Street milling, paving work could begin today, weather permitting

BY DAVE MARNER
MANAGING EDITOR
dmarn@wardpub.com

If the weather cooperates the remainder of the week, Owensville's summer milling and filling asphalt paving project could begin as early as today (Wednesday).

NB West Contracting was expected to be milling this week and could have the paving completed by Friday if everything goes smoothly, said the city's public works director, Jeff Kuhne.

Aldermen on Monday unanimously approved a change order to West Contracting's contract with the city. The change order eliminates, for now at least, an alleyway scheduled for asphalt paving behind Art's Liquor and Sporting Goods store. Instead, the city will correct a drainage issue on the east end of East Peters Street by putting down a thin leveling course of asphalt on 50 feet of roadway between Walnut and Olive.

The change order eliminates $3,609 worth of planned work in the alleyway and adds $6,490 worth of work on East Peters for a net increase to the contract of $2,881.

Kuhne explained that he and the city's engineer agreed the city should survey the existing alleyway before the work is completed.

"The alley is straighter toward Casey's not curved to (Highway) 28," Kuhne told aldermen.

"We don't like the final alley project," added Nathan Schauf, the city's administrator. He said there were concerns on behalf of the city on the layout of the alley compared to how it actually is on a map.

Schauf, responding to a question from the board about if the project was being dropped completely or not, noted, "we're keeping it on the radar just not this year."

And, added Kuhne, "It's going to take quite a bit of work to get it straightened out."

The addition of the leveling course on East Peters will recreate a slight crown in the roadway which has apparently settled out since previous work was done on the street.

Streets including for milling and paving in the base bid include:

- North Walnut Street from East Peters Avenue;
- North Walnut Street to Red Oak Road;
- East Peters Avenue from North Walnut Street to Olive Street; and
- East Harrison Avenue from North First Street to North Cuba Street.

Option A as includes the full mill and fill with a 2-inch asphalt overlay of 649 feet of East Pear Avenue from Elm Street to North Cedar Street,

Option B, a 2-inch asphalt overlay of 118 feet of an unnamed alley running east-west behind Art's between Highway 28 and West Jefferson, was the portion of the project which was removed.

County obtains generator grant

Gasconade County's emergency management center was awarded a $46,000 grant to purchase a 178 KW mobile generator to power the courthouse.

Kris Bayless, EMA director, and his wife, Teresa, informed commissioners of the award from Homeland Security on Thursday. It will be installed under a covered carport-type shelter on a concrete pad west of the courthouse and will run the entire building, the couple reported.

R-2 directors again table discussion on setting graduation for OHS Class of 2019; seek input

The Gasconade County R-2 Board of Education tabled discussion July 23 for the second month in a row to change Owensville High School's (OHS) graduation date.

Board members said again that they would like to hear from the students and plan to revisit the issue at their September monthly meeting. Superintendent Dr. Chuck Garner explained the discussion is to set the graduation date.

"You could set it on the traditional Fridays, either the 17th or the 24th," Garner began. "But there is also a question, due to spring sports, whether it's track, baseball or any of those — to moving it to a Sunday afternoon. Then the nearest one would be Sunday, May 19."

Board President Glenn Ely said if the board was comfortable enough to make the decision at that time, they could. Or they could wait and get more information from parents and students.

Board Director Nona Miller asked if moving graduation to a Sunday would become a contracted half day for the teachers.

"It's just like Friday nights," Garner said.

Miller didn't think the teachers would like the change.

"I know the teachers have been against (moving) that for a long time," Miller said. "Did we check on everybody else's graduation dates? Have they been set yet?" Garner said he did not know about "set." The dates were all over the board.

"They all seem to be in that two-week span," he said. Miller asked how many were having graduation during the week and Garner said he wasn't sure.

"I think if we are going to consider moving it we have to have all the information," Miller said. "I think if we land on top of somebody else that might be pulling families in two different directions. Then we just have other problems."

Ely said he did not feel like there was going to be a perfect solution.

"Correct me if I am wrong on the attendance part of it," Miller began. "We try to keep the seniors in as long as possible because that is revenue?"

Garner said no, they have to finish their hours.

"I remember one year it was a crazy deal where they graduated before we were out of school? It's been a while back," Miller said. "If you graduate them on the

County incumbents win GOP Primary

Both incumbent Republican Gasconade County elected officials won their Aug. 7 Primary races and will be unopposed in the November General Election.

Presiding Commissioner Larry Miskel won on Tuesday, 1,476 to 1,238, against challenger David Slater. Circuit Clerk Pamela Greunke won 1,865 to 761 over challenger Joann Dobson.

Gasconade County voters rejected a statewide proposition seeking approval for a "right to work" statutory measure which was passed in the 2017 by the Missouri legislature through Senate Bill 19. County voters rejected the measure in Proposition 67 percent to 32 percent with 2,716 no votes and 1,285 in favor. The county mirrors the statewide trend which was rejecting the Admission to the first of six scheduled "Heavy Hitters" demolition derbies being filmed at Owensville's lower Memorial Park arena on Saturday will be $5 for adults.

Children under age 10 will be admitted free, according to Cathy Lahmeyer, an Owensville Ward 1 alderman who was part of a planning committee which met Friday to assist the Gasconade County Fair Association prepare for the event.

"The excitement and enthusiasm for our community is incredible," said Lahmeyer. VFW Post 6133 of Owensville will be manning the beer garden for the event and concessions featuring "fair-type" food will be served.

"We're trying to make it the whole community," said Mayor John Kamler of the effort to offer local civic groups and clubs the chance to sell food for their own benefit over the next two months.

Kamler said the Fair Association will buy the food and groups volunteering to sell concessions will be able to keep their profits once food costs are recouped by the Fair Association.

Kamler and Lahmeyer said they've invited mayors from surrounding communities to become involved in the planning for

A NEW ADVENTURE

Empty nester take two

It was four years ago, 2014 when my wife and I became empty nesters. We loaded up the family mini-van and made the 90 mile journey to Columbia and moved our baby girl Abby into Hudson dorm at Mizzou. Four years can go by fast.

That was our third trip moving one of our children into a college dorm. In 2010 we moved our middle child, Ethan, to a dorm at Missouri State University in Springfield.

Two years before we moved Jacob into a dorm at Rolla. As you may know, college life didn't work out for Jacob. His calling was to help me in the newspaper business. College is not for everyone. But, it stuck with our younger two.

In each one of those transitions into dorm life the trusty Dodge Caravan could handle the move.

When Abby made the transition to an apartment in Columbia a half ton Chevy cargo van from the newspaper provided enough space to move her furniture from Owensville to Columbia.

This move, last weekend, took more.

In May she graduated from Mizzou with a double major in physics and math. You would think that would be enough. But nooooo, she has to go for her doctorate.

by DENNIS WARDEN

After months of applications, rejection and acceptance letters she chose to attend the University of Wisconsin at Madison to further her education.

Part of the decision to go to Madison was because that is where her brother Ethan and his wife Hillary reside. Ethan just finished his masters in music performance in Madison and Hillary is working on her doctorate in chemistry.

The way it looks Connie and I will have two Doctors in the family before we know it.

So anyway, on Friday we rented a 15 foot U-Haul box truck to make the trip to Wisconsin. While I worked at the newspaper, Abby and her boyfriend Alex loaded the U-Haul.

At 6:00 p.m. we were on the road. Abby took the lead in the Caravan with Connie and I following in the box truck. Alex brought up the rear in his car.

It's amazing how different the ride is in a one ton box truck. Every bump and pothole is magnified. Before we left I had looked over the load in the back of the U-Haul. They had followed my instructions, placing the large, heavy furniture towards the front. Blankets were used on furniture and the appropriate items strapped down. Everything looked good.

As we were bouncing down the highway through St. Louis Connie happened to mention that she hoped the mirror for the dresser was riding well in the back.

WHAT. You mean that with space in the mini-van they packed the dresser mirror in the U-Haul. I just knew it would be in pieces.

After a seven and a half hour drive we pulled into the driveway of the three bedroom house Ethan, Hillary, Abby and Alex had rented. The next morning we opened the back door of the U-Haul and began the unloading process. When we found the mirror it was in one piece. Amazing.

After that was done it was off to Ethan and Hillary's previous apartment where our next job was to move their furniture to the new home. Although it was short, this move had its own challenges.

They have lived in Madison for the past three years. This gave them plenty of time to acquire a lot of stuff such as two kayaks, a BBQ grill, two bicycles, etc. That would not have been so difficult if their apartment would have been on the ground floor.

Their apartment for the last three years was literally in an old attic up two flights of stairs that included one 90 degree turn and two 180 degree turns.

If it went down it would be called the stairway to hell. In order to make it easier to remove a couch we tore the fabric off the back and cut the wooden supports to make the couch more flexible.

This scenario is being repeated all over the United States. The peak months for moving are from April through September. I'm sure it's no surprise that it coincides with the beginning of the college year.

As I drove around that particular college town there were several moving trucks of all sizes visible.

In many ways Connie and I feel we are empty nesters again. Now two of our three children are seven hours away in Madison. Abby can no longer come home for the weekend when she feels like it.

One day she will marry. Then I won't have to do so much work when they move.

How we work to protect taxpayers from waste, fraud, mismanagement

BY NICOLE GALLOWAY, CPA
Missouri State Auditor

Personal bills paid with public funds... bank documents and official minutes falsified... more than $60,000 in taxpayer money missing.

The plot of a TV crime drama? No, it's what I uncovered in an audit of Coffey, a town of fewer than 200 people in northwest Missouri.

The findings of the audit were shocking, both in what took place and in how little oversight there was of city funds. It also showed the power of an audit to dig deep to reveal waste, fraud and mismanagement.

Money went missing for a period of almost two years while the city clerk was solely responsible for the financial accounting functions of the city. Meanwhile, the mayor and the board of aldermen — which included the clerk's husband — used few, if any, safeguards to prevent and detect fraud. The city official responsible for paying all the bills quite literally had blank checks with the mayor's signature already on them.

I've turned over the information from the Coffey audit to appropriate law enforcement officials to consider criminal charges. It's far from the first time that's happened after an audit.

When we find evidence of corruption, our audits help put public officials out of office — and sometimes behind bars. In fact, audits from my office have resulted in more than 30 criminal charges of corruption against public officials.

A recent example was in Viburnum, in Iron County, where the former city clerk pleaded guilty in June to receiving stolen property. This happened after an audit uncovered more than $100,000 in fraudulent activity. As in Coffey, my audit found a lack of oversight by the mayor and the board of aldermen allowed for the fraud to continue undetected.

Over the past three years, state audits have identified more than $300 million in government waste, fraud and mismanagement. That included inappropriate bonus payments made to top administrators in the University of Missouri system, millions of dollars in questionable costs in social safety net programs, and $90 million in a billing scheme at a small public hospital in north Missouri. Much of the improper activity involved taxpayer money that should have been used productively to better the lives of Missourians.

Accountability and transparency in Missouri have been helped by a law passed in 2013 that empowers the State Auditor to investigate credible claims of improper activity by state and local government officials. In the five years it's been in effect, the law has been a valuable tool to help protect taxpayers through investigations that identify waste, fraud and mismanagement. My office has used this law to aggressively investigate whistleblower complaints, whether they concern the smallest city hall in Missouri or the state Capitol.

A specialized unit of auditors, attorneys and investigators in the State Auditor's Office reviews claims that come into the Whistleblower Hotline.

Our work in protecting the tax dollars of Missourians relies in large part on the valuable information we obtain from citizens who are concerned that money is being used improperly. Individuals who would like to provide information can contact my Whistleblower Hotline at 800-347-8597, by email at mo-audit@auditor.mo.gov, or online at auditor.mo.gov/hotline.

Whistleblowers may remain anonymous, and you can be assured that I take my legal obligation to protect your identity seriously.

Even audits that don't uncover waste or fraud result in recommendations to help local governments be more efficient and effective, a goal that most local officials are committed to achieving. It was encouraging to see representatives of more than 30 counties across Missouri participate in the County Government Day I hosted this summer, where my office provided valuable information on how to effectively and efficiently meet the needs of citizens.

I'm proud of the work we continue to accomplish. We're hearing from citizens every day through our Whistleblower Hotline, which demonstrates to me that Missourians really do care about having the best government possible — one that is open, responsive and accountable.

Without the wonderful people that bought tickets and the organizations that helped sell our tickets for the raffle we would be unable to support our projects. While you may not have won the raffle you won our gratitude for the support that comes from just purchasing a ticket for a chance to win.

This simple act of a ticket purchase provides a lasting memorial to our past, present and future veterans and for that we say thank you for your support and may God bless you and this great nation called America.

With their checkoff dollars farmers add soybean value

Missouri soybean growers invest in their future through research. At a recent Show Me Soy School, farmers learned and shared progress at their Bay Farm, a research center, east of Columbia.

This was the third school I've attended. I learn farmers have a lot to brag about. On a program for the day, they printed a tiny but powerful line at the bottom: "Made possible by Missouri soybean farmers and their checkoff."

They should shout that line. Members of the Missouri Soybean Merchandising Council told more. Farmers pitch in a half of one percent of the price of every soybean sold. That means from $1,000 they give $5.

A big chunk of checkoff dollars pays for research. The program told of progress in gaining payback. Already, farmers get returns.

The program had four tracks: Soybean breeding; Certified strip trials, Herbicide injury, and New Soybean Uses.

A bit of background shows how farmers support University of Missouri soybean research. Farmers bought the Bay Farm adjacent to the MU Bradford Farm. That gives more plot ground for MU scientists in the Agricultural Experiment Station.

That research helps the soybean rise to number one cash crop in the state. When I was a farm boy, the soybean was a hay crop. We had a loft full of soy hay. This year in the continuing severe drought, I doubt any farmer cut beans for hay. Bean prices were too good. Ironically, corn was cut and baled for forage. Not a common practice.

Farmers know soybeans potentially survive droughts. Beans made a good crop in the severe 2012 drought. Farmers hope for a repeat.

MU soybean breeders came up with a new variety with huge potential in value added. They made a bean high in oleic oil. (To say oleic think: Oh Lay Ick. Say it real fast.)

In simplest terms this oil competes with popular and heart healthy olive oil in cooking. In addition soy oil gains shelf life.

One huge use being pursued by MU meat scientists is to feed high oleic soy beans to livestock. That transfers the mono-saturated fat from plants to animals. Pork, poultry and eggs have potential to become oleic.

In the new uses talks, Bryon Wiegand told of his ongoing research on pigs. High oleic fat fed to swine can make better bacon. He pointed out, as consumers we've gone crazy for bacon. And, that's even before bacon becomes a heart-healthy food.

Wiegand is a scientist, so his feeding trials must be repeated and repeated to assure they work.

High oleic soybeans are an exclusive for Missouri. MU plant breeders found how to make high quality oil with regular plant breeding, no transgenic work. No GMO.

MU and USDA own the patent on the oleic bean. Because of their research investment, the Soybean Merchandising Council gains exclusive licensing.

In the strip trial session, MU Extension specialists apply research to parts of farmers' fields across the state. This tests ideas on local soils and climate. Neighbors see the results. The strip trial is a renewed method. Science goes to farms, a Land-Grant mission.

The hot topic must be research to alleviate damage caused by off-site movement of weed killer for herbicide-resistant weeds that cut yields. Sometimes corporate products bring new problems. Researchers at land-grant universities independently test them. Farmers depend on that guidance.

In a talk at the end of the day, Christopher Daubert, new dean of the MU College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources, told of his plan to add value to Missouri commodities. Instead of just selling crops, Missourians can convert them and livestock into food in state. That keeps value close to home.

I must stop calling the Dean new. He spoke on the last day of his first year on the job.

Next year, every soybean farmer must bring a neighbor to hear soybean research updates. Brag a bit.

State Auditor reports 67 percent of taxing agencies filed timely reports as required by law

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri State Auditor Nicole Galloway last week issued monthly reports detailing compliance of local governments and other political subdivisions with financial reporting laws.

One report includes cities, towns and villages while the other lists political subdivisions such as water, fire protection and other taxing districts. These entities are required to file annual financial reports with the State Auditor's Office within six months of the end of their fiscal year.

Galloway reports 1,872 local governments and taxing districts have a fiscal year ending Dec. 31 and were required to file by June 30. Sixty-seven percent of entities filed financial reports by the deadline.

Steph Deidrick, the spokesperson for Galloway's office, said Galloway's staff has been compiling these reports since January 2016 when municipal courts were required to make revenue filing reports. Galloway took office by the appointment of the Gov. Jay Nixon in April 2015. She replaced Tom Schweich who committed suicide while in office.

"Thirty percent don't meet the deadline but usually do make the filing, or file within the 30-day grace period," said Deidrick. That figure has decreased from around 50 percent when the reporting was first tracked by the state auditor.

These reports also include information on 21 cities, one village and four taxing districts that submitted late financial reports or other related documents to the State Auditor's Office in June.

Deidrick said fines can be levied against taxing districts remaining in non-compliance with reporting laws "30 days after they receive notification from the Missouri Department of Revenue."

Those reminders were sent out last week following the Aug. 1 report released by Galloway's office.

"They get a 30-day grace period from the DOR," said Deidrick. "Thirty days from the time of the DOR notice."

Prior to new legislation taking effect, nearly half of local governments failed to meet the reporting requirements, Galloway noted. The Aug. 1 report noted a marked improvement in compliance, with the percentage of local governments missing the deadline falling to 37 percent. The State Auditor's Office has also seen an increase in the number of local governments that file financial reports just a few weeks after the six-month deadline and expects compliance to further improve with increasing awareness after the first year of the new law.

"The legislation is having its intended effect as more local governments follow the law and submit this basic financial information to my office," Galloway said. "We continue to work with lawmakers, municipalities and the Department of Revenue to improve this process."

Local agencies on non-compliance list have filed reports, auditor's receipts confirm

BY DAVE MARNER
MANAGING EDITOR
dmarner@wardpub.com

Several area taxing entities were among the 33 percent of political subdivisions across Missouri which failed to submit year-end financial reports to the State Auditor's Office by the June 30 deadline.

Auditor Nicole Galloway's staff compiles reports detailing taxing entities by county which had not met the filing deadline. Several of those agencies in Gasconade, Maries, and Osage counties have filed their reports since June 30, The Gasconade County Republican, Maries County Advocate, and Unterrified Democrat have learned.

However, it appears the auditor's report released Aug. 1 did not include information provided by the local agencies which was received after the June 30 deadline.

Cities, towns and villages in Missouri are required to file annual financial reports with the State Auditor's Office within six months of the end of their fiscal year, according to Galloway. A law went into effect Aug. 28, 2017, that added a penalty of $500 per day to any local government that fails to turn in required financial information to the State Auditor's Office. Penalties are collected by the Department of Revenue and distributed among schools in that area.

Each month, Galloway releases a report detailing local government compliance with those financial reporting laws. The June report is one of the largest because it includes all local governments that have a fiscal year ending Dec. 31.

Among those on the list was the Owensville Area Ambulance District but records provided by their administrator on Monday show they filed their report on July 9.

"I am not sure why we were on the list for not sending in our audit report, but I have verification from them that we did," wrote Karen Hubenthal-Arnold in an e-mail response to an inquiry from The Republican. "I am sure that they have just not updated it yet. We were a couple of days late in filing."

The OAAD provided an email receipt from Galloway's staff noting, "In accordance with 105.145, RSMo, we acknowledge receipt of the financial report for the Owensville AD for the one year ended December 31, 2017."

That receipt (Subject: RE: Owensville AD 01-037-0001) had been sent to the district's auditing firm, Hochschild, Bloom & Company of Chesterfield, Mo.

"Thank you for your cooperation in sending this information," responded Jill Wilson with the Auditor's staff via email to the OAAD's auditing firm.

Similar messages from Wilson were also sent to other area agencies which filed reports past the June 30 deadline but apparently not in enough time to be removed from the initial list of non-compliant taxing entities.

Agencies with fiscal years ending June 30 have a separate filing period and are not included in this report.

Hermann Area District Hospital was also on the non-compliance list but records provided Tuesday by Dan McKinney, the district's administrator, show the report was filed on July 16.

"Here is a copy of an email that we received from the Missouri State Auditor's office on July 16th acknowledging the receipt of the financial report from the Hermann Area Hospital District," McKinney emailed The Republican on Tuesday. "Thank you for bring to our attention the list that was sent out."

Michelle Jones, treasurer for the city of Belle, emailed The Advocate a copy of the email she received from Wilson of the auditor's staff acknowledging the report received July 16 for the Belle SRD 6 (Special Road District).

Lisa Schlottach, director of the Gasconade County E-911 dispatching center, discovered notices mailed to the 911 Board of Directors back in November and December had been sent to their address in Owensville. The center relocated to their new building in Rosebud last spring.

That mailing address has been changed, Schlottach said, and 911 staff completed the report and filed it on Monday.

"I updated the address with them and will be putting a reminder for myself at the beginning of each year to make sure we get this done in time," Schlottach responded by email. "Thank you for calling me!"

Schlottach said the reports had previously been filed by an accountant for the 911 Board. It is now being done in house.

"I'm going to find out. It's really a concern to me," said Schlottach. "I'll get to the bottom of it."

According to Steph Deidrick press secretary for Galloway's staff, the Bland Fire Protection District filed its notice on Aug. 3. The Osage Ambulance District filed its report on July 18. Public Water System District No. 1 in Osage County filed July 18. Public Water Supply District No. 4 in Osage County submitted the report July 9.

Josh Krull with the Osage Ambulance District told Warden Publishing's The Unterrified Democrat that in previous years no one from the State Auditor's Office has pushed the deadline. The ambulance district's report was typically filed after it was reviewed in July or August by their board of directors. Krull told the UD he had a letter from Galloway's office certifying the district has filed the report and was in compliance.

The UD noted a separate online link to reports shows the agencies which filed after the June 30 deadline, and listed as non-compliant on the first report, are listed with their late filing dates.

Galloway said citizens looking to access financial reporting information can do so easily by utilizing the Show-Me Local Government Map launched by her in 2016. The online tool promotes transparency in government finances and operations, she said. Users can search by county for financial reports, general obligation bonds and property taxes rates for political subdivisions in Missouri.

The 2017 law expanded on Galloway's efforts to promote accountability for taxpayers in all local taxing districts, according to a news release from her office.

(With reporting by Roxie Murphy and Laura Schiermeier of the Maries County Advocate's staff, and Neal Johnson, editor of The Unterrified Democrat.)

12th, then they don't come back. That is two weeks of attendance — would that work against us? If we set that date in front of the end of the school year, and they would for some reason be required to come past that date, how do we handle that situation?"

Garner said they have had that situation before and he would caution against setting the graduation date too early.

"If you set it on the 17th or 18th, we have been fairly safe most years," Garner said.

Board members agreed that Mother's Day was not the day to hold graduation, especially as Maries R-2 in Belle has recently moved their graduation date away from that day.

"It sounds like we need more information to me," Ely said. "Other than from our last board meeting there has not been inquiries beyond our initial discussion."

Director Russ Farrell suggested throwing the information out to the public to see what they wanted.

"Potentially all the schedules for sports should be out," Miller said. "I think we still need to look."

Ely said he felt they were about half way to making a decision, but felt they should ask the senior class what they wanted.

"Here is the issue that I have," Seamon said. "No matter what day we put it on, if we don't talk to people, we have to talk to God because if we have a meet and there is a storm, we are going to have to move it to the next day. Trying to avoid this — we are not going to."

Ely said he understood no matter which way they move, it will conflict with something.

The board decided to cease discussions until the Sept. 17 meeting. Garner said there would not be much time to visit with students between school starting and the August board meeting. September's meeting would be better suited for getting the opinions of students.

Hammer attack lands husband in jail; bond $30,000

A Belle woman who is pregnant with her 12th child sustained a forehead wound July 30 that required seven sutures after an argument with her husband, Frankie Turner, allegedly turned violent.

Brenda Turner, mother of 11 children and 21 weeks pregnant with her 12th, received treatment at the scene, according to Belle Chief Deputy Marshal J. Elrod Kimbly. Brenda Turner reported that the argument escalated first when Frankie Turner struck her on the shoulder with a 12-inch hacksaw blade. A little while later, Brenda Turner said her husband threw a coffee can full of screws at her, at which time she told him if he threw anything else, she would call the police.

"You better call the police or an ambulance 'cause you're going to need them,'" Frankie Turner allegedly told his wife according to Kimbly's court documents. "I'm going to kill you."

Brenda Turner told the police that she told him, "Then do it," at which time he hurled a wooden-handled 12-ounce claw hammer at her, striking her in the forehead from a distance of approximately 12 feet.

According to court documents, Frankie Turner was taken into custody and transported to the Osage County jail for a 12-hour hold. He has been charged with domestic assault in the first degree, and bond was set at $30,000.

GARDEN SOLUTIONS AUGUST

Transition your landscape, garden from summer to fall

BY SANDI HILLERMANN MCDONALD
President, Hillermann Nursery & Florist

August: besides vacations, other activities that will pull you away from your list of gardening duties are fairs, festivals, family outings and back to school preparations. It really is a good thing that August is a slow month for working in your landscape.

Your main tasks for this month begin with the letter W. Weeding and watering. Both tasks are pretty self-explanatory. If you let weeds get ahead of you and they go to seed, you are going to have hundreds more to deal with this fall and next spring. When using herbicides be sure to read and follow all label directions thoroughly. They are written for your protection. Generally, it is best to pull weeds that are growing in and immediately around your desirable plants, and spray those that are "in the open".

As far as watering goes, it has been an extremely tough moisture year, so slow deep watering at the base of desirable trees and shrubs on a weekly basis is very important. Try to eliminate drought stress on your plants. Our water table is very low. So please take care of your desirable plants with slow soaking waterings. If you have questions, do not hesitate to give us a call.

Mowing the lawn is another task that continues in August. Due to the usually hot and dry conditions that are the norm in August, you may be able to space your mowings further apart. It is also beneficial to let the grass grow longer to help shade the roots.

If you are thinking about a new addition to your landscape this fall, now is the time to talk to your favorite landscape designer. Your designer can discuss your needs with you, design the changes or new additions, and get you on the schedule for a fall installation.

If you tried your hand at seasonal vegetable or square foot gardening this spring, here are a few ways you can enjoy a fall garden. Carry tomatoes, peppers and basil over in your fall garden. Direct sow beets, radishes, peas and spinach now where other spring crops such as broccoli and cauliflower have come and gone for this year. It is best to replant nursery starts of broccoli and cauliflower, and not sow them from seed this time of year.

See you next month... in the garden

Shoebox tour to be held Aug. 11 at area churches

In 2017 over 11 million shoebox gifts were collected worldwide, 8.8 million of those came from the U.S. and of that 8.8 million, 11,075 from the South Central Missouri Region (Crawford, Gasconade, Maries, Phelps, Dent, Texas, Pulaski and Shannon counties). These shoeboxes were collected to be delivered to children all around the world. If you've ever participated by collecting items and making your own shoebox or by donating items to be put in your church's, organization's or company's shoeboxes and have wondered who receives them and did that little shoebox make a difference, you can hear from a young lady who received one on Aug. 11.

Evangeline Franzon was 13 years old when she received a shoebox gift while her family was living in Cebu, Philippines.

Franzon will be speaking at three locations Saturday, Aug. 11. She will be at the Amazing Grace Church in Cuba at 10 a.m.; the First Baptist Church in Rolla at 1 p.m.; and at Westside Baptist Church in Waynesville at 4 p.m.

There will also be a Project Leader's Workshop to aid leaders with their 2018 shoebox collection. Call Janice Hartinger, 573/368-8736, for more information.

FINANCIAL FOCUS

How can you help your kids pay for college?

JASON R. CROWE, AAMS® FINANCIAL ADVISOR
Edward Jones

It's still summer, but we're getting close to a new school year. One day, though, "back-to-school" will mean "off to college" for your children. Will you be financially prepared to help your kids cope with the costs of higher education?

Your first step, of course, is to know what you're up against, so here are some numbers: For the 2017-18 academic year, college costs (tuition, fees, room and board) were, on average, nearly $21,000 for in-state students at four-year, public schools and nearly $47,000 for students attending private colleges or universities, according to the College Board. And you can probably expect even bigger price tags in the years to come.

To help prepare for these costs, you might want to consider putting your money in a vehicle specifically designed to help build assets for college, such as a 529 education savings plan. All withdrawals from 529 plans are free from federal income taxes as long as the beneficiary you've named uses the money for qualified college, trade school or graduate school expenses. Withdrawals for expenses other than qualified education expenditures may be subject to federal, state and penalty taxes on the earnings portion of your plan. (However, tax issues for 529 savings plans can be complex, so please consult your tax advisor before investing.)

You can generally invest in the 529 savings plan offered by any state, but if you invest in your own state's plan, you may be able to claim a tax deduction or receive a tax credit.

By starting your 529 plan early, when your children are just a few years old, the investments within the plan have more time for potential growth. Plus, you can make smaller contributions each year, rather than come up with big lump sums later on.

A 529 plan is not the only education-savings tool you can use, but it has proven effective for many people. Yet you may also want to consider ways to keep college costs down in the first place.

For one thing, your children may be eligible for various forms of financial aid. Some types of aid depend on your family's income, but others, such as merit-based scholarships, are open to everyone. But you don't have to wait until you get an offer from a school's financial aid office – you can explore some opportunities on your own. For example, many local and national civic and religious groups offer scholarships to promising young people, and your own employer may even provide some types of grants or assistance. Plus, your state also may offer other benefits, such as financial aid or scholarship funds. It can certainly take some digging to find these funding sources, but the effort can be worthwhile.

Here's another option for reducing college costs: Consider sending your child to a local community college for two years to get many of the "general" requirements out of the way before transferring to a four-year school for a bachelor's degree. Community colleges are typically quite affordable, and many of them offer high-quality programs.

A college degree is costly, but many people feel it's still a great investment in their children's future. And by taking the appropriate steps, you can help launch that investment.

Eating Out . . .

by Don Warden

The Krooked Moon Distillery & Restaurant

Another of Owensville's new places to meet and eat opened up in late spring in a completely remodeled building on the west side of town, at 1002 W. Franklin Ave. The address may set you on the wrong track if you're not familiar with this city, because it actually is on Highway 28, it just fronts on Franklin.

The Krooked Moon is a liquor distillery and restaurant, but since the title of this column is "Eating Out" that is the main feature that I will be writing about.

That and the fact that they have just recently got some product to sample from the distillery phase of the business (i.e., two liquor shots from the bar — apple pie and blackberry pie).

I tried the apple pie, and it was very sweet and tasted amazingly like... "apple pie." The next time I go to the "Moon" I'll have to try the blackberry shot. Don't let the terminology bother you, the shots were liquor to drink, not pie to eat. Although it worked for my dessert.

Those of you who follow this column know that I gauge how good the food is at each restaurant I write about by my favorite entree, pasta, usually with shrimp for the flavor extra.

I understand that the real specialty here are the steaks, but I can cook a steak to my exacting standards at home, so I just go with the pasta. That and the fact that most people can afford the pasta dishes at a restaurant, but some times the steaks are priced too high for everyone's budget, so this gives you my choice for a great meal at a reasonable price.

This is the second time we stopped at the Krooked Moon, so I have two samples to get an accurate measure of the products and service at this establishment. We were well satisfied with both.

This time we opted to choose our table upstairs, as the downstairs was fairly full and quite noisy as well. We had a very good view of the operation, the bar and the tables below with this birds-eye view. Don't overlook the upstairs as a place to enjoy your meal and the ambiance at the Krooked Moon.

Our waitress said the menus were brand new and had just been received, so we had an updated look at the expanded selections from the previous time we ate at this restaurant.

I selected the shrimp fettuccine, as my pasta choice, although there were a couple other pasta dishes available. The fettuccine came with a salad, and I chose the blue cheese dressing.

Jeannie had the grilled shrimp with a baked potato and vegetable of the day. She also chose the blue cheese dressing with her salad.

The pasta was excellent in taste and texture. The shrimp were a good size, not as small as this dish sometimes supports.

The salads were a very good mixture of greens and other salad fixings and a perfect size. The same goes for our entrees. We were pleasantly content with our choices and the expanded menu at the Krooked Moon.

We both had a drink with our meal. Jeannie had a glass of white wine, her usual, and I had two rum and cokes, my usual. Our total cost, with $2.00 for the bar shot (the pie), and tax came to just over $48.00, without the tip.

We are fortunate to have several new places to eat out in Owensville this spring and summer, so in the future I'll give you more "Eating Out" choices.

AREA OBITUARIES

Michelle Amirault

Michelle Amirault, age 69, passed through the veil July 31, 2018.

A celebration of her life will be held Aug. 11, 2018 from 5 to 7 p.m. at The Rotunda in Hermann, 1015 Washington St. No viewing or burial service. There will be worship service.

Michelle Amirault is survived by her husband Gary, her daughter Elena, her brothers Mark, Robert, and Fred Aaron and her step sister Beth Giove and Wayne Nieberg. Michelle's parents were Albert Aaron and Marian Sirasky. Michelle was born in Baltimore, Maryland, graduated from the University of Maryland to become a teacher. She taught for one year after which she joined her husband in advertising sales. They would form a company called Photographic Display Systems in which she was Vice-President/treasurer. She kept the most immaculate accounting books imaginable.

In 1984, Michelle had an encounter of the God-kind, she was made aware by the Holy Spirit that Jesus/Yeshua was indeed the Messiah, the Savior of mankind. This made things quite difficult for her considering she was raised Jewish and her husband, Gary, was a devout atheist. Her Christian friends thought it would take decades, if ever, for her husband to come to Christ, but they were wrong. God IS mightier than any atheist – Gary was loved into the kingdom of Jesus on Valentine's Day, 1985. It was an incredible encounter. A Damascus Road experience. He became "Road Kill for Christ."

Gary experienced the love of Christ in a dimension that exceeded the expectations of the various churches and Messianic Jewish Congregations they attended in the Baltimore/Washington D.C. area of Maryland. He experienced a love that truly loved everyone without exception. But this kind of love did not fit into the traditional Churches that taught most of mankind would go to eternal damnation in a place called Hell. Because Hell seemed clearly taught in the Bible translations Michelle and Gary were using and because all the churches they had visited taught eternal damnation, Gary and Michelle began to zealously beg anyone and everyone to "get saved" from Hell.

After five years of evangelizing a "turn or burn" gospel (which is no gospel at all), Gary told God he could take another step in the direction he was going. He asked God to just take him out, take him home. On that very day, he was given a set of booklets entitled "Savior of the World Series" by J. Preston Eby.

These booklets taught that Jesus was truly the Savior of the whole world, that no one was going to be burned alive; that no one was going to "eternal conscious torment." The booklets revealed that the early believers in Christ taught universal salvation through Jesus Christ. It was not until several centuries after Jesus' death that the teaching of Hell began to dominate the Church. The booklets taught that critical errors were introduced into our Bible translations. If what was in those booklets was true, that would explain why what was supposed to be "good news to all mankind" was such bad news that Gary couldn't preach and teach it anymore. The traditional Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox "gospel" is not victorious, it makes Jesus look like a miserable failure.

After this, Gary spent countless hours studying church history, words studies, comparing Bible translations, etc. and came to the conclusion that Jesus truly planned for the foundation of the world to save all mankind. He will not fail in His mission. Michelle and Gary started a non-profit ministry named "Tentmaker Ministries" which ultimately would publish a magazine, produce cassette tapes, CDs, DVDs, Bible Software, tracts, books and eventually create several internet sites dedicated to declaring what they would call "The Victorious Gospel of Jesus Christ." These internet sites are: tentmaker.org, lovewins.us, and what-the-hell-is-hell.com.

Michelle and Gary would reach millions of people around the world with these various means. While Michelle is known in the local communities of Hermann, Montgomery City, Jonesburg and New Haven as a substitute teacher who always hoped one of the students would ask a question about God so she could legally spend the rest of the class period sharing with the class how much Jesus loves them, few know that Michelle was the backbone and heart of a ministry that reached millions around the world. And her love reaches into the hearts and minds of millions even today and will continue to touch ears for many years to come.

Michelle loved Bible studies, loved to worship – she loved Jesus – she loved to love people. She filled thousands of requests for various materials from Tentmaker Ministries, kept immaculate accounting books, worked outside part-time jobs like house cleaning to make ends meet.

A woman called mother Teresa who became a saint in the Roman Catholic Church is said to have said, "We can do no great things, only small things with great love." Michelle did many, many small things that most people who knew her never knew about. But they are great, great things in the heavens. Memorials to Tentmaker Ministries via paypal.com which includes Mastercard and Visa. Email address: info@tentmaker.org

She loved much, always forgave everything, and was grateful for the smallest of things. Her smile radiated to everyone. She is missed by many.

She would like you to watch a video she made entitled: "Messiah Revealed to Jewish Woman" at tentmaker.org

Idol winner McCreery shares small-town roots, song inspiration with appreciative Gasconade County Fair audience at park

BY ROXIE MURPHY
REPUBLICAN STAFF WRITER
rmurphy@wardpub.com

Scotty McCreery joined the list of the big name musicians July 28 that have shadowed the annual Gasconade County Fair main stage.

The wonderfully talented and personable musician who won American Idol in 2011 has been working his way to the top with single hits like "Five More Minutes." After waiting to in line to meet with him at the meet and greet, a couple of special fans were taken aside so they could drop off goodies to McCreery and the band.

Wanda Soares and her sister Sherry Alkhatie traveled from Indianapolis, Ind., to see McCreery in concert at the 71st annual fair. Alkhatie said Soares is McCreery's biggest fan.

"He knows her," Alkhatie said of Soares. "She's the cookie lady."

The sisters brought boxes of cookies and homemade bread for the musician, band and road team.

"From what I heard, it networked that she was coming and they knew they would be having goodies on the bus tonight," Alkhatie said.

Soares said she has been to 52 of McCreery's concerts and counting. She remembers watching his career unfold on American Idol in 2011. Her husband died around the same time that McCreery's career was about to unfold.

"This is not my last concert," Soares said. "Look at my shirt, these are his song titles. I had it made." Alkhatie said going to his concerts give Soares purpose and enjoyment.

Soares' shirt had McCreery's song titles embroidered in various colors. Tour manager Mike Childers said Soares is the only fan McCreery mentioned by name in his book "Go Big or Go Home."

"I am the only one that brings Mike stuff too," Soares said.

Childers said it was true.

"Can't you tell? I was 150 pounds before I started working for Scotty and I had black hair," Childers laughed. "But working with a teenager, this is what happens."

Soares visited with McCreery and admired his new wedding ring from his June 16 nuptials to long-time girlfriend Gabi Dugal. He thanked her for the goodies.

"Keep on doing what you are doing because you make people so happy," Soares said to McCreery and his band. "From all of the McCreerians."

While fans waited in line back stage to meet McCreery, "The Republican" gathered questions that the fans wanted to ask. McCreery consented to give an on-the-spot interview to answer some questions from his fans.

The Republican: If you had to pick someone to play you in a movie, who would it be?

McCreery: Joseph Gordon-Levitt. I have had people tell me I look like him. I want someone who looks exactly like me.

The Republican: If you could tour with anybody since you are still on the up and coming, who would it be?

McCreery: Probably Garth (Brooks). I got to open for him one time. He was spectacular. And he does arenas seven nights in a row, so we actually get to hang out and see some of the cities.

The Republican: Do you do anything special before you go on stage that is like a good luck charm?

McCreery: Not really. Me and the band do a meeting and a prayer 30 minutes before, but that is about it. No candles or anything like that. Not the same prayer every time. We do prayer requests.

The Republican: If you weren't a musician, what would you be doing today?

McCreery: No clue. I am glad this worked out! I would have gone to college. I went to N.C. State for two-and-a-half years. So I would have finished and gotten into something. It's tough out there nowadays, so I am not too sure. Luckily this happened for me in high school, so I didn't have to worry about all this.

The Republican: Did you explore the town today?

McCreery: I did not. One of the guys went out and he said there were some nice antique stores and a little coffee shop. They love that stuff, so they are eating it up.

The Republican: What is your go-to karaoke song?

McCreery: I think it would have to be Elvis' "Hound Dog."

The concert field was completely full Saturday night, and McCreery gave a lively show. He shared personal information about his music and inspirations with the audience that made it feel like a one-on-one conversation — definitely a good gift to have when speaking to thousands of people on stage.

Call 911 if you can, text to 911 if you can't Voice calls remain best, fastest method of contact

As of August 2014, Gasconade County 911 has had text to 911 capabilities.

The system has been tested to verify that in times of need the public could obtain assistance in another way other than a phone call, according to officials with the Gasconade County E-911 Dispatching Center.

Text to 911 should only be used in an emergency situation, when placing a call is not possible. For instance, if the caller is deaf, hard-of-hearing, speech impaired, or when speaking out loud would put the caller in danger. It is also a great resource when you don't want someone knowing that you are contacting 911.

If there is an emergency and you are unable to make a call, remember these steps:

- Don't text and drive.
- In the first text message send the location and type of emergency.
- Text in simple words — send a short text message without abbreviations or slang.
- Be prepared to answer questions and follow instructions from the 911 call taker.

Don't abuse 911. The Text-to-911 service is only for emergencies. It is a crime to text or call 911 with a false report.

Prank-texters can be located.

The Text-to-911 service will have many challenges. A text or data plan is required to place a Text-to-911 As with all text messages, messages to 911 may take longer to receive, may get out of order, or may not be received at all.

If you do not receive a text response from 911, try to contact the 911 dispatching center another way.

Photos and videos cannot be sent to 911 at this time. Text-to-911 cannot include more than one person. Do not send your emergency text to anyone other than 911.

Voice calls to 911 are still the best and fastest way to contact 911, according to the emergency dispatching officials. Remember, Text-to-911 service is not available everywhere in Missouri and the United States.

Derby • From page 1

Members of the cast staged a Friday evening showdown in downtown Belle as they traded paint on Main Street as cameras for Pilgrim Media Group filmed them careening against each other.

Kamler commented Monday on concerns expressed in the public comments of various social meeting platforms since an outburst of vulgarity took place during the Gasconade County Fair in late July.

"They're interested in putting on a family show," said Kamler during the city's Board of Aldermen meeting. "I don't know if it was the alcohol or excitement."

Nick Baxter, president of the Fair Association, said afterward that fair officials demanded, and received, a public apology from one of the cast members who addressed the crowd over the arena's public address system in a crude manner.

Baxter said "there was an unfortunate incident" and the person responsible apologized. "They want to put on a family show," said Baxter. "They made him apologize."

Red Oak Road will be closed into the park between the gates each day of the filming. Designated parking will be available on the hill behind right-center field of Memorial Field, Winter Park, and the Winter Water Park parking lot.

Organizers hope to have 500 to 600 people in attendance at each show.

"I'm getting more excited now," said Kamler.

Two of the show's producers have been in town this past week and Kamler said commercials promoting the event are being prepared on the fly.

"The big push is make sure we have people in the seats," said Kamler. "I can't tell you how many hours I've been on the phone but it's a great way to showcase our town."

He thanked Lahmeyer and her husband, Tom, for their efforts at putting the planning committee together.

"Bring ear plugs," Kamler suggested, noting some of the cars competing will have 600 horsepower motors.

Kellmann's eclipse-themed quilt wins fair's Best of Show

REPUBLICAN STAFF WRITER

A well-known quilt enthusiast celebrated her Best of Show win at the Exhibit Hall at Memorial Park July 25 with her granddaughter who also won a blue ribbon for her first stitchery project.

Gerri Kellmann won Best of Show at the 71st Annual Gasconade County Fair for her fabric rendition of "Solar Extravaganza" based on the 2018 total solar eclipse of the sun.

"I have seven months and 50 hours in the bead work in this project," said Kellmann while sharing that she tried to make the time go faster by watching four-hour movies she had not seen in a while.

Kellmann originally made the quilt for a fabric contest held by a company called MODA. She had to work 13 of the new solid fabric colors line into her quilt to qualify for the contest and winners were invited to attend a fabric show in Texas. Mary Ota from In the Niche sponsored her, but Kellmann said her quilt didn't win and she was not invited to Texas.

"The winner of that contest had an art quilt," Kellmann shared. "Mine may have been two realistic."

The Owensville quilt community loved Kellmann's realism.

The quilt depicts various phases of the eclipse and what Kellmann thought people would be doing during the event. The former elementary teacher said she just went wild with the details on the quilt, down to the shadows of buildings and trees. Scenes of families watching the event, dogs and children playing in a park, a far off city by a lake and store front signs lining the tops of each one.

"The more you look, the more you see," Kellmann said.

She said the winner of the MODA contest crocheted hot air balloons over various colors of fabric.

"I later heard in her biography in a magazine that she started weeks before," Kellmann said, while laughing that she wishes she would have thought of something that simple.

The quilting world is lucky she didn't.

While working on her quilt, Kellmann was also working hard to pass her love of stitchery on to her granddaughter, Laken Williams. Williams quilt called "Amazing Grace" was the first she had made — and she had her grandmother there to guide her.

"We probably have 12 to 15 hours binding and sewing," Kellmann said about the pre-printed panel quilt.

"We just finished this one a couple of weeks ago," Williams added.

Williams has been selling tickets to raffle her "Amazing Grace" quilt to save money for a trip to Costa Rica. She plans to raffle the quilt Nov. 21 to help fund the trip. Anyone interested in purchasing a raffle may email tk12williams@hotmail.com for more information.

Registration deadline approaches for online master gardener training

One of the many rewards of gardening is the satisfaction of sharing your plant knowledge with others, says David Trinklein, state horticulture specialist for University of Missouri Extension.

In the past, those interested in becoming a Master Gardener had to attend classes for 14 weeks. But many people found it inconvenient to travel to a classroom on a particular day and time, Trinklein said. Through the learning platform Canvas, classes are available online 24/7. Trinklein and MU Extension regional horticulture specialist Sarah Denkler teach the 14 online sessions as a series of scripted and narrated PowerPoint presentations. Topics include basic botany, soils and plant nutrition, vegetable gardening, fruit production, insects and diseases, landscaping and landscape plants, turf management, and pesticide safety.

Core training is the first step toward Master Gardener certification. Additionally, a minimum of 30 hours of volunteer service is required. Local Master Gardener chapters help online trainees find volunteer opportunities to meet the service requirements.

Registration deadline for the fall session is Sunday, Aug. 12. Online classes begin Sunday, Aug. 19. The course also may be taken for personal enrichment only, with no volunteer requirement, for a higher fee.

For more information or to register, visit extension.missouri.edu/mg.

Westminster bound Wyatt Ellis

BY WILL JOHNSON
SPORTS EDITOR

wjohnson@wardpub.com

Causing nightmares for area defensive coordinators for the last four years, 2018 Owensville High School graduate Wyatt Ellis will look to do the same thing for the next four years in a Westminster College (WC) Blue Jay uniform in Fulton.

During his four years at the helm of the Dutchmen offense, Ellis put up monster numbers both in the air and on the ground.

Passing for 7,808 yards and rushing for 4,014, Wyatt's season high through the air came as a junior with 2,421 passing yards. His season high on the ground occurred during his senior season piling up 1,892 rushing yards on 208 carries. This was good for 9.1 yards per carry.

Fittingly enough, Ellis saved his best for last.

During their 70-53 loss to Eldon in the MSHSAA Class 3, District 3 title game last fall, Wyatt threw for a career high 496 yards and four touchdowns.

He also tossed four touchdown passes on four occasions during his junior season in games against Pacific, Sullivan, Buffalo and against Eldon in the district championship game at Dutchmen Field.

Ellis' career high on the ground also came during his senior season as part of a state-record breaking performance.

Rushing for a new school record 384 yards against Pacific, Wyatt broke Jason Kottwitz's previous single-game mark of 339 yards back in October of 2010.

Accounting for just over half of OHS' team rushing total, Ellis helped Owensville set a new state record for rushing yards in a game with 712 yards.

That total surpassed Hermann's 707 yards rushing as a team against Union just two years earlier.

Not only did Ellis start at quarterback for four years, he also shared punting duty for three years averaging just over 40 yards a boot with his longest being 52 yards during his junior season.

During Owensville's 64-20 victory over Cuba in Ellis' junior season, Wyatt nearly tied a state record returning kickoffs.

Returning the opening kickoff of the second half 75 yards for a touchdown, Ellis struck again on the very next kickoff.

Returning that one 94 yards to the house, Wyatt became the fourth football player in MSHSAA football history to return two kickoffs for touchdowns in the same game.

"Wyatt is an extremely gifted athlete and I look for him to do great things at the next level at Westminster," Dutchmen head football coach Dale Long said.

As a sophomore, Ellis' season-high through the air came in a 32-14 win over Union with 324 yards passing.

Twice as a sophomore, Wyatt threw for a season-high three touchdowns against a pair of Interstate 44 opponents in Cuba and St. James.

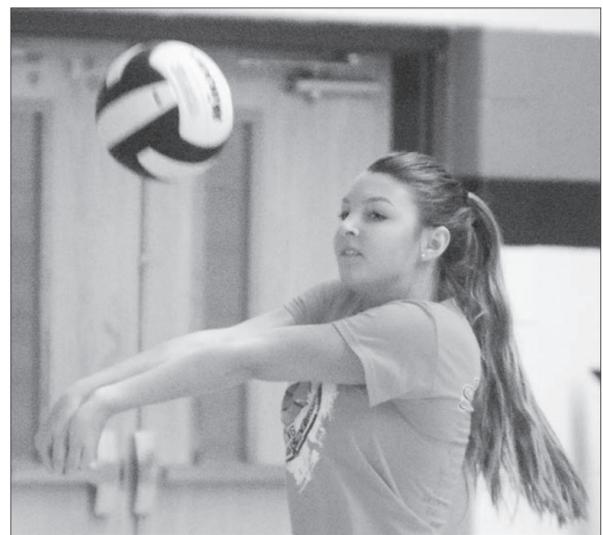

Giving Ellis some company as former Dutchmen football players at Westminster this fall will be OHS 2017 graduate Logan Decker along with Matt Amptman and Robert Weirich

Jobs! Jobs! Jobs!

That was the way an article in the Sept. 13, 1963 edition of The Gerald Journal described the town's excitement over the prospect of Bull Moose Company coming to Gerald.

The Gerald Development Association (GDA) hosted a town meeting for the locals to meet the company's owner, Don Beattie.

A week after Beattie made his pitch to the community, the town was halfway to the goal of selling $125,000 in industrial notes to erect the new factory building.

Beattie told the group an initial workforce of 55 men would increase to 100 in five years or so.

BMT currently employs about 66 hourly workers, according to a source with knowledge of their operations.

Citizens Bank of Gerald agreed to act as trustee for parties concerned.

The Journal said the notes would yield five percent tax free interest for the investors.

A separate article, in the same issues reads:

The $125,000 is for erection of a 57,000 sq. ft. factory building which will be rented to the Bull Moose Tube Co., manufacturers of electrically welded steel tubing. Their rental payments will cover the cost of interest and retirement of the notes.

The rental payments were $4,600 a year.

The City of Gerald would be responsible for building an access road leading to the plant. The county highway department promised help in the form of big-equipment for the job. The city also agreed to provide a concrete floor for the plant before erection began, hopefully in November.

An article in the March 13, 1964 Journal reports that the new plant has been in operation since Feb. 29. Equipment was being moved from the St. Louis plant where production was expected to shut down that Wednesday.

Slitters (machines that cut the coils of steel into the specified widths) were installed at the Gerald plant that week. Up to that point, slitting had been jobbed out by BMT.

GDA officials told The Journal that it expected investors to receive their certificates on the industrial notes shortly.

THE ORIGINAL Bull Moose Tube Co. (BMT) was located in the northeast quadrant of the City of Gerald. In the 1980s the company expanded, building an addition just east of the original structure, but outside the city limits which is indicated by the bold blue line on the map above.

Preparations for mediation have begun between city and Bull Moose Tube Company

Another step has been taken in the reconciliation process between the City of Gerald and Bull Moose Tube Co. (BMT).

Nathan Nickolaus, the attorney for the city, confirmed that a walkthrough was done on the BMT property Monday.

Prior to the walkthrough, an attorney for BMT, filed a consent motion for protective order, regarding confidential information. The order was sustained by the Honorable Gael D. Wood, the judge hearing the case, on July 30.

Nickolaus wrote in an email, "The protective order was just to assure that we do not reveal any trade secrets we might have seen while there. The city consented to it. Just routine."

The walkthrough was conducted by a certified corporate appraiser, according to Steve Grgurich, president of the Board of Aldermen.

"A copy of the appraisal will be provided for the purpose of ascertaining a fair and equitable market value prior to the mediation session as ordered by the court," Grgurich said.

Mediation between the two parties will begin the last week of August. Both sides agreed to use W. Dudley McCarter of Clayton as the mediator.

Mayor Cary Parker noted that the city attempted to renegotiate a lease that they claim expired in the 1980s. Bull Moose contends the original lease from the 1960s is still in effect.

Parker says an independent valuation of the property is the next step in the process.

"Yesterday's walkthrough was the start of the valuation process," Parker told The Republican on Tuesday. "The valuation will allow BMT and the city to return to the negotiating table with the information they need to resolve the BMT/City of Gerald matters."

When he orders mediation, Judge Woods noted that the City of Gerald needs BMT and BMT needs the City of Gerald.

Bulk trash pick up will be Sept. 10-11

Swinger Sanitation will conduct its second semi-annual bulk trash pick up in Gerald Sept. 10-11. For Canaan Road residents the pick up will occur on Monday, Sept. 10. All other residents will have their picked up Tuesday, Sept. 11.

Each household is limited to two bulk items or six bags, each not to exceed 30 pounds.

Flooring such as carpet, padding and linoleum will be picked up. It must be bundled and tied and can't exceed four feet in length. Each bundle counts as one item.

Mattresses and box springs will also be taken. Each one counts as one item.

Televisions, wooden pallets, toilets and sinks are also accepted.

Swinger will not pick up construction/remodeling material (including bricks, sheet-rock or insulation) or roofing, tires, concrete, landscaping stones, glass, soil or rocks. They also reject hazardous material such as paint or household cleaners.

Appliances, water heaters and other metal items may also be placed curb-side. These will be collected by the city for recycling.

Any questions concerning what is or is not accepted may be directed to Gerald City Hall by calling 573-764-3340. You may also message them on their Facebook page, or email them at geraldch@fidnet.com.

This will be the final bulk trash pick up of the year. The next one will be held next spring.

Primary Election sees large turnout

Proposition A was expected to bring large numbers of voters to the polls and it seems it did. Workers at the Gerald polls reported more people coming to cast ballots than they can ever remember for a primary election. There are 71,177 registered voters in the county. 30,355 voters cast their ballots on Tuesday for a 42.65 percent turnout.

Franklin County voters overwhelmingly defeated Proposition A with 22,022 votes cast against it, compared to 8,067 votes for the proposition.

In Franklin County, all of the elected officials were determined by Tuesday's vote.

Gael D. Wood captured 10,549 votes to beat A. David Arand for Municipal Judge. Arand pulled 7,950 votes.

Tim Brinker will be the new Presiding Commissioner with 9,560 votes. He beat out Trish Mitchell with 6,814 votes and Jonathan Zimmermann with 2,926.

The new County Clerk will be Tim Baker who won 11,531 votes over Kyle Dubbert who received 7,044 votes.

Matthew Becker overcame Samantha Cerutti Wacker to become the new Prosecuting Attorney with 11,773 votes to 7,554.

Doug Trentmann will be the new Collector of Revenue with 6,908 votes over Jamie (Rice) Keen's 6,690. Tracy Comely took 5,200 votes.

Several judges also ran unopposed. Craig E. Hellmann for Circuit Judge—Circuit 20, Division 1; David L. Hoven for Associate Circuit Judge—Division VI and Stan Williams for Associate Circuit Judge—Division VII.

Community Outreach is looking for a wide variety of volunteers

BY LINDA TREST

Gerald's Community Outreach has been cited many times for its innovative and compassionate programs.

Today, it is struggling to stay open.

Maria Killian stepped down from her long-time role as director. She left her position when she moved out of state last fall after the death of her husband. She has maintained ties to the organization as an advisor. She has made several trips back to the area for just that purpose.

Terri Oster stepped into Killian's role last fall, but is no longer with the organization.

Finders Keepers is the resale shop run by the outreach program. Proceeds from the shop help to finance the food pantry and other assistance programs. Due to a lack of volunteers, the shop is often closed.

The board of directors is asking the community to step up and help.

Rita Tyree, a board member, says there are a wide variety of jobs for volunteers.

Help is needed in keeping the food pantry stocked and organized. Others are needed to sort donations in the resale shop. More are needed to man the counter and register in the shop. Still others are counted on to make runs to other towns to pick up large donations of food. Some help sort the food for special projects.

Cleaners are always needed.

Even a few hours a month would be a service to the once outstanding organization. Experience is not needed, training is provided.

If you would like to make a difference, please call 573-764-HELP and leave a message.

Public hearing to be held Thursday

A public hearing will be held Thursday, Aug. 9 at 6:15 p.m. at City Hall. The purpose is to hear public comment concerning proposed revisions to rate changes. These apply to Planning and Zoning, the Board of Adjustment and the Building Code. All such fees will be consolidated into Chapter 100 of the city codes.

The Board of Aldermen will hold their regular meeting immediately following the hearing at 6:30 p.m.

School begins again

The 2018-2019 school year begins next Wednesday, Aug. 15. Teachers at Gerald Elementary School officially reported back to duty today, Aug. 8, but many of them have been working at the school since the beginning of August preparing for students' return.

Ten ways to help prevent child abuse

Prevent Child Abuse Missouri, a program of Missouri Kids-First has published a list of 10 ways each of us can help prevent child abuse.

- Be a nurturing parent. Children need to know that they are special, loved and capable of following their dreams.
- Help a friend, neighbor or relative. Being a parent isn't easy. Offer a helping hand, take care of the children, so the parents can rest or spend time together.
- Help yourself. When the big and little problems of your every day life pile up to the point you feel overwhelmed and out of control – take time out. Don't take it out on your kid.
- If your baby cries...It can be frustrating to hear your baby cry. Learn what to do if your baby won't stop crying. Never shake a baby – shaking a baby may result in severe injury or death.
- Get involved. Ask your community leaders, clergy, library and schools to develop services to meet the needs of healthy children and families.
- Help to develop parenting resources at your local library.
- Promote programs in school. Teaching children, parents and teachers prevention strategies can help to keep children safe.
- Monitor your child's television and video viewing. Watching violent films and TV programs can harm young children.
- Volunteer at a local child abuse prevention program. For information about volunteer opportunities, call 800-CHILDREN.
- Report suspected abuse or neglect. If you have reason to believe a child has been or may be harmed, call the child abuse hotline at 800-392-3738 or 911 for local law-enforcement.

The Oak Ridge Boys meet their biggest fan

BY LINDA TREST
REPUBLICAN STAFF WRITER
ltrest@wardpub.com

Anyone who has talked to Mike Mayberry for more than 10 minutes know he is a big fan of The Oak Ridge Boys. His mother, Donna Jones, says it all began with their hit "Y'all Come Back Saloon" which came out when Mike was about five years old. Every time it played on the radio, Mike would belt it out along with the band.

When the band came to the amphitheater at Six Flags around that time, Donna and her husband Roger took Mike to see them. The crowd was too large for them to see the band. Mike was devastated. They discovered they could see the band from a platform waiting for a ride. Mike sat on Roger's shoulders for the entire concert, watching his favorite band.

Mike's enthusiasm hasn't waned. For the last 25 years, the family has planned their vacations around the band's schedule, usually traveling to Branson to see them in front row seats.

Once, he also managed to win a painting of the group, which they autographed for him. He added that to his growing collection of Oak Ridge Boys memorabilia. He also has a large collection of t-shirts with bands name and image emblazoned across the front.

When Mike, who lives in Gerald, heard his favorite band was coming to the Gasconade County Fair this year he was ecstatic. Vacation plans were cancelled and new plans were made to attend the fair.

Mike was lucky enough to nab a pass for a meet and greet with band before their concert. The smile on his face in the photo above says it all.

This is not the first time he has met the group, but each time is still as thrilling as the time before.

It was surely just as thrilling for The Oak Ridge Boys to meet their biggest fan.

SAMUEL GETCHMAN spent a busy summer at the Summer Learning Academy at ECC.

Summer Learning Academy thrives in first year

This summer, Samuel Getchman of Leslie kept busy. He designed a video game, solved a forensic mystery and escaped a vault.

"I wanted to be able to express my creativity," he said, "I like exploring. I like expanding my mind."

He was able to do all three at East Central College's Summer Learning Academy. Facilitated by Community Education, it provided a unique, fun experience for area youth.

"These classes are designed with curiosity in mind - letting students develop talents and encourage personal growth," said Program Coordinator Bonnie Devine. "We've always offered summer classes for kids, but we really restructured it this year to create something special."

Along with the new name, classes were completely redesigned.

"To make this program successful, we knew we needed faculty buy-in," said Joel Doecker, Vice President of External Relations. "We wanted to bring their knowledge and expertise into the mix."

Several East Central College instructors jumped at the chance to be a part of Summer Learning Academy. Assistant Professor of Physics Dr. Isaiah Kellogg created an escape room where students used math and science skills to solve puzzles before the clock ran out. Journalism instructor Leigh Kolb facilitated a student-run online newspaper where students put their reporting skills to the test. Science Laboratory Manager Jennifer Chitwood ran a forensics lab where students could solve crime mysteries.

"I love having young minds in the kitchen," said Culinary Arts Program Coordinator Mike Palazzola. He offered a made-from-scratch pizza class and a dessert bakeshop class for students. "It's not just about learning how to cook but also about kitchen safety, why we use certain ingredients in foods we eat and how to follow instructions."

The new look and feel of Summer Learning Academy made a difference with enrollment. Nearly 220 students signed up for classes this year, a 70 percent jump over 2017.

"Several classes reached capacity in just a few weeks," said Devine. "We hope to expand more next year and continue to offer new, exciting classes for area youth."

East Central College awarded National Endowment for the Arts Grant

East Central College is proud to announce it has received an Arts Engagement in American Communities (AEAC) grant from the National Endowment for the Arts!

The $10,000 matching grant will help support the annual concert series in the John Anglin Performing Arts Center for the 2018-2019 school year.

"We are proud to host world-renowned acts like the Arianna String Quartet and St. Louis Symphony every year," said Dr. Jennifer Judd, Concert Series Coordinator and East Central College Professor of Music.

"It couldn't happen without the support of the community, the college and amazing organizations like the National Endowment for the Arts."

The AEAC grant supports arts projects in all artistic disciplines, extending the National Endowment for the Arts' reach to communities across the United States.

These grants engage the public in diverse and excellent art in under-represented geographic areas.

DRIFTWOOD OUTDOORS

Roeslein has plans to save the planet with native grasses

Rudi Roeslein is the epitome of the American Dream. He was seven years old when his family immigrated from Austria to the United States. His possessions fit in the backpack he was carrying. Today, Roeslein is a very successful businessman who revolutionized the manufacturing of aluminum cans through his processes of modular engineering. He has a wonderful family and enjoys spending a lot of time outdoors with his grandchildren. Now 70, one might expect Roeslein to kick back, relax and retire in comfort, but instead he is just getting started in the pursuit of his next goal—restoring 30 million acres of native grass in 30 years. Roeslein's new company, Roeslein Alternative Energy, has three areas of focus: energy production, ecological services and wildlife. Roeslein has found a way to benefit all the three with a market-based solution to improve our environment while producing a renewable energy source from animal waste blended with native grasses. Through a process called anaerobic digestion, Roeslein is able to produce a biodiesel from gases imitted from the mixture of manure and native grass. Not only does this process create renewable energy, it eliminates odor and emissions from waste that otherwise would enter our air. Numerous ecological benefits for our landscape and wildlife also occur.

The process certainly helps fight climate change.

"If we would plant 100-million acres of cover crops, and 30-million acres of native grasses and forbes on marginal land, we could sequester over 150-million tons of carbon. More importantly, we could produce over 300-million gallons of compressed natural gas (CNG) that would displace the pollution from fossil fuels. If we did this globally, we could reverse the effects of human caused pollution in my lifetime," Roeslein said.

A concentrated animal feeding operation, referred to as a CAFO, has more than 1,000 animal units. An animal unit is equivalent to 1,000 pounds live weight. The number animals help in one location is often staggering, with some hog operations holding over 10,000 animals. These animals are kept more than 45 days in the enclosed feed operations. An immense amount of manure is generated from these operations.

CAFOs are controversial to say the least. It seems no one wants one in their backyard, yet most people love bacon and pork chops. There is certainly a dilemma. Fights continue to take place in counties across Missouri over the allowance of CAFOs. Smithfield Hog Production, located in northern Missouri, operates large CAFOs, but they are working hard to find and implement more environmentally friendly practices. To do so, they have partnered with Roeslein Alternative Energy.

Michael Rainwater is the general manager of Smithfield Hog Production. He said, "Smithfield is the largest pork producer in the United States, has a global presence and is really committed to this. We believe there is a right way and a wrong way to do things. Sustainability is not something we talk about. It's something we do. We have to sustain the environment, because we don't want to be in business for the next five years, we want to be in business for the next hundred and beyond."

The concentration of Smithfield's Missouri facilities is about 600 square miles, and Rainwater says they have about a 1.5-billion dollar impact on the economy. They produced 1.7 million hogs in 2017. They mill about 14,000 tons of feed per week, grinding about 16-million bushels of corn annually. Their operations use between $125,000 and $175,000 worth of energy a month.

All of those hogs produce a lot of manure. In most instances the waste is moved to lagoons where gases are released into the air. The remaining affluent is spread out on land. Smithfield Hog Production spreads 750-million gallons per year. Enter Roeslein Alternative Energy, who mixes native grasses into the manure, spreads tarps over the lagoons, captures the gases, then through anaerobic digestion, refines the gases into biodiesel.

Native grass is key to Roeslein's mission. In partnership with Smithfield Hog Production and the Environmental Defense Fund, Roeslein recently convened a conference to discuss the future of responsible land management and around Missouri's Grand River Basin. A focus was placed on providing market-based solutions that significantly improve water quality, soil erosion, nutrient losses, carbon sequestration, and soil health.

A video Roeslein produced included footage from a helicopter tour of the upper Grand River. It showed heavy erosion produced by row-crop farming on highly erodible land along with nutrient and sediment runoff from farm fields into watersheds. This is an area where Roeslein hopes to establish a 200,000-acre pilot program to address native grasses solving this problem.

"When we look at the Grand River and more of the impaired rivers in north Missouri, they look daunting, but if we take them in incremental steps, I think together we can make significant improvements, we can leave a legacy to our children that is about hope and not a continuous degrading of our landscape," Roeslein said.

There are four principle practices involved in the project: 1. Convert highly erodible land to native prairie instead of row crops. 2. Institute cover crop programs on agricultural land. 3. Install riparian barriers at riverbanks. 4. Plant contour native grass buffer strips to absorb fertilizer, rainfall and soil runoff.

One very important key to this, is the farmers are not expected to do this only out of the goodness of their heart or solely because of concern for the environment. Roeslein is creating a market-based approach where the grasses will be crop, bought by the ton.

"When you look at the complexity of agriculture and the complexity of what happens on a landscape, not in my lifetime could I learn everything you need to know to make every right decision. But I don't want to leave a legacy of another false start or potentially put farmers in a situation where they are going down a pathway that is a dead end," Roeslein said.

Rudi Roeslein has created a system that benefits both climate change and CAFOs. His plan to restore native grasses, through a market-based approach, will provide all of us cleaner air, healthier soil and purer water.

MoDOT streamlines hay movement for drought relief by offering special permit

Severe drought conditions through much of the state have prompted the Missouri Department of Transportation to offer a special overwidth hauling permit to help farmers and ranchers move hay as needed.

Loads must be of legal height, length and weight. Permits can be requested via phone and will, in most cases, be issued within minutes via fax or email. The $32 permit fee will be waived through Oct. 31.

Before hauling, drivers must apply for the special overwidth hauling permit for loads that exceed eight feet and six inches in width, and map their route to avoid work zones, bridges and other areas that have weight, narrow lane or height restrictions. This information, as well as a special bridge and height restriction view, is available on the MoDOT Traveler Information Map at modot.org.

"Missouri's agriculture community thrives when neighbors and rural communities rely on one another, and that is exactly the support this waiver will encourage," Director of Agriculture Chris Chinn said. "We sincerely thank Governor Parson, as well as the Departments of Natural Resources and Transportation, for their continued support of farmers and ranchers during this extensive drought season."

MoDOT's waiver and special overwidth permit allows drivers in Missouri to:

- Obtain the permit at no cost,
- Haul hay loads of up to 12 feet and 4 inches in width,

• Move hay during holiday periods and at night. At night, or when visibility is less than 500 feet, drivers must use a reflective, oversized load sign and clearance lights instead of the normal flags required at the edges of the load.

Drivers must adhere to all permit requirements, such as using proper signing and lighting and stopping at weigh stations.

Drivers should also be advised that most of the southeastern United States is currently under a quarantine zone for imported fire ants, which can be easily spread through the movement of hay. Farmers and ranchers who believe they have received fire ants in a shipment of hay should call their local University of Missouri Extension agent as soon as possible.

To obtain a permit, hay haulers should call MoDOT's Motor Carrier Services office at 1-800-877-8499 to report the year, make, license plate number and vehicle identification number (VIN) of the power unit and provide the farm business name and address.

MoDOT permits cover movement within Missouri only and are required for each truck.

More resources and information about drought conditions, as well as a directory for producers needing to buy and sell hay, are available online at dnr.mo.gov and agriculture.mo.gov.

The Oak Ridge Boys are an oldie, but a goodie — and the band has still got it as they showed off their talents July 27 on the 71st annual Gasconade County Fair's main stage.

While the foursome aren't the original band members from the 1940s, they've got spirit, entertainment smarts and charisma that draws in both the new fans and old. Not-to-mention visiting with the bunch was like chatting with favorite uncles about past exploits. Unfortunately, a late promise to interview the entire band went wayward due to a faulty starter on the tour bus that delayed the group's arrival — but not their spirits. Fans chatted about how excited they were to see The Boys in concert again or for the first time.

Questions presented to The Oak Ridge Boys were collected from fans prior to the start of the meet and greet.

Veronica Jett, 83, was front of the line with three of her seven grown children in tow.

"In the late 70s they played at Six Flags and we would go and see them," Veronica Jett said.

Her children, Mark Jett, Craig Jett and Glenda Vogt remembered those adventures well and were happy to take their mom to see The Boys in her hometown. Veronica asked if any of the vocalists were single.

The Little Miss second runner-up, Reagan Tainter, 5, turned out to be a big fan already. While waiting for their turn in line, she hummed a few lines of Elvira next to her mother, Karri Tainter. She wanted to ask The Boys to sing Elvira. Later she was too shy to get a word out.

While William Lee Golden, Richard Sterban and Duane Allen prepared to meet with fans and friends before the show, Joe Bonsall met with The Republican for an interview.

Veronica Jett's question certainly lightened the mood as The Republican explained the questions came from the fans.

The Republican: The lovely Veronica would like to know if you are single?

Bonsall: "No, Veronica, I am married," Bonsall said, speaking directly to his first fan. "I think I was born married."

Veronica Jett laughed delightedly and told Bonsall they had seen the group at Six Flags in the 1970s. Bonsall jokingly asked if they were having a water fight?

"And I was married. Still married," he laughed.

The Republican: What do you like the most about playing in small towns?

Bonsall: "I like playing everywhere. Big towns, small towns. Last night we had a show in Tulsa, tonight will be just as much fun in Owensville. You have good people come out to hear you sing and you go out there and sing. It really don't matter the size — it means nothing to me. I could sing to a handful of people or 100,000 at the Super Bowl of country music."

The Republican: What is the best crowd you have ever sang for?

Bonsall: I love to have a lively crowd, people who enjoy it and like what we're doing, as opposed to people just sitting there like they are in a doctor's office. I like to see people really get into it. Fairs and in small towns, people usually are because they don't see as much — not as many acts come through. Therefore they are really glad to see ya and make it feel like they are glad to see ya. Then you are glad to be singing for them. So it feeds each other."

The Republican: Have you ever participated in contests at the small fairs where you performed?

Bonsall: "Years ago, I remember sitting in one of those water things where they throw the baseball and dunk ya. I did that. It was for St. Jude's or somethin,' and when they ask ya, you can't say no to St. Jude's. I got dunked. A couple of times. I can't remember many contests."

Bonsall said if he was invited to ride in truck pulls or a derby though, he would definitely do it.

"You are talking to a guy that would do most anything. I probably would," Bonsall said. "I have ridden horses out at the Cheyenne Frontier Days. I have done different things I am a little weird."

The Republican: Who is the most interesting person you have ever met?

Bonsall: "Well now, that's hard."

The Boys have played for presidents, with Blake Shelton, Garth Brooks and so many others. Bonsall said they know many interesting people.

"I have spent so much time with George Herbert Walker Bush, I would have to say him because he has been a good friend to us for so many years," Bonsall said.

But then he changed his mind to Charles Elwood "Chuck" Yeager, a former United States Air Force officer and record setting test pilot.

"I am a World War II buff, and both of these guys were heroes in World War II," Bonsall began. "Chuck Yeager is 95 now, and he is the greatest pilot of all time. I spent a lot of time with Chuck and hearing WWII stories and pilot stories about getting shot down in France and hiding under a bed so that the Germans don't find 'em. Stuff like that. That is pretty interesting. I say Gen. Chuck Yeager."

The Republican: What is the oddest thing you have every been asked to sign?

Bonsall (with an allover body wave) said, "A hand? No — body parts. That covers it. They can use their imagination!"

On stage, The Boys had fun "in the field."

Connie Brandt of Loose Creek said she had been looking forward to this concert all week.

"It's very good," Brandt said. They're a band where you know every song!"

Little Reagan Tainter sat with her mother and friends during the concert to hear Elvira at the end.

"They are not playing the right song," she told her mother midway through.

The group finished out with Elvira, bringing the whole crowd to their feet with excitement and clapping. Looks like they will be around a good deal longer.

"It's good to be here," Bonsall said. "We are glad we are here."
