning and usage.

To extricate ourselves from the grip of the word’s current usage, we would do well to think through I Corinthians 6:9-11. Please read it aloud. In this passage, the bad news about the Corinthian Christians’ pre-conversion lifestyle is contrasted with their redeemed Christian experience, with Paul saying to them, “And such were some of you. But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Spirit of our God.”

What does that tell us? That saints are regular folks with an unsavory background, who have been salvaged by the Savior, declared forgiven due to His payment on the cross for their sins, and set apart, made saints, made holy, for His exclusive use and honor.

Researching to write this article triggered a eureka moment for me because I discovered that the word “saints” occurs 11 times in Paul’s two letters to the Corinthian church, which is more than in any other New Testament epistle. I couldn’t get over the fact that Paul was repeating “saints” to readers with such poor resumes!

Question 1: So, who are saints, according to God’s word ?

Answer 1: All kingdom of God rejects (see I Cor. 6:9-11) who have admitted their utter, helpless spiritual disqualifications, and have trusted the One who demonstrated His love on the despicable cross.

Q. 2: Why does it say in the Bible, “The Gospel According to Saint Luke”? if the word “saint” is not used as an honorific?

A. 2: Titles of books, and even subheadings, in the Bible are added by editors or publishers, and are not part of the inspired word of God. Bible publishers who believe that certain persons deserve that honor-prefix use it. Publishers that do not hold to that view refrain from using “saint” in any book title in the Bible.

Q. 3: If we want to give special honor and recognition to either a Bible person, like Jeremiah or Peter, or later church VIPs, like Augustine or Martin Luther, how do we show it?

A. 3: Some of these persons are so highly esteemed that adding the common Bible word (saint), used to describe regular Christ followers, in front of their names will not add any more status to them.

I use Prophet Jeremiah and Apostle Peter in my speaking and writing. For non-Bible persons I find some other way to distinguish them, like Theologian Augustine, or Reformer Martin Luther.

Using “saints” to describe Christ followers won’t cheapen the word; it will only heighten Christians’ awareness of their high calling. It should not be a word to identify only an elite minority.

We Christians should gratefully and unashamedly acknowledge our spiritual set-apartedness in our internal communication. Letters I receive from some ministries start out with “Dear Saints.” A needed reminder.

A weak Pope Francis thanks people for their prayers ‘from the bottom of my heart’ in audio message

By Colleen Barry and Nicole Winfield

Associated Press

ROME — A weak and breathless Pope Francis thanked people for their prayers for his recovery in a remarkable audio message broadcast Thursday, the first public sign of life from the 88-year-old pope since he was hospitalized three weeks ago with double pneumonia.

Francis’ feeble voice, discernible through his labored breaths and in his native Spanish, was recorded Thursday and broadcast to the faithful in St. Peter’s Square who had gathered for the nightly recitation of the rosary prayer.

“I thank you from the bottom of my heart for your prayers for my health from the square, I accompany you from here,” he said, his soft voice piercing the hushed square. “May God bless you and the Virgin protect you. Thank you.”

The cardinal presiding over the prayer, Cardinal Ángel Fernández Artime, had told the crowd at the start of the service that he had “beautiful news, a beautiful gift” to share. The clearly surprised crowd broke into applause and then applauded again after Francis’ final “Gracias.” Fernández Artime, for his part, bowed his head as he listened.

For anyone used to hearing Francis’ voice, which is often so soft it sounds like a whisper, the audio was an emotional punch to the gut that hammered home just how sick he is.

The 88-year-old pope has chronic lung disease and had part of one lung removed as a young man.

The Vatican has given twice-daily updates on Francis’ medical condition, but has distributed no photos or video of him since the morning of Feb. 14, when he held a handful of audiences at the Vatican before being admitted to Rome’s Gemelli hospital for what was then just a bad case of bronchitis.

The infection progressed into a complex respiratory tract infection and double pneumonia that has sidelined Francis for the longest period of his 12-year papacy and raised questions about the future of his papacy.

Doctors on Thursday reported that Francis was in stable condition, with no new respiratory crises or fever. He continued his respiratory and other physical therapy Thursday, worked, rested and prayed from the 10th floor papal suite at Rome’s Gemelli hospital.

Given the continued stability of Francis’ condition, doctors said they didn’t expect to provide a new medical update until Saturday. His prognosis remains guarded, meaning he is not out of danger.

The pope has been sleeping with a non-invasive mechanical mask to guarantee that his lungs expand properly overnight and help his recovery. He has been transitioning to receiving high-flow oxygen with a nasal tube during the day. His routine now includes physical therapy, along with treatment for double pneumonia and respiratory therapy, Vatican officials said.

The 88-year-old pope has been stable for three full days after suffering a pair of respiratory crises Monday.

The pope was supposed to attend a spiritual retreat this weekend with the rest of the Holy See hierarchy. On Tuesday, the Vatican said the retreat would go ahead without Francis but in “spiritual communion” with him. The theme, selected before Francis got sick, was “Hope in eternal life.”

Ban on use of food stamps for candy, soda debated by Missouri lawmakers

By Clara Bates
Missouri Independent

Low-income Missourians who receive food assistance would be prohibited from buying soda and candy with their benefits under a bill debated Tuesday.

The bill, sponsored by state Rep. Jamie Gragg, a Republican from Ozark, would restrict food purchases under the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, previously called food stamps, if approved by the federal government.

The bill would “get us back to where the original program was meant to go,” Gragg argued in Tuesday afternoon during a hearing of the House Committee on Government Efficiency. “The program’s been bastardized.”

The purpose of the SNAP program is to help low-income families supplement their grocery budgets to afford nutritious food. As of last month, over 320,000 households in Missouri received SNAP benefits, loaded onto electronic benefits transfer cards used to purchase groceries. The average value of benefits per household was $396.

Proponents argue that taxpayer dollars, through the SNAP program, shouldn’t subsidize unhealthy food and beverages, which worsen people’s health.

Opponents called the proposal government overreach — limiting low income families’ freedom to choose their food — and overly broad, potentially banning SNAP access for things like granola bars and electrolyte drinks.

State Rep. Jim Murphy, a Republican from St. Louis, asked whether “any pre-process food could be deemed unhealthy” and added to the list of banned purchases.

“Do we want to be the nanny state that says, ‘you can eat this and you can’t eat that?’” Murphy said. “Where does that end?”

Rep. Darin Chappell, a Republican from Rogersville, said the list of unhealthy foods could keep growing.

“My concern is we can add to this list ad infinitum,” Chappell said. “The United Nations tells us that red meat is a carcinogen...at what point do we stop micromanaging this list?”

Similar bills have been proposed in other states, including Arizona, West Virginia, Idaho and Kansas.

Robert F. Kennedy, Jr., health and human services secretary, has said he supports restricting SNAP for junk food, and the agriculture secretary, Brooke Rollins, has signaled interest.

The conservative national think tank Foundation for Government Accountability has helped push for the change.

“Food stamps have fueled the junk food epidemic, with soda ranking as the number one commodity bought with food stamps,” Gragg told the committee — a direct quote from a report published by the Foundation for Government Accountability earlier this year.

James Harris, a lobbyist for the Foundation for Government Accountability, called the bill common sense.

“If this were to pass and it helps one child have a little more milk or something of actual nutrition in their home, that’s great,” Harris testified. “...This just would allow Missouri to hopefully help some children have access to more nutritional food, besides maybe what they get at school.”

Those testifying in opposition included the progressive anti-poverty nonprofit Empower Missouri, along with industry groups such as the Missouri Chamber of Commerce and Industry, the Missouri Grocers Association and the Missouri Beverage Association.

Nationally, beverage groups have been lobbying to keep sodas in the program, the Wall Street Journal reported late last year.

A 2016 report from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which oversees SNAP, found that the households that rely on the program have similar spending patterns to non-SNAP households. For both SNAP and non-SNAP households, the report stated, “more money was spent on soft drinks than any other item.” SNAP households spent 5% of their grocery budget on soft drinks, and non-SNAP households spent 4%. The percent spent on candy, 2%, was the same between both groups.

The bill defines candy as a food product “containing sugar, honey, or other natural or artificial sweeteners in combination with chocolate, fruit, nuts, or other ingredients or flavorings in the forms of bars, drops, or pieces.”

It defines a soft drink as “nonalcoholic beverages that contain natural or artificial sweeteners” but does not contain milk or milk substitutes or beverages that are more than 50% fruit or vegetable juice by volume.

The definition would prevent the purchase of Powerade with SNAP funds, but allow sugary bottled coffee drinks with milk, said Katie Gamble, a lobbyist for Missouri Beverage Association.

State Rep. Dean Van Schoiack, a Republican from Savannah, said it seems that granola bars would fall under the candy definition, “and I always thought they were supposed to be healthy.”

Christine Woody, director of food policy for Empower Missouri, said individuals could cross the border into neighboring states and spend their SNAP dollars on banned items there.

She added that a better strategy would be to encourage the purchase of healthy food, by “really investing in some of the programs that are successful.” Woody pointed to two programs that offer incentives to purchase fruits and vegetables, the Double Up Food Bucks program and the Seniors Farmers Market Nutrition Program.

Those opposed said any changes should be federally decided, rather than having each state determine what is healthy or not.

Missouri would submit a waiver to the federal government requesting this change, if the bill is passed, but there’s no guarantee it’d be approved. States’ previous attempts to limit SNAP purchases in this way have been rejected by the federal government, including because of being complex to implement, having vague standards of what is defined as healthy, and failing to show they would reduce obesity.

No action was taken on the bill Tuesday.

Red Cross reminds residents to test smoke alarms this weekend

Daylight saving time begins on Sunday, March 9 and the American Red Cross encourages everyone to test their smoke alarms as they turn their clocks forward to make sure the devices are working.

“Working smoke alarms cut the risk of dying in a home fire in half as you only have about two minutes to safely get out,” said JoAnn Woody, Executive Director, American Red Cross of Greater Kansas City and Northwest Missouri. “Every second counts when there’s a home fire and the sooner an alarm alerts you to a fire, the sooner you can get to a safer place. When daylight saving time ends this weekend, test your smoke alarms to help prevent a tragedy in your home.”

Just in the month of January alone, local Red Cross volunteers responded to help more than 920 people, in Missouri, affected by nearly 260 home fires, which account for most of the about 65,000 disasters that the Red Cross responds to annually across the country.

Smoke Alarms

When turning your clocks back this weekend, test your smoke alarms and replace the batteries if needed. Visit redcross.org/fire for more information, including an escape plan to create and practice with your family, or download the free Red Cross Emergency app by searching “American Red Cross” in app stores.

Install smoke alarms on every level of your home, including inside and outside bedrooms and sleeping areas.

Replace smoke alarms that are 10 years or older. Components such as sensors can become less sensitive over time. Follow your alarm’s manufacturer instructions.

Practice your two-minute home fire escape plan. Make sure everyone in your household can get out in less than two minutes — the amount of time you may have to escape a burning home before it’s too late.

Include at least two ways to get out of every room and select a meeting spot at a safe distance away from your home, such as your neighbor’s home or landmark like a specific tree in your front yard, where everyone can meet.

If you need help

If you cannot afford to purchase smoke alarms or are physically unable to install one, the Red Cross may be able to help. Contact your local Red Cross for help. Visit www.RedCross.org/SmokeAlarmMO or call 1-800-Red-Cross to schedule a free Red Cross home fire safety visit.

Home fire campaign saves lives

Since October 2014, the Red Cross Home Fire Campaign, working with community partners, has saved at least 2,284 lives by educating families about fire safety, helping them create escape plans and installing free smoke alarms in high-risk areas across the country. To learn more about the campaign and how you can get involved, visit redcross.org/homefires.

MERMAID

After graduation, Brown plans to attend the University of Missouri-Kansas City and major in musical theatre. Stevens plans to attend Missouri State University in Springfield and major in elementary education, while Sanchez plans to attend a university in Ecuador.

Gerke noted there are 17 junior and senior high students in the musical and 11 elementary students.

"And then we did something different this time," Gerke said. "We have mini mermaids, and they'll sing a couple of songs before the show and dance too. And those are kids

An unmistakable mark left by Fleming was her advocacy for women in scientific fields, as well as equitable pay.

"In her time, the rate of Harvard women's pay was about 60 percent that of the men in the same job," Bahner said. "Today it's, in general, about 85.3 percent. Mina would still find this unacceptable!"

At $1,500 per year, Fleming made good money "for a woman," Bahner said. "...Mina had left school at the age of 14 in order to work as a teaching assistant because her family's economic state made it necessary. If she had stayed in teaching, she would have made $700 per year; as Pickering's maid, much less than that."

Despite the separation of time, Bahner admits to feeling a kindred-ship to her character.

"I'd love to just hang out with her," Bahner said. "We share many interests and opinions. Reading her journal, getting a feel for her personality-I think she and I would have made good friends."

Dynisha Hawkins, who plays renowned suffragette and astronomer Annie Jump Cannon, marveled at her bravery.

"I believe that Annie got in trouble for being a suffragette. I believe that she spoke her mind, but just like with the play (version of) Annie, that the confidence she had in herself being in an old man's world didn't necessarily bother her," Hawkins said. "She wanted the same rights as them, but instead of letting it get her down, she used it as her power."

It's also important to manage your usage: Set time limits and schedule specific times to check your social media accounts. Turn off notifications, you don't need constant distractions. Take a break for a few days, weeks, or longer. Be sure and let your friends know you are "unplugging" for a bit. The average person spends two and a half hours a day that are in pre-school through third grade,. And we have 14 of those."

Gerke added that it would be a great production.

"You get to see characters and kids break out of their shells, that maybe don't always," Gerke said. "And who are not always as vocal or open. It (the musical) is also very puny. There are a lot of puns in this play. It's been fun to listen to the different puns because all the puns are written at a perfect time. (The students) have loved it, they are excited about the sparkle and the shine and all the different parts of how to make a mermaid."

Gerke added that they made some of the costumes for the show and purchased some. She noted she's thankful to the Liberty Center

Association for the Arts in Sedalia for letting her borrow costumes, too.

"I would like to include how this is a whole school effort between the musical department, art club, and so many other people really helps make this production a success and a great experience for the students," Gerke said.

Smithton R-VI School will present the musical "The Little Mermaid" at 7 p.m. on Friday, March 7, and Saturday, March 8. The doors will open at 6:15 p.m. each night.

Those wishing to attend may purchase tickets at the door; tickets are $8 for ages five and up.

want to have it all?"

Trinady Klemme, who plays Henrietta's fictionalized sister in "Silent Sky," brings a traditional woman's role to life through Margaret Leavitt. While Margaret may not be a true historical figure, Klemme feels she represents women content with homemaking.

"I don't think (she) envied the independent lifestyle (Henrietta) created," Klemme said. "I think she was...very pleased by her family, music, and church being the center of her life."

Still, Klemme speculates how a real-life sister of Henrietta's may have felt about Williamina, a fellow mother who became close to her sister.

"I think part of her envied Henrietta's relationship with Williamina as well as what she perceived as a lack of responsibility since she didn't have kids (and) family to care for," Klemme said.

And while a woman like Margaret may have been happy in her circumstances, carving out a small space of her own would likely be in order by today's standards, Klemme said.

"I think Margaret would pursue a more serious career in music," Klemme said. "I do think that she would still hold her morals of the importance of family and the church but I think she would be more outgoing and creative in her life. I would love to get to know the story of how she became so confident in her faith and if she ever struggles."

"Silent Sky" premiers Friday, March 7 at 7:30 with another evening show Saturday, March 8 at 7:30. A matinee will be performed Sunday, March 9 at 2:00. Tickets are $17 for adults, $15 for seniors, and $12 for students.

WHAT'S NEW ON AMC+

"Dark Winds" - Season 3

A new case is blowing in with Season 3 of "Dark Winds" streaming Sunday, March 9, on AMC+. Created by Graham Roland ("Mile 22," 2018) and based on the "Leaphorn & Chee" novel series by Tony Hillerman, this crime drama transports viewers back to the 1970s as it follows Navajo police officers Joe Leaphorn (Zahn McClarnon, "Into the West") and Jim Chee (Kiowa Gordon, "The Red Road"). Season 3 picks up six months after the Season 2 finale, as the disappearance of two boys — who left nothing but an abandoned bicycle and blood-stained patch of ground behind — rocks their town. As Leaphorn and Chee take on the case, Bernadette Manuelito (Jessica Matten, "Rez Ball," 2024) attempts to settle into her new job with the Border Patrol 500 miles from home — until she stumbles across a far-reaching conspiracy. The new season also stars A Martinez ("Longmire"), Jeri Ryan ("Star Trek: Voyager"), Jenna Elfman ("Fear the Walking Dead"), Bruce Greenwood ("The Resident"), Raoul Max Trujillo ("Mayans M.C."), Tonantzin Carmelo ("NCIS: Origins"), Alex Meraz ("Landman"), Terry Serpico ("Law & Order: Special Victims Unit"), Derek Hince ("American Primeval"), Phil Burke ("Hell

WHAT'S NEW ON NETFLIX

"The Electric State" (2025)

Furbys are nothing compared to the rest of the robots in the new sci-fi adventure film "The Electric State," premiering Friday, March 14, on Netflix. Set in an alternate version of the '90s, the film follows Michelle (Millie Bobby Brown, "Stranger Things"), an orphaned teenager attempting to navigate life in a society "where sentient robots resembling cartoons and mascots, who once served peacefully among humans, now live in exile following a failed uprising" (per Netflix). But everything Michelle thought she knew about the world gets flipped upside down when she is visited by a sweet, mysterious robot named Cosmo (voiced by Alan Tudyk, "Resident Alien"), who seems to be controlled by her brother, Christopher (Woody Norman, "Poldark"), who Michelle believed to be dead. Desperate to be reunited with her brother, Michelle sets out across America with a rag-tag group that includes Cosmo, a smuggler named Keats (Chris Pratt, "Guardians of the Galaxy," 2014) and Keats' robot sidekick, Herman (Anthony Mackie, "Twisted Metal"). "As they venture into the Exclusion Zone, a walled-off corner in the desert where robots now exist on their own," says Netflix, "Keats and Michelle find a strange, colorful group of new animatronic allies — and begin to learn that the forces behind Christopher's disappearance are more sinister than they ever expected." Directed by Anthony and Joe Russo ("Avengers: Endgame," 2019), "The Electric State" is based on the illustrated novel of the same name by Simon Stalenhag, with a screenplay by "Agent Carter" co-creators Stephen McFeely and Christopher Markus. The film's star-studded cast also includes Ke Huy Quan ("Everything Everywhere All at Once," 2022), Stanley Tucci ("Conclave," 2024), Jason Alexander ("Seinfeld"), Giancarlo Esposito ("Breaking Bad"), Woody Harrelson ("White House Plumbers"), Brian Cox ("Succession"), Jenny Slate ("Bob's Burgers") and Hank Azaria ("The Simpsons").

and "The Bear," John Mulaney's talents have taken him to every corner of the entertainment world. Now, he takes on the talk show realm with the premiere of the live variety talk show "Everybody's Live With John Mulaney," premiering Wednesday, March 12, on Netflix. As Mulaney hosts, co-showruns and executive produces the series, this followup to his "Everybody's in L.A." special promises to provide side-splitting laughs, special celebrity guests and fun musical performances, all held together with Mulaney's signature sense of humor. Alongside Mulaney, the series is executive produced by Ashley Edens ("Dancing with the Stars").

WHAT'S NEW ON PEACOCK

Soon, Mickey realizes that her personal history could be closely tied to the case. From showrunner, writer, director and executive producer Nikki Toscano ("The Offer"), the series is based on the book of the same name by Liz Moore. Also starring are Nicholas Pinnock ("For Life"), Callum Vinson ("Chucky"), rapper OT The Real ("Kicked"), Patch Darragh ("Everything Sucks!"), Joe Daru ("All American: Homecoming"), Hannah D. Scott ("Orange Is the New Black") and Vaughan Reilly ("The Hunger Games: The Ballad of Songbirds & Snakes," 2023).

WHAT'S NEW ON APPLE TV+

"Dope Thief" — Season 1

Going undercover takes on a new meaning in Apple's new crime drama series "Dope Thief," premiering on Apple TV+ Friday, March 14. Based on the book of the same name by Dennis Tafoya, the series follows best friends Ray (Brian Tyree Henry, "Atlanta") and Manny (Wagner Moura, "Narcos"), who are looking to score big by robbing a house in the countryside. Posing as DEA agents to carry out their heist, the friends soon find their one-and-done job turning into a life-threatening enterprise. On their hunt to grab some quick cash, Ray and Manny find themselves unwittingly stumbling upon the biggest hidden narcotics corridor on the Eastern Seaboard. Created by and written for television by Peter Craig ("Top Gun: Maverick," 2022), "Dope Thief" features an ensemble cast including Marin Ireland ("Justified: City Primeval"), Kate Mulgrew ("Star Trek: Voyager"), NESTA Cooper ("See"), Amir Arison ("The Blacklist"), Dustin Nguyen ("Warrior"), Will Pullen ("Dickinson") and Ving Rhames ("Pulp Fiction," 1994).
